"Well," suggested Mamma, "you could tell him stories—some of the ones you read in your books—and you might describe what you see—a flower, a tree, a horse, a dog, whatever happens to be before you at the time. Just think, Don, he doesn't know what any of those things look like! Suppose you were that way, wouldn't you feel dreadful and lonely and—and wouldn't you be very glad if any little boy who could see came to play with you?"

"Yes'm," answered Don, dutifully. "But, Mamma, he can't play baseball or Prisoner's Base or marbles or—or spin tops—or do any of the things all boys like to do!"

"I know, Don, but that is just the point—and just the reason why you should be willing to sacrifice some of your time and give him a little pleasure. I'm surprised that my son is so selfish."

"All right, Mamma," Don replied, "only not this afternoon, please, because the boys are all going to spin tops."

So, with a shake of her head and a look that made Don feel very uncomfortable, Mamma agreed to postpone his visit until the next afternoon.

Then, the next afternoon, Don hadn't been with the new boy ten minutes before he found himself very much interested. Harry, for that was his name, seemed to be able to do a surprising number of things that Don had never even dreamed any blind boy could do.

At first, of course, the meeting between the two lads was very stiff and awkward; or, at least Don thought it was. But presently he asked Harry if he didn't want him to read to him out of his story book. And Harry surprised him by replying that he had been reading all morning and would rather be out in the open air.

Reading? Reading? A blind boy reading? Don could scarcely believe his ears.

"You see," said Harry, with a smile, "I'm just learning to read with the blind alphabet. The letters are raised and I understand, quite different from your A B C's in shape. I feel them with the tips of my fingers and can tell what they are. I can't read very fast but I've been trying all morning and I'm tired. Let's go out and play."

"All right," agreed the astonished Don. And then he added, "What shall we play?"

"Have you a smooth street near here—one with asphalt on it?" asked Harry. "If so, let's spin tops. Do you spin a top?"

Don gasped. He was never more surprised in his life. A blind boy spin a top? Well, well!

"Yes, oh yes, indeed!" he hastened to reply. "There's an alley right by my house and its as smooth as glass—all of us boys spin our tops there. I've got two in my pocket—do you want me to lend you one? But I've only one string."

"Oh, that's all right," answered Harry. "I have my own top and string, too. Come on, let's go. You don't mind walking slowly, do you, and telling me when I'm apt to run into anything. You see, after I've been there several times, I'll be able to locate every object and I won't have to bother you to guide me."

Which was another surprise for Don

But the greatest one came when the boys reached the alley and Harry began spinning his top. He wound the string around it most expertly and a great deal more quickly and tightly than Don could do. Then he seemed to pgoesss a marvelous knack of making it spin.

Why, he could make his top "go to sleep" better than could any of the boys Don knew. And he could make it "walk" and "hum" and climb up the string and do all sorts of wonderful things with it.

Indeed there wasn't a boy in the neighborhood who could spin a top as he could. Presently Don stopped spinning his own and, with his string hanging limply from his hand, he stood watching Harry, amazed and fascinated.

And before he knew it, he forgot all about Harry being blind!

From that day on, the boys were firm friends and Don took care to introduce Harry to all of his friends, and they, too, liked him as well as he did.

TEDDY'S BIG KITE

(To be colored with paints or crayons. Whenever you come to a word spelled in CAPITAL letters use that color)

YELLOW-haired Susie May and her dolly are admiring BROWN-haired Teddy's big kite.

"See its long PURPLE tail! I made it all of paper!" says Teddy with pride. The kite is paper, too, and is YELLOW with big GREEN, RED and BLUE semi-circles painted on it and RED and GREEN and PURPLE dots. The decorations in the semi-circles are BLACK.

"Oh, my! What a long kite string you have, Teddy!" cries Susie May. "How did you wind so much on that YELLOW stick? The color, RED, is perfectly lovely, too!"

Susie May wears a PINK (use RED lightly) cap and frock. The cap has a GREEN feather in it and her frock has a light-YELLOW bow. Her socks are YELLOW and her slippers are BLACK. The baby coach is YELLOW with RED wheels and handle. Baby-doll's blanket has a PINK border and bear on it. Baby-doll has a light-BLUE bonnet and coat. The bonnet has PINK bows and is very cute.

Teddy wears a BLUE cap and a White sailor suit with RED collar, emblem and cuffs. His tie is BLACK. He wears YELLOW shoes and White socks.

The sky is BLUE except for the one big white cloud. The grass is a darker GREEN than the trees behind Susie May. You can color the pavement GRAY (use BLACK lightly) and the border of this picture can be YELLOW with RED lettering.

Both children and baby-doll, too, have PINK cheeks and RED lips.

The Busy Plants

WHEN winter winds blew loud and cold,
And you were warm and snug—
When all the winter tales were told,
Between a kiss and hug—
Way down beneath the ice and snow,
The little plants were working so!

And all the roots were saying,
"Now,
Catch on and dig down hard!"
And all the stems were learning how
To climb into your yard;
And little buds were dressing up
To be a rose or buttercup.

So now that all the world is gay
And school is nearly done,
You're not the only dears in May,
Deserving of the sun,
For while you worked all winter through—
The little plants were working, too!

Pretty Stories Of Spring Flowers

ONCE upon a time an old man was traveling along a mountain side. He was leaning on his staff; his back was bent and his limbs were weak and weary.

"What is this?" he cried as his eyes caught sight of a tiny blue flower almost under his foot. "Such loveliness in this rugged place," and he stooped to pick it from its stem.

"Wait a moment," sighed the wind. "Look beyond, and you will see things really worth while."

The old man raised his head, and lo, two huge rocks separated and there loomed before him a cavern. He entered, and beheld the most wonderful jewels, and masses of gold and silver.

"My luck has turned," he said. "With these I can do great things."

He filled his knapsack with this new-found wealth, and was about to retrace his steps to his humble home, when the two huge rocks closed again, catching the knapsack that the old man had fastened on his back, inside the cave.

He Filled His Knapsack With This New-Found Wealth

There he stood, as poor as before, but he was grateful, "for," he mumbled, "a little more and I would have been shut in, too. I'll go home and stay there."

"Forget-me-not," cried a little voice from under his foot, and the tiny blue flower stretched up its head in pleading.

He took the blossom home to his wife who, after hearing the story of the lost jewels, kissed the flower tenderly and said: "We still have our little 'Forget-me-not' to cheer us."

To this day, the lovely small blue flower is called Forget-me-not.

The Greeks had many gods. One of the most important ones was the god of the sun, and his name was Apollo.

Apollo loved many maidens, and occasionally he became very fond of good-looking youths. One in particular, Hyacinth by name, was loved by this great god.

Zephyr, also, was fond of Hyacinth. He was the god of the west wind, and he was bitterly jealous of the favor Hyacinth showed toward the sun god.

One day Apollo invited Hyacinth to play quoits with him in the garden of the gods. Oh yes, the gods were sports, and played all sorts of games. Hyacinth was scoring, and Apollo seemed pleased, while Zephyr, who hovered unseen in a tree, resolved to be revenged.

It was Apollo's turn next, and as he raised the quoit, Zephyr caused a breeze to spring up and the quoit flew skyward instead of down, striking Hyacinth on the temple, causing his death.

"My Hyacinth," cried Apollo, heartbroken at the death of his young friend. And to commemorate him he produced a lovely, fragrant flower he called Hyacinth and which still blooms every spring as the sun's rays become warm and the gentle zephyrs blow.

On the banks of the Tweed, so the story runs, there dwelt a proud chieftain who had a lovely daughter whom he kept prisoner in a lonely and secluded part of his castle, because she had fallen in love with the handsome son of his greatest enemy. She was not permitted to leave her chamber or see anyone except a faithful attendant who felt sorry for her young mistress.

One day the lover induced this attendant to hide a ladder made of silken rope under her apron.

"Give this to your mistress," he said, "with it she can escape from her prison."

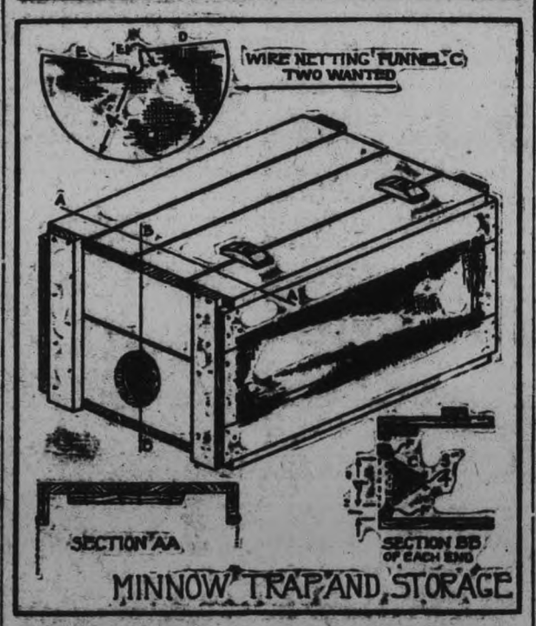
She Fastened The Silken Ladder To The Casement

At the appointed hour the lover waited at the foot of the high wall behind which the maiden's prison was built. He saw her fasten the silken ladder to the casement and commence her perilous descent. In her great hurry to reach the ground she missed her footing, and fell—to be dashed to pieces on the wall below.

On the spot where her body lay lifeless, close to the wall, a flower sprang up, the blooms of which were just like the dark brown velvet in which the hapless maid had been dressed. And thus her sad fate is recalled by the Wall Flower.

The HANDY BOY AT HOME

BY CHARLES A. KING.
STATE NORMAL SCHOOL, PLYMOUTH, N.H.



THE "Handy Boy" or the Homeworker may build this trap at home, and pack it full of things to be taken to the camp. When he gets there he has only to set it in water deep enough to allow the level inside to rise to perhaps 3" from the top; in any case the entrance C of each end should be well under water. Place rocks inside and outside to hold it, digging a hole in the sand to set the box deeper if necessary. If placed where schools of minnows swimming in shallow water near the shore will find it, their curiosity will lead them to investigate this new contrivance with the result that there will always be a supply of live bait that may be taken with a hand net. The minnows caught should be fed and this will attract others.

Secure a well built packing box, say about 12" x 15" x 25"; make the top into a cover as suggested in sections AA and BB. Cut part of the boards from each side and cover the opening with ¼" or 1/3" mesh hardware cloth. Near the bottom of each end make a 4" round hole and chamfer the edges as in section B. Make a cone of the netting by cutting an 8" circle to the form shown and folding the edge D by edge E to line E1. Fasten and pound all sharp wires down and nail the cone to the inside of the end at F. Make the opening at the apex of the cone about ¾", leaving the points of the wires so they will discourage any ambition to swim out that may possess any of the prisoners.

NATIONAL SECURITY FIRST AIM IN HERRIOT'S EXTERNAL POLICY

WIELDS POWERFUL PARTY.

PARIS, May 19.—(AP)—Edouard Herriot, who probably will direct the new French government either as premier or foreign minister, gave an inkling of the external policy he will pursue by unequivocally approving today a statement by Senator Joseph Paul - Boncour that France's program remains national security, arbitration and disarmament, in the order named.

M. Herriot endorsed the Paul-Boncour suggestion that France study the question of making some reduction in armaments as a step toward disarmament, thereby showing the sincerity of the French attitude toward Germany.

The statement of M. Herriot, leader of the powerful Radical-Socialist party which made great gains in the last Chamber of Deputies elections, was of considerable importance because, even if he does not become the premier, he is expected to wield more influence than any other member of the new cabinet. In the event he does not head the ministry he probably will take the foreign affairs portfolio.

Backs Boncour Doctrine

On the question of reparations M. Herriot declared himself for the Paul-Boncour doctrine, which is: 1. Maintain European solidarity; 2. Permit no rupture in the equilibrium between credits and debts at the expense of the French taxpayer.

Although receptive to the suggestion of armament reductions, the Radical-Socialist leader strongly approved the plan presented at the Geneva conference by Andre Tardieu. This plan calls for international security through an international police force to be supervised by the League of Nations.

Some Paris commentators deduced from this that M. Herriot would make arms reductions dependent upon acceptance at Geneva of the French plan.

Dials Kept Going As Workers Strike

MEXICO CITY.—Employees of the Ericsson Telephone Company, who walked out recently when their demands for holiday pay were not met, have protested to the Federal Board of Conciliation and Arbitration that despite their refusal to work, the company's automatic telephone system continues to function.

Under federal law, dissatisfied workers may strike against their employers at any time, the legality of the strike to be determined by the Board of Arbitration. The strike may legally continue in effect until the board's decision, hence the protest of the Ericsson employees that the company is proceeding with operations before the board renders its decision.

FEMINIST BEGINS APPEAL, LINDBERGH BABY FUND

Would Do Something For Children If Colonel Doesn't Want the Money.

LONDON, May 19. (AP)—Sylvia Pankhurst, noted feminist, said today she was launching an appeal in England for a Lindbergh baby memorial fund which, she said, would be used "to do something for children" if Col. Lindbergh does not need the money.

Miss Pankhurst's notion was born of reports here that Col. Lindbergh had expended his entire fortune in the search for his kidnapped child. The move was typical of the sympathy felt for the Lindberghs here.

Miss Pankhurst said she would find others to act on the committee to take charge of the funds and stressed that she did not want the money sent to her.

THANKS OFFERED TO CLUB FRIENDS

Dr. E. H. Wood Writes Letter to the Hockey Public of This City.

While this is scarcely the weather for hockey-talk, yet the following letter by Dr. E. H. Wood, president of the Peterborough Hockey Club, is interesting for several reasons. In view of the fact that last winter was a poor one generally for hockey teams, the local O.H.A. representatives fared better than was expected. And then, the merchants and friends of the club who helped pull it out of "the red" are to be congratulated for their friendly, helpful attitude toward local sport. While the artificial ice arena project for next winter has apparently fallen through, yet the Hockey Club looks forward to another ice campaign with confidence and the feeling that the worst is over. Here is Dr. Wood's letter:

To the Hockey Public of Peterboro.

On behalf of the Peterborough Hockey Club I wish to take the opportunity of thanking you for your loyal support during the most difficult season which we have just experienced. I also wish to give you a short accounting of our stewardship.

The receipts from the games were of course very disappointing. Our expenses were higher than usual as we had to buy more equipment for players on account of unemployment among them and their parents. This applied particularly to the junior team. It should be understood that hockey here in recent years has not produced sufficient revenue to supply full equipment for both intermediate and junior teams. Many boys play junior O.H.A. a year or two but never develop sufficiently to qualify for the intermediate team. Their services are therefore lost to the club, and with them goes any equipment purchased.

As a result of diminished income and increased expense we would have been in bad straits were it not for the generous support received from those who sent us subscriptions and those who paid $5.00 for a season's ticket, in spite of the fact that it was evident the season would be a washout.

However, we finished the year with about $100 more bills than cash. The creditors were approached and they all, with one exception, made reductions in their accounts up to 20 per cent. This reduced the deficit materially. A subscription from several members of the executive cleared this up, and there now remains a credit balance of $1.89 in the savings department of the Bank of Toronto. I wish here to express my appreciation of the help received from those merchants who so gladly reduced their accounts.

To the members of the executive who generously gave of their time and money and whose moral support during a trying season was no small matter, my sincerest thanks.

OBJECTIONAL PERIODICALS

QUEBEC, May 19. (CP)—If no other way can be found to stop the sale of objectional periodicals in the province of Quebec, action will be taken by order-in-council, Premier L. A. Taschereau declared to-day. An investigation is under way, Mr. Taschereau said, and if the attorney's general's department finds complaints justified, sale will be prohibited by special authority.

MERRY MAKING FOLLOWS

FREDERICTON, N.B., May 19.—(CP)—With warm, sunny days and cold, clear nights just ahead, New Burnswick's tiniest agricultural industry will be soon in the midst of its yearly four weeks of activity.

Shipkeepers will display for sale maple syrup, maple sugar, maple cream—all products of the sugar maple, Canada's national tree.

With the first stir of sap into the living tree from underground roots, where it has lain dormant during the winter, a feverish activity prevails in the sugar orchards. Men are employed, camps are established, equipment is set up—the sap is running.

There is something intangibly romantic in the maple sugar industry, something not linked with the more common everyday occupation of rural life. Hard words—yes; but a certain amount of jollity, a sort of holiday spirit, is present always when the sap is gathered.

It is a picturesque scene. Usually the ground beneath the tall, bare, stalwart trees is coated with snow. Every sound echoes through the forest pillars. Each tree, like an ancient water carrier, "shoulders" two pails, one on the east and one on the west. Sap trickles through a spout into one pail in the morning, when the sun is on that side, and into the other in the afternoon.

At regular intervals, a sled with huge casks, drawn by horses, passes by and the pails are emptied. In turn, the casks are emptied at the camp into the evaporators, where the precious liquid passes through several processes to emerge as maple syrup.

Syrup or Sugar

The syrup is bottled, or, if sugar is desired, is poured into steaming caudrons and boiled down to a certain density. On cooling, it hardens into the tasty well known sweet.

Often a party is held at the camp, when boiled syrup at the proper time is thrown into clean snow where it congeals quickly, forming into appealing foamy masses of maple "candy."

March 15 or 20 is the normal time for sap to commence running although weather and location of the sugar orchard, or sugary, have a great deal to do with it. If cold weather prevents late in the season the sap running naturally will be delayed. A sugary on the sunny side of a hill will operate much earlier than one on the level or on the northern side.

Trees in the same grove may be tapped at different times. "Early" trees are tapped at first and later ones afterward, although some of both hardly definable groups are operating at the same time.

Firewood is a big item of the industry, as fires must be kept burning constantly. This year huge quantities of wood will be cut and dried, ready for next season.

$30,000 Per Year

The maple sugar industry in New Brunswick is estimated to yield to producers about $30,000 a year. Some orchards in the province contain as many as 3,000 trees.

The yield of a tree in a season is rated at one pound of sugar or one quart of syrup, which sells at about 35 cenith a pound for sugar and about $2 a gallon for syrup. Products of the old pot style vary in price, but those made with the latest standard equipment have received the same price during the last ten years, with syrup selling at not under 50 cents a reputed quart wholesale, and sugar and cream at 35 and 40 cents a pound wholesale.

Full equipment for an orchard of 2,000 trees, costs about $1,000, the evaporator alone being worth $350 or $400. Two men, one to do the gathering and the other to tend the fires and production, are usually employed in each grove.

Equipment consists of a camp, evaporator, tin bucket, barrels, cans and bottles, sleds and sap casks and firewood. Counties in New Brunswick in which the maple sugar industry is carried on to the greatest extent are Westmorland, Albert, Yor kand Victoria.

The Maple Sugar Industry Act of 1931 was brought into force of Feb. 1, 1931. Being a federal act, the same regulations apply throughout the Dominion, and are administered by the Fruit Branch of the Department of Agriculture.

Last year, according to the Dominion Fruit Branch, there were in New Brunswick, 12 registered sugar bushes or orchards. This number, however, is believed to be not indicative, as many sugar orchards are not registered.

Last year there were 28 licensed sugar bushes or orchards, in the province, with a total of 31,450 trees, 28,650 of which were tapped. This, however, does not indicate the number of operators in New Brunswick.

Inroads Of "Upstart" Overcoats Arouse Wearers Of Spanish Capes

MADRID.—"La Capa," the association of makers, wearers and admirers of the Spanisn gentlemen's cape, held is annual reunion in Madrid recently, talked over old times and reached the conclusion that the inroads being made into cape-wearing by "upstart" overcoats were only temporary.

There was a time when capes were worn by all the better-class Spaniards and overcoats were looked upon as rarities. When the overcoat began to gain in popularity "La Capa" was formed for the purpose of stimulating cape-wearing and keeping alive the century-old tradition attached to this garment.

On one of the narrow little streets in the older section of Madrid, Santos Sesena conducts the tailor shop which was founded by his grandfather and which has always specialized in capes. Nothing but the finest quality woolen fabric goes into his capes. Proof that he is "Spain's leading cape maker" is found in the list of notable people whom he has served. Heading the list are Alfonso XIII, former King of Spain, and his two sons, the Prince of Asturias and the Prince Jaime. There follow, the former Dictator, Primo de Rivera, the Duke of Alba, the Marquis de Castilla, the Duke of Miranda and the Marquis de Pilares. Many foreigners are also listed, including Maurice Maeterlinck, Belgium author.

Senor Sesena believes that the Republic has hurt his business. In the days of the Monarchy all off the greatest politicians, writers and artists wore capes, but since the new Republic came into power the popularity of the cape has declined. But he continues his business, hoping that the day will soon come when Spaniards realize that the cape is a symbol of the glory of Spain and that they will wear it in preference to the overcoat, a foreign innovation.

In several of the smaller Spanish towns, particularly Segovia, Avila and Salamanca, the cape is still the preferred garment and overcoats are little used.

Bandits Believed Headed For Canada

BINFORD, N.D., May 19 (C. P.). — Several rolls of nickels, given him for use as "car fare back home," were held as souvenirs today by Chester Doolittle, banker of Ipswich, S.D., released near here after being kidnapped by four robbers.

Doolittle, cashier at the Bank of Ipswich, 175 miles south of here, was taken along for "protection" by the robbers after they had shot and wounded H. Plin Peebe, president of the bank, and escaped with $4,550 cas hand $17,000 in registered bonds.

Search for the bandits was being concentrated in this territory to-day. The belief was expressed by authorities that the robbers may have headed for the Canadian border.

Leafs Drop Double-Header 3-2; 3-0 To Baltimore

LACK OF TIMELY CLOUTING CAUSE OF LEAFS' DOWNFALL

WHILE LEAFS GET NINE.

Wings Defeat Reading 1-0 in 10 Innings While Bears Lose at Montreal.

(By the Associated Press)

With the end of the first intersectional series in the International League, the palmy days appear to be just ahead for the league leading Newark Bears and for the Baltimore Orioles, one of the four clubs locked in a tight battle for the contenders' honors.

Since the start of the season five weeks ago, the southern clubs of the circuit have been arrayed against their northern rivals with the north coming out considerably ahead in the victory count by consistently walloping reading and Jersey City.

Beginning today, they play for a while in their home sectors, giving Newark and Baltimore a few shots at the league's weaklings while the northerners, three of which are knotted up with Baltimore in a virtual tie for second place, must fight it out among themselves.

Toronto No Set-up

The fourth northern club, Toronto, has shown that it is no "set up" for anybody's ball club. The Maple Leafs got good enough pitching in yesterday's doubleheader with Baltimore to satisfy the most exacting fan but they failed to get the hitting and Baltimore won both games, 3-2 and 3-0 and joined the tangle of clubs a game and a half behind Newark. The Orioles are in an absolute tie with Buffalo a few points behind Rochester and a few ahead of Montreal. The differences in the averages are due to unequal numbers of games played.

Glenn Liebhardt held the Orioles to four hits in yesterday's first game while Ken Holloway granted nine. But one of the four was a triple by Bill Regan after walks had put two men on base and it was about enough to win. Baltimore hit Frank Barnes only six times in the second contest yet it was an easy victory when Russ Ariett hit a homer and Harry Smythe blanked the Leafs with two safeties.

Race Becomes Tighter

The other three second place rivals all turned in single victories. Montreal doing the best job by turning back Newark 6 to 2 to make the race all the tighter. Walter Brown held the league leaders to five hits for his fifth victory while the Royals capped Harry Holeclaw with vigor.

Buffalo's Bisons turned in a freak victory over Jersey City by an 8-5 count. They got only four hits off Art Jones and none off Larry Irvin but they received eleven free trips to first and Ryan smacked a homer with the bases full.

The Rochester Red Dings had to go ten innings to retain their tenuous grip on second place with a 1-0 victory over Reading. Eckert and Willis were the principals in a southpaw duel and Eckert scored the winning run on Jimmy Shevlin's single.

Three teachers in St. Matthias School, Bethnal Green, England, with a total of 108 years in the one school, are said to hold the British record.

The first picture made in Hong Kong, China, has just been shown, and is reported to be a success.

Canada "Wades" Into Britain

OLIVE WADE OFF FOR WIMBLEDON

Undoubtedly the shining light of Canadian ladies' tennis, Miss Olive Wade has embarked for England where she will show her wares at Wimbledon, after first testing her strength in the Beckenham and Queen's tournaments. While it is not deemed likely that Miss Wade will annex any of the British titles for Canada against the best women tennis players from England, France and the United States, notably Helen Wills Moody, she will gain by the experience, for Miss Wade has many years of tennis ahead of her. Beaten out for the Canadian championship last year, she nevertheless has a record that places her in the forefront of Canadian tennis. When only 13 years of age, Miss Wade won the Eastern Canada junior title, and in 1929 she held the Canadian singles championship both junior and senior as well as the ladies doubles. Just 20 years of age, Miss Wade seems destined to be a second Mrs. Harry Bickle, who was perhaps the greatest lady player Canada has ever produced. The young star learned nearly all her tennis ability from her father, who was a groundsman with the Toronto Tennis Club, represented now by Miss Wade. She was hardly able to toddle before her father had a tennis racquet in her hands, and she has been playing tennis faithfully ever since. The ABOVE layout shows, (1) Miss Wade in action, and (2) how she looks off the courts. Yes, she is a second Helen Wills Moody when it comes to beauty. She is accompanied on her trip by her mother.

CANADIAN SWIMMERS CAN WIN PLACES AT OLYMPICS IN OPINION OF NEW COACH

STATES HIS VIEWS.

By PATRICK O'LEARY
(Special to The Examiner, Copyright, 1932)

TORONTO, May 19.—If there is one person in this country really enthusiastic about the chances of Canada's swimmers and divers at the coming Olympic games at Los Angeles this summer, it is Tommy Walker, who last week was appointed to coach the Canadian contingent.

Tommy Walker

"Mind you," he said when interviewed at Central Y.M.C.A. in Toronto where he is now swimming instructor, "I dont for a moment claim we will win any events. But I do claim that Canada's swimmers are good enough to win places. And I think that Alfie Phillips, our diver, will finish in the first three in the men's event."

Tommy Walker is a famous son of a famous father, Johnny Walker, who is perhaps the world's most famous swimming coach. Johnny has coached more swimming champions than any other instructor in the world, among them being George Young of Catalina fame.

When asked who were likely representatives on the Canadian team which will number five men and five girls, Tommy said he had no idea.

Western Girls Good

"There is plenty of good material all over Canada," he stated. "The only certainty I know of at present is Alfie Phillips, Canadian and International Y.M.C.A. low and high board diving champion. He is bound to win points for Canada. As for the rest, I cannot tell. Munro Bourne of Montreal is perhaps the outstanding men's swimmer in Canada to-day and will probably get one place. As for the other men, test alone will tell. In the women's section, while there are many good swimmers in the east, there are also a number in western Canada who will give them a good run for their money. There is a Miss McConkey in Winnipeg, and a Fyllis Haslam in Saskatoon who are swimming exceedingly well. The Winnipeg girl can do the hundred yards in 1.06.1 which is fighty good time, and I understand the Saskatoon 'water lily' did the 220 breast stroke in 3.16.2 which if she can duplicate in the trials will certainly win her a place on the team and at Los Angeles. And there are others."

"What about the Spence brothers of British Guiana who claim they want to swim for Canada?" Tommy was asked.

Spence Brothers to Swim

"Walter swam for Canada in 1928, but failed to show much," said the Olympic coach. "Leonard and Wallace may also be good. But why should we send them? They may win for Canada, but that wouldn't mean much for this country. They were not coached in Canada, and have not done any swimming here for some time. The C.A.S.A. who are sending the swimmers plan to send the best Canadian swimmers, representative of the class of swimming in this country.

"The Olympic committee are not financing the swimmers' trips to the south. The various swimming clubs all over Canada are contributing to that. But I think the Spence brothers will swim for Canada by the authority of the Olympic committee, who, I think, will eventually decide to finance their trip, which will not cost much more than $1,000 anyway."

"What events do you plan to concentrate on?" we asked Mr. Walker.

Walter Spence

"The relay. It is really our only hope, particularly in the girls' class. If we can get four or five good swimmers together, I think we can by consistent training clip enough off their present times in a relay to make a place in the Olympic. As far as individual efforts are concerned, I don't think we stand much chance.

"As a matter of fact," he continued," we don't stand much more chance in any other sport, excluding those athletes who were trained and coached in the United States. They have a thousand coaches over there to our one here. But if we are only going to the Olympics to win, then there is not much point in going. We should send only Canadian athletes, I think, who have received their training in Canada and who have thus had to work a good deal harder to get anywhere. And the only encouragement they get, the only real benefit they get, is from these competitions. There is far too much of this win-at-any-cost attitude in Canada. Let's send our own athletes and swimmers, not somebody else's."

4 LOCAL BOUTS AMATEUR SHOW

FOUR TORONTO FIGHTERS.

Fred DeCarlo will fight Mel Gliona, Toronto pug, in the main bout of the Pioneer Club show at the Legion Hall tomorrow evening. It was previously announced that Gliona would be matched with Minicola, but the Toronto boxer cannot make that weight and will battle in the 135-pound class in future. His experience and shifty tactics will make him a good match for the harder-hitting, but less experienced DeCarlo.

There will be four Toronto-Peterborough bouts on the card, and all will go five rounds, each round of two minutes' duration. This will make for more action throughout. The other Queen City mittsers will be named tomorrow. Four all-local bouts will feature well-known amateurs.

Saunders and Kane, two fast 100-pounders open the show, followed by ap O'Toole and Bill Murphy, both belting welterweights. The husky Jack Minicola meets Jimmie Monaghan, a featherweight tussle, with Jack Bone fighting Jack Peel at 126 pounds. Bone is back again after suffering from a broken nose and looks good in gym workouts. He and Peel are expected to stage a hard scrap.

Jack Minicola started in the fight game with a K.O. over Tommy Heffernan and hopes to repeat, but Monaghan, a newcomer to boxing, shows plenty of fast boxing science. O'Toole won his first start when he put Dutch McIlmoyle to sleep on the last Pioneer A.C. card. He goes on against the popular Bill Murphy who can take and give plenty but who has been away from the ring a while. This bout should be a lively one. Saunders and Kane show promise and will fight hard throughout their go.

Jack Chamberlain, Tony Minicola and Harvey Smith meet Toronto fighters in their own classes, and all are in the pink. The show gives every promise of being a crowd-pleaser for those who like to see the amateur boxers in action.

M.C.C. Report

The annual report of the M.C.C. states that Lord Hawke is to be recommended as the new honorary-treasurer, and the usual four vacancies on the committee will be filled by Vinscount Bridgeman, Sir Stanley Jackson, Brl.-General Viscount Hampden, and R. C. N. Palairt.

The profit on the refreshment department last year was £1,426, and the club's receipts exceeded payments by £8.555 after bringing in £6,389 from 1930.

Sixty thousand crates of grapefruit are being shipped weekly from Porto Rico.

YANKS' WIN IS STANDOUT

Pitching of Bush and Batting of Grimm Gives Chicago 6-4 Victory.

TOO MUCH FOR CARDS.

(By Gayle Talbot, Associated Press Sports Writer.)

Returns from the year's first inter-sectional strife were at hand to-day, and the only outstanding beneficiaries of the movement appeared to be the Chicago Cubs in the National League, the New York Yankees in the American, and the railroads in general.

By sweeping all nine engagements with the invaders from the west, the Yankees had passed Washington and taken a fairly firm grip on first place. The Cubs, winning eight of 12 contests from the National League's eastern delegates, had overhauled the Boston Braves and likewise had entrenched themselves at the top.

Cincinnati's larruping Reds, with nine wins and five losses to show for their home stand, and the Philadelphia Athletics, with seven victories against four defeats, were the only other teams to show a substantial profit.

Possibly the outstanding development of the last two weeks was Washington's failure to fatten its standing at the expense of the visiting western clubs. Losing their last four straight to St. Louis, the Senators wound up with no better than an even break in ten games and found themselves a game and a half out of first place as they faced the Yanks in a somewhat crucial double-header at the Stadium to-day.

The Yankees terminated their remarkable streak against the visiting firemen by nosing out Cleveland, 3 to 2, on the strength of Babe Ruth's smash into the bleachers in the tenth inning. In so doing, they became the first team in the American League history to capture 15 straight games at home, the record book directores.

Washington bowed to the Browns 11 to 7, in a slugfest that produced 33 hits and used up four Washington pitchers.

Homers Feature

Lefty's capable pitchine and homeruns by Foxx, Dykes and Simmons featured the Athletics' partaking lick at Detroit. The score was 8 to 2. Smead Jolley's hitting, "five for five" helped the Boston Red Sox break a six-game losing streak at Chicago's expense, 13 to 10.

Bill Clark, Brooklyn southpaw, checked in with the day's best performance in the National League when he beat the Pittsburgh Pirates, 4 to 2, on four hits. Lefty O'Doul smacked a triple, a double and a single for Max Carey's crew.

A big seventh inning in which they scored seven runs and knocked Si Johnson from the peak gave the New York Giants a 9 to 3 victory over Cincinnati. Billy Terry topped off the seventh inning uprising with his homerun of the season.

Charley Grimm continued his batting rampage as the Cubs took theft final from the Phillie, 6 to 4. Three singles ran the veteran first sacker's record to nine hits in the last three games. Chuck Klein gave the Phils three of their runs off Guy Bush when he drove one out of sight with two on base.

Led by Wally Berger, who walloped a double and three singles, the Boston Braves defeated St. Louis, 8 to 3. The veteran Tom Zachary held the champions to five hits.

CASUAL COMMENT

Box lacrosse makes its bow to Peterborough sports followers at the Brock this evening. Orillia and the local intermediates tangling at 8.30 in an exhibition game to introduce the new sport here. The home team will be selected from these players: Creighton, Goodfellow, Miller, Boivin, Dundas, King, Brady, Magee, Palmer, Fisher, Rathwell, Shaw and Reynolds.

• • • • • • •

We're hoping for several new entries in the City Baseball League at the meeting this p.m. It's called for eight bells at Duffus' and everyone interested in this loop is urged to attend and get the youngsters started again. There'll be no difficulty getting another bantam crew, making four, but the juveniles and juniors may be a bit shy.

• • • • • • •

There's an executive meeting of the senior ball club this evening, too. It will be held at 7.30 in the "Y" with several important matters to be settled before the opening of the C.O.B.L. schedule. The question of admissions, equipment, opening ceremonies, etc. will be discussed.

• • • • • • •

Now that the starting senior team has been picked, the players will soon be clicking off right together. They play on exhibition tilt with an all-star E.P.L. outfit at Stevenson Park Saturday afternoon, and a good line may be had on their chances in the Central League. We'll get the probable line-ups for tomrrow's paper.

• • • • • • •

The Petes have plenty of lefthand hitters this year, only about five that swing from the right side. These include Rogers, Ash, Soully, Rose and Kitchen. Heckman also clouts them from that side, but that's all we can remember. That means, as we see it, that Belleville is likely to prove the toughest opposition with Morris, Campbell and Pointer all southpaws. Neither Cobourg nor Kingston have much in the way of portside hurlers

• • • • • • •

There were thirty players out at the Nats' workout the other night, the majority of them being young players, which pleased Walt Gerow very much. Old "Shiner" Johnston cavorted around the infield with Cretney, Darrah, Tice, Flagler, Morgan, Ethier and a few others.

• • • • • • •

We see where Hap Wilgar former Peterborough player is out with the Kingston team lately. He is a catcher, fair hitter, and Manager Frank Smith thinks he may prove valuable. Jimmy Arnell has been appointed coach of the team, but will no doubt do his share of catching, and Jimmy isn't bad at all behind the bat.

• • • • • • •

Mickey Compeau may not prove such a valuable asset to the Limestone Town outfit as was at first thought. He was once a classy shortstop, and can still both field and hit. But Compeau's arm seems to be pretty well shot. That wing gave him trouble several years ago and went blooey in the Calcium-Kingston game last Saturday. He will not likely play for awhile until the arm is given considerable treatment.

• • • • • • •

The first half of the Girls' Softball League schedule is drawn up, running from May 25th to June 30th. All games with local teams must start at six sharp, Standard Time, and seven, Daylight Saving, with country teams starting at 7.30 both at home and away. Delays will prove serious as seven innings must be played this year before it is counted a game. Formerly five innings constituted a contest, but a new ruling this year changes that.

• • • • • • •

Amateur boxing comes back tomorrow evening at the Legion Hall when Jerry Coughlins Pioneer Club show is staged. There'll be four Toronto-Peterborough main bouts and four all-local prelims. Gilona and DeCarlo will headline the card, but the other three Queen City pugs who will fight Harvey Smith, Tony Minicola and Jack Chamberlain have not yet been named, although promised to be here for sure. The local scraps feature Jack Bone vs. Jack Peel at 126, Jack Miniicola vs. Jimmie Monaghan featherweights, Hap O'Toole vs. Bill Murphy at 147 and Harold Kane against Shorty Saunders in the 100-pound curtain-raiser. Sounds like a pretty fair card.

A BRILLIANT PLAYER.

TORONTO, May 19.—Thousands of Canadians know him as R. M. Glover, president of the Peterborough Examiner, one of the Dominion's leading daily newspapers. As "Rolly" Glover, sportsman of a couple of generations back, his career is no less interesting. He played baseball, hockey and lacrosse. He started to handle a lacrosse stick as soon as he was able to carry one. He played during a period when players were so interested in the game as to get up at 6 o'clock in the morning for practice. He scored more goals in one lacrosse game, playing with Port Hope against Oshawa in a scheduled O.L.A. game, than he scored in hockey in all his hockey career. Port Hope had been beaten in Oshawa, 8-5. They had a good team, but lacked scorers. Peterborough was out of lacrosse and Jack McCabe and "Rolly" Glover joined the Port Hope team in the return game at Port Hope. Oshawa was defeated 25-2, Glover scoring 15 and McCabe 8 of the goals. He has had his nose broken three times, once each in baseball, hockey and lacrosse, 39 stitches in his head and face, but would like to be able to go through it all again. He thinks lacrosse as it was played years ago was the best sport to develop a boy physically and in self control. Mr. Glover never considered himself much of a hockey player, but the experience gained in lacrosse taught him how to use his body which gave him a decided advantage in hockey as a defence man. He was on two O.H.A. championship hockey teams, 1902-3 and 1905-6, when there was seven-man hockey, two thirty-minute periods and a player was off the ice only when penalized or was carried off. Mr. Glover is a past president of the O.H.A.

NEW LIGHTING FOR LACROSSE

Floodlights Will Enable Fans to See Every Play in Box Lacrosse Debut.

TO-NIGHT AT BROCK.

Ideal weather prevails for the box lacrosse game in Peterborough this evening. The weather will be just cool enough after a warm day for the players to put speed into their work at the Brock to-night, giving fans a real exhibition of the new Canadian game. Orillia plays the local O.A.L.A. Intermediates at 8.30, the game being an exhibition one arranged to introduce box lacrosse to Peterborough lacrosse fans and sports followers in general.

New floodlights will light up the field of battle, while the hard, smooth earth floor should bring out real flashes of speed. The visiting team, champions of the Tri-County League last year, are noted for speed, combination and hard checking, while the locals are all husky, experienced players who have been training hard for two weeks and should prove just as strong as the Orillia outfit.

One thing in which this game differs from hockey is the passing. The rules allow forward passing as in basketball and this makes for lightning action at all times. The forwards of the offensive team may be down near the defending goal when a long pass from the other end puts them in a scoring position at once. Opposing players single out their man to check and hang onto him as much as possible. Stiff body-checks, legitimate, and checking across the stick carrying the ball are permissible, but any attempt to cut a man down calls for a penalty. A competent referee will be in charge.

While the complete rule book governing box lacrosse is not yet available, the game will be readily understandable, not only to lacrosse fans, but also to those with a working knowledge of hockey. The main difference between the two games is that one is played on ice while the other takes place on a dirt floor on foot. Both are Canadian, both are packed with action and speed, and both are deservedly popular.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

SETTLED ONCE MORE.

Adventure for the young is best;
I'd rather stay at home and rest.
—Jerry Muskrat.

The water fell rapidly in the Laughing Brook and the Smiling Pool until they were quite themselves again, laughing merrily and smiling happily. Jerry and Mrs. Muskrat didn't wait for this, however. Just as the water had dropped far enough to allow them to work they became very busy.

"Shall we rebuild out in the Smiling Pool?" asked Jerry.

Mrs. Jerry shook her head in a most decided manner. "No, sir," said she. "That is, we won't rebuild out there now. Perhaps we will at the end of the summer so as to have the house ready for winter. Now we will do a little remodeling on this house in the bank."

"What is the matter with this house as it is?" demanded Jerry. "It always has been good enough for us and I don't see why it isn't good enough now. I don't see any sense in doing a lot of foolish and useless work."

"Who said anything about useless and foolish work?" demanded Mrs. Jerry rather sharply.

"Well, work that isn't necessary is both foolish and useless," declared Jerry. "What was good enough ought still to be good enough."

"It ought to be, but it isn't," declared Mrs. Jerry. "To begin with, that bedroom has been thoroughly flooded and it will take some time for it to dry out enough for a nursery, and that is what it will have to be if we use it. Then, when we left it we dug our way through the roof, so here we are with an entrance right out on the Green Meadows where any one who happens along can enter."

"We can cover that up with a lot of sticks and some grass," said Jerry.

Mrs. Jerry didn't take the trouble to even reply to this suggestion. "The thing for us to do is to make a new bedroom with a secret entrance hall connecting with the main hall just below the water line," said she. "Then we will feel reasonably safe and comfortable, knowing that no visitors can reach us excepting by diving and swimming."

This was sound sense and Jerry knew it. So they went to work, Mrs. Jerry taking the lead. In a surprisingly short time they had the new bedroom completed. Like the old one, it was just under the sod and partly protected by the roots of a tree. A little air-hole led to the surface and this was hidden nicely under a mass of drift stuff that the flood had left there. When the last bit of digging was finished Mrs. Jerry sighed.

"There," said she, "my spring housework is done and I begin to feel settled once more. I do hate this unsettled feeling."

"So do I," said Jerry. "Now that we are all settled, what do you say to looking for some clams."

Mrs. Jerry agreed, and together they swam to a certain place in the Laughing Brook just above where it entered the Smiling Pool, dived, and when they came up each held a clam. They swam down to the Big Rock in the Smiling Pool. The top of it was now above water. They climbed up and settled themselves in comfort. Then for a few minutes each was too busy ton talk. The clams were opened and eaten and the shells pushed off the edge of the Big Rock into the water to sink to the bottom.

Jolly, round, red Mr. Sun was just going to bed behind the Purple Hills from which the Black Shadows were starting out across the Green Meadows. A thousand relatives of Peeper the Hyla made a mighty chorus of rejoicing from the Smiling Pool and the swamp above it. Redwing the Blackbird was singing softly "Oka-lee, oka-lee," from the top of an alder bush. It was good to be alive. And it was good to be right there in the Smiling Pool and to know that they were settled once more. Anyway, that is the way Jerry and Mrs. Jerry felt.

What To-Day Means To You

"TAURUS"

If May 19th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10 a.m. to 11:45 a.m. from 5 p.p.p to 6:15 p.m. and from 11 p.m. to midnight. The danger periods are from 7:40 a.m. to 8 a.m. and from 3 p.m. to 4:20 p.m.

Events on May 19th are foreseen to circle around home and home affairs. Parents will be called upon to assist or advise in the affairs of their children. People now contemplating a second marriage will find the course of true love does not always run smoothly, and are advised to await developments before going to the altar.

The child born on this May 19th will have a captivating personality. It will be a superficial student in the schoolroom, but will have too keen an eye and clever a brain not to constanly pick up interesting bits and ways in the broadening university of every-day life. A very promising future is pictured for it, although it best opportunities will not come very early in life.

Born on May 19th, you have many of the characteristics belonging to a clinging-vine sort of person. You need somebody upon whom to lean, and it would be a mistake to place on your shoulders a load which only a sturdier and more solid being could carry. You lack faith in your own judgment and ability and always like the moral backing of someone, no matter what it is you are going to do. On your assumption that the whole world is wise and you are foolish, you seek counsel from both reliable and unreliable sources. Advice seeking and advice mongers are killing your initiative and dulling your personality.

You will always run with the pack and never will have enough nerve to strike out as a pioneer in any field of endeavor. You would go further and be happier as a subordinate than trying to fill more independent or masterful positions. You are a willing worker and when once on to the ropes are deft and quick. If you can find a safe and comfortable rut into which to slide, and out of which you can seek a comfortable living, you will be content. You feel security and find comfort, not boredom, out of sameness and routine. You are very much a home-body and only like social contact with your family and special friends. Your are fond of light reading.

ESKIMO WOMAN LIBERATED FROM POLICE BOAT PRISON

Shot Trapper Who Seized Her According to Primitive Custom.

HELD FIVE MONTHS.

EDMONTON, May 17 (Special to The Examiner). — Tragedy brought on by a white man's attempt to adopt the primitive morals of the Eskimos in the Far North, ended happily for Kobvello, a Cogmalik Eskimo tribe woman.

The Federal Department of Justice ordered her release from a makeshift jail aboard the Royal Canadian Mounted Police schooner Stroche, frozen in the ice beds of the Arctic Ocean, 200 miles east of Akiavik.

She had been held since last December 9, on charges of slaying Fritz Schurer, United States citizen.

It is the custom in the Arctic for an Eskimo in need of a servant to follow his traplines and do other labor, simply to seize any single woman he sees and take her with him into the wilderness.

Schurer did just that to her. Kobvello said. He seized her on Herschell Is'and, he continued, forced her to accompany him on a trapping expedition, and made her do all the manual labor. That was according to custom. Kobvello admitted, but when Schurer attempted to kill her because he no longer needed her services, she rebelled, and shot him.

After pondering all the facts in the case, the Department of Justice radioed the schooner, ordering Kobvello's release. It will be perhaps some time before she can be removed from the ship because of of the ice.

Canada' production of furs totalled 4,057,479 pelts in the season 1930-31, an increase of 259,035 over 1929-30.

A card party was held on Tuesday evening at the home of Miss E. Kennedy on Queen street under the auspices of the Catholic Women's League. Prizes were won by Mrs. S. J. Gibson and Mr. Hugh Nolan while Mrs. J. J. McFadden and Mr. G. A. Charlton won the second prizes.

By an inadvertant error the name of Mr. Dan Kennedy was omitted from the list of pall bearers at Mr. Sullivan's funeral. Mr. Kennedy's name should have been in place of Mr. Whibbs.

The W.A. of St. John's Church heard the report of the annual diocesan meeting held last week in Toronto at a special meeting held on Tuesday in the Parish Hall. The report was very interesting and encouraging.

The W.M.S. of Knox Church visited the W.M.S. of Bridgenorth on Thursday last and presented an interesting program with the president Mrs. W. J. Charlton in the chair. Mrs. Charlton gave a very interesting address on mission work and Miss Helen Porter gave a very delightful talk on the Student's Volunteer Conference held last winter in Buffalo at which was one of the delegates for Queen's University. Mrs. Yale gave an address on a scriptural subject and Mrs. Elizabeth Cameron sang a solo.

On Thursday evening the I.O.O.F. and the Lucky Strikes meet and the local interest is warming up. These league games are well worth patronage and as the players are all Lakefield boys and now there is a strong appeal to those who love their town and desire to support its institutions. On Friday evening the Legion and the A.Y.P.A. girl's teams are to meet.

The second tournament of crokinole between Roseneath and Alderville was held on Friday night and ended in favor of Alderville. There were seventy-two games played altogether, Alderville winning thirty-seven and Roseneath thirty-five. Evidently both teams had spent considerable time in practice. Those who played for Alderville were Messrs. Thomas Edgar and Amos Marsden, Ernest Crowe, John Loukes, John Smoke. Roseneath team consisted of Messrs. C. W. Varcoe, A. J. Campbell, H. H. Lapp, A. Brown, Earl Radley and Billie Halstead.

Rev. R. W. Paton was scorer. The ladies of Alderville served a dainty lunch at the close, which was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

Mr. and Mrs. William Elliott and son Gerald of Garden Hill spent Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Blodgett.

Miss Mary Mouncey, telephone operator at Costleton was home with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Mouncey for over Sunday.

Miss Jennie Covert has gone to Cobourg where she has secured a position.

Miss Ella Linton entertained a few of her friends at a birthday party and during the afternoon a very pretty quilt was quilted after which a dainty lunch was served and a pleasant time was spent.

The Women's Institute have bills out for the play to be given on May 24th. During the evening a draw of tickets will take place on the beautiful walnut chest, which is on exhibit in Mr. McMillan's show rooms and is in aid of the Roseneath baseball team.

Mr. Harold Blodgett, Plainville, spent Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Blodgett.

JOHN H. CURTIS NOT IMPLICATED IN KIDNAP PLOT

Police Have Investigated Actions of Curtis on March 1.

CONDON CO-OPERATING.

No Way of Forcing Dobson-Peacock to Come to Hopewell.

HOPEWELL, N.J., May 19 (C.P.).—Superintendent of State Police H. Norman Schwarzkopf announced to-day that there is "nothing that would in any way link John H. Curtis, of Norfolk, with the actual kidnappers of the Lindbergh baby and the collection of the ransom money."

Curtis was jailed at Flemington yesterday, following his confession that he had perpetrated a hoax on the Lindbergs in claiming falsely that he was in direct communication with the kidnappers of their baby.

After the confession, investigation was immediately begun as to Curtis' whereabouts on the night of March 1, when the baby was kidnapped, and the night of April 2, when the $50,000 ransom was paid by Dr. John F. Condon. Schwarzkopf's statement to-day came as a result of this investigation.

After exonerating Curtis of implication in the actual kidnapping and collection of the ransom, Schwarzkopf said that Dr. Condon had been "most co-operative with police," and had offered to come to Hopewell or go anywhere else with the investigators.

Must Rest Several Days.

A message received from his daughter this morning, Schwarzkopf said, indicates that Dr. Condon's physician has ordered that he rest for several days before his activities are resumed. As soon as Dr. Condon is rested we will continue taking him around.

Schwarzkopf's statement also made comment on the telegram from Rev. H. Dobson-Peacock, former Canadian rector, in which the Norfolk associate in the Curtis activities declined to come to Hopewell, but said that he would give all information to police going to Norfolk.

"There is no legal way in which we can force Mr. Peacock's presence in either Hopewell or Flemington," said the superintendent. The fact that Peacock requested the deposit of $35,000 in Norfolk is substantiated by Col. Lindbergh and others who were present when Peacock made the request.

The full statement as it applied to Curtis follows:

On April 2, Mr. Curtis was in the company of Lieut. Richards and his actions are accounted for. There is nothing that would in any way link him with the actual kidnappers and the collection of the ransom money.

When Mr. Curtis was first questioned he manifested concern for the safety of his family, and we requested director of public safety, Col. Charles Borland, of Norfolk, Va., to protect the Curtis family. No reports have been received that any threats have been made against any member of his family.

It is understood that Mr. Curtis has a brother, George, who, however, lives in or near Norfolk, and nowhere in the vicinity of New York. At no time did Mr. Curtis see any of the actual ransom notes, nor the signature on them. In fact it was the request of Col. Lindbergh for actual truth of his negotiations with the kidnappers that was the basis, upon the desire, to have Mr. Curtis bring from his alleged kidnappers, a letter of communication bearing the signature known to be that of the kidnappers.

Baseball "Gab" Rule Rescinded By League

NEW YORK, May 18.—(CP)—The National baseball league today announced it has rescinded its much discussed and censured rule prohibiting ball players on the field from speaking to anyone in the stands.

The rule was adopted this year after considerable discussion and a fine of $5 set as the penalty for its infraction.

The rule proved to be unpopular with public and press, President John Heydler said as well as with those engaged in the playing of the game. It is hereby rescinded.

TARZAN AND THE GOLDEN LION. NO. 4
By Edgar Rice Burroughs
(Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.)

The two Arabs drew apart, discussing whether to kill the ape-man or to hold him captive. At last the cunning Motlog's advice prevailed. "Let us take him before Ibn Jad," he said. "What the sheik does with him is his own business. Come!" And so Tarzan was taken along with their other trophies of many days' hunting back toward the menzil of Sheik Ibn Jad.

In the open men's apartment of his bayt Esh'ar squatted the Sheik Ibn Jad of the Fendy El-Ouad. Beside him sat Tollog, his evil brother and a handsome young Beduin named Zeyd. This youth was a favored suitor for the hand of Ateja, the lovely daughter of the sheik. Toward her, Zeyd stole many a glance as, with Hirfa, her fat mother, the two women busied themselves in the sheik's harem.

As the women worked they listened. "We have come a long way from our beled, without mishap," Ibn Jad was remarking. "Now we are close to the spot where the magician foretold I should find the castled city of Nimmr. Soon we should enter El-Habash." "Thinkest thou to find this fabled city easily, once we are within the boundaries of El-Habash?" asked Tollog, his brother.

"I shall find means to make the habashy loose their tongues," said Ibn Jad grimly. "Nimmr is known to these people. Fejjuan, my head slave, though he has never been there, heard of it as a boy." Then the sheik permitted himself a chuckle, partly at the thought of Nimmr's gold and precious stones and partly in anticipation of the tortures he would inflict upon the men of El-Habash if they refused to guide him. TWO KEENE MEN FINED IN COURT

Fined $15 and Costs — Car Also Confiscated for Illegal Fishing.

INDIANS SELLING FISH.

Convicted of infractions of the Provincial fish laws two Keene residents were this week fined $15 and $12.50 respectively when they appeared before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., at the Court House here. In addition the car in which they were riding when caught by Dr. M. P. Kennedy, district fish and game overseer and which contained a 17½ pound female lunge, was confiscated.

It was stated to-day by an official of the local Fish and Game Protective Association that every effort is to be maintained to put a stop to illegal fishing and that prosecutions for infractions of the fish and game laws will be pursued vigorously by the Association.

As a result of selling fish in this city, which it is alleged had been caught illegally, four Curve Lake Indians were apprehended by members of the Association recently. Two of them were taken to the Police office and prosecutions in these cases are contemplated. It is also learned that a local resident who purchased some of the fish has been served with a summons, according to the president of the Association.

He elected summary trial and pleaded not guilty, being remanded for one week for trial.

CHILDREN APPRECIATE FLOWERS IN THE PARKS

A lesson in children's appreciation of beautiful things might serve as title for this.

It happened at King Edward Park this morning. Six little girls were walking along the park paths on their way to school. Their faces were bright and laughing. They stopped beside a bed of flowers, one of the beds that the city has set out in this park that now contain about 5,000 blooms.

One by one they set their school books down on the grass, bent over and smelled the flowers. With murmurs of "Ain't they sweet!" they took one last long smell and then continued along the school.

Now for the other side of the picture. In another park at almost the same time, one of the gardeners saw a girl, about about 10, hurrying across the park. In her arms she carried a large bouquet of tulips and daffodils. He shouted to her, but she hurried on. He returned to one of the flower beds and found that many plants had been robbed of their blooms.

Obituary

MRS. JAMES DIONNE

After a short illness, Mrs. James Dionne, 96 Lansdowne street, died this morning at St. Joseph's Hospital in her thirty-eighth year. She was the daughter of Mrs. John Sullivan, 63 Pauline avenue, Toronto, and formerly of Peterborough.

Mrs. Dionne had been a resident of Peterborough nearly all her life. She is survived by her husband and eight children, seven girls and one boy; also by her mother and four sisters, Mrs. G. Brennan, Mrs. B. Eddy, and Mrs. R. Lynas of Toronto, and Mrs. C. Nancarrow of Clawson, Mich.

The funeral will take place Saturday at 8.45 a.m., from Lane and Eano's funeral home to the Sacred Heart Church, and thence to St. Peter's Cemetery.

WILLIAM LEWIS

LINDSAY, May 19.—The funeral of the late William Lewis was held at Dunsford, Monday, May 9th, the deceased man having passed away at Guelph General Hospital, Friday, May 6.

Mr. Lewis is survived by two brothers and five sisters, David of Smith township and Isaac of Peterborough; Mrs. M. Taylor of Lindsay; Mrs. A. Pascoe of Saskatoon; Mrs. D. Robinson of Brooklin; Mrs. W. McGregor of Bobcaygeon and Mrs. H. Bate of Toronto.

Much sympathy is felt for the family in their double bereavement, their brother Morgan having passed away April 3.

The late William Lewis was born in the township of Emily, April 10, 1871, moving with his parents to Verulam, where he resided till 1913. He remained retired till 1917 when he purchased a farm in Erin township, Wellington county, where he remained to the time of his death.

He was a breeder of Hereford cattle and Oxford sheep, and was also an enthusiastic grower of good seed grain, making a specialty of Siberian oats, having sold seed to all parts on Ontario, many States of the Union and several shipments to Europe and New Zealand.

He was honest in all his dealings, always interested in the work of the church, and made an intensive study of the spiritual life. He was widely known for his musical talents, always being will to help in the service of song.

The esteem in which he was held was shown by the tribute paid him by his host of friends of Erin and also of Dunsford, Scotch Line and surrounding district.

MARTIN KYLIE.

Martin Kylie who for many years conducted a grocery in the north end of Ashburnham, died early this morning at St. Joseph's Hospital after a brief illness. He was 76 years of age.

Born in Otonabee township, Mr. Kylie had lived the greater part of his life in this city and was highly regarded both as a business man and as a citizen. Of a kindly, unassuming disposition he took little active interest in things outside of his family or business, although every worth-while endeavour for the betterment of the community always had his heartiest support. Many years ago he was quite prominent in Liberal circles.

He is survived by his widow, formerly Theresa Hanrahan; three sons, Cecil and Emmett of this city and Joseph of Rochester, and three daughters, Mrs. Mary Gerin and Mrs. Gertrude Tobin of Peterborough, and Mrs. Denis Hayes of Rochester, and several grandchildren.

The funeral will be held from the family residence, 556 Rogers street, at 8.45 a.m., on Saturday to Immaculate Conception Church at 9 o'clock. Interment will take place at St. Peter's cemetery.

ALLEN LAWSON.

The funeral was held yesterday of Allen Lawson who died recently while paying a visit with his niece, Mrs. John Trotter, of 181 Murray street. Services were conducted at Comstock's Funeral Home by Adjutant E. M. Falle of the Salvation Army and by H. Browett, of Bethany Tabernacle. Interment was made at Little Lake cemetery.

Besides his niece the deceased is survived by one brother, George Lawson of Toronto, and two sisters, Mrs. Fred Beavis, Uxbridge, and Mrs. Lafraw of Unionville.

YOUTHFUL EARL CALLS FOR AID

HOPES TO SAVE ESTATE.

MONTREAL, May 20. — One brown calloused hand gripping a new and shiny suitcase, George Perceval, rancher of Priddis, Alta., and brother of the late Earl of Egmont who was recently killed in an automobile accident in England, stepped on board the Canadian Pacific liner Duchess of York today to sail third class to England. He is coming in answer to a cable from his 18 year old nephew "Freddy" the new earl.

The death of his brother was cabled him last Monday morning and by Monday evening he was on the train bound for Calgary and then East.

As to what is going to happen when he gets to England, he has no idea. Death duties have decreased the value of the estate seriously he said and it may be a problem to keep historic Avon Castle in the family. George Perceval will act as guardian to the new earl.

13 OTHERS ESCAPE.

Volunteer Brigade Have Close Call as Second Explosion Occurs.

COURTLAND, Ont. May 20.—(CP)—A disastrous fire which swept the premises of the Drimilk Products Ltd., following a serious explosion late yesterday, caused damages estimated at more than $100,000 and injured a workman so seriously he died later in the evening.

Charles Logan, 26, was working in the powder-milk room of the plant at the time of the explosion. Flames immediately enveloped the room in which the box was located. Logan struggled through the flames to the street and collapsed, his clothing completely burned from his back. Thirteen other men working in the building at the time escaped unscathed.

Logan was hurried to Tillsonburg Hospital, five miles distant. He was 26, married, and the father of three children.

Plant In Flames

Flames were soon sweeping the length of the plant, constructed nine years ago, and when the volunteer firemen realised it was doomed, they turned their attention to saving a row of nine houses on the opposite side of a narrow street. Water from the lake, well in the vicinity was passed in buckets, from hand to hand, to douse the houses and the efforts of the human chain were successful.

Shortly after the original blast, believed due to spontaneous combustion, a second and heavier explosion occurred and the east wall of the structure was tossed into the street like matchwood. Four other lesser explosions shook the village and sent the volunteer fire fighters scurrying to safety.

A number of Canadian National Railways box cars on the plant siding went up in the flames.

The destroyed plant was a subsidiary of the City Dairy Company of Toronto, and was owned by the Borden Milk Company of New York.

League Economy Meets Opposition

GENEVA, May 20 (C.P.). — The British move to cut down the expenses of the League of Nations encountered additional opposition to-day.

Salvadore de Madariaga, Spain's representative, said he did not think the amount expended was excessive as he considered the League the best insurance of world peace.

Sir Eric Drummond, Secretary-General of the League and the spokesman for Italy, France, Jugoslavia, and China, lined up against the move, with only Germany supporting the economy drive.

RESCUE PLANES DOWN IN ALASKA

First Pilot Seeking Marooned Scientist Becomes Lost Himself.

SECOND HUNTS FIRST.

CHICAGO, May 20. — New lines were written to-day in the drama of the ill-fated University of Chicago expedition to trap the mysterious cosmic ray on Mount McKinley.

An American Airways pilot seeking to rescue a scientist marooned on ice was missing somewhere in the ice vastness and another who set out to find him was down 150 miles from Fairbanks, Alaska, the base for rescue operations.

S. E. Robbins took off from Fairbanks yesterday in the hope of lifting Percy T. Olton, Jr., New York engineer, off the glacial perch where E. P. Beckwith was rescued by plane last Tuesday. He was long overdue last night and nothing had been heard from him since he reported flying over the perch earlier in the day.

Lands on Glacier

Another pilot famous for his Arctic exploits, Joe Crosson, set out from Fairbanks to find Robbins. Offices of the American Airways here were informed last night he was forced to land on a glacier. There was no mention of any damage to the plane, and Airways officials expressed hope he could take off to-day.

Robbins, Crosson and Pilot Jerry Jones had planned to bring Olton into safety yesterday and to set out to-day in search for Nicholas Spadevecckis, a missing member of the expedition, in which two others, Allen Carpe and Theodore Koven, met death by plunging over a precipice less than two weeks ago.

The expedition was one of several sent to various points throughout the world by the University of Chicago to measure the strength of the sun's cosmic rays at high altitudes.

FISHERIES ACT AMENDED

OTTAWA—A bill amending and consolidating the Fisheries Act was put through the committee stage and given third reading in the House of Commons today. There was little discussion.

ABANDON MERCHANT MARINE RECOMMENDED BY COMMITTEE

Canadian Merchant Marine Cost People $440,000 Last Year.

SOME SERVICES TO STAY.

OTTAWA, May 20. (CP). Abandonment of the Canadian Government Merchant Marine and the sale or lease of the existing fleet are recommended by the House of Commons committee on Railways and shipping in its report tabled by R. B. Hanson (Cons., York-Sunbury) in the House to-day. Moneys required to cover deficits in this service for 1932 amounted to $440,000.

Finding that this sum is necessary, the committee "reiterates their view and belief that the time has come when the government should, if possible, abandon the policy of operating a government merchant marine." If possible, the report says, arrangements should be made "for the sale or lease of the fleet, and where practicable and not contrary to imperial or inter-dominion relations, the government should make arrangements with other shipping companies so that the trade of Canada may be protected."

The foregoing recommendation does not refer to the Canadian National-West Indies service or the steamship coast service on the Pacific coast.

URGE EASTERN LINES' DEFICITS BE SEPARATE

OTTAWA, May 20. (CP) — Moneys required to make good the deficits on the eastern lines of the Canadian National railways should not be included in the same estimate as the sums appropriated under the provisions of the Maritime Freight Rates Act, the special parliamentary committee on railways and shipping recommended in its report presented to the House of Commons by R. B. Hanson, (Cons. York-Sunbury) to-day. These should be shown separately. Even if legislation to effect that end is necessary, the report says.

Two Bankers Hurt When Auto Crashes

OWEN SOUND, Ont., May 20.—(C.P.)—C. W. Coles and E. Fussey of the staff of the Bank of Montreal at Chesley were seriously injured last night when their car left the road north of Chesley. Coles had not recovered consciousness today. The car plunged into a deep ditch and then broke through a strong wire fence. Provincial Constable McLevis who investigated, stated it must have been travelling at a terrific speed.

EVIDENCE SHOWS MANY OWNERS FOR AIRD FYLE

Found First By D. R. O'Gorman in His Office Among Dockets Left by Millard.

MADE PHOTOSTATIC COPY.

Turned Over to Liberal Secretary, Returned, Disappeared—Didn't Trust Hydro.

TORONTO, May 20 (C.P.) —The missing file of John Aird, Jr., was at one time in the possession of Harry Johnson, secretary of the Ontario Liberal Association, the Royl Commission on Hydro was told to-day. And even after Mr. Johnson returned the papers to D. R. O'Gorman, who was said to be connected with the Georgian Bay Construction Company, who had turned them over to him, the Liberal official had retained a photostatic copy.

The file first became famous during the last session of the Ontario Legislature, when it became known they had been offered to members of the Government, Opposition, and to newspapers. Later it was obtained by the Commission after it was turned over to Sir John Aird.

To-day, however, the disappearing docket was finally pinned down.

D. R. O'Gorman of Toronto, declared he had found it while searching through some files left in his office by R. W. Millard, former partner of John Aird, Jr., and had retained it because he thought it was in the public interest.

Johnson Kept Copy.

He had turned it over to Mr. Johnson in the presence of W. R. Percy Parker, prominent Liberal, and later had a photostatic copy made and turned that over to Mr. Johnson. Meanwhile, Millard had been trying to obtain the papers, and eventually they disappeared from O'Gorman's office. He did not know how they had reached Buffalo, when Kenneth McLeod, also of Toronto, had learned of Bennett, Answering U. S. Reports, States Negotiations Not Even Contemplated.

STATEMENT IN HOUSE.

OTTAWA, May 20 (C.P.).—"I desire to say that no negotiations of any kind, form or description whatever between Soviet Russia and Canada have been initiated or are under way or are intended to be initiated or put under way."

This was the emphatic and unqualified statement of Prime Minister R. B. Bennett in the House of Commons to-day in respect to an article which he had been advised appeared in one or more United States newspapers to the effect that negotiations looking to a trade agreement between Soviet Russia and Canada were under way. The published report added that it was anticipated that the negotiations would be successfully concluded in time for approval before the meeting of the Imperial Conference in Ottawa in July. The Prime Minister, in rising to make his statement, remarked that he did so in a matter which concerned the privileges of the House.

Indefinite Halt In Hydro Probe

TORONTO.—The royal commission investigating certain Ontario Hydro matters was adjourned indefinitely to-day.

Commissioner Mr. Justice Orde announced he had to preside at other cases beginning Monday and could not say when he would again be free to continue the Hydro hearing. He expressed the desire to complete the probe before the Autumn.

TRAIN DITCHED, ENGINEER DIES

18 CARS ABLAZE.

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., May 20. — (C.P.).—An oil train, going from Coutts oil field to Lethbridge, was wrecked three miles east of here to-day, causing the death of the engineer, serious injury to the fireman and loss by fire of hundreds of gallons of crude naphtha.

The engineer, "Scotty" Donaldson, was pinned beneath the engine when it was pitched off the tracks. Connelly, the fireman, whose Christian name could not be ascertained, jumped as the engine pitched over, but his clothing caught fire from the burning oil and he was severely burned. His recovery is doubtful.

The accident occurred at one o'clock this morning as the train passed over a level crossing. The tank car behind the engine pitched off the rails first, throwing the engine and two other cars from the tracks. Fire immediately broke out, and early reports said the whole train of 18 cars was on fire.

Whether any other members of the crew had been injured could not be learned.

OFFICERS READY FOR MINE BREAK

Rumblings Among 400 Strikers at Coleman Cause Anxiety.

UNION DENOUNCED.

COLEMAN, Alta., May 20. (CP)—Fearing new outbreaks, extra police were stationed in Coleman last night as rumblings and dissension in the ranks of 1,400 striking coal miners gave hints of further trouble.

With a dozen constables and other officers ready for emergencies, Inspector Duncan, in charge of the Lethbridge west division of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, was keeping in close touch with affairs.

Four hundred striking miners, supporters of the Mine Workers Union of Canada, gathered here today and heard speakers denounce efforts of the newly-organized local union to negotiate for the reopening of the International Coal and Coke Co., and the McGillivray Coal Co., mines, idle since the close of February.

A meeting called by the newly-organized union was cancelled, leaders fearing a clash with the supporters of the Mine Workers Union of Canada.

Thieves and burglars were trained in a "school" recently unearthed by Prague, Czechoslovakia, police, daylight robbery being a featured course.

"Pyjamas or Nightshirt"—New Snag In Rector's Trial for Immorality

LONDON, May 20. —(AP)— Whether the Rev. H. F. Davidson wears pajamas or the old-fashioned nightshirt became a matter of importance today in the consistory court at Church House, Westminster, where he is being tried on charges of immorality.

R. F. Levy, counsel for the 62-year-old rector, brought up the nightclothes issue in an effort to impeach the evidence of Barbara Harris, a pretty blonde and a member of the considerable group of young women who have testified against the clergyman.

Miss Harris, the counsel said, painted a lurid picture, in the course of her evidence, of what had occurred when she was in Mr. Davidson's room. Mr. Levy pointed out that the young woman mentioned a pair of pajamas in this testimony.

The rector never wore pajamas and the defence will so prove, Mr. Levy informed the court. He asserted that Miss Harris was "lying out of malice and that she was "biting the hand that fed her."

Gives History of Manchuria and Reviews the Serious Situation.

Peter E. Wong, a Chinese newspaperman, in touching upon some of the essential factors in the problems of the Far East, provided the members of the local Kiwanis Club with one of the most interesting and informative addresses at today's noon luncheon at the Empress Hotel, that has been heard in many years.

His address, closely followed throughout by the large assembly of clubmen who met under the presidency of Harry J. Boyle, constituted an explanation of the events which have led up to the present conflict between China and Japan, and was also a brilliant defence of China's policy.

Mr. Wong was introduced by J. J. Turner as "a Toronto publisher," a designation which the speaker naively disclaimed. He was, he said, "just a poor struggling newspaperman."

Fine News Source.

"We newspapermen have to make a living and we do so by supplying the news." He thought that the Far East had been a particularly fine news source lately, and he described reports that have been coming from that section of the world as being true on the whole, although much of it was colored and some of it was highly distorted.

In order to get a true perspective of the whole situation he said it was necessary to review Manchuria's historical background. Manchuria is a place of the approximate size of Ontario and with a population of thirty millions. Twenty-seven to twenty-eight millions of that population was Chinese, while of the remainder there were about 800,000 Koreans, and White Russians and Japanese. The population was predominantly Chinese.

Manchuria was rich in coal and iron and other mineral resources, as well as being very fertile which was one of the explanations of Japan's present attitude and the covetousness of Russia, he said.

Closed Previously

For three hundred years Manchuria had been a closed country and was recently opened by Imperial edict. In 1894, he explained, a curious thing happened; China under the old Manchu regime adopted a policy "of live and let live." Manchuria was given self-government and consequently Japan which had begun its modernization on lines of British sea power and German militarism, declared war upon China in Korea. China lost that war and was forced to relinquish Korea. Japan had also cut a slice out of the Manchurian peninsula—the most valuable part. Russia, under the Czar, wanted the same portion.

Harbor Grievances

Since the Japanese and Russians harbored grievances, the speaker said; China thought that Russia was a friend and consequently gave her the right to build the Chinese Eastern Railway from Vladivostok to the southern tip of Manchuria. It gave Russia an outlet to the sea at all seasons of the year. Japan was incensed more than ever, and the Russo-Japanese War resulted with the victory, much to the amazement of the world, going to Japan.

The Plymouth treaty gave Russia rights in Southern Manchuria, and to-day there are dual zones of in-

Boy's Nose Is Broken While Playing Ball

The first casualty of the local baseball season occurred at King Edward school grounds last evening, when Fred Darwin, 15-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Darwin, 438 Mark street, suffered a broken nose. Trying for a place on one of the bantam teams, the boy was fixing his glove when a hot one came at him right off the bat. Unprepared, he didn't have time to even dodge and the hard Spalding struck him on the nose.

Dr. C. C. Cragg set his nose at the Clinic. Fred is not deterred from his baseball activities by the accident and expects to be back in the game soon.

Urges Downward Salary Revision For All Officials

Commons Committee Gives Unanimous Approval — Bennett Points Out, With Present Conditions, It Is Impossible To Save $50,000,000 In Year.

CLAIMS RAILWAY SITUATION ON CONTINENT BEGGARS ALL DESCRIPTION—LACK OF TRAFFIC

OTTAWA, May 20. —(C.P.)— "In view of the results of the past two or three years, your committee strongly recommend that until there is a marked improvement in the earnings of the system, capital expenditures should be limited strictly to the barest necessities, always consistent with efficiency." This is the first of a series of recommendations of the House of Commons committee on railways and shipping, tabled by R. B. Hanson, (Cons. York-Sunbury) in the House of Commons today, respecting the Canadian National Railways.

Urging that in view of the rapid decline of operating revenues "the most stringent economy be exercised by the management in all the controllable operating expenditures," the committee recommended that: "with respect to executive officers and other salaried officials of the railway, a thorough revision of salaries downward be made."

Concurrence in the report of the Commons committee on railways and shipping was moved in the House of Commons today by R. B. Hanson (Cons. York-Sunbury). The report was adopted after some discussion.

"I should not like the country to understand that it would be possible by giving effect to any recommendation of the committee to make a saving of $50,000,000 in twelve months." Premier Bennett stated during the discussion.

It was "perfectly ridiculous" to make any such statement, because it could not be done under present conditions in Canada. The railway situation on this continent was one which beggars all description."

The Prime Minister went on to assert that shares of the New York Central Railway are to-day selling for less than $12.00; whereas, a few months ago they were selling many dollars higher. Practically the same condition existed with the shares of the Pennsylvania Rail-

GUNMAN FOILED IN BOLD HOLD-UP

Although Wounded Toronto Store Manager Grapples With Lone Gunman.

MAN IS ARRESTED.

TORONTO, May 20 (C.P.) — Wounded in the head by a shot from the revolver of a lone gunman who attempted to hold him up in a Parliament street grocery store, Edward Reid, manager of the store, courageously grappled with the bandit and managed to hold him until detectives arrived and placed the man under arrest. The gunman gave his name as Wilbur L. Clifford; no home.

Reid was rushed to St. Michael's Hospital, where it was discovered he had suffered a slight wound in his forehead. It is expected he will be able to leave the institution with 24 hours.

According to the police the two men were grappling on the floor of the store, a branch of Dominion Stores, Ltd., when they dashed in. Detective F. Munro seized the intruder and attempted to pull him away. The gunman, police say, shoved the gun against Munro's chest, pulling the trigger, but for some reason the gun did not go off. Munro, with Detective C. Moshier, then closed on the robber, Munro clubbing him over the head.

He appeared in Police Court on three charges of attempted murder and one of robbery, in connection with the attempted holdup of a Parliament Street grocery store, and was remanded for a week.

Stick 'Em Up.

"I was working around the store when this hold-up fellow came in," said Mr. Reid. "He had a gun in his hand and he said to me 'stick 'em up.' I put up my hands and started backing toward the rear of the store, to see if I could get a chance to knock the gun out of his hand.

"When we got to the back of the store, somehow we started wrestling and then there was an explosion and he mustt have shot at me. I knocked the gun out of his hand, I think, but I know he kept knocking me on the head with something hard later. Finally I hit him under the jaw and that stopped him for a minute. I was still holding him and he was struggling when the detectives arrived."

Leo Flynn, janitor, who was working at the back of the store at the time, and who gave the alarm said that when the gunman saw him, he shouted, "Stay there, you." Flynn dashed out the side door and shouted to the police who were just passing.

The bandit fired after Flynn, striking the door frame where he had been standing.

Woman Pleads Guilty To Serious Charge

BRANTFORD, May 20. —(CP)— Mrs. Louise English of Paris, Ont., charged with procuring an abortion, following the death of Dorothy Tree Stratford, pleaded guilty before Magistrate Blake here today. The magistrate said he would take a week to consider sentence.

Crown Attorney Charlton pointed out that few of these cases came to light and asked for a sentence which would be a deterrent to others. Counsel for defence pleaded for leniency pointing out that Mrs. English had acted only to aid a girl in distress at the plea of the mother of the lad concerned in the case.

INJURIES FATAL TO CRASH VICTIM

Mrs. Albert Matthews, Injured in Crash, Dies in Hospital.

OTHER TWO SERIOUS.

TORONTO, May 20 (Special to The Examiner).—Injured Wednesday afternoon when a car driven by L. Charles Gunston, of Norwood, met in collision with a truck on the Toronto-Hamilton Highway, Mrs. Albert Matthews, aged 62, of 283 Gainsborough Road, died late yesterday of a fractured skull. An inquest has been ordered.

There is little change in the condition of Gunston, and Mrs. (Rev.) Albert Barker, of Cardinal, the other two injured in the crash, it was reported from St. Joseph's Hospital. Both are seriously injured but every hope is held for their recovery.

Provincial Police are still investigating the accident, but find their work difficult, due to the serious condition of those injured. No charge has been laid against either of the drivers as yet.

John Lascelles Is Ill At St. Joseph's

When the Earl of Bessborough, Governor-General of Canada, and his party arrive here on Wednesday there will be one member of the party who will not be much interested in the official reception. He will likely hasten over to St. Joseph's Hospital, where his son lies ill.

He is A. F. Lascelles, secretary to the Governor-General, and his son John, aged ten, is confined to hospital here. The boy is a student of Grove School, Lakefield, and was taken ill some time ago, being moved to St. Joseph's Hospital.

Although the boy's condition has shown marked improvement recently, he will not be well enough to leave hospital before the arrival of his father. Dr. G. S. Cameron is attending him.

OATH ABOLITION BILL APPROVED BY IRISH DAIL

RECONVENES WEDNESDAY.

Considerable Opposition Expected—Much Speculation Rife Abroad.

DUBLIN, May 20 (C.P. Cable).—President Eamon de Valera's bill, providing for abolition of the Parliamentary oath of allegiance to the British Crown, having been fully approved by the Dail Eireann, to-day awaits final action by the Seanad Eireann (Irish Senate) which reconvenes next Wednesday.

Adoption of the bill was voted last night, 77-69, when the Dail divided on strict party lines, Government and Labor members approving the measure, while the Opposition staged an eleventh hour attempt to prevent passage.

Speculation Rife

What treatment the bill will receive in the Upper House was the major political question in the Free State to-day and was being widely discussed in British political circles. It was considered certain, in view of verbal attacks already levelled at the bill by members of the Seanad and the generally more conservative attitude adopted by the Senators, the measure would encounter considerable opposition.

No indication, however, has been given as to how the Senate will alter the bill, if and when it decides to do so. Observers to-day saw three possibilities: adoption of the bill in toto, rejuection in toto, and qualified approval of one or more of its four sections.

Final action by the Dail last night marked the termination of many long and bitter debates and fulfillment by President de Valera of its most widely publicized pre-election promise. Defeat of the former government of William P. Cocgrave last March was considered by Mr. de Valera and his Republican party as a mandate from the Irish people to abolish the oath and obtain for the Free State complete independence. Drafting of the oath bill, in four sections, was the result.

Important Provision

Besides abolition of the oath the most important provision is for repeal of the second part of the Constitution Act which provides that anything in the Free State constitution repugnant to terms of the Anglo-Irish treaty may be declared null and void.

Whatever treatment the bill may receive in the Senate, that body cannot exercise a final vote. It may return to pass the measure for 18 months, but if it does the Dail may again pass it and if the Senate fails a second time to approve it, the bill becomes law after 60 days.

AUTO RUNS AMOK SIX ARE INJURED

Father, Mother and Baby Walking Along Sidewalk Injured.

THREE OTHERS ALSO.

TORONTO, May 20.—Six people were injured and many others leaped to safety at 7.15 last night when an automobile ran amok on Manor Road East and plunged over the sidewalk as the car ran down a man and his wife who were wheeling their infant son in a perambulator, the carriage was ground to kindling beneath the wheels of the automobile. As the parents, George Sidney Campbell and his wife, lay injured on the sidewalk, helpless, their baby was injured, the car continuing on.

The child was picked from the wreckage of the carriage and, along with the parents, was placed in one of the two ambulances hastily rushed to the scene. The mother and father were admitted to the General Hospital, while the infant was transferred to the Hospital for Sick Children.

Holds Baby in Arms

As the ambulance sped with siren blowing to the hospital, Mrs. Campbell held her injured baby in her arms. At the hospital she was advised the baby would have to be taken to the Hospital for Sick Children, and the mother readily consented.

After striking the two persons and the carriage, the car continued on its juggernaut course, swerving over lawns, through brush and trees. William Johnston of 327 Belsize Drive was walking along the street with his two children, Morris and Phyllis. Johnston was run down by the car, but fortunately his children escaped unhurt.

Marion Day of 416 Manor Road East, and Dorothy McWilliams, 431 Manor Road East, were walking along the street to a picture show when the automobile struck them, throwing both clear of the wheels. Other persons, whose names police did not ascertain last night, were reported to have escaped injury by the narrowest of margins.

POLICE RE-ENACT KIDNAP SCENE FROM NURSERY

JAFSIE RESTING.

Officials Doubtful of Convicting Curtis Unless Dean Peacock Testifies.

HOPEWELL, May 20.—Search for the kidnappers of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., has been brought back to where it started 80 days ago, to the foot of the crude, home-made ladder resting against the window-sill of the looted nursery.

Under personal direction of Col. Lindbergh the search was renewed from the very beginning yesterday when a detective with a bundle in his arms to represent the baby climbed out of the nursery window and took the trail of footsteps the father found on the night of March 1, when he rushed out in search of the abductors of his first-born.

While the movements of Col. Lindbergh and a group of detectives and State Police were a re-enactment of the first search, there was a vast difference. On the original trip over the ground the searchers were spurred by the hope the child would be recovered and restored safely to his parents' arms. That hope went out a week ago when the body of the baby was found under a covering of leaves less than five miles from the Lindbergh home.

Seek Overlooked Clue.

The trip over the same ground yesterday was made in the hope that some hitherto overlooked clue might be found that would lead to the identification and capture of the kidnapper-murderers.

From the foot of the ladder Col. Lindbergh led the party along the trail which had been followed for two miles from the house the day after the kidnapping. The beds of two small streams which traverse the Lindbergh estate were carefully examined on the possibility that

FARMER VICTIM OF FIRE IN BARN

Clothes in Flames, Petrolia Man Collapses and and Succumbs

FROM SHOCK AND BURNS.

SARNIA, May 20.—When Joseph Alexander, 65-year-old Petrolia district farmer, left his pile of burning corn stalks yesterday afternoon to try to extinguish a fire in his small barn, his clothing caught fire and he died a few minutes later of shock.

He ran out of the blazing barn, fell near the flaming corn stalks and died of shock due, the coroner claims, to burns and the inhalation of smoke and fire.

The Petrolia fire department extinguished the blaze.

LARGEST FOUR MASTER SCHOOL IN PROVINCE

NORWOOD, May 20. — It will be a surprise to many to know that Norwood High School has the largest attendance of any four master High School in the Province of Ontario. This week the attendance reached the unprecedented total of 127 pupils. This exceeds the large attendance enjoyed by the school some thirty years ago under the principalship of John Davidson.

Such a large attendance as at present, with Fifth Class work, involves heavy duties for Principal Lawlor and his staff. Eleven subjects are taught in the Fifth Form, the maximum allowed in any school.

India's leading radio telegraph and cable services have merged.

659 POSTMASTERS DISMISSED SINCE CHANGE IN GOVERNMENT

French Members Occupy Spotlight in Night Session of House.

AMEND GRAIN ACT.

OTTAWA, May 20 (C.P.)—French speaking members from Quebec occupied the centre of the Parliamentary stage last night when the departmental estimates of Hon. Arthur Sauve, Postmaster-General were under review. For two hours the entire discussion was in French with members seeking information on dismissals of postmasters.

It was a long day in the House. From 11 o'clock in the morning until almost midnight, a steady pace was maintained in clearing the Order Paper in preparation for prorogation next week.

Endorsing the recommendation of the Board of Grain Standards for a separate grading for Garnet wheat, the report of the Agricultural Committee was presented. It was recommended the Canada Grain Act be amended, operative for the crop year 1932-34, to establish a separate grade. The board, however, would be given a free hand to make changes in the proposed standards.

Hon. W. R. Motherwell, former Minister of Agriculture, moved in amendment to the report, that no change in the grading of Garnet wheat be made. It was defeated

Coalition Cabinet Delayed In Japan

TOKYO, May 20 (A.P.)—Pressure by influential military elements, backed by strong non-political forces, delayed to-day the approval of a coalition cabinet for Japan.

The Opposition, developing unexpectedly after a compromise had been arranged between Kisaburo Suzuki, Seiyukai party leader, and General Sadao Araki, Minister of War, made it necessary for Prince Saionji, Japan's veteran elder statesman, to extend his conferences another day.

It was announced he would make no recommendation on the choice of a new Premier to Emperor Hirohito until tomorrow.

Safety at Corners Aided by Mirrors

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. — Increased speed and safety in the traffic about the buildings and grounds of a large motion picture studio here have been obtained by an arrangement of mirrors permitting approaching motorists to see around corners in either direction.

If the image of another automobile or a pedestrian is seen in the glass, the approaching driver has ample time to stop or retard his speed before making the turn. On the other hand, if the mirror tells him that the roadway is clear, he need not reduce the rate of speed and thus arrives at his destination sooner.

SPECIAL TROOPS PATROL BOMBAY

Over 100 Killed in Hindu-Moslem Clashes During Past Week.

ARRESTS MOUNT.

BOMBAY, May 20 (C.P.)—Gov. Sykes to-day called out the Fifth Bombay Field Brigade, the Royal Artillery auxiliary force and the Bombay Light Horse, which are made up of non-official Europeans, to supplement His Majesty's regular forces in dealing with the Hindu-Moslem riots.

Although there was less rioting to-day and a measurable return of confidence, the Governor thought it necessary to call out the additional units as a precautionary measure.

Fifteen deaths were added to the total of more than 100 killed thus far in the rioting. Most of to-day's casualties were the result of stabbing affrays.

The Hindus attempted to burn a Moslem mosque in the Mill area early in the day but police prevented it and arrested forty Hindus.

CROWN IGNORES JURY'S VERDICT

Walter Graydon, Hamilton, Charged With Murdering His Son.

VIEWS VICTIM'S BODY.

HAMILTON, May 20.—Ignoring the verdict of a Coroner's jury returned Wednesday night, the Crown yesterday laid a charge of murder against Walter Graydon, 68 Victoria Avenue South, who is charged with inflicting the blow with an unknown weapon which caused the death of his 19-year-old son, Samuel, on Tuesday. The quarrel is alleged to have been caused by the son's attentions to a young married woman.

The jury Wednesday night in its verdict found that the father had administered the fatal blow, but added that it believed he acted under extreme provocation and in self-defence. The evidence showed that the son took off his coat and rushed toward his father, and the latter hurled half a brick, which struck his son on the forehead, fracturing his skull and causing meningitis. Another son had told police the weapon that was hurled was a flatiron, but he could not recall ever having said that, and declared he did not know what was the missile his father hurled.

The father will appear in Police Court on Monday on the capital charge. He is still in custody owing to his inability to raise bail of $5,000. The alleged quarrel occurred late on the night of Thursday, May 12. Mrs. Harold McCall, aged 18, of 36 West Avenue South, is the young married woman who admitted at the inquest Wednesday night that she had kept company with Samuel Graydon since she first met him on May 2. Despite pleas of the youth's father and mother and her own husband, who is 30 years of age, she said, she refused to end the infatuation.

Samuel Graydon was buried yesterday afternoon. His father was refused permission to attend the funeral, but was allowed to view the body.

Surgeons worked yesterday afternoon at the Nicholls Hospital upon the injured right foot of Arthur Hall, unemployed transient of Kitchener, who had his foot mangled beneath the wheels of fast freight when he slipped in trying to board it at 10.30 yesterday near the C.P.R. station.

The outer part of Hall's foot had to be amputated, and it is feared that more will have to be removed. The man was reported to be resting comfortably.

Dr. A. G. Howson performed the operation and is attending Hall.

Gas in the Stomach Is Dangerous

Recommends Daily Use of Bisurated Magnesia to Overcome Trouble Caused by Acid Indigestion

Gas in the stomach accompanied by a full, bloated feeling after eating are almost certain evidence of the presence of excessive hydrochloric acid in the stomach, creating so-called "acid indigestion."

Acid stomachs are dangerous because too much acid irritates the delicate lining of the stomach, often leading to gastritis accompanied by serious stomach ulcers. Food ferments and sours, creating the distressing gas which distends the stomach and hampers the normal functions of the vital internal organs, often affecting the heart.

It is the worst of folly to neglect such a serious condition or to treat with ordinary digestive aids which have no neutralising effect on the stomach acids. Instead go, from any druggist a little Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in water right after eating. This will drive the gas, wind, and bloat right out of the body, sweeten the stomach, neutralize the excess acid and prevent its formation and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or table form—never in liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and the best form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

LEAGUE TO RE-ORGANIZE LIBERIAN GOVERNMENT

GENEVA, May 20. — (AP) — A scheme for reorganizing the Liberian government, which would provide for an international manager to whom full authority would be delegated, was adopted today by the council of the League of Nations.

The plan was adopted a few days after a report was submitted to the League declaring that many men, women and children had been burned alive by the Liberian frontier military force.

The council's propsal, which includes reorganization of the administrative system and the departments of health and finance, was based on the findings of an international enquiry conducted at the request of Liberia.

"Liberia's financial situation is tragic," the report said. "She has no budget, no accounts and no money."

WOMAN FLIER MUM ON GOAL

Amelia Earhart Putnam Will Head for Europe But Names No Spot.

CONFIDENT OF VICTORY.

SAINT JOHN, May 20.—On her last lap previous to her solo flight across the Atlantic to a destination as yet unannounced, Mrs. Amelia Earhart Putnam took off from the Saint John airport this morning at 8.23 o'clock (A. S. T.) She expected to land at Harbor Grace, N. F., about five hours later to complete final preparations for the supreme effort of her career as an aviatrix.

Bernt Balchen was at the controls. The aviator who piloted Admiral Richard E. Byrd in his expedition to the south pole took off easily, circled over the airport and turned into the northeast on the way to Newfoundland.

"Plans Indefinite"

Miss Earhart talked freely with reporters on all but one subject—her destination in Europe. The same secrecy which veiled her departure yesterday from New Jersey, was maintained. "My plans are indefinite," was her answer to questions on that point.

Miss Earhart was confident of victory. She appeared to be well rested and ready for the test. Her chief worry was about weather conditions over the gulf of St. Lawrence and Newfoundland.

Balchen was tired after a strenuous period of several days getting the Lockheed mohoplane just right for the trip through the air currents over the broad Atlantic. "I'm going to sleep for two days after I see Miss Earhart away," he told reporters.

NEW BRUNSWICK THICKLY DOTTED BY FOREST FIRES

93 OUTBREAKS.

Settlers' Homes and Summer Cottages Razed Among Beautiful Settings.

MONTREAL, May 20. (CP) — Memories of the $20,000,000 damage sustained from forest fires in New Brunswick in 1923 were recalled today when the provincial forestry service continued to receive reports that severe blazes were raging in various parts of the heavily wooded inland territory.

New Brunswick and Quebec were still dotted with scores of bush and forest fires with a steadily mounting loss of trees and other property. From various points came word of destruction of settlers homes and summer cottages.

With serious fires still burning in Restigouche, Madawaska, Gloucester and Victoria counties, New Brunswick's quota of forest fires has become alarmingly large. An appeal to all citizens of the thickly-wooded province to assist authorities in preventing a province-wide spread has been issued by Hon. L. P. D. Tilley, Minister of Lands and Mines.

93 Fires

Ninety-three fires, several of which, fanned by high winds, were far out of control, have been reported by head office of the forestry service. No county had less than one. Northumberland county suffered greatest property loss.

Strong belief was held that if dry weather prevailed much longer, a situation would develop too serious fires for fire fighting crews to cope with.

A check-up showed that in many districts new fires had started, although most of those previously reported were under control. The destructive work of the flames, was chiefly felt in the Gaspe Peninsula. Ten buildings were destroyed in Temiscouata county rendering many homeless. Near Amqui, Matapedia county, a fire was reported out of control with several buildings burned. Other fell prey to the flames at St. Eusebe de Cabano.

50 Settlers Homeless

Les Frontiere, Montmagny County, was menaced by a fire which destroyed 20 houses and drove 50 settlers, from their homes. A fire was still burning near Bersimis, along the south shore of the St. Lawrence and small outbreaks were reported from various centers.

The western section of the province was also still in the grip of bush fires. Flames continued to ravage the country about Rouyn and Noranda. The twin mining towns themselves were not threatened, however. A serious fire was burning near the Amulet mine, north of Rouyn.

Victoria Pastor Has Arm Badly Fractured

LINDSAY, Ont., May 20.—(Special to The Examiner).—Rev. Mr. Lemon, rector of St. Thomas Anglican church, Victoria Road, met with a painful accident when a trap door fell forcibly on his arm, causing a bad fracture.

King George will receive, in addition to other income, revenues from the Duchy of Lancaster totaling nearly $300,000 this year.

Chicago's Economy Is Declared False

CHICAGO, May 20 — Although Chicago plans to save at the rate of $15,000,000 a year, it is not actually economizing, as some of the leading municipal experts here see it. They declare that there is a big excess of employees on the city pay roll, that very little has been done to cut it down, and that as soon as good times come back the old total of salary expense will bounce upward again.

What is to be saved is chiefly through pay cuts. The political loafer on the pay roll and the efficient job holder who is carrying the burden of the public work have been cut alike. The pay roller has been saved at the expense of the worthy municipal employee, it is said.

AIRD PAYMENTS NEARING CLIMAX

Commission Expected to Adjourn for Week or Longer After To-day's Session.

DOMINION POWER NEXT.

OTTAWA, May 20. (C.P.)—According to present expectations, the $50,000 payment to John Aird, Jr., by the Hydro Electric Power Commission and the further payment of $125,000 made by the Beauharnois Power Corp., will be completely threshed out before night, and the commission will then adjourn for at least one week and possibly a much longer period. When it meets again, the involved transaction by which Hydro brought the Dominion Power and Transmission Ltd., of Hamilton for $22,000,000 will be taken up.

No part of either the Hydro or Beauharnois payments to Aird went into the coffers of the Conservative party of Ontario. This was the emphatic declaration of Hon. H. C. Scholfield, Minister without portfolio in the Henry cabinet, before the commission yesterday. Mr. Schofield, called as a surprise witness by W. N. Tilley, K.C., commission counsel, admitted handling a goodly share of the campaign funds in 1929, and further stated the election expenses had only reached between $15,000 and $16,000.

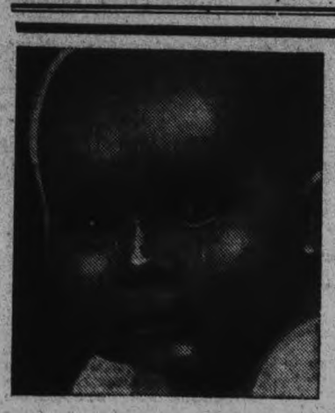
Both C. A. Maguire, commissioner and Hon. J. R. Cooke, Hydro chairman, declared there was no impropriety in the payment of $50,000 to Aird, who had stepped aside and facilitated the Hydro's acquisition of the Madawaska river —a property which was bound to be of vast value to the Hydro when the demand for power increased.

Cooke Sees Nothing Wrong

There was nothing wrong in the fact that the cabinet had passed the Aird payment in a general bill of $66,000 for preliminary investigation and survey of the property Mr Cooke said. The bill had been "okayed" by the minister responsible, in this case, G. Howard Ferguson, then premier, and no details had been sought by the cabinet.

Partners in the firm of Aird, McLeod and company, Hugh Aird, brother of John, and Douglas McLeod, both denied ever having any of the Beauharnois bonds in their possession .They had cashed coupons from the bonds and given John Aird three cheques of $1650 each, but had no further interest in the transaction.

John Aird had jointly offered to lend his brother anything up to $100,000 at one meeting, Hugh Aird said.



YOU'D NEVER KNOW HER . . .

. . . FOR THE SAME BABY

This is what Mrs. Albert Bolton, of Toronto, writes: "Our little girl, Margaret Jean, was nursed for the first few months, but this did not satisfy her, I had heard about Eagle Brand and decided to try it. She took to it right away and there has been no trouble since. Her flesh is firm; lovely, straight limbs, good bone development, and she is so contented. Last September she won third prize at the Canadian National Exhibition, against 102 entrants.

WILLIAM NEWMAN IS GUEST SPEAKER

Men's Club of St. John's United Church, Campbellford, Holds Final Banquet.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 20 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — "I believe at this time nothing will set the earth right but the bringing in of the kingdom of God," said William Newman, M.P.P., speaking last evening to the Men's Club of St. John's United Church, Campbellford. The speaker, who is the member for North Victoria, made a strong plea for co-operative service in the work of the Church and among the laymen of the Church.

The occasion was featured by a banquet at which the president, E. H. Greig, occupied the chair, and which will be the last in a series of these functions until September, when the fall season begins.

Mr. Newman stated that the need of the world to-day was the kingdom of God and the belief of all men in God and that kingdom. His belief, he stated, was in the Apostles' Creed, a complete summary of the Christian faith. Intellectually every man believed in a god but he declared the saw God in the blooming of a rose, in nature. He questioned, however whether individually all men believed and served God. "We believe that ministers serve God," he said, "but what of the other men who are performing the common tasks of life?" It was the duty of every one to serve God in his work, no matter what it was, in the office or at the plough, and only when we do this will we have the kingdom of God.

"The world needs the sacredness of life in the individual who calls himself the son of God," Mr. Newman declared, and pointed out that no man was perfect: all were full of faults but because of the love of God we were the sons of God. We expect the preacher to be a spiritual man, he said, but we somehow do not expect the ordinary man to be so.

The man whom we least expect, and yet remains true, no matter how low his position in life, will be rewarded in the end, the speaker said. If asked what ruling in life was necessary to-day in this time of depression he stated that it would be more faith in God and yet doubted if many men would pray for that. They would more likely ask for an increase in the prices of hog and butter and other produce, and yet "I believe God will take care of me with butter at 14 cents a pound," he declared.

"What is a depression if you and I have God almighty?" Mr. Newman asked. We had to co-operate one with the other and get the power of God behind our work. We had to co-operate with every Christian for the welfare of the kingdom. It demands a great faith, he stated, yet he believed that God was greater than any troubles we had.

The speaker was introduced by Harold Carr, a vote of thanks being tendered him by the president on motion of G. A. Kingston and Charles Calver. Contributing to the musical portion of the program, Albert Hazell rendered a vocal solo, Fred Palliser a reading, and community singing was indulged in with Mr. Hazell as song leader. G. W. Lucy was the pianist for the evening.

DEAN PEACOCK ARMY VETERAN

STILL BRITISH SUBJECT.

NORFOLK, Va., May 20. — The Very Rev. H. Dobson-Peacock, one of the three Norfolk negotiators in the Lindbergh case, assumed his duties here as rector of Christ Episcopal church in December, 1927.

A veteran of the Canadian army, where he served in the ranks, Dean Dobson-Peacock was born in England and is still a subject of Great Britain. He speaks with an English accent.

He was educated in Ireland and St. Lambert's, York, and later studied at the University of London and in Chad's Theological College, Regina, Sask., where he was ordained a deacon in 1908 and a priest in 1909. He was appointed Vicar of St. Augustine's in Salcoats in 1909, and three years later he became rector of St. Stephen's at Windsor, Ont.

A short while before the war he studied at Oxford. At the outbreak of the war, he disregarded the opportunities of becoming a chaplain or of remaining in England, and instead chose to shoulder a rifle and serve as a private in the ranks. He joined the Canadian forces and went to the Eastern front.

Went To Mexico.

After the war he passed his law examination at Oxford, and then assumed the duties of associate vicar of St. Mark's in Birmingham. From Birmingham he went in 1921 to Mexico City, to become assistant rector of Christ Church there. When this church was elevated the following year to the dignity of a cathedral he was installed as dean.

Dean Dobson-Peacock is author of "Rough Rhymes of a Canadian Soldier," "More Rough Rhymes," "Delectaland" and other works.

His wife is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Moore, of Toronto. They have one daughter, Miss Marjorie, a Norfolk debutante of two years ago.

Archaeology is the dean's hobby. He has done extensive study and research and was recently appointed a fellow of the Royal Archaeological Society.

DOG CATCHER GIVES OWNER WARNING FIRST

Twenty Dogs Have Already Been Placed is the Pound.

15 BEEN CLAIMED

If a little man, who would have to stretch himself to reach more than five feet in height, wearing a gray cap and with a friendly-look upon his mild face, steps up to you one of these days while you're sunning yourself about the lawn, and in gentle tones says: "You'd better keep your dog tied up. Its been around the streets and bothering the neighbors." Well, you should follow the little man's advice for he is the recently-appointed city dog catcher.

Although George Wilson in his official capacity has only been enforcing the city dog by-law for a little less than two weeks now, he has already gained a wide experience in human nature when it comes to down owners.

Perhaps, unconsciously he was telling The Examiner about it all yesterday. He has adopted a philosophy, he wouldn't call it that, which if followed through will keep him free from some of the argumentative battles with dog owners which marred the course of some of his predecessors in the same office.

Treats Dogs Kindly

First, he believes in treating the dogs kindly. This was proved not by his own statement but the manner in which he described some of "dawgs" which he has penned down at the pound. Everyone of the five canines crowding the pound, according to Dog Catcher Wilson, "are fine dogs." He likes dogs and even the worst canine waif is sure of good treatment at his hands. He has found good homes for several during his brief time in office.

Then too, and this is one of his decisions of proper conduct befitting his office, he has decided that dog owners should be given a chance. In other words, they should be warned once before their dogs are rudely caught, leashed and dragged off to the pound.

"Yes," he said, "I've made a practice of warning 'em first. Then if they still allow their dogs free to roam about and destroy flower beds I take action. That way I hope to keep friends with everyone rather than making enemies."

However, he admitted that already in some cases his thoughtfulness has brought wrath upon him and seems to have been misplaced. But he means to preserve and maintain his outward calm.

Dogs Worse In Other Places

"If I warn a lady in the residential district she says I should be down in the business district where the dogs are thickest, and if I warn a man downstreet he tells me I should be out in the suburbs where the dogs run free and do most damage," he said in a rather pained way.

Despite his advisory methods, some twenty dogs have been caught and placed in the pound. Five are now awaiting ransom, but some of these will never be reclaimed by their former owners, and Wilson is seeking a home for them.

POLICE RE-ENACT

the kidnappers might have followed them to destroy any scent that could have been picked up by dogs.

Concentration on an attempt to pick up the long cold trail of the kidnappers left other phases of the case in abeyance for the time being.

J. F. Condon, Bronx lecturer, and the "Jafsie" upon whom police have been pinning their hopes of picking up the trail of the kidnap gang, was ordered by his physician to rest for several days. Col. H. Moram Schwarzkopf, superintendent of the New Jersey State Police, said renewal of Condon's search of rogues' galleries would be postponed until the aged educationist was rested.

Investigation of the activities of John H. Curtis, Norfolk, Va., boat builder, who is in the Hunterdon County Jail after confessing that his "negotiations" with representatives of the kidnappers were a fabrication was virtually at a standstill.

Rector Defended

In Norfolk, vestrymen and parishioners of the Rev. H. Dobson-Peacock, rector of Christ Episcopal church, who was associated with Curtis in his pretended efforts to recover the baby, defended the minister in his refusal to come to New Jersey to confront Curtis.

Robert H. Hughes, Jr., registrar of the Rev. Dobson Peacock's church, in a written statement, attacked the New Jersey state police for "gratuitous innuendoes" and invited them to send a representative to Norfolk if they wished to question the pastor, who formerly held charges in Canada.

New Jersey prosecuting officials have indicated some doubt as to their ability to convict Curtis of the charge of giving false information in the case unless they have the testimony of Mr. Dobson-Peacock. Curtis is in jail in default of $10,000 bail.

The district attorney in King's county, Brooklyn, yesterday questioned Mrs. Mary G. Ford, a public school teacher, regarding communications she had had with Condon several weeks ago. She told the prosecutor she had been in financial difficulties and had applied to Condon for $2,500 which had been refused.

WORLD OPINION ON PEACE AND TRADE SOUGHT

30 Leaders in Wild Field Questioned on Wisdom of Course Pursued.

SEARCHING INQUIRY

NEW YORK.—An effort to determine the views of outstanding persons in America on the part to be played by international co-operation in terminating the business slump and maintaining peace is being made by the League of Nations Association through the distribution of two questionnaires.

They comprise a searching inquiry into the economic and political aspects of the international situation. They have been sent to a list of 30 American leaders in business and politics by Mr. George W. Wickersham and Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler.

Has the world's peace machinery proved of value in the Far Eastern crisis? What importance do you attach to the part played by the Nine-Power Treaty? By the Pact of Paris? By the League of Nations? Has the League been handicapped in its efforts to solve the Far Eastern problem by the non-membership of the United States, and if so, how? What importance do you attach to the specific American contribution to the problem, namely the Stimson doctrine, and to the League's indorsement of it?

Is it to the interest of the United States to contribute further to the strengthening of the world's peace machinery, and if so, what steps should be taken by our country?

These are the questions asked by Dr. Butler concerning economic conditions:

Do you believe that the entire world to-day so economically interdependent that no nation can hope to extricate itself alone from the present world-wide depression.

659 POSTMASTERS BEEN DISMISSED

but probably will come before the House again when the report is being considered.

Lawyers Have Field Day

Most of the afternoon was occupied in reviewing a bill overhauling the Bankruptcy Act, with lawyer-members have a field day. The measure was passed through all stages. A superintendent of bankruptcy will be appointed under its terms.

Since the Bennett Government came into power in August, 1930, a total of 659 postmasters has been dismissed, said the Postmaster General. In every instance, the dismissal followed investigation or the formal complaint of a Member of Parliament. Between 1926 and 1930 dismissals numbered 676 and in 211 cases no investigations were held, Mr. Sauve said.

Hon. Peter Veniot, former Postmaster General, reminded the Conservatives they advocated higher remuneration for rural mail carriers, proposing a rate of $70 a mile when they were in opposition. He asked when this suggestion would be carried into effect.

Estimates of the Agricultural Department totalling $1,832,000 for experimental farms and grants to exhibitions and fairs, were passed earlier in the evening. The two items last year totalled $2,975,000, and this decrease prompted considerable criticism from the Liberals.

The adjudicators for the school choirs were prominent Toronto musicians. Later, when this choir repeated their test chorus at a concert given under the auspices of the Queen Mary Public School, Miss MacNaughton was presented with a beautiful sheaf of roses and carnations from the choir. At this festival there were contests for every form — instrumental and vocal music.

A GRANT FOR A GOOD CAUSE.

A grant of $2,500 for Jack Miner, the famous Canadian naturalist, has been made by the Federal Parliament, and despite the general feeling that it is the duty of governing bodies to cut down their expenses to the limit, there will not be many complaints concerning this vote.

Mr. Miner's splendid work as a game conservationist, particularly the wonderful success he has had in connection with wild geese, has been of great value to this country; it has helped to bring many tourists into Ontario, while the lectures and the magazine and newspaper articles of the Kingsville sage have also proved excellent publicity for Canada, because of the interest in the wild life of the Dominion they created.

For many years Mr. Miner carried on his fight to protect the wild geese entirely at his own expense, and the bill must have been a heavy one; it was, therefore, a very welcome measure of assistance when the Federal Government some years ago recognized the importance of his work by authorizing a money grant.

The main estimates presented early in this session did not, however, make any provision for the continuance of this assistance, and there was regret among the many Canadians who appreciate the importance of Mr. Miner's activities; the present announcement that the Government proposes to carry on with the grant will therefore be doubly welcome.

HE IS RIGHT.

Hon. Wm. Motherwell, former Liberal Minister of Agriculture, made a statement in the House of Commons the other day that will be applauded by those in all parts of Canada who have been pleading for less political partisanship in the consideration of important problems.

The agricultural estimates were under discussion, and Mr. Motherwell lost no time in informing the whole House that the condition of agriculture was such that he believed it essential to adopt any possible means of assisting Canada's basic industry.

The only instrument available at present, he pointed out, was a Tory Government, and so he proposed to co-operate with that Government whenever it brought forward anything that he thought would be of aid to Canada's hard-pressed farmers.

To bring about such results the former Minister of Agriculture said that he would be almost prepared to work with Beelzebub himself.

There should be more of that spirit in Parliament at the present time.

Granted, it is the right of the Opposition to oppose, but this is a crucial period, and those in the minority should recognize, as Hon. Mr. Motherwell has done, that the Bennett Government is at present the only instrument by which anything can be accomplished, and when its proposals are in the public interest they should be supported.

CUTTING DOWN THE OVERHEAD.

The fact that Thomas Bradshaw, the well-known financial expert, after a four weeks' survey of conditions in Windsor, has recommended another cut of 10 per cent. in all municipal salaries, including those of the school teachers, is not without its significance.

Mr. Bradshaw's report is particularly insistent upon the necessity of trimming educational costs. Windsor's school plant, he admits, is admirable and the teaching staffs are loyal and enthusiastic, but the situation simply is that the system is too costly, having regard to financial conditions.

Windsor teachers accepted a 15 per cent. reduction some time ago, and the cut now recommended will reduce their salaries 25 per cent. below those prevailing a year ago.

At the same time, there is an agitation in the Border Cities to do away with the system of hiring teachers by contract.

It is pointed out that no other municipal employees are engaged in that manner.

The Border Cities Star remarks that "in strenuous times like this it may become imperative to lay off teachers here and there."

"This would not be from choice," the Star continues, "but from necessity. With a contract, however, the teacher can insist on remaining or at least drawing pay. Private business gives contracts very rarely. Municipalities extend contracts only to teachers. Is there really a good reason why teachers should be especially favored?"

THE GOVERNMENT SHARE.

An unofficial report, presented at a meeting of the York Township Council, indicates that the Federal and Provincial Governments are likely to participate in the giving of direct relief to the families of the unemployed on an even more generous scale than before. This report stated that the Federal Government would provide 50 per cent. of the cost, the Provincial Government 35 per cent. and the municipalities the remaining 15 per cent.

For the sake of the unemployed of Oshawa, and the city treasury as well, we hope that this report was based on a sound foundation. Municipalities have found it a heavy burden to pay one-third of the cost of direct relief, and if this part of the cost can be reduced to 16 per cent., it will enable them to deal more generously with the unemployed, and at the same time reduce the heavy burden which direct relief places on the taxpayer.

THE WORK MUST GO ON.

No matter what the economic conditions, such highly desirable human salvage work as that of caring for crippled children must go on, and the success of the Rotary Carnival, which is to be held this year on June 15, is of primary importance.

Rotary's two main social service activities are this task of providing treatment for children who are suffering from physical handicaps, and the helping of boys who, for want of a better term, can be termed under-privileged.

Every cent of the proceeds from the carnival will be devoted to these splendid objects, it being the hard and fast rule of the Peterborough Rotary Club that the funds collected from the public shall be used 100 per cent. for public purposes.

That being the case and the great success already scored in the carrying out of the club's main activities being generally recognized, it is not surprising to find that tickets for the choice of the three grand prizes offered in connection with the carnival are in ready demand.

The opportunity to secure one of these unusual awards—whichever premium the winner selects—and at the same time to invest a little money in a social service organization that has shown its capacity to do useful community work is recognized by Peterborough's citizens as too good to be missed.

It is to be hoped that the brisk sale already noted will continue until June 15, and that a substantial sum will be raised for this decidedly meritorious cause.

The work must go on, and the assistance of the public is essential.

THIS IS NOT A DETOUR.

(By Lloyd C. Douglas in the Montreal Daily Herald.)

One fine October afternoon, the main highway played out and the angling road ahead appeared to be a detour. It was rocky, and the grade sloped bumpily downward into a valley of deep and dismaying mud.

Some suggested turning around and going back, but the road was too narrow for the length of our wheel-base. We might have done it had we been driving an ox-cart.

All interest began to centre on the hope of turning the corner that would lead us back to where we hoped we would rejoin the highway. We conjugated "turning the corner' in all its moods and tenses, to wit: "We will turn the corner. If and when we turn the corner. We are turning the corner." Some were so audacious as to experiment with, "We have turned the corner."

It appears now that we have not been on a detour, at all. We simply came to the end of the improved road, and are expected to rebuild this bumpy, muddy, dangerous lane into a safe and substantial highway, adequate to handle the increasing traffic. Political swamps must be drained. Economic curves must be straightened in the interest of a farther visibility. The road must be made wide enough to accommodate not only corporation trucks and de luxe passenger cars, but pedestrians carrying their own luggage.

This is not a detour. It is an unimproved road, and it will continue to be an unimproved road until we build a better one.

THE END OF REPARATIONS.

Chancellor Bruening has come out flat-footed and said that Germany not only cannot, but will not, pay any more reparations. He tells the Lausanne conference in advance that unless reparations are cancelled Germany will collapse, thus making foreign loans in Germany worthless. The United States and Great Britain are involved to the extent of several billion dollars, and the economic systems and recoveries of these two countries would be dealt a terrific blow if Germany went into liquidation.

If Germany went "broke," it would be too much for the United States to expect the other nations to continue paying war debts, because the other countries chiefly pay their war debts with the sums they receive from Germany by way of reparations. Italy is the first country to officially pronounce for the abolition of reparations and war debts, although Britain first suggested it in the Balfour declaration, and France refuses to entertain the idea of writing off reparations unless the United States agrees to write off war debts.

With an election in the offing no candidate in the United States has the grit to stand up and say he favors the wiping out of war debts. Only Al. Smith has had the courage to make any kind of suggestion at all for meeting the difficulty. Yet, thinking men, bankers, industrialists and economists in the States, would not be averse to cancellation. Ambassador Mellon, the ex-Treasurer of the United States, expressed their belief two or three years ago when he declared that America is losing more in value of trade than she will lose by cancelling debts.

If the European debtors at the Lausanne conference decide that Germany neither can or will pay, then they would have to stick together and tell the United States that they, too, cannot pay.

By doing that they would be relieving American legislators of proposing what they have not the courage to propose.

The alternative is a general lowering of tariffs, particularly in the United States, which will enable Germany and other countries to trade and set in motion the wheels of industry which are rusting for lack of use.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

Manners

Young Graydon was regarded as the "wit" of the school by his fellow students.

One morning, when an unpopular essay on "Manners," young Graydon thought he'd have a laugh at the expense of the master.

"May I write on 'Bad Manners'?" he asked, amid titters from the rest of the class.

"Certainly," said the master, readily. "Just write what you know best."—Congregationalist.

TORONTO PRODUCE.

TORONTO, May 20.—A good, steady demand for creamery solids was reported on the local butter market yesterday, and prices were firm. Offerings of Ontario and Western makes found buyers at the unchanged levels of 17½c for No. 1 creamery solids and 16½c for No. 2. Prices to retailers for creamery prints were quoted at steady prices also, wholesalers offering No. 1 at 20c, and No. 2 at 19c.

Cream.

Churning cream was purchased at the firm levels of 18c for special, 17c for No. 1, and 14c for No. 2, f.o.b. country points.

Cheese.

Trade in cheese was slow, with prices quoted by brokers steady, and prices to the trade lower. Brokers offered new makes at 9¼c to 9½c for large, 9¼c to 9¾c for twins, and 9¾c to 10c for triplets. Retailers were quoted new cheese at 10½c for large, 10¾c for twins, 11c for triplets, and 13c for stiltons.

Eggs.

Trade in eggs on the brokers' market was quiet, and prices were steady at the declines for the week. Wholesalers quoted steady prices to country shippers, but reduced levels to retailers ½c per dozen. Brokers offered graded eggs at 15c for extras, 13c for firsts, and 11c for seconds, in used cases; and storage packed eggs at 15½c for extras and 13½c for firsts. Receipts were not heavy, but the general demand was poor. Country shippers were quoted steady prices at 13c for extras, 11c for firsts, and 9c for seconds, delivered, ungraded, cases returned, and will probably be offered less money at the first of the week. Retailers were offered extras in cartons at 13½c, extras loose at 16½c, firsts loose at 14½c, and seconds loose at 12½c per doz.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, May 20—Disquiet over reports that Russia had called out 800,000 army reserves for unusual military manoeuvres did much to make wheat prices average higher yesterday.

Asserted enlargement of domestic winter wheat crop deterioration affecting Indiana, Illinois and Missouri counted also as an incentive to buyers, and so, too, did further unfavorable crop advices from Kansas and Nebraska. In some quarters it was intimated that recent estimates of a 70,000,000-bushel wheat harvest in Kansas this season were too optimistic.

Wheat closed irregular, ½c lower to ¾c higher than Wednesday's finish; corn, ½c off to ½c up, and oats, ¼c to ¾c down.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, May 20. — Firmness displayed by wheat quotations at Liverpool and reports that Europe soon will need to import considerable quantities of North American wheat gave an upward swing to grain prices here yesterday. Wheat closed ½c to ¼c higher than on Wednesday.

May gained ¼c to 62¾c, July ¼c to ½c to 63¼c, and October ½c to 65¼c.

Buying by Continentals at the opening indicated some export worked overnight and during the session bids were worked for shipment of considerable wheat to Spain.

Broomhall indicated that Greece and Portugal were in the market for wheat. He placed Canada's exportable surplus at 147,000,000.

Demand for the various grades of cash wheat was not keen and prices eased fractionally. Coarse grains showed little of interest and spreads were little changed.

Efficiency League To Visit Havelock

RUSH POINT, May 20.—(Examiner Correspondence).—At the recent meeting of the Young People's Efficiency League thirty - eight members were present—reds, 9; white, 12; blue, 9; khaki, 8.

In the business discussion the chief subject of interest was a visit to Havelock league. It was finally decided to accept the invitation for the 23rd.

The second vice-president, Miss Marjorie Newton, took charge of the program after Miss Keating had read the minutes, which were declared accepted.

Miss Esther Menzies chose for the Scripture reading Psalm 43. An exceedingly interesting and educational topic was given by Mr. H. Board.

Following a vocal solo by Miss Luella Keating, a reading, entitled "Sixty eYars of Farming," was given by Miss Berniece Sergeant.

The members then took sides for a guessing contest, the resulting count being—red, 25; blue, 15; white, 10; khaki, 0.

A wind storm of unusual velocity swept through Rush Point Monday evening about six o'clock. It was travelling in a north-easterly direction and estimated to be speeding between 35 and 40 miles in a path perhaps from 10 to 15 rods wide. The dust from newly cultivated fields rose like a solid wall and the waves on Round Lake climbed to terrific heights. Fortunately no very serious damage is reported, but the storm caused the farmers plenty of extra work in rebuilding fences which were laid flat for many yards where rail fences were used. Several sheds were blown down and whole panes of glass wrenched from windows in houses in the vicinity. Wind generators travelled at terrific speed for perhaps 15 minutes, charging batteries at an almost unbelievable rate.

SON OF THE GODS

By REX BEACH

INSTALMENT NO. 24

Sam had been sincere in his statement to Eileen. He really did intend to make China his home, for a while at least; for a time long enough to recover from the blows that had been dealt him. Whether or not he would find it possible to remain there he was not sure, for he realized that his father's people would no doubt resent his "Europeanism" and that he would have to live down a prejudice on their part not unlike that which he had experienced in the Occident. On the other hand they were his kin and as a people they revered culture.

His ideas about the Chinese, as a people, were more than a little hazy for, as a result of his father's teachings, he had idealized them, nevertheless he assumed they would be friendly to him.

It was a good deal of a wrench to think of giving up the country of his birth, apprehension smote him at the contemplation, and yet he could no longer tolerate its treatment of him. China stood for peace, placidity, beatitude; it was a slumberous land, smiling sleepily in its dreams. Where better could one find forgetfulness than in the land of poppies?

In the weeks his journey occupied he strove manfully to make himself believe in the success of his experiment, but there were times when a terrible despondency overtook him; times when he raged at the injustice of his situation and dreaded the coming of his journey's end. What mockery, that a man blest with the things other men desire should find them empty. What good were his youth, his health, his accomplishments, his riches? Thus far, at least, they had not purchased honor, fellowship or liking. And all because of an accident of birth.

Of course, China turned out to be nothing like Sam had pictured it. It was as strange, it was as foreign, it was an inexplicable to him as to the other Americans on shipboard who saw it for the first time. Nor did it smile upon him, as he had expected; its face remained inscrutable and unfriendly. Sam felt more alien than any tourist. To these other visitors China was quaint, it was colorful, it was interesting, they "loved it." Sam hated it. Dismay and disillusionment struck him dumb.

The dirt, the reek of Chinese cities appalled him, the smells were sickening; the temples and the tombs which should have stirred his sleeping emotions, his racial pride, were mere curiosities; the people—his people—were stranger to him than anthropophagi. He would have enjoyed it all immensely as Sam Lee, the American, the white man; but as Lee Sam, the Chinese-American, he wanted to shriek.

Furthermore his father's people were no more foreign to him than he was to them. He spoke their language, to be sure, but as for attaining intellectual contact with them they remained as unsympathetic and as aloof as Eskimos. Such persons of consequence as he met were polite, accommodating; he was shown much consideration but he seldom saw the inside of their homes. His reputed wealth and his evident accomplishments made him a personage but he was eyed with curiosity and with distrust; nobody believed that he honestly wished to become one of them. He remained a sort of biological anomaly, a deviation from type, and obviously they resented him. In their opinion he had a half-breed mind and it lost him caste. This unwelcome conviction was borne home upon him in the course of time.

He lived at a great hotel, in a style befitting his means, but he perished of loneliness. He knew better than to seek company among its guests or among the white residents of the foreign settlement, for he had learned that the racial line was drawn even more clearly here than at home. Home? Yes, he thought of America now as home.

Even the children in the streets refused to make friends with him, and if Chinese children were as unmannerly as those of New York they would have made faces at him and showered him with stones, for to them he was exactly what he had been to the kids of Mulberry Bend Park. As it was they eyed him like owls and followed him only so long as he distributed presents among them.

Steadily he grew more homesick; he could not sleep; food nauseated him. One day a panic seized him, hurriedly he flung his things together and fled to the docks. It was no use; he was whipped. China had disowned him, stoned him out. Once again, in a raging fury, he locked himself into his stateroom.

None but a Chinese could have returned, after months of absence, to find his house in order and his business—a business as important as that of the Palace of Imperial Bounty—running smoothly, efficiently. Sam Lee did exactly that.

He came unannounced, but the stately residence on the roof was as tidy, as spotless, as thoroughly aired as when he had left it.

At sound of their master's voice the cook and the two housebovs, friendly, adoring souls, pattered into his presence and kowtowed before him. They were the prey to soul-stirring emotions, their eyes were streaming, agitated words of welcome and of thanksgiving poured from their lips. Moy, Sam's valet, was even more deeply affected than they; an ague shook him, he abased himself, he stroked his employer and patted him, he cried; like a shadow he followed him from room to room, voicing extravagant compliments.

Sam felt a stinging in his own eyes and a pain in his throat. Here was love and honor and dignity, here was his home. Other faithful friends were waiting in the great hamar to welcome him, already news of his arrival had sped thither and the place was in turmoil. It was on the streets of Chinatown, by now. These were his people; his wanderings were at an end.

His first act, when he had cleansed and robed himself befittingly, was one of filial devotion. Alone he entered the little teakwood room where the joss sticks smouldered and knelt before the Messiah of his father's faith. On the wall beside the brooding idol hung a gold plate engraved with the legend of Lee Ying's name and to this he bowed his head.

"Beloved author of my being, in this hour of home-coming, to you I burn the incense of my unwavering devotion," he whispered. In hushed and reverent tones he addressed the august spirit of his father, acknowledging the latter's gracious beneficence and his own gratitude therefor. He reviled himself for his selfishness, for his lack of piety, earnestly he vowed religiously to observe the rituals and the ceremonials that devolve upon a repentant and unworthy son whose anguished soul cleaves to its parent and will not be comforted.

For a long time he lost himself in melancholy reflections. Gentle, loving, wise Lee Ying! The white people had hastened his end; blows aimed at the son had stricken the father. Resentment blazed in Sam's mind like the flame in a chimney.

Enemies! So be it! His liking for them had turned to loathing. In their eyes Chinese were sly, rapacious, vindictive and untrustworthy. Very well, he would live up to that reputation; he would use them as despitefully as they had used him and his father. The weapons with which to do so were ready made; he was rich, he was a man of influence. Lee Ying's philanthropies in aid of their own countrymen he would carry on and add to but aside from that he would use his riches and his power against those who had humiliated him and his parent.

Opportunties in this direction presented themselves as time went on and he seized them. With his own people he was easy and liberal, in his dealings with Americans he was hard. Chinatown had always looked upon him as an unusual person, but the gossip and the speculation he provoked had not been invariably flattering. Respect for his learning and his accomplishments was genuine but it had been tempered with distrust if not with actual resentment. All that quickly changed. When the people of Mott and Pell and Doyer streets became convinced that the son of Lee Ying proposed to carry on his father's business as usual and to maintain, nay add to, that man's good works he became enormously popular. Smiling faces greeted him, the blessings of health, happiness and longevity were called down upon him.

As the successor to a great fortune and the proprietor of an important business, Sam naturally became an object of interest to a number of people, some of whom were genuinely ambitious and some of whom were merely unscrupulous. A college-bred Chino-American in his twenties and without business experience was a target at which more than one professional promoter aimed a thrust. Cunning plans were laid to interest him in every sort of enterprise. Not all of these were unsound but Sam so regarded them and he took derisive pleasure in exposing their hollowness and in humiliating their proposers. In this he had some success and as a result the acid in him turned more sour. He gained considerable satisfaction in dealing as harshly as possible with the white people he came in contact with and meanwhile his contempt for their shams and their hypocrisies grew. They were an avaricious race, nothing was sacred to them; their laws were oppressive and their justice was corrupt; their religion was a mockery and their virtue was as empty as a drum. As for himself, he heeded no restraints except those laid down by his honorable father's teaching and respected nothing but his own desires.

Mr. Carter, his attorney, one day spoke to Eileen Cassidy about the change in his client.

"Your hero, Sam Lee, isn't much like his father, is he? Lee Ying was one of the finest, gentlest characters I ever met, but the boy is harder than nails."

Eileen nodded. "Yes. He isn't the same fellow I used to know."

"It's a queer, racial atavism; in spite of all his education and his advantages he's more Chinese than his father was. He's charitable enough to his own people, he's even more popular with them than Lee Ying was, but he's positively malevolent towards everybody else. Sometimes I think he almost hates me and I'm sure he doesn't trust me in the least. His own lawyer!"

"Can you blame him?" Eileen inquired. "The white people have given him a pretty rough deal. I'd hate them, too."

"No doubt. And I'm sincerely sorry for him—Somehow I've never been able to think of Sam as a Chinese. I never forgot what his father was, for everything about him was Oriental. The boy used to be different. It never struck me that he had an Eastern mind. And of course Lee Ying always spoke of him so queerly; Son of the Gods! I never could make out what he meant. I asked him once but he didn't tell me much."

"How dreadful if he were really white," Eileen said.

"Um-m! But he isn't. Lee Ying was an honorable, a conscientious man; the one thing he dreaded most of all was that Sam would marry some white girl. No further danger of that."

Market Closing On All Exchanges

WALL STREET

NEW YORK, May 20. (CP)—The stock market lapsed into apathy again to-day, after an early boost in response to formation of the banking and industrial board to aid in credit expansion. Morning advances of 1 to 2 points were largely lost. The closing tone was steady. The turnover approximated 300,000 shares. Early gains of 1 to 2 points in such issues as American Telephone, American Tobacco "B", Standard of N.J., U.S. steel, Dupont and others were all but cancelled. Among a few issues holding up about a point were Allied Chemical, Case and Eastman. A few soft spots developed, Lowes, Colgate and Chrysler sagging about a point to new lows.

STANDARD EXCHANGE.

TORONTO, May 20.— (C.P.) — While general price action was firm on the Standard Stock and Mining Exchange market to-day a few soft spots gave the board an irregularly lower appearance in the afternoon closing changes, confined to a small portion of the list, showed losses and gains about evenly divided.

Interlisted base metals were a fairly strong group, Noranda closing up 15, Nickel 20 and Hudson Bay 8. Eldorado was steady at $1 and other silvers inactive. Peninsular Pete, fractionally higher, showed the only change in the lower priced oil group.

Majority of higher priced golds were holding, but Teck-Hughes met some light selling in the last hour and finished down 6. Pioneer of B.C. advanced that amount on reports of a new vein at 1,600 feet. Kirkland Lake gold, a large block of which stock is understood to have been forced on the market, dropped 5 to 23 and McLeod River fell below 3 for a fractional loss.

TORONTO EXCHANGE.

TORONTO, May 20 (C.P.).—Toronto Stock Exchange Market remained steady throughout the afternoon session, with price changes mixed and of fractional nature with most of the leaders.

Gains of a couple of points occurred in both Consumers' Gas and Page-Hersey Tubes, the latter rising to 43½. Much of the buying of Page Hersey was coming from Montreal, which not so long ago had been a seller of the stock. Steelers was up a point at 29½, but not active. Dominion Bridge at 11 was up 1.

Nickel and Ford of Canada, Bell Telephone among the pivotal shares were each up less than ½ point. On the other hand, C.P.R., Brazilian, Canada Cement, Service Stations, Steel of Canada, Canners "B" showed small losses.

Oils were firm, closing with unimportant gains.

SMELTERS HOLDS STEADY TO-DAY

Oils Well Supported With International, Imperial and B.A. Above Thursday's Close.

TORONTO, May 20 (CP). Liquidation which settled in certain sections of the Toronto Stock Exchange market Thursday was not in evidence with the resumption of trading to-day. The stocks which yesterday were admitted to the free list were less active to-day and were holding at about the same price they had closed last night. Consolidated Smelters recorded only two or three transactions up until mid-day and sold unchanged to a fraction higher. Small gains were registered by Nickel, C.P.R., Bell Telephone, General Electric Preferred. Consumers' Gas made a gain of 2 points, rising to 147.

Oils were still well supported with International Petroleum, Imperial Oil and B.A. Oil all slightly above last night's finals. Canadian Oil was slightly lower on selling from Montreal.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

MINING ISSUES ARE STRONGER

Lake Shore Moved Up 20 to 27.25, Pioneer of B.C. Gains 5.

NORANDA UP 20.

TORONTO, May 20 (C.P.).—The Standard Stock and Mining Exchange Market opened with a slightly stronger tone to-day but failed to show any material improvement when taken at midday.

Lake Shore moved up 20 to $27.25; Pioneer of B.C. gained 5 to $3.15 on reports of a new vein at 1,600 feet, and Wright-Hargreaves and Teck-Hughes were steady. Dome met some light selling, however, and slipped through $11 for a 35-cent recession.

Kirkland Lake Gold, under pressure of forced liquidation of a large block of stock, dropped another 2 to 23. Noranda was up 20 at $14.55, Hudson Bay recovered 5 to $1.10, and Nickel was unchanged. Peninsular Pete, regaining a fraction, showed the only change in the oil group.

Corn started unchanged to ¼ to ⅝c up and subsequently rose all around.

Urges Downward Salary Revision road, while the Baltimore and Ohio had passed its preferred dividend.

Lack of Traffic

"This has been brought about by lack of traffic," continued Mr. Bennett, "and when you take the traffic of the two roads in this country and deduct the operating expenses, it will be seen that under no circumstances with the traffic available, would it be possible to save any sum like $50,000,000 or even a reasonable fraction of that sum."

J. T. Hackett (Con. Stanstead) remarked that it was disappointing the report contained no plan or suggestion whereby the tremendous losses which the railways were suffering could be met.

"What about the Transportation Commission?" called out an Opposition member.

Helpful Suggestions.

Mr. Hackett agreed that the report of the Transportation Commission might contain some helpful suggestions. But that report would not be made available for some time. He had hoped that some suggestion would come from the committee whereby the expense of wasteful competition might be curtailed.

J. S. Woodsworth, (Lab. Winnipeg North Centre), objected to the suggestion which he thought was contained in Mr. Hackett's speech, that waste and extravagance was confined to the Canadian National. No doubt there was waste and extravagance in the C.P.R. It was rather regrettable that every detail of management of the Canadian National should come up for the review of the House while nothing was revealed in respect to the management of the rival railway.

General Satisfaction.

Emergence of the unanimous report from the embattled ranks of the House of Commons Railways and Shipping Committee to-day was viewed with satisfaction by both parties, indicating as it did that in the "closed door" sessions of that body definite efforts were put forward to secure harmony. The committee's public sessions were characterized by some bitter controversies which did little to stimulate the hope or expectation that unanimity would be achieved.

Much of the battling was waged around the Pine Avenue residence of Sir Henry Thornton, the expense accounts of the "higher-ups" of the C.N.R., contracts for railway ties which the report does not mention, and the circumstances under which the railways acquired their new passenger traffic offices at 673 Fifth Avenue, New York.

President's Salary.

With regard to the $75,000 a year salary paid to Sir Henry Thornton, president of the C.N.R., the committee's report says:

"It has come to the attention of your committee that the president is still in receipt of an additional $5,000 fee from the Ontario Car Company and the special annual allowance for expenses not to be specifically accounted for approved by the board of directors on November 28, 1929, amounting to $15,000, and your committee recommend that the matter of the receipt of said fee, $5,000, shall be again considered by the board of directors with a view to its possible cancellation.

A review of the $15,000 expense allowance of the president by the board is also recommended, as inconsistent with the terms of Sir Henry's engagement.

Supervise Expense Accounts.

A much stricter supervision of all expense accounts of Canadian National officials by a properly constituted committee of directors is further recommended. "A system of control similar to that in vogue in the best regulated industrial houses, finance and other institutions, is required, and your committee earnestly recommend that the board of directors forthwith put into effect such effective control as is necessary in the premises," the report says.

It continues: "The subject matter is one that cannot be effectively dealt with by a Parliamentary committee, but the principle involved is an important one, and in the opinion of your committee the best qualified body to deal with the matter is the board of directors. These recommendations should apply specifically to all officers of the company irrespective of their rank or station.

AUDITING CRITICISED

The committee criticises the present method of auditing employed by the system, declaring it to be "not sufficient, and should go much further." The auditors should be empowered to go into every phase of the system's operations, the report says, with power to call attention to any matter calling for comment, in their ... in priciple to the powers vested in the auditor general of Canada.

The whole transaction connected with the leasing of the official residence of Sir Henry Thornton by the directors of the C.N.R. should be reviewed and investigated by the directors, with a view to ascertaining its legality and if possible obtaining its revision the report recommends, adding:

"Having regard to all the evidence adduced and having special regard to the president's contract of engagement dated Sept. 23, 1929, as ratified and confirmed by his contract with the government dated Oct. 24, 1929, whereby the president agreed to serve as president and chairman of the company including the various constituent and subsidiary companies; comprising the system, and for the full and entire services to be performed from time to time for the fixed annual salary of $75,000, without any extra fees or remuneration of any description, and in addition, but subject to the by-laws, rules and regulations applicable, all reasonable out of pocket expenses incurred in connection with the duties of his office or offices, the leading of the residence appears to your committee to be in contravention of the contract of engagement and even if legal was unwise and should not have been authorized.

Exceeded Prudence

"The whole transaction, in the opinion of your committee, was a successful attempt by the board of directors to do indirectly what could not be done directly by expenditure on capital account; namely, to procure a residence for the president free of rent, taxes and repairs, and your committee consider that the action of the board of directors indicates that while they may not have exceeded their legal powers, they did not exercise that degree of prudence, care and judgment requisite in the premises.

With regard to the Canadian National offices in the United States the report finds that results with respect to freight traffic have been "fairly satisfactory," but the results achieved from passenger traffic "have not been commensurate with the cost."

"Your committee recommend that the whole question of the New York and other off-line passenger offices should be carefully reviewed by the management in conjunction with the board of directors," the report says. It is further urged that "careful consideration be given by the management and by the board to the question of closing such of the offices, both passenger and freight, as have not achieved satisfactory results, and also of cooperating with other railways systems by joint arrangement so as to effect as much saving as possible."

Would Review Pensions

The whole situation respecting pensions should be reviewed, in the opinion of the committee, not with any view to reducing statutory pensions but with the view to putting the three pension schemes now operating within the system "on a sound, economic basis, including, if deemed desirable, the inclusion of the system of contribution."

The committee recall that the pension systems have legislative sanction and authority, but that during the past five years "numerous employees received pensions in excess of what the pension schemes applicable to such employees call for." The report directs that attention be given "to this apparent excess of jurisdiction."

The committee's final recommendation expresses the conviction "That the exercise of political patronage or influence in the operation of this publicly-owned enterprise would do great injury," and urges continued vigilance on the part of all concerned "to avoid the introduction of practices so detrimental to the public interest."

Unanimous Approval

The House of Commons committee which gave unanimous approval to the report, comprised the following:—

R. B. Hanson (Cons., York-Sunbury, chairman); A. L. Beaubien (Lib., Provencher); L. C. Bell (Cons., St. Antoine); C. E. Bothwell (Lib., Swift Current); T. Cantley (Cons., Pictou); J. D. Chaplin (Cons., Lincoln); William Duff (Lib., Antigonish-Guysboro); Hon. W. D. Euler (Lib., Waterloo North); Sir Eugene Fiset (Lib., Rimouski); J. A. Fraser (Cons., Cariboo); G. R. Geary (Cons., Toronto South); S. Gobeil (Cons., Compton); R. W. Gray (Lib., Lambton West); A. A. Heaps (Lab., Winnipeg North); D. M. Kennedy (U.F.A., Peace River); F. R. MacMillan (Cons., Saskatoon); Dr. Peter McGibbon (Cons., Muskoka); A. E. Munn (Lib., Vancouver North); C. G. Power (Lib., Quebec South); Hon. R. J. Manion, Minister of Railways; R. Rogers (Cons., Winnipeg South); J. S. Stewart Cons., Lethbridge).

A resolution amending the Civil Service Act and providing for the payment of gratuities to members of the Civil Service Commission on retirement, and to officers, clerks and employees in lieu of retiring leave was approved by the House of Commons with practically no discussion. A bill based on it was given first reading.

$23,500,000 PAID IN PURCHASE OF THE GENERAL FOODS COMPANY

Walter E. Sachs Testifies Before Senate Basking Committee To-day.

COMPLICATED AFFAIR.

WASHINGTON, May 20. (CP)—Walter E. Sachs, president of the Goldman Sachs Trading Corporation, detailed to the U.S. senate banking committee to-day the payment of $23,500 in purchase of the General Foods Co., which had an investment of $1,750,000.

and later to J. P. Morgan and Co. quiry, he said that in 1929 his firm paid more than $12,000,000 and the Postum Co. more than $10,000,000 because the General Foods company owned valuable patents for freezing perishable foods.

Previously Goldman Sachs had paid $10,750,000 for 150,000 shares in the Postum Company, Sachs said under questioning by William A. Gray, counsel for the enquiry.

Gray went through a complicated description of the deal under which the Postum Company, though it paid less, got 51 percent of the stock in the acquired company and Goldman-Sachs got 49 percent.

Sachs agreed that dividend preferences also were given to Postum and the 150,000 shares bought by Goldman-Sachs were excluded from the preferences.

The Postum stock was sold by Goldman-Sachs at a loss of $230,000, Gray said, and the remainder of this stock was written off at $1 in 1930.

Had Potential Value

Sachs said it was written off in the interests of conservatism, thought it had potential value.

Gray traced a complicated transfer of $22,000,000 of the funds through United Foods of Canada and lae to J. P. Morgan and Co. saying his purpose was to find what the distribution was.

"I believe we may be able to show the tax question has something to do with it" he added.

Howard F. Hansell, Jr., who described himself as "an independent speculator" then took the stand.

He said in 1930 he purchased 40,000 shares of Indian Motorcycle stock for $300,000 with the Motorcycle Company given $20,000 and a credit for the remainder.

The sale was arranged through Charles E. Mitchell, vice president of the company, and later approved by Norman T. Bollies, president.

As the start of to-day's session Gray said H. M. Warner, movie magnate had been subpoenaed for study of operations on the long side of his own stock. Gray also wants to enquire into newspaper publicity which accompanied Warner's operations.

A. Newton Plummer, New York publicity man, has also been summoned.

Representative Laguardia, testified before the committee a few weeks ago that Plummer had paid $32,000 to certain financial writers to boost stocks in which brokers were "rigging the market."

MOTHER'S DAY AT SPRINGVILLE

Presentation of W.M.S. Life Membership Made to Mrs. J. Bothwell.

LARGE ATTENDANCE

SPRINGVILLE, May 20 (Examiner Correspondence) — Springville W.M.S. enjoyed on Wednesday afternoon one of the most successful and beautiful services in its history. Mother's Day was observed and an attempt was made to have in attendance all the senior mothers who are loved for their many, many years of activity in the community and society. Thirty-two ladies gathered at the home of Mrs. Albert Hunter who in capacity of hostess and president left no stone unturned in providing an atmosphere of tenderness and sociability.

The program was in keeping with the day, the main feature taking the form of a presentation of a life membership certificate to the Auxiliaries' oldest member, Mrs. J. Bothwell, who for over thirty years has been a devoted and faithful worker.

Mrs. A. Hunter read the address and Mrs. William Whitfield presented the certificate; these two ladies following next in the number of their years of service in the auxiliary.

Special music consisted of two vocal solos. Mrs. Vincent Whittington singing "Mother's Prayer" and Miss Hazel Hall, "Mother of My Heart"; Mrs. Grandy and Miss Southam sang in duet, "Somebody's Praying for You."

Mrs. (Rev.) Moyer read the scripture lesson, choosing for her text, the stories of the lives of four of the outstanding mothers of the Bible, Rebekah, Rachael, Leah and Hannah. Mrs. M. Johnston gave an interesting paper on the writer's and poet's viewpoint of mother. This was followed by a short talk on, "The Mothers of our Mission Fields," by Mrs. George Whitfield and enlarged upon by Mrs. A. Hunter. A lovely poem "Don't Forget to Write to Mother," was then read by Mrs. William Whitfield bringing to a conclusion a very impressive program.

Lunch was served by the lunch committee, supplemented by a delicious treat of ice cream provided by Mr. Albert Hunter, given in memory of his mother. By prearrangement on the part of the hostess, the oldest mothers and oldest members were seated at a table in the centre of the room. Those at the table were: Mrs. J. Bothwell, Mrs. R. Colen, Mrs. A. Murray, Mrs. M. Brown, Mrs. J. Grandy, Mrs. J. Johnston, Mrs. Wenn, Mrs. William Whitfield and Mrs. (Rev.) Moyer.

Surrounding this honored group were the members and friends, thus making a compact party to enjoy this delightful social hour at the close of Mother's Day.

LINDSAY, May 20.—(Special to The Examiner).—Thursday a five-man life saving crew from Toronto arrived in town enroute to Sturgeon Point to institute a search for the bodies of William Smith and Samuel Sloate, the victims of Sunday's drowning in Sturgeon Lake. The men secured a number of small boats at Thurstonia until equipment arrived by truck from the city. The crew is in charge of Superintendent Hilliard Lang of the Toronto Life Saving Station. The entire lake will be combed in an effort to locate the bodies.

Extensive building operations are in progress at the different lake resorts in this district, and the work is proving a blessing to the large number of men employed. At Rustic Bay, near the mouth of the Scugog, five or six cottages are in course of erection, while three or four are being built at Pleasant Point. At points on Cameron Lake a number of summer homes are in the course of erection, and it is reported that American interests are taking over the pavilion at Long Beach, on Sturgeon Lake. A large dining room, it is said, will be added together with sleeping quarters.

William Flavelle has returned from a trip to the Canadian West, and reports that he noticed a new spirit of optimism among the farmers, financial men, merchants, etc. In the farming districts the copious rainfalls proved a blessing, providing moisture sufficient to give perfect germination to the seed. Confidence was being restored in the stricken areas of central and southern Saskatchewan.

SMALLER TOWNS LOSE LAWYERS

CHECK BANKRUPTCY LAWS.

OTTAWA, May 20.—(CP)— The concentration of legal business in the large centres of Canada was denuding the smaller towns of lawyers. This was the contention of Hon. P. J. A. Cardin, former Minister of Marine. This was particularly the case in the Province of Quebec where all legal activities were being centralized in Montreal and Quebec. The former minister's observations came when the bill to amend the bankruptcy act was under discussion in the house in committee today.

The bill would provide for a superintendent of bankruptcy under the finance department and licensed trustees. It came in for considerable criticism.

The changes proposed to the act by the bill were endorsed by Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Minister of Justice who said the question of concentration of legal business in Montreal and Quebec was a matter for the provincial government to deal with and he suggested a copy of Mr. Cardin's speech be sent to the Attorney General in Quebec.

The bill was explained at some length by J. T. Hackett (Cons.-Stanstead) who headed the committee that recommended the measure. Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Minister of Justice, explained that insolvency was placed under federal jurisdiction by the British North America Act until 1921, however it was left with the various provinces.

The lack of uniformity in the bankruptcy laws of the nine provinces brought many complaints and it was decided to have uniform laws to apply from one end of Canada to the other.

KISSING PASTOR FIGHTS CHARGES

BISHOP BEHIND CASE.

LONDON, May 20.(C.P.) — The Rev. H. F. Davidson, 62, did indeed kiss innumerable women, his counsel assured a Consistory Court to-day, but there was nothing about this habit to which a body could object.

The minister is accused of having been guilty of immorality while vicar of Stiffkey.

R. F. Levy told the court in behalf of Mr. Davidson that the rector was a troublesome busybody.

"He kisses his landlady, he kisses his landlady's daughter, his kisses the maid, he kisses all sorts of people," Counsel Levy said. "But it is not in a sensual way. It's a kiss on the cheek or the forehead.

The counsel said that while Mr. Davidson had had associations with hundreds of young women they always were laudable and not improper associations. He urged that the only direct evidence of immorality came from one witness, Barbara Harris, and he protested against the atmosphere of prejudice which he accused the prosecution of having created.

The charges against Mr. Davidson were made by the Bishop of Norwich. They are being heard by a Consistory Court sitting at Church House, Westminster, and at the conclusion of the case a report will be made to the Bishop.

DISARMAMENT GOAL DECLARED TO BE NEARER

Dr. Woolley Says Appreciable Progress Has Been Made at Geneva.

"SEND YOUR VIEWS"

PARIS — Dr. Mary E. Woolley, member of the United States delegation to the Disarmament Conference, is satisfied with the steps taken in Geneva during the past two months toward the reduction and limitation of armaments.

Talking with the members of the American University Women's Club here on April 1, during a short vacation, Dr. Woolley affirmed her belief that already the Disarmament Conference had moved appreciably nearer the goal of the elimination of destructive weapons of aggressive warfare.

Dr. Woolley says that the honest differences of opinion between the delegations of the various countries constitute only a minor danger to the conference. Greater danger, she believes, lies in what she terms the "insidious, concealed tactics of cupidity" instigated by the "gilded influence of the munitions interests"; and by an exaggerated nationalism which sometimes prompts delegates to speak less for the ears of the conference than for ears waiting in their own countries.

But Dr. Woolley's faith does not rest upon delegates. She says that the success or failure of the conference rests with the people who may never visit Geneva.

She records how every day brings cablegrams and great packets of letters to the desks of the members of the American delegation—appeals for advice as to the best lines along which help may be given.

Many of the letters, she says, come from organization of women, who are "quick to see the relationship between the fear engendered by the armaments race and the slump in world trade."

These women demand to know, says Dr. Woolley, the reason for the folly which has overcome mankind in thinking to start the new generation, hampered by economies in education and social welfare, while at the same time placing in its hands the most deadly and complicated engines of destruction.

To such queries Dr. Woolley has one answer—"Send your views" she replies, "in a letter to your State Senators. Send a copy of your letter to the Administration."

And she invariably adds—"Remember that, in a democracy, the voice of the people must make itself heard."

SUDBURY BORDERS SCENE OF BLAZES

City Declared Safe, Although Flames Still Smouldering.

SUDBURY, May 20.—(CP)—Two minor blazes on the outskirts of this city yesterday were quickly subdued, and last night all danger of the conflagration gaining any headway had passed.

Fire is still creeping through underbrush and the municipal dump about one mile from the city. It is less than two acres in extent, however, and is under complete control.

Fire-fighters who fought a blaze on the outskirts of McKim township near the city limits are resting tonight after a five-hour battle in which they succeeded in gaining complete control. The outbreak was first reported at 10 o'clock this morning.

Sporadic blazes reported today from Neelon, Hidgood and Appleby townships, had made no headway tonight and no fear of their getting out of control was felt.

EFFORT TO POISON WOMAN IS ALLEGED

Tilbury Hotelman Held — Powder on Food Kills Animals.

TILBURY, May 20. — Charles Lemon, an aged widower, proprietor of the Canadian American Hotel, was arrested yesterday evening by Provincial Officer Kelly on a charge of unlawfully attempting to administer poison to Mrs. Albert Legue on April 14.

He was arraigned before Magistrate Callwood who remanded him to Chatham Jail.

Lemon is a returned soldier and has been acting so strangely for some time, the police say, that measures were being considered to have him mentally examined. He has constantly complained of pains in his head, and is a victim of insomnia.

Mrs. Legue and her little son were boarders at the hotel, and on the date mentioned she noticed a heavy sprinkling of strange-looking powder on lamb chops and potatoes set before her.

Her suspicions aroused, she did not touch either article of food. She summoned Constable Kelly, who scraped a little of the powder off the food. He also located a bottle of similar powder hidden in Lemon's bed. A sample was sent to Provincial Police headquarters for examination, and when fed to a couple of guinea pigs it proved fatal. The powder, which was pronounced of an arsenic nature, was forwarded to the analyst at Western University for complete analysis. His report has not yet been received.

Too Much Limelight Bad For Parish Work

Minister's First Duty is to His Own Parish, Claims Rev. James McNeill.

CALGARY, May 20 (Special to The Examiner)—Clergy included in the members of the Ministerial Association here heard some outspoken opinions from one of their colleagues anent the sensational, the publicity-seeking, the stir-provoking pastor.

The rebuke came from a pastor of the old Scots Presbyterian persuasion, Rev. James McNeill who told members of the association that too many of them were given to the search for publicity by hunting up work not connected with their calling and that "The Minister who does his job about twice as much work as the average business man. "A minister's first duty is to his congregation," he said. "If outside work conflicts with congregational work then outside work must be dropped. If the congregation is suffering because the minister loves to stand in public places and be seen by men, that minister, is culpable and responsible for any failure that may attend his ministry.

"Pastoral work is as important as pulpit work. If a minister has time to spare from the preparing of his sermon he ought to give that time as much as possible to the visiting of his people. Outside the pulpit there is no better work for a minister than in the sharing of other people's individual lives.

"The minister's wife is under no obligation to visit all the homes in the parish any more than any other lady in the congregation. Some churches need to have this rubbed deeply into their consciousness. Many women have been worn out prematurely because of enormous demands made upon their time and strength by people who were better able physically than they to undertake such tasks."

Sea Training May Go Says Admiral Story

CALGARY, May 20 (Special to The Examiner)—That the Navy League of Canada, which concerns itself primarily in the development of a merchant marine and the training of boys for that service, may have to be disbanded was foreshadowed by Admiral W. O. Story, Ottawa, while on a visit here the other day.

Canadians, he said, are not interested in marine affairs to any extent and if the Dominion government reduces its grant to the League it may have to be disbanded. At present it is exercising supervision over the training of some 1700 sea cadets all over Canada, replacing the old "training ships" which have been given up by every country in the world except Great Britain which still retains three for the training of officers.

"Curiously enough," Admiral Story said, "the corps furthest from the sea are the strongest. Those on the Pacific and Atlantic coasts rank lowest in point of numbers." He added that publicity on "disarmament and everlasting peace" had weakened the League's position somewhat.

Steps are being taken to save for posterity Old Blantyre Village School, in Scotland, which Livingstone, the missionary explorer, attended.

DO-X REACHES NEWFOUNDLAND

AZORES NEXT GOAL.

ST. JOHN'S, Newfoundland, May 20 (C.P.)—Gasoline supplies for the huge German flying boat DO-X, were being taken to-day from Holyrood, Conception Bay, to Dildo, Trinity Bay, 40 miles distant, where the plane arrived last night from Long Island Sound, N.Y. It was expected that the DO-X would continue to Holyrood, take on fuel and supplies, and then proceed to Harbor Grace, there awaiting favorable weather for a flight to the Azores, next leg of the return journey to Lake Constance, Switzerland.

With its commander, Capt. Frederick Christiansen, and a crew of 14, the huge plane had an uneventful trip from New York to Newfoundland yesterday. Supplies and fuel had been stored at Harbor Grace, but an increasing swell prevented a landing there, and Trinity Bay was chosen.

CONSTABLE FREED IN SHOOTING CASE

Magistrate Believes That Thornton Acted in Good Faith.

TORONTO, May 20.—The charge of manslaughter against Motorcycle Constable Peter Thornton arising out of his fatally shooting Albert Heward while the latter was attempting to flee from a stolen automobile on March 27, was dismissed by Magistrate Browne at the preliminary hearing yesterday. In declining to commit the accused for trial, his Worship declared his belief that no jury could convict Thornton on the evidence. Magistrate Browne declared that he believed the officer acted in good faith in a situation where his own life and the lives of other were endangered.

Harold Slumski, one of Heward's three companions in the stolen car during the wild chase by the policeman preceding the shooting, admitted in evidence that the constable had been driven up over the sidewalk at one stage of the pursuit. The witness also admitted that he had been on probation at the time of the pursuit and was determined to escape if possible.

SMALLER APPLE CROP

SIMCOE.—A reduction in Norfolks apple crop this year of approximately 23,000 barrels is the present forecast of agricultural officials. Last year the crop revealed a total of 95,000 barrels but a decrease in the growing of Baldwins this season will considerably lighten the crop.

MINERS SPEED RESCUE WORK

Cold Weather, Land Slides Delay Digging for 50 Entombed Men.

RELATIVES FRANTIC.

TEMUCO, Chile, May 20 (C.P.).—Workmen, delayed nearly 24 hours by bitter cold weather and heavy rains, continued to-day their frantic efforts to reach 50 men buried in the Las Raices Tunnel near here by a landslide.

Rescue operations were halted late yesterday by minor landslides and water-clogged machinery and a riot broke out as onlookers, many of them frenzied relatives of the entombed men, crashed through the guard lines and surged up to the blocked tunnel entrance.

A force of Carabineers immediately stepped in and put down the disorder. Leaders of the rescue crew said it probably would be late to-day before they succeeded in reaching the men.

They said they feared some of the victims had been drowned by accumulating water in the tunnel.

Fly Problem Pains Calgary Residents

CALGARY, May 20 (Special to The Examiner)—Calgary residents have taken the house fly menace seriously. Protection against the pest has cost them about $300,000 and something like $20,000 a year. Screening alone for 20,000 homes with, on an average, five windows, runs to some $200,000 by way of initial outlay and it has to be periodically replaced.

At least one bottle of patent poison—perhaps an average of 50 cents—is used in each household during the season adding another $10,000 to the cost of warfare against the housefly. Then there is the cost of protection of food against the invaders.

The cost of the war is being advanced as an argument for destruction of the breeding grounds.

U. S. GOVERNMENT JOB SEEKERS TO SING STAR SPANGLED BANNER

Representative's Plan Would Give "Edge" to Those With Best Voices.

CONSTERNATION EXPECTED

(By Ken Clark, C.P. Staff Writer.)

WASHINGTON, May 20. — "O say, does that star-spangled banner yet wave?" Upon ability to sing this and companion lines, Representative Fuller, D. Ala., would grade citizens of these United States seeking Governmental jobs.

He introduced a resolution into Congress to-day to include in the Civil Service examinations a test of candidates' ability to sing the National Anthem.

Realizing that all candidates have not an ear for music, he provided in the resolution that those who cannot sing may recite. But candidates who can start off in a clear contralto or baritone, "O where is the band who so vauntingly swore,' 'and keeping right on going, "Their blood has washed out their foul footsteps' pollution," will be given the edge.

"The Star-Spangled Banner," the air of which was originally composed for a drinking song, "Anacreaon in Heaven," requires a considerable range, and should Representative Fuller's resolution go through there will be consternation among the ranks of those seeking Government jobs.

BEDALE HAS GOT A TOWN CRIER AT LAST

Bedale has at last got its town crier. For weeks this old Yorkshire town has been searching and advertising for a man who would be willing to stand up in the market streets and shout announcements—for nothing, for there is no salary attaching to the job.

Applications came from as far afield as Wales and Sussex, but the job has gone to Frank Gregory; all he will get will be odd payments for bill-posting and for making private announcements.

SALTWICK NAB WILL SOON BE AN ISLAND

Sea Recently Has Greatly Reduced the Shore End

Whitby, Eng.—At the present rate of erosion it will not be long before Saltwick Nab, that long black arm that runs into the sea a mile to the south of Whitby piers, will be an island at high tide like its neighbor, Black Nab.

The sea has made great inroads recently at the shore end of the nab and a steep and slippery gap is very difficult to negotiate.

The nab is composed of a different variety of shale from the scar itself, which is known as the alum shale, and does not resist the action of the sea so well.

Saltwick bay is a favorite place in Yorkshire with picnic parties in the summer and a happy hunting ground for the geologist and student of marine life.

FOUNTAINS ABBEY IS SEEN BY FLOODLIGHT

Preparing for Celebration of 800th Anniversary

Ripon, Eng.—Preparations are beingmade here for a celebration of the 800th anniversary of the foundation of Fountains Abbey, which takes place in the autumn.

Recently, experiments have been made in floodlighting the abbey ruins.

It has been difficult to arrange the lights so that an imposing block of the abbey can be illuminated. Every effort will be made, however, to ensure a splendid effect.

Fountains Abbey has long been a favorite spot for Yorkshire holiday-makers. Its position by the side of the River Skell is delightful, and the extent of the ruins gives the visitor an excellent idea of how the domestic arrangements of the monks were carried out.

Late in 1132 a group of Benedictine monks seceded from St. Mary's Abbey, York, and established themselves at Fountains. Soon afterwards the community attached itself to the Cistercian order and were instructed in the habits of their new order by a monk specially sent over from the mother abbey at Clairvaux.

Japan expects to import 2,200,000 bales of American cotton this year.

Sun-Pillar Marvel Is Seen in Herts

Rare Spectacle Due to Reflection of Sunlight on Snow Crystals

Bardet, Eng.—A "sun-pillar" was seen by hundreds of people living in this section of Hertfordshire at sunset the other day.

"The sun appeared as though it were suspended on a pillar of light, which extended in a straight line from it down to the horizon," said an observer.

A weather expert says:

"The appearance of this sun-pillar was in accordance with the weather conditions. The cirrus clouds at an average height of 30,000 feet would provide the small snow crystals on which the sun has to shine to produce the 'pillar' effect."

The official definition of a sun-pillar is:

"A vertical column of light above, and sometimes below, the sun. It most often occurs at sunrise or sunset. The color may be white, pale yellow, orange or pink. The phenomenon, which is due to the reflection of sunlight on small snow crystals, may be seen over a warm area."

A similar sun-pillar was observed in 1924 over a large part of the south of England.

Succeed In Splitting Atom

TRANSMIT HYDROGEN INTO HELIUM.

At the Cavendish Laboratory at Cambridge, England, two young doctors, 30 and 34 respectively, recently startled the scientific world by succeeding in splitting the atom, one of the greatest scientific feats in history. Not only did they accomplish the task of splitting the atom, but they also succeeded in transmitting one element into another—atoms of hydrogen have been turned into atoms of that rare and commercially valuable gas, helium. At the same time the energy of part of an atom has been released in a quantity 60 per cent. greater than the amount used to produce this phenomenon, although it occurred only once in each 10,000,000 atoms bombarded. The young scientists worked under the direction of the noted British scientist, Lord Rutherford. Left to right: Dr. E. T. S. Walton, Lord Rutherford, and Dr. J. D. Crockroft.

BRITISH UNIVERSITY WOMEN PREPARE FOR BIG CONFERENCE

Over 50,000 Individual Delegates Expected to Attend From Around World.

NOTED SPEAKERS LISTED.

EDINBURGH, May 20.—(C. P. Cable)—British university women are making eager preparations to welcome the sixth triennial conference of the International Federation of University Women which meets here July 27 to Aug. 4. Representatives of 38 national federations of university women, comprising about 50,000 individual members, are expected to attend.

Features of the four-day program will be a discussion of the work of the Federation in favor of disarmament, addresses by the Duchess of Atholl, Miss Amy Johnson, the aviatrix, and Dr. Harriet Chick, famous authority on vitamins, group meetings on subjects of special interest such as law, music, art and education, and an elaborate series of social engagements. These include a civic reception by the Lord Provost of Edinburgh, a dinner with Scottish music and dancing, excursions into the famed countryside of "Auld Reekie" and a visit to the Edinburgh zoological gardens.

The International Federation of University Women, founded simultaneously in 1919 by groups of university women in Great Britain and North America, has as its object the promotion of international goodwill. This end is attained by organized study of national and international problems, granting of research fellowships, exchanges between professional women of different countries and maintenance of members' clubhouses in various parts of the world.

British Wesleyan Church Just Holding Its Own

LONDON, May 20.—(C. P. Cable)—The Wesleyan church in Great Britain is just holding its own numerically, returns from England and Scotland issued today indicate.

Membership is just over 500,000 and 24,600 new members added during the past year almost exactly balance losses through death and other causes. There was a decline in Sunday School membership.

'LUCKY' DEWAR TO WED WIDOW OF GUARDSMAN

Inherited £1,000,000 and Last Year Was Biggest Race Winner

London.—Mr. John Arthur Dewar, nephew of the late Lord Dewar, from whom he inherited £1,000,000 is engaged to Kathleen McNeili of Paris.

Mrs. McNeili has a pretty home in the Rue de Lota. She is a native of South Africa, and was formerly married to Captain Ronald McNeill of the Irish Guards, who was at one time on the staff of the governor-general of South Africa. She has a daughter, age 10, who is at school in England.

Mr. Dewar, who will be 40 in August and has been described as "Lucky Dewar," is 6 feet 3 inches tall.

Among the horses he inherited were Cameronian, which won the Derby and the Two Thousand Guineas last year, and Abbots Trace, which died recently at East Grinstead, Mr. Dewar's Sussex home. Last year Mr. Dewar headed the list of winning owners on the turf, netting nearly $60,000.

In his will Lord Dewar made reference to his nephew's associations with the firm, saying that he regarded him as "a shrewd and exceptionally able business man."

LORD WILLINGDON'S SON SEEKS DIVORCE

Godfrey Tearle's Wife Also Among Petitioners of Over 1,000 Cases

London.—There are over 1,000 divorce cases in the high court list for the present term, an increase of over 200 compared with last term.

Of the actions, 801 are undefended and 241 defended. The suits brought by women are approximately double the number of those brought by men.

A petition for divorce by Viscount Ratendone, son of Lord Willingdon, viceroy of India, and former governor-general of Canada, against Lady Ratendone is to be heard.

Before her marriage in 1924 Lady Ratendone was Miss Maxine Forbes-Robertson, eldest daughter of Sir Johnston and Lady Forbes-Robertson, the famous actor and actress. Both Lady Ratendone and her husband are keen fliers and hold pilot certificates.

Mrs. Godfrey Tearle, whose stage name is Miss Malone, is petitioning against Mr. Godfrey Tearle, the actor. The suit is not defended.

FIND WHOLE WORLD ALIVE WITH WORMS

The world, and almost all that is in it, literally is alive with worms!

That is the startling discovery of scientists who are studying the habits and characteristics of a huge family of mysterious, all-pervasive wormlike creatures called "nemas."

From pole to pole, nemas infest the earth. The Arctic and the tropics alike abound in them. They thrive equally on the floor of the ocean and in the rarefied air of mountain tops. They are the worst enemies of the farmers of the South, the rancher of the West. Experts estimate they destroy $100,000,000 worth of livestock in this country yearly. The value of the crops and trees they devour is incalcuable.

Even man himself is not immune from the nema's attacks, writes Clayton R. Slawter. The hookworm, which lives in the small intestine of its human, victim, sucking his blood and thuscausing anemia, heart disease, and mental and physical lassitude, is a member of the numerous nema family. The Rockefeller Institute has spent $5,000,000 on hookworm control in tropical and sub-tropical countries. Since this organization merely shares with various governments the expense of combating the disease, the total sum spent in fighting his blood and thus causing an-000,000. Yet the hookworm is but one of more than a hundred species of nemas that prey on human beings!

Nemas are not insects, worms, or snakes, although most of them resemble worms and snakes. The largest species known is nearly forty inches long; the smallest measures only one two-hundred-and-fiftieth of an inch from head to tail. But whatever their length, they always are slim and flexible. Usually their bodies have no protuberances, but a newly discovered deep-sea species is equipped with a multitude of strange, feelerlike "legs." Nemas take their name from a Greek word meaning yarnlike or stringlike.

According to Dr. N. A. Cobb, nematologist of the United States Department of Agriculture, about 5,000 different species of nemas are known to-day. Staggering though this figure may seem, it represents but a small proportion of the total number of nema species believed to exist. From the rate at which new types are being found, and the widely scattered area they are known to inhabit, the number of different kinds of nemas infesting the earth is estimated to run into the millions.

Broadly speaking, nemas fall into two large groups — the parasite species and the free-living types. The parasitic nemas are the ones that cause all the damage and disease. On the whole, the free-living species are not so unfriendly toward man as are their cousins that prey on his crops and cattle. One expert has even gone so far as to say it would be impossible for man to inhabit some parts of the globe in which he now lives without the protection of these nemas.

Have you ever noticed that grasshopper plagues only appear in certain parts of the country? Have you observed that in New England, for example, grasshoppers do not appear in swarms as they do in more western states? As a result of his studies, Dr. Cobb is inclined to attribute the New England farmers' immunity from grasshopper plagues to a free-living nema commonly known as the hairworm.

The eggs of this creature are eaten by grasshoppers, which become the unwilling hosts of nemas that devour them from the inside out.

The presentation will take place at the Park, and all interested are invited to attend.

CHURCH OF SCOTLAND TO OPEN GENERAL ASSEMBLY EMPIRE DAY

Sir Ian Colquhoun, High Commissioner, First Baronet to Hold Post in Two Centuries.

HISTORY OVER 700 YEARS.

(By Thos. T. Champion—C.P. Staff Writer).

LONDON, May 20. — This year's General Assembly of the Church of Scotland will open its meetings in Edinburgh on Empire Day. The General Assembly has a history of over 700 years, and is 70 years older than the English convocation.

Sir Ian Colquhoun, Baronet of Luss, who succeeds James Brown as Lord High Commissioner, and who will open the Assembly on behalf of the King, is the first baronet to occupy the office for over two centuries.

The Assembly will continue until June 2, when the Lord High Commissioner and Her Grace have numerous other engagements.

Former Consideration.

The relations between Presbyterians and Anglicans will again be considered by the Assembly. A committee will submit that the English Presbyterian Church and the Episcopal Church of Scotland should both be invited to send representatives to a discussion which would be based upon the 1920 appeal by the Lambeth Conference of Anglican Bishops for Christian Unity. The committee has already approached the Archbishop of Canterbury asking whether the way was still open for such a conference. A cordial reply was received and an informal discussion took place last month in London.

Another committee will report that it is extremely desirable to have the mind of the Church elicited upon the place of women in the Church. The majority of the committee finds there are no sufficient grounds in principle for the discrimination of sex in eligibility for the eldership.

This has been completely renovated and decorated in artistic yet dignified fashion, in keeping with the purpose for which it is to be used.

SEA STUDY SHOWS WEATHER SECRETS

Experts of Scripps Institution Make Forecasts Months Ahead With Ocean's Aid.

Secrets of the weather are being revealed by the waters of the Pacific Ocean. At the Scripps Institution of Oceanography, a department of the University of California, scientists are achieving remarkable success in long-range forecasting through study of the fluctuating temperatude and chemical content of sea water.

Every morning at eight o'clock, the ocean's temperature is taken at La Jolla, Calif. From this information and other data, the experts are able to predict with amazing accuracy, the weather for many months in advance. The temperatures being recorded at present, for example, will be used to forecast next winter's weather on the Pacific Coast, writes Andrew R. Boone.

Recently, these forecasts have proved accurate seventy-five per cent. of the time. How remarkable this record is can be appreciated when it is remembered that the predictions of the U.S. Weather Bureau, made only twenty-four hours, instead of months, in advance, are correct only eighty per cent. of the time. The California scientists expect to be able to forecase periods of rainfall and drought five, ten, and even twenty years ahead through their study of the sea.

This success is the culmination of research begun sixteen years ago. The first long-range weather prediction on the basis of these studies was made in 1923 b Dr. George F. McEwen, famous oceanographer who is in charge of the work. Three or four years ago, several California public utility companies interested themselves in the study. Dr. A. F. Gorton, industrial physicist, joined Dr. McEwen in the work of tracing storms to their ocean sources and of predicting, on the basis of summer sea temperatures, the weather for the following winter.

From their observations, the two men have come to the general conclusion that warm sea water in summer indicates a dry winter, and cold water a wet winter.

Other things beside temperatures enter into the computations. A tide gauge swinging up and down on a barnacle-covered pile on the Institution's experimental pier, day and night, writes its story of the restless sea on a paper-covered cylinder. Also, each day, a small sample of the Pacific's green water is analyzed to learn whether there has been an increase or decrease in the chemicals it contains. This record of shifting chemical content is highly important. It indicates when the ocean is spouting water from its depths to the surface.

These gigantic undersea fountains bring colder and more salt water from the ocean's floor. They are believed to play an important part in producing wetter winters, with heavier snows in the mountains and increased danger of floods in the spring.

"Since we cannot hope to predict at the beginning of each season the occurrence of individual storms and their water production," says Dr. McEwen, "we are driven to inquire whether there may not be a trend in rainfall and temperature, so we can classify seasons as wet or dry, co'd or mild."

Assuming there is such a trend, the scientists have worked on the theory that it can be forecast by using as a basis an element that bears a definite relation to rainfall—the sea's temperature changes.

"If we can establish the length of the cycles accurately," Dr. Gorton explains, "we can forecast the trend of rainfall over five, ten, or twenty years. The great drought of 1920-1921, for example, was merely the climax of fifteen years of definite precipitation in California."

BOARD OF EDUCATION FAVORS CONTRACTS WITH ITS TEACHERS

20 TEACHERS TO GO.

WINDSOR, Ont., May 20 (C.P.).—Windsor Board of Education has rejected the suggestion of the City Council that there be no contracts between the Board and teachers.

Chairman Spencer pointed out, at a special meeting of the Board and held behind closed doors, that the Departmental regulations require that contracts exist.

The Board has decided, however, that contracts will be for the calendar year and not the school year, and there is a clause in the new contracts which permits either party to conclude the contract on one month's notice, with consent of the Minister of Education. The Board has the right to close a contract at once and pay a month's salary in lieu of notice.

Contracts with 20 teachers will not be renewed following the holidays. Eighteen are being let out because classes are being enlarged and the staff reduced, and two because Windsor residents are to be given places. The reduction in staff was decided upon some weeks ago as part of the Board economy program. Free text books and supplies and dental and nursing service are also being cut off, and the schools will be kept closed for the first two weeks in September.

Downeyville

On Friday evening, May 13th the Parish Hall was crowded when St. Mary's Dramatic Club of Lindsay presented their play "Patsy O'Callahan." A splendid crowd was present and all were loud in their praise of the actors and actresses. Between the acts the audience was entertained by vocal numbers splendidly rendered by Leo Begley and Miss Fanny Costello and humorous reading by Miss Campbell, accompanied on the piano by Miss Regina Costello.

The play a story of the honesty and kind heartedness of a poor Irish father and daughter in contrast to the stinginess and snobbishness of Squire Cavanagh and his nephew was cleverly displayed. T. J. Begley as Patrick O'Callahan, the country magistrate and Miss Bernice Mullen as Patsy, Patrick's unselfish daughter the friend of the poor and the green rider, a highway robber, who robbed the rich to give to the poor, both played their parts exceedingly well. Thomas McGuire as Squire Cavanagh the stingy land owner, who was very relentless on his tenants and Howard Galley as Bernard Cavangah his nephew a mony seeking rogue, enacted their roles splendidly. Miss Rita Sadler as Bridget, O'Callahan's housekeeper and Frank Cowan as her grandson, who was an "up and coming politician," according to Pat O'Callahan, won the admiration of the audience. Dennis O'Farrell, the poor but honest suitor of Patsy was well taken by Ray Scott, and Terry McShane, one of Patsy's devoted friends was well enacted by Leo Begley. The part of the constable was taken by Lorne Grozell.

The splendid way the actors and actresses carried out their roles reflects great credit on the training they received under the direction of Mrs. Kathleen Baker-McGuire. Great credit is due all players for making the play the splendid success it was.

CEREAL RELIEVED HIS CONSTIPATION

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Brought New Health

Every one who has suffered from constipation should read Mr. P. M. Fisher's letter:

"For many years I suffered from constipation and used, for relief, all kinds of laxatives. After a few days' treatment, I would only find my condition the same as before and at times worse.

"Some time ago I started to use Kellogg's ALL-BRAN regularly, once a day as directed. Since doing this, I have found that I do not need any other medicine to procure the desired result, and it keeps me in a very healthful condition."—Mr. P. M. Fisher. (Address on request.)

Constipation is caused by lack of two things in the diet: "Bulk" to exercise the intestines; Vitamin B to tone the intestinal tract. ALL-BRAN supplies both—and also iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that in lettuce. Inside the body, it forms a soft mass, which gently clears out the wastes.

How much safer this is than risking pills and drugs—so often harmful. Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily—in serious cases, with every meal. If your intestinal trouble is not relieved in this way, see your doctor.

Equally tasty as a cereal, or used in cooking. Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

SEARCH JOINED BY UNDERWORLD

Rosner Claims Every Mob Leader Checked Up on Missing Members.

CHISELERS KEPT OUT.

NEW YORK, May 20. (CP) — The World-Telegram says that Morris Rosner, appointed by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh to negotiate with the underworld for the return of the Lindbergh baby, told an amazing story to-day of the underworld search.

Earl Sparling, who wrote the article, says Rosner told him that hostilities were forgotten and every organized mob and gang in the country co-operated.

"The first thing I did" Sparling quotes Rosner as saying, "was to go to all the mob leaders and ask them to help. Every one of them did."

They started off by suspecting everyone who was missing from the usual places. That includes lamsters or fugitives from justice and the other fellows who were hiding out because they thought they were on the spot in some feud. Every one of them was hunted up and questioned.

And all of them were willing to help. Some of them were taking their lives in their hands to come out of hiding.

Rosner is quoted as saying that one thing the gangs were able to do for Col. Lindbergh was to keep out the "chiselers" opportunists who sought to obtain a ransom for a child they did not have. The gangs dealt with such men in summary fashion, he said.

GRAYDON FACES MURDER COUNT

Charge Is Laid Despite Jury's Verdict Father Struck Son in Defense.

FRACAS OVER WOMAN.

HAMILTON, May 20.—A charge of murder was laid against Walter Graydon by the Crown this morning. G. W. Ballard, Crown Attorney announced. Graydon was held by the police on a charge of aggravated assault when Samuel Graydon was admitted to the hospital several days ago suffering from serious head injuries. His death occurred on Wednesday morning.

Police alleged that young Graydon had been out riding in a car with a married woman and that on his return had entered into an argument with his father. It was alleged that the lad was struck by an iron pipe, in the hands of his father.

Last night a coroner's jury brought in a decision that the elder Graydon had struck in self defense. In spite of this verdict, the murder charge was laid today, however. Graydon is in custody.

WOMEN ACTIVE IN BRAZIL FOR HIGH STANDARD

Feminist Move Takes Decided Stand Against War of All Kinds.

STUDY MODERN METHODS.

NEW YORK, May 20.—Strife, poor living conditions, ignorance and lack of educational facilities, have aroused the women of Brazil to take an active part in a feminist movement to raise the standards of that country up to and above those of the United States, according to Miss Bertha Lutz, secretary of the National Museum of Brazil in Rio de Janeiro. Miss Lutz is a leader in this movement, and is at present engaged in studying American methods, especially in the educational technique of museums.

"We have taken a decided stand against war of all kinds," she said, "and are striving to build up a spirit of international co-operation, and the only way in which we can accomplish this end is to use scientific methods. There is no group of men better to reason with and collaborate with than the natural scientists.

"I believe that to-day when the values of so many of our most precious ideals and institutions are being challenged, these men should come out of their seclusion and help to guide the world along saner lines with the same clear point of view they use in organizing natural phenomenon. They must take their place in an active world and help to organize social and economic life as well. They constitute the one group that can go out in the world and do such a work, making a beautiful and harmonious life possible to all humanity."

Miss Lutz says she believes those in charge of museum work, in their associations with all classes can take this responsibility especially. She declares that they must not be influenced by the erroneous steps of a frightened world but help to interpret life in its broader aspects as portrayed by the art and natural history of the past and show the world how to apply it to-day.

"The United States is the most friendly nation in the world," she said, "and it must continue to reach out a helping and strengthening hand to the rest of humanity."

In speaking of the National Museum of Brazil, which institution she officially represented at the twenty-seventh annual meeting of the American Association of Museums in Cambridge last week, she described it as a beautiful building set in the centre of large, expansive grounds surrounded by mountains, its beauty enhanced by tropical settings.

In her appeal to the members of the convention who intend holding their next annual meeting at Chicago during the world fair, Miss Lutz expressed the hope that the meetings would be international in scope, open to museum people from all over the earth and not from just America alone. "Organized selfishness is not success, we must be careful to keep the Golden Rule ever before us as our guiding beacon in the service of mankind."

Some Style Points

What are the style points to watch for this spring? First, a military outline with broad shoulders tapering to a trig waistline, and a straight-lined skirt. Hats are tilted over the right eye with trimming detail over the left ear. Gloves are loose-fitting. Shoes have lower heels and lack elaborate trimming. To lend femininity to the costume there are multitudinous scarfs and bows, but these trimmings details as confined within the tailored silhouette.

Smart coiffures show the hair lying in flat curls closely to the head; the sausage roll and loosely hanging ringlets are no longer fashionable. The smartest fabrics are either woolen, or silk or cotton simulating woolen. High necklines and well-fitting collars, capes, large, glistening buttons are other fashion details to be noticed the coming season.

INDIGESTION.

In a certain small city a physician has become known for hundreds of miles about, as being able to cure all manner of stomach ailments without the need of an operation.

There is no question but that this physician is doing a great amount of good, and that there are some cases of severe stomach ailments, even ulcer, in which he has brought about a cure.

He will be the first to tell you, however, that he is not using any different remedies than other physicians, that his medical treatment is practically the same.

What is the reason for his success?

He treats his patient instead of the ailment.

Every case that comes to him is treated in an individual manner; the exact dosage of the medicines, the hours of eating, the rest periods during the day; the length of time between meals; the chewing of the food, the proper method of securing regular intestinal movement.

In addition to this he lays down individual definite health rules to be followed by each individual. Some of these suggestions are: rest for fifteen minutes before each meal, lying down; rest of thirty minutes after each meal, sitting down; if worried or upset, no food to be eaten until calmness returns.

In other words, the secret of this physician's success is that so many have been helped by him that the patient goes to him with faith and hope, and that is a big start on the way to relief from indigestion and stomach trouble.

Most stomach ailments, "indigestion" as it is called, are not due to any particular disease, but to some bad eating habits; eating too fast; eating too much; eating when tired; eating when upset; eating when not hungry; eating when hurried; eating the wrong kinds of foods.

By using the usual stomach remedies, and correcting these bad eating habits, together with the hope and faith he has created in their minds, this doctor is getting excellent results.

As a matter of fact, indigestion is not a permanent ailment that comes to you like tuberculosis or rheumatism and stays. Dr Robert E. Humphries, Orange, N.J., says: "I do not believe indigestion can be cured, as it follows the things we do from day to day. Indigestion comes and goes, depending on what we are doing every day."

LOUIZA MAYOWNA IS GUEST SPEAKER

Addresses Havelock Missionary Society at Thank-Offering Service.

HAVELOCK, May 20. — (Examiner Correspondence).—The W.M.S. of the United Church was most fortunate in securing Miss Louiza Mayowna, a native of Czecho-Slovakia, as their special speaker for the thank-offering service on Sunday evening last. The president, Mrs. Bonney, conducted the service. The church choir lead the musical part and sang two beautiful anthems, which were duly appreciated.

Miss Mayowna's pleasing personality was enhanced by the picturesque garb of the Russian-Polish peasant. The dress is made up of most beautiful striped cloth, which is woven on the looms that are found in almost every home. It requires twenty-five yards of material to make one dress. The yellow streamers which hang from the shoulders down the back designate whether the wearer is married or single. Usually only one dress in a lifetime is the lot of the women of Central Europe, who, as you may know, is not troubled with the problems of fashion. If she is very lucky she may get another one at middle age.

The speaker contrasted the position of women in Canada with those of Central Europe, and said there were no women in all the world so happily situated as those of the Anglo-Saxon race. She told of how her people wore sad faces because of the constant fear in which they lived. After two years of life in Canada she is gradually emerging from that unhappy condition.

Czecho-Slovakia, a very small country, has seventy million people. Poland, about the size of Ontario, has ninety million of a population. "You talk of depression in Canada! You know nothing of hunger and hard work, such as is known in Central Europe. After the civil war of 1926 in Poland, the country was one large graveyard, and during the Great War and the two wars following, all the produce of the country was needed to feed the soldiers, while in the hinterland the women, children and old people were starving, even eating grass." The speaker said during the war she was doing hospital work in Germany, and in response to pleading letters from home asking for food, she had managed to send them ten pounds of beans. Life for the women in such times is a perfect nightmare.

Miss Mayowna was sent for and placed at St. Johns, Que., by the W.M.S. She has been instrumental in welcoming many newcomers, speaking in their native tongue, allaying their fear, helping the sick and sorrowing mothers and children separated from their husbands and fathers. Sometimes young women were met by their affianced husband, and in a case of this kind she was able to assist the chaplin, translating the English marriage ceremony into their native language. The spirit of her work is best expressed in her own words. "Never in my life have so many people called me the only friend they had while in distress, but I was always glad to be able to remind them they had a much greater and better Friend."

Drastic changes in the immigration laws have cut down the influx of people from Central Europe Port work has decreased, and Miss Mayowna's work will be in other parts of this great Dominion where non-Anglo-Saxon line. Should she visit Havelock again she will be assured a hearty welcome.

Gossamer veils with artificial eye brows tinted to match the wearer's hair, and embroidered in the proper place, are being worn in Paris.

PLAINVILLE TO ENTER LEAGUE

BASEBALL GOSSIP

BAILIEBORO, May 20 (Examiner Correspondence)—An executive meeting of the Northumberland baseball club executives was held in the town hall at Alderville on Tuesday evening, and representatives from the local club, Harwood, Roseneath, Baltimore, Plainville, Cobourg and Alderville were present.

After considerable discussion between the representatives of the various teams it was decided that the Cobourg club would be unable to enter a team in the Northumberland league this year, as the by-law reads that no team from an incorporated village or town are eligible to compete for the Sam Clarke trophy. The application made by the newly formed club from Plainville was then dealt with and the members voted to allow Plainville to enter their team, making a six team league.

Roseneath will no doubt be a strong contestant for the honors this season. Beside having an all around fast team, Dr. Wright, who last year signed to pitch for the locals has joined the Roseneath ranks. Harwood also looks like a winning team, while there is no telling what Baltimore and Plainville may do, or what dark horse they may have in mind.

The locals however will stand a fair chance of coming out on top with the experience gained from their contact with fast company last season.

The 24th of May will find the locals clashing with Roseneath in their initial away from home game. The Alderville Indians will meet the locals here on June 3rd.

The students of the Normal School, the teachers from the practice schools and a number of guests enjoyed a delightful May Day program at the Normal School on Wednesday afternoon. The May Queen, Miss Lorene Adams, played the part in a charming manner. After the crown had been played on her head by Principal Dr. Bannister, a series of old English dances and appropriate songs, followed. Miss Enid Richardson, as Mistress of Ceremonies, introduced the actors and recounted the history celebrations and the part they once played in the festivities of Old England. Robin Hood and his merry men appeared, to tell of their adventures and to offer the queen their allegiance and protection. The Milk Maids' dance was clever and effective, as were also the flag dance and other numbers. Mr. Adrian Macdonald, on behalf of the Year Book staff, presented prizes for the best poem submitted, to Mr. R. Fluke, and for the best essay to Mr. E. Higgins. Miss Jean Hawkins, the class valedictorian, gave an exceptionally able address. The program closed with the May Pole dance. The Assembly Hall was tastefully decorated withf lowers and the costuming for the various numbers was particularly effective.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

IT HAS BEEN SAID that a man's vocabulary is a part of his personality.

* * * * * * *

And it is said that he can no more change it than he can change the color of his eyes. Here is a startling statement. One which gives pause to one's thoughts.

* * * * * * *

The more one ponders it the more convinced does he become that a man's vocabulary is a part of his personality. It is through words that he expresses his idea, his thoughts, his hopes, desires, and imaginings.

* * * * * * *

The trend of these thoughts brings its train of words, for thoughts are expressed even to one's self in words, not audible except to the person, but words just the same.

* * * * * * *

The person who is pursuing technical studies acquires a technical vocabulary. A lawyer thinks in legal terms. A doctor masters the terminology of medicine and surgery.

* * * * * * *

One who is engrossed in the study of plants and has a garden learns botanical words. A cook has to be acquainted with culinary expressions.

* * * * * * *

All these are self-evident necessities of the work in which the person is engaged. Play has its especial vocabulary belonging to cards, football, tennis, squash, etc. Whatever the occupation or recreation the particular words of it becomes part of the vocabulary of the person working or recreating.

* * * * * * *

This is a rather staggering consideration. Our very individuality becomes tinged with the words and what they mean. If it is true of these things, it is equally true of our inner life. It has its own vocabulary.

* * * * * * *

If our thoughts are beautiful, the language of beauty becomes part of our personality. So ingrained does our vocabulary become that to change it has been deemed impossible.

* * * * * * *

It is a blessed thought that determination to succeed and the will to work toward higher ideas gradually sifts a vocabulary of the words which have become part of one's individuality.

* * * * * * *

Undesirable words are shed from lack of use. In their place come words of our finer vision, our clearer thoughts. It is these we now are using to ourselves and to those about us.

* * * * * * *

While there can be no doubt but that one's vocabulary is part of one's personality, it is equally true that according to what a man thinketh so is he, and we all have the opportunity to think such beautiful thoughts that only a beautiful vocabulary can express our true selves, our real personality.

CARDS OF EXIT AND ENTRY

Every Bridge player, who has passed beyond the neophyte class, realizes the value of entry cards. Those who become expert realize the equal value of exit cards. An entry card is one which permits you access from one hand to the other. An exit card is one used to surrender the lead to an opponent. Obviously, Aces and Kings qualify as entry cards, but frequently the expert can make cards of entry out of even treys and four spots. The value of conserving cards of exit and entry is well illustrated in the hand which is discussed today.

North and South not vulnerable.

East and West vulnerable.

North—Dealer.

	♠ A K 10 ♡ J 8 ◇ K Q 7 4 ♣ K 7 3 2
♠ Q 9 6 4 2 ♡ A 4 2 ◇ J 5 2 ♣ A Q	N W E S	♠ J ♡ Q 10 9 7 6 5 3 ◇ A 9 6 ♣ J 5
	♠ 8 7 5 3 ♡ K ◇ 10 8 3 ♣ 10 9 8 6 4

The Bidding:

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

North	East	South	West
1NT	2♡(1)	Pass	3♡(2)
Pass	4♡(3)	Pass	Pass
Pass

1—Although East's hand contains a bare 1-½ honor-tricks, the unusual length in the heart suit justifies the vulnerable Overcall.

2—West has adequate support for his partner's heart bid and gives a Raise.

Against the game contract, South opened the Ten of clubs. East refused to finesse as North's Opening notrump bid marked the finesse as a loser. Besides, he had another use for the club Queen. The Ace of hearts was laid down and East was pleasantly surprised when the King dropped from the South hand. On this play, East was careful to play the five of hearts instead of the trey. The reason for this play also will appear later. Another round of hearts won by the Queen in the closed hand disposed of North's last trump and East then led a club, North winning. It was reasonably apparent to North that another lead of clubs would give East a ruff in one hand and discard in the other. Therefore, he next led the King of spades, upon which East played the Knave. Another round of spades would establish the spades in the Dummy, so North now shifted to the King of diamonds which East refused to win. This plan of play assured East of his contract. North can make no lead that will give to him or his partner another trick. If a small diamond is led, it will be permitted to run to the Dummy. The lead of the Ace of spades would result in the establishment of the entire spade suit.

East, through carefully saving his smallest heart, had established a hidden entry in the Dummy Hand whereby that hand could contribute materially to the making of the contract. If East, on the first round of trumps had carelessly played the trey, the game must have been lost, as East must have then lost two diamonds, one club and one spade. The lowly four spot in the Dummy had become as powerful as an Ace, because against the opponents it was the commanding card of the trump suit and the Declarer, through careful play, had retained a method of utilizing it.

OUR MAIL

Dear Anne Wilcox:

It is some time since I wrote to our page. I guess I am lazy or do not take time like so many more, but I am sure we appreciate your articles, just the same.

I thought how true it was that habits formed in childhood influence our lives in later years. As a child, I was taught never to spit on the floor or eat with a knife and not to slam doors, etc. I shudder when I see grown-ups so careless in objectionable habits. Ill try to persist in training my children to form good habits. Another habit I like to see children have is to clean their teeth daily. It is so easy to be careless and indifferent.

How nice it is to have the warm weather now. It seems to give one more vim. The children just live outside. Our baby is a darling and she likes to find the door open to creep outside. The children bring me the loveliest boquets of wild flowers.

There arep lenty of lilies out now and the lilacs will soon be out. We all love flowers and have flower beds in every inch of space we can get, even through our vegetable garden.

I do not want to miss the mail. Will you please order the enclosed pattern for which I am sending 15 cents. I hope you have a real holiday the 24th of May.

Yours sincerely,
H. Irene.

It is a long time since you wrote, H. Irene, in fact, I cant remember when it was, gut I am certainly glad to welcome you back to the page once again. Thank you for your kind words about the articles: it is nice to know they are appreciated. I hope you, too, enjoy a pleasant holiday.

Sincerely,
Anne Wilcox

NEW CANCER FIND MAY PROVE BOON

Agent May Be Part of "Mechanism" Long Sought to Stop Growth at Certain Point.

NEW YORK, May 20.—Discovery in healthy embryonic skin of a substance that can inhibit cancerous growth is announced to-day from the Rockfeller Institute.

The new agent may be part of the "mechanism" long sought by science which stops growth of a finger or arm at just the right size.

It is not thus far identified with the well-known "growth hormone" secreted by the pituitary gland, and prescribed by physicians.

It is the second important clue found recently at the Institute in a search for something that might control wild growth of cancer. Only its cancer effects are discussed in to-day's announcement, which is made in Science, official organ of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, by Dr. James B. Murphy and Dr. Ernest Sturm.

Unexpected Turns

The first discovery was a growth inhibitor existing in chicken cancer. It retarded similar cancers in chickens. Then one time rather unexpectedly it was found also to inhibit mouse cancer.

This suggested the possibility of growth inhibitors in healthy flesh. Search for them was begun in normal mice embryos. None was found in the embryo generally. But the skin and the placenta carried one.

These parts were dried to crumbling, soaked in water and the fluid drawn off. In this fluid was the inhibitor, thus far identified only by its effects. It retarded growth in about 60 per cent of the cases of a form of mouse cancer called carcinoma 63. It failed almost completely with another named sarcoma 180.

The reason for success in one case and failure in the other is not discussed.

STORM CLOUDS STILL DARKEN

Chinese embodying the Japanese and Russian and Chinese joint influences, as long as that condition lasted, Mr. Wong declared there could be no permanent solution of the problems.

Japan Has Rights.

While the speaker was appreciative of the fact that Japan had certain rights in Manchuria due to the fact that she had invested over three hundred million dollars in the development of the country, he was not forgetful that Japan had received more than double interest from her capital investment in Manchuria. He claimed that Japan owes her progress largely to Manchuria and its resources.

"We will not give up what is legally and morally ours without a struggle," he said, in maintaining that Chinese rights in Manchuria were being ruthlessly disregarded by Japan. China regarded Manchuria, he said, as her key position of defence against Russian and Japanese aggression. "Manchuria is a buffer state between the devil and the deep blue sea," he ejaculated.

Since May, 1915, there had been continual friction between China and Japan, and when the great nations of the world were struggling for existence, Japan as a supposed ally marched into China and imposed the "twenty-one demands." Compliance by China with the demands of Japan would virtually have placed her under Japanese dictatorship. China did not accede to the demands, and instead commenced to boycott Japanese goods. "At present," declared Mr. Wong, "this is the thirteenth boycott on Japanese goods."

Traced Cause of Tension.

Through space of time he proceeded, incident after incident immediately occurred to cause the present tension. He described the League of Nations' response to China's recent appeal as a "lot of hot air."

"We have now learned," he declared, "that we shall get nothing unless we fight for it ourselves." He maintained that in spite of the League's demand that Japan withdraw from Manchuria, she now had 160,000 troops in that country instead of only 15,000 as allowed under the treaty. It tended to show, he believed, that the Japanese people were not to be depended upon. "Militarism is on the ascendancy in Japan," he declared.

The speaker referred in grateful terms of the policy of the United States in regard to China, and told his audience how Canada might also help the Chinese cause by seeing that everything they purchased was made in Canada.

Aids In Shooting Bullets.

"Whenever you buy a piece of Japanese goods," he said, "you are helping to pay for a shell or bullet that will find a resting place in some innocent Chinese back. A militarist can only fight so long as the people allow him to fight," he said.

The program was augmented by vocal solos by Curtis Salsbury, who is associated with the evangelist services being conducted at the Grand Opera House. His numbers included a negro love song and a stirring negro spiritual. Other guests included J. W. Pearse, land surveyor; Russell Rowan, who provided pianoforte solos; Kenneth McCannan and R. M. Glover.

John I. Allen was booster for the day and was referred to in eulogistic terms by Isaac McNabb, a business colleague.

Dog Catcher Resigns, No Future In Job Dollar-a-Day Will Not Keep Him Alive

(Special to The Examiner)

DRUMHELLER, Alta., May 20 (SNS)—While most cities are finding it difficult to find jobs for their unemployed, Drumheller complains that its dog catcher is too blase for the job. He has quit because he sees no future in it.

John Duncan, chief of police, admits to council that he can catch no dogs. And this at a time when residents in the neighborhood of the city hall are catching up on several sleepless nights as a result of activities of the dog catcher.

It appears that the dog catcher could catch dogs. He caught two and put them in the pound behind the city hall. Then the wailing of the dogs, separated from their loved ones, kept everyone in the neighborhood awake and they called up the chief in the middle of the night to tell him about it. But, as the chief explained, when these two dogs were running at large someone else complained, so he did not see it made much difference whether the dogs were caught or not.

The dog catcher during his brief career earned a dollar from catching three dogs. Yes, three's right—one of them got away. He pointed out that this hardly pointed the way to fame and fortune, and tendered his resignation.

So that part of Drumheller that used to be kept awake by the two impounded dogs now sleeps. The other part stays awake, it seems, because the stray ups are abroad.

them and offered them for sale to persons he thought would be interested on a 10 per cent. commission basis.

O'Gorman insisted throughout that he had never received "one cent" for the file, and had paid for the photostatic copy himself. The reasen he had not turned it over to the Hydro Commission, he said, was because "there might have been a nigger in the fence there," and he was "suspicious of the Hydro."

A. B. Shepard, Toronto accountant, who audited Aird's books, was on the stand for a good share of the morning, outlining the various financial transactions in which Aird participated. It was true, he admitted, that prior to the Ottawa investigation into Beauharnois $80,000 of the $120,000 in Government bonds which Aird had received from the power corporation had been kept aside. One $80,000 block had been used for hypothecation and for loans, but the other was segregated with the interest coupons apparently remaining attached to them. After the Ottawa enquiry, the coupons from the remaining $80,000 had begun making their appearance and his investigation had shown that Aird used the bonds for various purposes.

$10,000 in Interest

In all, Aird had collected $10,000 in interest from the bonds at present, representing the entire amount due on the Government bonds and others for which he had exchanged the Beauharnois bonds. Only $800 of the entire amount he should have collected had been untraced by the accountant.

He had been unable to trace any of the $50 bills which Aird had received for three interest cheques of $1,650 each. He declared, and there was nothing to indicate he had been in possession of the second block of $80,000 until after the Ottawa investigation.

"If he were holding the block segregated it would indicate he was holding it for somebody else?" asked J. C. McRuer, K.C.

Aird received $120,000 from the Beauharnois in Government bonds, ostensibly for the Conservative party of Ontario. It had been suggested $80,000 of this amount ultimately found its way into the party coffers.

Fred A. Gaby, Chief Engineer of the Hydro Commission, declared John Aird Jr., had turned over to him a huge roll of plans and data regarding the Madawaska River purchase. Aird's receipt of $50,000 for his services with regard to this is being investigated. According to Gaby, there were about 385 plans in the roll, and they had been of great service to the Hydro engineers. The Madawaska, he said, was a very desirable property, for it could be developed as needed.

GREAT BRITAIN WILL SUPPLY CHIEF THREAT AT OLYMPICS

Rampling and Hampson Will Be Strongest Among Members of Team.

HAS GOOD SCULLERS.

(By Maxwell Stiles)

LOS ANGELES, May 20. (Special to The Examiner) — California's greatest prospective Olympic games athlete, big Ben Eastman of Stanford University, will encounter his chief opposition this summer from Great Britain.

That much is certain. There can be no doubt about it. The British will be here at Los Angeles with a strong team—they will raise the money somehow — and strongest among the members of this team will be Lieut. Rampling and Tom Hampson.

California fans, who will constitute the great majority of the crowd witnessing the Olympic games, naturally are particularly interested in such California athletes as Eastman, Frank Wykoff, Herman Brix and Bill Graber. Eastman has set as his goal the winning of the Olympic championships in the 400 and 800 metres. The fact that he has this year lowered the world's quarter-mile record to 46 4-10 seconds indicates that Eastman stands a very fine chance of succeeding.

Californias are intensely interested in Eastman's campaign and in seeing whether he can achieve his ambitious goal. It is therefore natural that Californians should be interested in Eastman's chief opponents, the chief barriers between Eastman and a double Olympic championship.

Great Quarter-Miler

Lieut. Rampling is unanimously regarded in England as the greatest quarter-miler ever developed in Great Britain. Rampling first came into prominence last year when he won several important races, his best time being 46 seconds flat. That was good for a newcomer, and Rampling proved that he could do better when, running against the crack German, Metzner, in the anchor lap of a relay race, he was timed in 46 3-5 seconds for his lap. If Eastman makes the American team in both events he will run the 800 metres first, a fact which will give a man of Rampling's calibre an excellent chance.

Hampson will have the first crack at Eastman, for the 800 metres final will be held two days before the trials in the 400 metres begin. Hampson ran 1:51.7 in 1930 and 1:54.8 last year. Douglas Lowe won for Great Britain the 800 metres in the last two Olympics, and Hampson is anxious to keep this title in Britain. There is some talk that Lowe may try it again, but Hampson looms as the real rival from England, and since history proves that English 800-metre men have a habit of defeating men who have made better time than themselves, Hampson is a man to be regarded on even terms with any runner in the race—no matter how fast Eastman runs between this writing and their meeting.

England has few field men of any ability whatsoever, but the British strength on the track is not confined to the 400 and 800 metres. R. H. Thomas of the Royal Air Force last year ran a mile in 4:13.4 and 1,500 metres in 3:54.6. He is one of the real threats for the 1,500 metres title.

Lord David Burghley may repeat his 1928 win in the 400-metres hurdles (he ran a race in 54.2 seconds last year), and he also stands a fine chance in the 110-metres high hurdles. Lord Burghley ran this race in 14.5 seconds in 1930; 14.8 seconds last year.

Regarded as Invincible

T. W. Green of the Bellgrave Harriers, holder of the 52-mile walking record from London to Brighton, is regarded as the best 50,000 metres walk prospect in Europe. Green won the Naples walking race and has a 50,000 metres record of 4:47, equalling that of the Canadian, Hank Cieman. Many regard Green as invincible.

British sprinters never do much before an Olympiad, but once the games begin men who have been running like mules suddenly become Phar Laps and take the American record breakers into camp. H. L. Page is Britain's hope in the sprints this time, and while Page has never approached the records of Wykoff or Tolan he is a sterling competitor who is improving. Page ran 100 metres in 10.6 seconds in 1930 and 10.8 seconds last year. He is regarded as a better runner than Jack London, who placed second in the Olympic 100 metres at Amsterdam.

Great Britain is strong in women's swimming. Miss Cooper, third in the 100 metres free style in 1928; Miss King, second in the 1928 backstroke, and Miss Hinton, a great breast stroke swimmer, are possible champions.

Second in rowing at Amsterdam, Britain will go into this sport in a big way, concentrating on eights, fours and sculling. It will probably be the United States vs. Great Britain for the eight-oar title.

Whether any British women will compete in track and field or in fencing has not been announced. In addition to the sports named, Britain will be represented in boxing, cycling and modern pentathlon. The team will number approximately 120 athletes.

LACROSSE PLEASES GOTHAM

New York sports writers are all agog over the exhibition of box lacrosse put on in Madison Square Gardens by the Montreal Canadiens and the Toronto Leafs. Although, it is said, they lost money on the affair, nevertheless Col. Hammond is enthusiastic over the future of the game, and it is now rumored that the Toronto Tecumsehs in the pro league will move, lock, stock and barrel to New York before many weeks.

Slugger Wilson Proves Sluggard

HACK WILSON

once mighty Chicago batsman, is now a has-been outfielder with the Brooklyn Dodgers. The handwriting is on the wall for Hack, who two years ago could bang the old ball to all corners of the lot, but who last year disappointed everyone by his sorry showing, and was traded to Brooklyn. He has shown little or nothing with that club so far this season, and Harry Carey has seen fit to bench him in place of Danny Taylor. It is difficult to know what ails Hack, that he should slump for such a prolonged period. tI is just one of baseball's mysteries—and tragedies.

BLUENOSE SAILING STAR CANUCK OLYMPIC THREAT

By ERNIE WYER

A display of extreme self-confidence is an objectionable trait in some folk, especially when they fail to make good. But in the case of Johnny Miles it is a virtuous quality. For instance of this self-assurance, for which Miles is noted, comes to the mind of the writer.

While conversing with "Whitey" Michelson, the United States marathon star, at the starting point of the Boston marathon in 1926, a little ruddy-faced chap, whose extremely youthful appearance seemed so incongruous in this coterie of rugged veterans who had gathered for the start, Michelson was prompted to remark: "What do you think you are going to do, young fellow?"

This little fellow was Miles, and he made good his boast, for he won the race that day. Prior to his victory at Boston, very little was known of Miles. True, his name appeared in the record books as having won a Canadian five-mile championship, but that didn't mean much at that time, for the records of other Canadian runners were far more impressive. His efforts before competing at Boston had been confined to shorter distance events in the maritimes, and consequently he was left out of the reckoning for the big race by the experts, who were figuring largely on the established stars to come through.

Failed to Come Through

Miles' 1926 victory in the "Hub" classic created a sensation, and his services for other races were much sought after. Accepting a few invitations, he failed to reproduce the form which won him the Boston marathon. People said his victory at Boston was only "a flash in the pan," and that as a marathon runner he was through, and subsequent races seemed to confirm this opinion. Two of the races in which he failed to come up to expectations were the Canadian Olympic trial of 1927 and the Boston marathon of the same year.

But Miles didn't feel that way about it. His spirit was undaunted by these reverses. Johnny came back and won the 10,000 metres Olympic trial of 1928. Characteristic of his optimistic nature, he declared upon his return from the Olympic games that he would again win the Boston marathon, which he did in 1929.

Dislikes the Sun

Miles is a first-class runner, if conditions are good. Like a number of other stars, his biggest enemy is Old Sol. Johnny is unable to run well if the weather happens to be the least bit warm. This has been proved innumerable times, which makes his participation in midsummer races uncertain. He is termed an in-and-outer by some. It appears that he will be selected for the 1932 Canadian Olympic team, on the off chance that he might come through, although it is suspected that it will be pretty warm when the runners line up for the start of the Olympic marathon at Los Angeles in August, which will affect Miles' chances.

Miles has won four full-distance marathons, two at Boston, one at Hamilton and one at Halifax.

Johnny is now in his twenty-seventh year. He was born at Halifax, England, and came to Canada with his parents at the age of four. He is thorough and careful in his habits, and is of a devout nature. He is diligent in his training, and prepares for a race alone, sometimes running as much as four and five times a week over long distances. He started his athletic career at Sydney Mines, Nova Scotia, but is now running for the Hamilton Olympic Club.

By RALPH H. REVILLE

The Whitlock Golf Club, situated on Hudson Heights and one of the most beautiful clubs in the Montreal District, by an announcement in the Canada Gazette, Ottawa, has been created a bird sanctuary and it will be known as the Whitlock Bird Sanctuary. Golf links are ideal places for such sanctuaries and a more determined effort should be made to make them so in all parts of Canada. In the United States bird sanctuaries have been established by many clubs. The feathered songsters are a great asset on any course. Whitlock is to be congratulated on receiving recognition from the Dominion Government and it is hoped in the future other clubs will be so honored.

During the sixteen weeks of play at the U.S. resorts, which ended last month, professional golfers divided $83,000. Gene Sarazen was the most successful of the stars, his winnings approximating $8,000. During the summer months the professionals do not have the opportunity of "picking up much easy money," but they do have the chance to make reputations in the British, U.S. and Canadian Open Championships plus a few hundred dollars only in prize money, but a reputation is worth in the long run a good deal more to a player than the winning of big money in the winter tournaments.

In connection with the vexed question of the amateur status which is provoking so much discussion just now, all Provincial Associations in Canada should co-operate in assisting the Royal Canadian Golf Association to keep the standard of golf high. The Provincial Associations can be of great assistance to the Governing Body of Golf in Canada in securing information which can always be done better locally. If there is any uncertainty upon the part of a player in regard to his amateur standing the necessary information can always be secured from the Provincial Associations or the R.C.G.A.

Another point. The Royal Canadian Golf Association is supreme in Canada and not the Royal & Ancient Club of St. Andrews, and clubs in Canada should write the secretary of the R.C.G.A., 510 General Assurance Bldg., 357 Bay St., Toronto, Ont., for rulings and advice and not to the Royal and Ancient on matters pertaining to golf matters in Canada.

"Old Man Hard Times" in the United States "is making his presence felt very severely by the golf clubs there and expenses are being cut in every direction. Caddies this season will come in for their share of the reduction. Representative clubs in the New York Metropolitan district have just cut the Class A caddie rate to $1.00 for 18 holes instead of $1.25 the 1931 scale, and in some other districts the remuneration has been slashed to 75c. In Canada the caddie fees have not been so high as in the United States and so far no reduction here has been reported. In the States many unemployed men are being given the preference as caddies over the boys.

The Prince of Wales is thoroughly enthusiastic about the game of golf, says an English correspondent. He works hard to improve his form, and the fine showing he made in the Royal Navy Tournament at Sunningdale proves that he is a good eleven handicap. Should the royal golfer improve this season as much as he did last he may reach the distinction of a single figure handicap. His sphere of competition must necessarily be limited, but his entry for the Army Championship and his appearance in the Parliamentary Handicap mark a mighty long stride from the seclusion which surrounded his position up to the time he became interested in this most democratic of games. It is good for golf that the Prince and his Royal brothers are so keen about it.

MacDonald Smith, winner of the Canadian Open in 1926 has already arrived in the Old Country to tune up for the British Open. The famous Scottish-American professional is keen to win the British Championship. This is his 7th attempt to annex the event and if persistency counts for anything "Mac" should land the title at Sandwich the week of June 6th, although he will have big opposition in Walter Hagen, Tommy Armour, the Japanese ace "Tom" Miayamoto, not to mention the flower of the British players who this season are shaping up well, especially some of the younger players, many of whom have been scoring consistently in the low seventies, already this year. Hagen and Armour arrived in the Old Country this week which will give them some six days practice on the difficult Sandwich course. "The Haig," by the way has always found the Sandwich links to his liking and has won two of his four British Championships there—1924 with a score of 300 and in 1926 with a 292. He has been installed a prime favorite in England to repeat next month.

Way back in 1914, C. B. MacFarlane, the Scottish golfer, did the first nine holes of St. George's in 31. He was playing the American Chick Evans, then at the heighth of his fame, in the British Championship. Evans found the avalanche of fours and three that MacFarlane hurled at him more than he could stand up against and was easily defeated. This score of 31 for 9 holes constitutes a record in the British amateur.

This month however, at St. George's playing in the British Close Championship the record was equalled after a lapse of 18 years by W. H. Elkins who is in the Malay Civil Cervice, and spending a golfing vacation in England. Elkins was playing the Lancashire golfer, C. E. Hardman but no one would have been able to cope with the golf he produced.

Elkins took 331 for the first nine holes, and was 8 up. He had ascore of 36 when the match finished on the 16th green. A tall, soldierly figure, Elkins won by 9 and 7, his putting being miraculous, for he only required 17 strokes on the green. The details of his score makes very interesting reading. They are: 443443433—31 home: 43—total 38 for 11 holes.

THE WRESTLING RACKET

A week ago last Wednesday night Gino Garibaldi, the great Italian wrestler met Jim McMillan, the Indian footballer in Toronto, and was so badly damaged that it was thought he would be out of the game for months. In fact there were many protests that he should be allowed to re-enter the ring after the first fall. McMillan inflicted what looked like terrific punishment to win the bout. However, the following night, Garibaldi was in good enough condition to take on Bad Man Cox at Hamilton and put up a good display. And yet the fans fall for these pained expressions and groans of pain, etc.

BRONZE FOR KING'S GUINEAS

The 73rd running of the historic King's Plate at Woodbine track in Toronto on Saturday (May 21) finds Bronze the outstanding favorite for the Guineas. Bronze last year ran second to Frothblower. There will be plenty of good opposition among the 18 or 20 who will start in the race.

ENTRIES CLOSE TO-DAY.

TORONTO, May 20 (C.P.)—Some two score of Ontario's best thoroughbreds to-day will be given their last opportunity to prove themselves worthy of competition in the 73rd running of the King's Plate. Before dark this evening, the field of 45 will be cut in less than half, for the formal entry list must be completed then.

The Woodbine Park plant this morning was crowded with nominees for the historic Plate, generally exercising and breezing over the mile and mile and a furlong stretches. Only in one instance has any notable speed been shown over the route of the oldest continuously run turf feature in North America.

Spey Crest and Fragrant Gift, both three-year-old maidens, have given the best performance, coming within a fraction of Troutlet's Plate record of 1.55 4-5, which has stood since 1927.

None of the probable favorites has shown any outstanding performance at the mile and an eight, but R. W. R. Cowie's Queensway, expected to be first choice; Shady Well of the Seagram stable; Thorncliffe's Bronze, which finished in second place a year ago; Harry Hatch's Easter Hatter, and R. S. McLaughlin's Skygazer all have done the mile in good time.

Greatest Of All

who once cavorted around second base for Toronto in the International League, and before that for London, in the old Michigan-Ontario League, is now the pivot of the Detroit Tigers in the American League. In fact, it is being said that as Gehringer goes so go the Tigers. Last year, when the tall, shy, second baseman suffered a sore arm, and had a poor first sacker to throw to, the Hub team didn't do so well. This year with Harry Davis on the initial sack—and Harry is a second Hal Chase—and the recovery of Charlie's arm, Detroit are well up in the standing and pushing all and sundry over. Gehringer could be the greatest player of all time if he so desired, say several experts. He is the most natural, free swinging hitter in the majors, and it is only his modest and retiring nature that keeps him from being another Ty Cobb.

Like Northamptonshire, Somerset have a new captain this season. J. C. White, who filled that office for five years and rendered splendid service, finds he cannot continue to give so much time for cricket as the captaincy of a county team depends, but he will turn out whenever possible.

His successor is R. A. Ingle, an experienced batsman, who, if not enjoying great success last summer, opened the season of 1928 with scores of 117 and 100 (not out) against Middlesex.

Somerset, in company with so many of their rivals, lost money last year, but an appeal of £2,000 appears to be going very well, so that the position is free from serious anxiety.

Derbyshire and Leicestershire figure in the Somerset list of fixtures in place of Kent and Middlesex. A new departure is the arrangement to play a match at Frome. They will meet Northamptonshire there towards the end of June.

TORONTO WINS SERIES OPENER

Cantrell Replaces Sewell in Eighth and Leafs Come Out With 4-3 Win.

BISONS BEAT WINGS 11-2.

(By the Asosciated Press)

Ray Schalk's Buffalo Bisons, picked for a second division berth in pre-season International League prognostications, refused absolutely to seek the level forecast for them by the dope-sheets.

They've already gone through the experienec of one slump and yet today were only half a game removed from the league-leading Newark Bears.

Behind excellent pitching by Joe Bloomer, the Bisons turned back the Rochester Redwings yesterday, 11-2, while Newark was more than a little embarrassed by the loss of a 10-inning ball game to the lowly Reading Keys, 8-5.

Bloomer scattered Rochester's eight hits and spent an enjoyable afternoon after his teammates shelled Del Wetherell and Jim Winford for eight runs in the first two innings. Buck Groome's homer with two on was the highlight of a first inning five-run attack. One of Rochester's tallies was a pinch home run by Biff Wysong in the eighth. George Puccinelli hit safely in his 30th consecutive game.

Doc Leggett's homer with two on and two out in the 10th gave Reading its surprise victory over Newark. Barton's home run with one on in the eighth previously had given Reading a tie. Milstead went the route for the Keys, although walloped for 12 hits.

Nose Out Royals 4-3.

Truett Sewell outpitched Charlie Sullivan as Toronto nosed out the Montreal Royals, 4-3. After his teammates had given him a 4-0 lead in the eighth, however, Sewell weakened and had to be replaced by Guy Cantrell with three Montreal runs over the plate and with the tying and winning runs on base and none out. Cantrell promptly retired the side without further damage.

Charley Perkins pitched and batted the Jersey City Skeeters to a 4-2 victory over the Baltimore Orioles in the first night game of the season. Perkins held the Orioles to six hits and clouted a home run with Jorgan on base in the third inning. Beryl Richmond also pitched well, allowing seven hits and fanning 11 men.

Primitive Sports

The Olympic Games originated in Olympia, Greece, in 776 B.C. and were part of a five-day Pan-Hellenic festival held in the shadows of Mount Olympus, sacred to the Greeks in that period.

In the early years of basketball there were no orthodox cages and tall, cone shaped peach baskets were used in their place. Thus the game got its name. The ball used then was a soccer football.

The first indoor bowling "green" was introduced in 1840 in New York city. The original "indoor green" was about 30 feet wide and much longer than those in use today. It was floored with baked clay.

THE BATTLE OF MARATHONS

Toronto, London and Hamilton are having quite a row about the Olympic selection committee, and marathon runners. London arranged for a field day and marathon for the 24th of May, and along came the Central Y.M.C.A. with a Toronto meet on the same day. They however, have withdrawn but now the Monarch Club, of Toronto, threaten to boycott the London meet and hold their race on the same day if reasons are not forthcoming as to who picked, and why. Johnny Miles and Harold Webster, and why the winner of the London race is to be picked as the third man. Bobby Robinson, of the Olympic committee, declares that he, along with Abbie Coo, of Winnipeg, and Howard Crocker, of London, picked the first two because they finished first and second it had last year, having obtained The opposition charges that Clifford Bricker, of Galt, has been assured a place if he shows up decently in the London meet. And so far into the night.

PETES DROP 13-12 DECISION TO ORILLIA, TRI-COUNTY LOOP TEAM IN EXHIBITION TUSSLE

Tied 12-12 in Final Moments of Game, Pethick Scores for Northerners.

NEW INDOOR GAME PROVI DES PLENTY OF ACTION FO R THE SPORT FOLLOWERS

Box lacrosse was introduced to an encouragingly large crowd of fans at Brock Street rink last night in an exhibition game which Orillia won from Peterborough in the last minute of play by the score of 13-12.

Peterborough started the scoring with an early lead of two goals, but the first fifteen minute period ended with a 3-3 tie. The locals pushed out in front in the second, and were in front 7-5 at half time, and at the three-quarter intermission they still had the long end of the count at 9-7.

At one stage of the final session they had improved their margin to three goals, with the score 11-8, and were apparently sifting along to a smart win over last year's leaders of the Tri-county league. But, Red Creighton's eagerness, after an exceptionally fine exhibition in the local nets, helped a lot to put the visitors in the position which they clinched before the final bell. He drew a minute penalty just as Bouthron had scored Orillia's ninth goal. Palmer was sent back to the crease position, and shortly afterward Red Stevens made it 11-10, and Hubbell's dash from the Orillia defence tied the score. Bill Curran worked around the Petes' back division and bounced the ball past Creighton putting Orillia one up for the first time in the game.

Magee for Peterborough tied it up at 12-12, but a minute before the bell rang, Pethick, Orillia's smart rover, scored on a rebound when Creighton momentarily made a short dash from in front of his net.

Bud Fisher's squad picked a real team for their try-out. Orillia not only were champions of the Tri-county league last year, including Simcoe, Bracebridge and North York, but they have already won five games in a row since the ice went out of the northern rinks with teams including Camp Borden, Gravenhurst, Richmond Hill and Bracebridge. They are a smart shifty team, and their experience has drilled them in the many possibilities of attack in this indoor style of lacrosse under the kleigs. Three of their players are brothers, sons of Jack Curran of the Orillia "News Letter" who will be remembered by the older lacrosse fans of Peterborough as the famous "Mary" Curran in the days when the rivalry between these two towns was a perennial feud.

Fans Delighted

The veteran fans who know the fine points of the game from its field days were delighted with last night's exhibition, and went away with a highly favorable opinion of the Peterborough team. From some of the opinions that were overheard it is just a question of rounding the locals into shape and bringing on a series of games like last night's.

The game and the team made friends and boosters. The line-up was as follows:—

Referee—Norman Cook, Orillia.

Goal Scorers

The goal getters were: Bovin 4, King 3, and one each by Dundas, Hatton, Palmer, Miller and Magee; and for Orillia—Pethick 2, Bill Curran 4, Bouthron 2, and one each by Quinn, E. Curran, Fortier, Stevens and Hubbell.

Peterborough's regular front line, King, Bovin and Dundas, looked just as good as any similar combination of the Orillia team, in fact a little bit better, especially in flashy stick-handling, swift passes and smart foot-work. Doug Hatton teamed up well with them. Bovin made a real hit with the fans, and shapes up as a classy player, fitting in smoothly with King and Dundas. He seemed to slow up after a heavy head long crash against the south boards by Fortier. A crack over the ankle didn't help him any either. Palmer, Rathwell and Magee handled the relief work well, and the defense looked strong with Miller, Goodfellow and Fred Shaw back there in front of Creighton. There were no breaks to help the Petes' goalies. A couple of times the defense was outguessed and a lone man went in close on him; the flood light in the gallery probably bothered him, and on top of that he has a hang-over habit from last year of leaving his goal area. However, he made a lot of good stops, and the only easy goals scored against him were when his net was wide open.

Norm Cook's experience in the northern league was a big help in keeping the game clean, and especially in emphasizing the rules that differentiate the new game from the old.

Brief Summary of Scoring

King, Bovin and Dundas nicked the first three goals for Peterborough and earned them, the first one starting the long twenty-five goal count on a pass from Dundas to King.

Shaw fed King the pass for the fourth opening the second period; Bovin went down alone on the west boards for the next one, and he got the sixth on Dundas' rebound. One of Doug. Hatton's rushes put him on the score sheet with a shot from the defense line.

King started again in the third on a sparkling combination from Miller and Bovin, and Palmer got his goal on a dash from the face-off, after Fortier had tossed a rebound past Creighton for Orillia's seventh.

Opening the fourth Shaw picked the wrong man of an Orillia attack, and Bouthron raced in close on Creighton. Pete King's pass to Bovin made the score 10-8, and Doug Miller hooked up with Dundas and Bovin on the eleventh counter. Then Orillia started to close in on the home stretch. Bouthron scored a soft goal as Creighton stepped away from in front of his net, drew a penalty, and Stevens shot a bounder past Palmer who was subbing on the goal line.

Two shots by Bovin and one by King bounced off young Curran in goal, and then came Hubbell's sortie and goal, putting his team on even terms with Bud Fisher's squad. Bill Curran sent them ahead, Magee equalized right after that, and then the final and deciding goal by Pethick.

Plenty of action pleased the crowd. In fact the new lacrosse eliminates the slower centre field play of the old game, and this first sample of it gave it a great start in this city.

SENATORS TAKE DOUBLE-HEADER

MACKS ALSO WIN 4-2.

(By Gayle Talbot, Associated Press Sports Writer)

Connie Mack, able leader of the Athletic, appears to have lost hope that Rube Walberg, the big left-handed who won twenty games for him last year, will recover his winning form and be of any material assistance in the current flag race.

Walberg, one of the big factors in the A's drive to a third straight American League pennant last season, has been a great disappointment. He has started five games, been knocked out of the box the same number of times and thus far is charged with four losses and no wins.

He came up in the first inning yesterday with the bases loaded and cracked the pellet over the left field stands for his 11th homer and enough runs to beat the Boston Red Sox, 4-2. It was the A's third win in a row and boosted them to an even .500 standing for the first time in a month.

Forty-nine thousand fans suffered at Yankee Stadium as the Washington Senators captured both ends of a double-header, 8-6 and 12-7, and went into a virtual tie with the Yanks for the American League lead. The Senators lead by half a game in games won and lost but trail by four points in percentage. In both games the slugging Senators came from behind with a murderous attack in the late innings. Heinie Manush's double, which slipped past Earl Coombs and kept rolling, gave Washington the winning runs in the 10th inning of the first game. Babe Ruth hit his eighth homer in the nightcap.

Cubs Win in 12th, 4-3.

Burleigh Grimes was hit hard but silenced Cincinnati's guns in the pinches as the Chicago Cubs went 12 innings to win, 4-3, and increase their lead in the National. Riggs Stephenson was the winner's batting hero, his double driving in the tying run and averting defeat in the 10th and his single putting Richbourg across with the winning score in the 12th.

The Pittsburgh Pirates got to Joe Shaute and Jack Quinn for two runs in the last of the eighth to edge out Brooklyn in their final, 3-2.

Half of the clubs in each league spent the day travelling.

HE REFUSES TO QUIT

Rube Breslesr who was given an unconditional release by the Robins, doesn't think he is through as a big league ball player. He is sure he can give as good an account of himself as other players under contract.

Bill Delaney, pitcher, and Mickey Haslin, shortstop, have been added to the roster of the Hazleton NYP league club. Both played with St. Catharine's in the Ontario league two years ago.

MEL GLIONA IS POPULAR BOXER

MINICOLA MEETS BAGNATO

The final amateur boxing show of the season will be held at 8.30 this evening in the Legion Hall under the auspices of the Pioneer A.C. Eight bouts make up the card, with four Toronto boxers taking part in the last four bouts. The rest are all-local.

Fred DeCarlo and Mel Gliona feature the program in a welterweight scrap. The tricky Mel meets a tough opponent in the local Italian who has been coming along rapidly in the gloved game. Harvey Smith was unable to get an opponent in his weight class for tonight. Tony Minicola will fight Bill Bagnato at 122 pounds, and this should be a fast, clever battle. Jack Chamberlain, local lightweight, meets a shifty scrapper in Frank Battaglia, another Toronto Italian, while Ned Vitarelli goes on against the fourth Queen City boy, Vic Bagnato.

Shorty Saunders and Harold Kane, 105-pounders, raise the curtain, followed by Bill Murphy and Hap O'Toole in what promises to be a slugging welter fracas. Then comes Jack Minicola and Jimmie Monaghan, featherweights, followed by the two Jacks, Bone and Peel, at 126 pounds. All the hitters are in fine condition and ready to go. Harry Hance will be third man in the ring, with two competent judges to be chosen. The Toronto boys, of the West End Athletic Club, will be brought down early by Patsy Fern, four of them being Italian. This means that eight of the sixteen boxers taking part in the show are of that nationality, showing how they go in for the manly art.

CRICKET

The following players are requested to be at Nicholls Oval on Saturday at 1.45 to play against Lakefield School: F. Dyer, R. N. Stuart, D Mitchell, A. Hamilton, Freemantle, F. Harvey, F. Bickle, J. Dunkerley, D. Chamberlain, F. Jeferson, F. Wade. . Jaskson, N. Stanger, W. Davis.

YANKEE SOUTHPAW CANDID, ANYWAY

Vernon (Lefty) Gomez, Yankee hurler, has two jinxes, Bing Miller of the Athletics and Oscar Melillo of the Browns. "I'd rather pitch to Simmons, Foxx or Cochrane any day than throw to Bing Miller," says Gomez. "He's always a hoodoo; but Melillo—I faced him 14 times last season with the net result of 11 hits, 2 passes and 1 out. That came from a great catch by Combs. It should have been a triple."

Practices

C.G.E. INTERMEDIATES

The C.G.E. Baseball Club will hold a practice on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock in Exhibition Grounds. All junior players who would like to move into faster company are asked to attend.

MAPLE LEAFS JUVENILES

Calladine's Juveniles will practise Saturday evening at 6 o'clock in James Stevenson Park.

ALL SAINTS' SOFTBALL CLUB

All Saints' Men's Softball team will practise at Prince of Wales School at six o'clock to-night. All players are requested to be on hand.

Exhibition Game On Saturday Afternoon

A strong E.P.L. all-star team will trot on the field at Stevenson Park to-morrow afternoon top lay an exhibition game with the local C.O.B.L. outfit. It will be started at 2.45, if the weather is right, and fans are invited to attend. Only a silver collection will be taken, as the game is arranged for practise purposes.

The all-start team will include: Catchers, Whatley and Ab Delahaye; pitchers, Bill Cripps, Maudsley, Vannest, Billingsley and Ralph; infielders, Rooke, Hartley, Sweetman and Stan Jones; outfielders, Miller, Wilson, Freddie Jones, and the pitchers not being used. These, and perhaps several other intermediate starts will be available for to-morrow's game, and they should give the seniors a stiff practise.

Either Lamb Collins or Cack Rogers will be the starting senior catcher, with Kitchen, Holmes and Heckman all ready for a turn on the mound. First base duties will be divided by Hickey and Fred Ash, while Rose, Scully and Deb Hillier are all ready for the keystone sack. "Red" Hollingsworth will do his stuff between third and second, with Nicholls holding down the hot corner. Dallin, Foley and Beavis start in the outfield.

Both managers will switch their players from time to time to give all a chance to perform before the fans and to get in some worthwhile practise. Curly Lebarr and Harry Corrin will umpire the contest, which starts at 2.45, and a good crowd is expected to attend to get a line on the Peterborough prospects.

Fuller Favored To Defeat Berg

NEW YORK, May 20 (C.P.) — Sammy Fuller, dogged little battler from Boston, engages the British lightweight veteran, Jack (Kid) Berg, in a 12-round return bout in Madison Square Garden to-night.

Fuller rules a favorite 7 to 5 in the betting although he got no better than a draw with Berg in their first meeting, at 10 rounds, here recently.

BETTING SWINGS TO MUD HORSES

Only 11 Expect to Start Out of Original List of 45 Nominees.

SHADY WELL ON TOP.

TORONTO, May 20 (C.P.)—Probability of rain threatened to-day to make a more even battle in the running of the King's Plate tomorrow afternoon at Woodbine Park.

Queensway, picked as strong favorite for the historic classic, has no reputation as a mudder, and with the probability of showers Saturday the public choice was expected to swerve to three thoroughbreds who have shown marked ability on a heavy track.

Shady Well of the Seagram stable, 17 times winner of the honors for Ontario-bred three-year-olds and upwards; H. C. Hatch's Easter Hatter, big chestnut colt of Mad Hatter out of Penitent, and Ridgewood Farms' Easter Dandy, three-year-old son of Fitzwilliam and Tiarco, all are superior mudders and promise to rank high in the public choice. The Thorncliffe stable's chief hope, Bronze, big sure-footed gelding which finished second to Frothblower on a sloppy track last year, and R. S. McLaughlin's Skygazer, four-year-old filly, which was third, also relish the heavy going. The latter, however, probably will be withdrawn before the official entry list is issued to-day.

All week the Woodbine Oval has been baked by a hot sun and a heavy rainfall would be needed to make the stretch to the liking of mudders.

During all preliminary workouts W. H. Wright's Spey Crest and Fragrant Gift have been given the most impressive performance over the Plate distance, covering the mile and a furlong in 1.56 2-5, only fractionally slower than the Plate record of 1927.

Out of an original list of 45 nominees only 11 are expected to start.

CITY LEAGUE OPENS MAY 28

Junior Baseball Teams to Play Double-Header if Stevenson Park Available.

EXPECT MORE ENTRIES

The City Baseball League will open its schedule on Saturday, May 28th, with a double-header, if Stevenson Park is available that day. This was decided at last night's meeting in Duffus, at which there was a good representation. May 24th was the original date for the opening but those present were of the opinion that further entries might be made next week.

Harry McFadden occupied the chair, and he called for entries. Those represented were—Bantams: Rotary, Kiwanis, All Saints; juveniles: Maple Leafs and All Saints; juniors: Fosters, and later, Dinsdale's Cubs. Havelock juveniles are anxious to enter, but the matter of transportation has kept the league from doing anything definite on it yet. "Shorty" Hayes promised a fourth bantam team, and it was agreed to hold over the closing date for entries to Thursday, May 26th, as there was a good chance of a juvenile and a junior team entering yet. No answers were made to letters sent the Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs requesting another entry last week.

It was then moved to open the schedule Saturday afternoon, May 28th, if Stevenson Park was available, playing a double-header. The juvenile teams, Maple Leafs and All Saints, will play one game; and the juniors, Fosters and Dinsdale's Cubs, the other one. All certificates will be given out at the league meeting in Duffus at eight o'clock next Thursday evening. All entries and entrance fees must be in by this time.

There was considerable discussion on other matters of interest to the different teams and divisions, followed by a motion for adjournment.

Port Hope Vs. Petes In Soccer Cup-Tie

The scheduled game for Saturday is the Injured Players cup tie between the Caledonians and Port Hope aggregation that will be played on King Edward Park. Kick off at three o'clock. Referee, Jack Clark.

Strenuous training by the Scots have been the instruction given by thetraining who is desirous that they keep in shape and attend to the instructions so that they can tast the pace. All the signed players are requested to be at the pavilion no later than two o'clock which list includes: Frick, Agnew, Humphries, Blowers, Rankin, Murphy, Craig, McCracken, T. McPhate, A. O'Halloran, A. Coyle, D. Best and others.

The local secretary informed the lake shore boys that they were billed for the city, in the early part of the week, and expect everything will be O.K.

There is no holiday in Deloro on Tuesday for the soccer players and the game scheduled for Port Hope vs. Deloro has been called off. If arrangements can be made by the executive, they will endeavour to get the Scotsmen to go down and play a league game; also it is rumored that the C.G.E. versus Packer match on the holiday will be played in the morning so as to let the fans take in the Port Hope trip.

Deloro has made final preparations for the Canadian General visit on Saturday afternoon and have registered all their players. The Electric boys leave the city around one o'clock.

CASUAL COMMENTS

If the weather's okay tomorrow, and it should be, ball fans will trek from various directions to Stevenson Park—or Riverside, if you keep on insisting. The seniors will be seen in action against an all-star East Peterborough League team in an exhibition game, and it ought to be good. Most of the sixteen senior players will be seen performing as Art Primeau looks 'em over.

• • • • • • •

The strongest possible E.P.L. outfit, and they have some smart players in that loop, will be out there to make it a real game and "take" the major team if possible. The lure of the game will bring out the weather-bitten fans in droves; provided of course that the weather isn't too biting! Well, we're anxious to see how they look again, too.

• • • • • • •

Vinny Utronki may be pitching against the Petes in the C.O.B.L. He has been moved by the C.N.R. to Brighton, and will likely get a player's certificate to play with Belleville, his former team before coming to Peterborough. The Nats will have a wealth of pitching material when they get going.

• • • • • • •

To-night at the Legion Hall, the final amateur boxing show of the season will be held, with four Toronto Italians going on against good Pioneer Club mittsers. There's a couple of newcomers in the all-local bouts, and the whole card looks like a lot of action. The DeCarlo-Gliona main tussle, the Minicola-Bagnato affair, the Murphy--O'Toole one—just to show you there are a few Irishers on the bill—and some of the other scraps all sound pretty good. Harry Hance is refereeing.

• • • • • • •

Port Hope soccer team plays Caledonians here tomorrow in the Injured Players' Cup Match, and incidentally, over one hundred berries were paid out for injuries sustained in the league last year. On Tuesday, the 24th, Deloro travels to Port Hope for their first league match.

A fair crowd took in the box lacrosse game last night, and seemed to enjoy the affair throughout. It was plenty exciting toward the end when the trailing Orillia stars pulled up and nosed out a 13-12 win. There's plenty of scoring in that game all right, and all kinds of action. It should prove popular here this summer as soon as the fans get the hang of it, and also the new players.

• • • • • • •

gee, and this Boivin chap. The whole team looked pretty good too, Jim Skinner, etc. They liked the dwarfed variety of lacrosse against the Orillia champs and should have won. "Red" Creighton in goal was okay till the last few minutes, when he was drawn out a couple of times, and the invaders seldom wasted a shot. The stickhandling, combination, speed, and checking—all tend to make this a real game.

• • • • • • •

Johnny Sutherland came up from Campbellford to see it, and Ira Naftrens from Millbrook. There were some from Lakefield and Lindsay, and other places, and some of the local old-timers in the stands were: Joe Begley, Ed. Dillon, Ernie Bartlett, George Robertson, Ji Skinner, etc. They like the dwarfed variety of lacrosse all right, too.

• • • • • • •

In future, no hangers-on will be permitted around the Brock Street Arena for either lacrosse games or pro wrestling shows. The police promise to clear the front of the place as at picture shows and other entertainment places where a crowd is apt to collect in front without intending to go inside right away. It's just a tip.

• • • • • • •

About ten teams will probably make up the City Baseball League this summer, with entry closing date set for next Thursday. There are four bantams, two juveniles and two juniors in now, and that's not bad going. But there should be at least one more juvenile and one more junior in yet, and prospects are good for them. A double-header will open the City League on Saturday afternoon, May 28, with a juvenile and a junior game. Louis Yeates may enter a juvenile team, according to rumor.

• • • • • • •

The Omemee Athletic Association will hold their annual Sports Day on May 24 (Tuesday), and two local softball teams are figuring on participating—Red and White Stores and Sugar Bowl. The latter at present holds the cup put up by the Association, having beaten a strong Toronto team last year to win the honors. The Peterborough teams should make sure the tournament is sanctioned by the O.A.S.A. before taking part, as the Ontario body deals severely with players participating in such a field day without permission.

MASKED MARVEL TO RETURN HERE

ON MAY 26TH.

Another all-star wrestling program is being arranged for Peterborough by promoter Jack Corcoran of the Toronto Queensbury club who plans to hold his next show at the Brock Street Rink on Thursday of next week. After several days of negotiations he has been successful in securing a return bout for the Masked Marvel, sensational heavyweight who scored over Abe Kashey in impressive style in the main bout of the last show. In beating Kashey, himself a really good man, the unknown heavyweight certainly lived up to advance notices and it was not difficult to understand why he has been able to take the measure of some of the most capable heavyweights in the game. Kashey had met Gino Garibaldi and other topnotchers but was unable to cope with the fury of the vicious attacks of The Marvel who appeared to know just when to tear in for the various openings which his own cleverness enabled him to make.

Just who will wrestle The Marvel is not known. According to word from Corcoran he has carte blanche from the Mystery Man to sign any heavyweight he can secure for the masked grappler bars absolutely no wrestler of any weight. Under such conditions Corcoran is going to great pains to get one of the best available men, for The Marvel has already trounced some of his best drawing cards.

It is expected that announcement of the other principal for the main bout will be announced tomorrow, after which the matchmaking of the preliminary card will occupy the attention of the promoter.

Baseball Opens In Belleville June 24

BELLEVILLE, May 20.—For the eleventh consecutive season the baseball season will be officially opened in this city on Tuesday next. The Nationals, twice Provincial champions and seven times winner of the Central Ontario Baseball League pennant, will meet their ancient but friendly rivals, the Kingston Ponies, who won the C.O.B.L. last season.

Walter Gerow, who played on the first team in 1919, is at the helm, and will start the season with a new deal, many youngsters being given their chance to win their spurs on the field of play. "Peeney" Mills, the peer of amateur catchers in the Province, will don the pad and receive the slants of Tommy Pointer, the brilliant lefthander, who has been developed by this same catcher. Mills was with the original champions in 1919, and has served every year since.

The infield will be changed with two, and possibly three, new faces in the line-up, while the outfield will be built around Alex. Weier, a good hitter, Harry Morgan, Chamber, Scarlett and others will be given a chance to show their wares in fast company.

Arrangements Made For U.S. Tourneys

NEW YORK, May 20 (C.P.)—The United States Golf Association has completed arrangements for the sectional qualifying rounds of both the United States Open and Amateur championships.

For the Open, to be played at the Fresh Meadow Country Club, Flushing, L.I., June 23, 24 and 25, sectional qualifying rounds will be conducted in 20 cities on June 6.

For the amateur at Baltimore, Sept. 12-17, sectional qualifying rounds will be played in 18 districts, Aug. 16.

BUSY GRAPPLER

Ed. (Strangler) Lewis, wrestler, has been a rather busy man all his life. Now at the age of 40 he boasts 3,500 bouts, among them 14 victories over Jim Londos, the present champion, whom he is challenging.

EXPECT TO SMASH SPEED RECORDS AT RACE DERBY

Forty Drivers Must Qualify at 100 M.H.P. for 500-Mile Classic.

NARROW ESCAPES

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 20.—(Special to The Examiner).—Despite the many counter attractions, the eyes of the sporting world will be turned on the world's greatest automobile racing derby to be held at the speedway in this city, Monday, May 30.

Only forty of the many entries received will actually face the starter, and this year the qualifying speed tests have been raised from ninety to a hundred miles per hour, and the entry fee doubled. Despite this, the list is larger than for many years past.

Three former champions, Louis Scheinder, Billy Arnold and Louis Meyer have signified their intention of entering in the race, as well as the greatest drivers of this continent, Europe and South America.

The race this year will be particularly gruelling because of the greater speed of the cars. These drivers seeme to care nothing for life or limb in their mad dash around the track. But they claim that they take no more risk than does a steel worker on a tall building, or other workers engaged in risky work. They are, in fact, very human, and, contrary to most stories, are usually quite keyed up before the race.

"But that usually passes as soon as the race starts," said one driver.

Nearly Killed in Canada

Almost to a man, these drivers have had narrow escapes while driving their speedy cars. There was Ted Kessler, the Red Devil of the speedway, who, back in 19300, nearly had his face torn off when the car in front of him crashed through the fence knocked over a telephone pole, and sent the wires stretching out over the track. One wire caught Ted under the nose, and ripped off one side of his face, but he was able to lean back far enough to get under. He still bears a nasty scar. The other driver was only scratched.

Freddie Frame, one of the most colorful racers on the track, and who holds the Canadian half-mile dirt track record, made at Toronto during the Shriners' convention in that city two years ago had a narrow escape on the Toronto track.

While travelling at a great speed around one of the dangerous curves on the Exhibition oval, a wheel flew off and the car careened around and around before turning over. Immediately the cry went up that Frame had been killed. But before rescuers could reach the car, he climbed from it with a grin on his face shaken, but unhurt.

Read And Marvel Ye Golf Duffers

Who can point with certainty to the best round of golf ever played in America? Naturally a great deal depends upon the testing character of the course. Just the same, it will be difficult, says The Professional Golfer of America, to ignore the 58 turned in by the veteran John Black over the Claremont (Calif.) C.C. layout. The score was ten shots under par. Black is a member of a famous Scottish family of golfers. He is a brother of Davie Black of Shaughnessy Heights Golf Club, Vancouver, B.C., who four times won the Canadian professional championship, and who today still ranks as one of the greatest players on the Pacific Coast.

ADMISSION CHARGE EXECUTIVE SETS

Thirty-five Cents Will Be Charged at Gate for Senior Ball.

The general admission charge at senior ball games at Stevenson Park this summer will be thirty-five cents as was the case last year. The north grandstand price will be fifteen cents, while the west stand is free again. Season tickets are five dollars. This was agreed at a meeting of the Peterborough Baseball Clubs executive in the "Y" last night. Some fourteen members were present.

It was decided to leave the opening day (June 6th) ceremonies in the hands of a committee who will arrange for a parade, and other matters in that connection. This committee is composed of: George Hewitt, Jack Gillespie, George Macdonald, Charlie Westbrooke and Rollie Glover. The Peterborough team has received a request from Cobourg to have their team in Cobourg on May 24th in time to join the parade there.

The matter of admissions came in for considerable discussion, with the results mentioned above. Children will be admitted free at the opening game, June 6th. The local players' uniforms and equipment will be ready before the 24th when the team travels to Cobourg, and arrangements will be made for transportation for that date. A few other details were cleared up, and it was decided another meeting would be called in about a week's time, and then they adjourned.

LONGEST GAME

The longest world series tie game was played between the Chicago Nationals and Detroit in 1907. The game lasted 12 innings and ended in a 3-3 tie.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

THE BROKEN CHORUS

By Thornton W. Burgess

A sudden silence threaten more Than all the noise that's gone before.
—Jerry Muskrat.

It was not yet dark, for the Black Shadows coming out across the Green Meaddows from the Purple Hills had but just begun to arrive at the Smiling Pool, and it would be softly dusk for some time. It was the time of day that Jerry Muskrat and Mrs. Jerry loved best. They sat side by side on the Big Rock. Each had just eaten a clam, and by and by they would dive for more. Just now they were content to just sit and listen to the mighty chorus of the sweet singers of the Smiling Pool, and the tiny Frog people known as Hylas.

From all sides around the Smiling Pool, and from up in the swamp just above, through which the Laughing Brook made its way to the Smiling Pool, the clear, high, sweet "pe-ep, pe-ep, pe-ep" of the singers rose in steady chant, telling the Great World that Sweet Mistress Spring was here and that it was the happiest time of all the year.

"I wonder if they ever stop to eat," said Mrs. Jerry.

"I doubt it," replied Jerry, "but they stop so as not to be eaten."

"If you must say something say it plainly," said Mrs. Jerry. "What do you mean by saying they stop so as not to be eaten?"

Just then the singing ceased, and after that mighty chorus the silence could fairly be felt. "Did you notice," said Jerry, "that the singing stopped first over there near where the Laughing Brook comes in?"

"I would say they all stopped at once," replied Mrs. Jerry.

Jerry shook his head. "No," said he. "They didn't all stop quite at once even if it did seem so. One of them had to give the danger signal and did so by becoming silent. The instant that one stopped singing those nearest noticed it and they stopped singing. And so the signal was passed all over and around the Smiling Pool. I can stop that chorus any time."

"You can!" exclaimed Mrs. Jerry in an unbelieving tone.

"Yes, I can," replied Jerry. "I'll show you by and by. Hello! There is Mr. Watersnake swimming past over near the bank. I don't likke that fellow, never did and never will. Probably he is the one who stopped the singing. He is coming from the direction where the singing first stopped."

Presently a lone voice was heard. Another joined in, and in a moment or two the full chorus was singing as loudly and as joyously as before. From the direction of the Big River a big bird, with great, broad wings flapping slowly, and long legs trailing straight out behind like a tail, appeared.

"Here comes Longlegs the Great Blue Heron," said Jerry. "When he gets here the singing will stop again. You watch and see if it doesn't stop first just where he alights."

Longlegs alighted in a marshy place near the head of the Smiling Pool right where the singing was loudest. It stopped instantly and almost as quickly it had stopped everywhere. Not a peep was to be heard. Longlegs stood motionless. At last at the other end of the pool a voice was heard and presently the whole chorus was singing. Longlegs' long neck suddenly shot forward and down and his big bill picked up something. The singing stopped the instant he moved.

"What did I tell you?" said Jerry. "Only those near Longlegs could see him move, yet the singing stopped all over the Smiling Pool. When they get to singing again I'll stop them."

Jerry was as good as his word. When the chorus was loudest he slipped into the water, gently swam over near a place where he knew some of the singers were and slapped the water with his tail. Instantly a sudden silence fell.

What To-Day Means To You

(By Mary Blake)

"TAURUS"

If May 20th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8 a.m. to 9.20 a.m., from 3.20 p.m. to 5 p.m., and from 10 p.m. to 11.20 p.m. The danger periods are from 11 a.m. to 12.30 p.m. and from 7.30 p.m. to 9 p.m. A despondent atmosphere will prevail on May 20th, and it will be a time of spiritual uncertainty and unfounded mental worry. No unforeseen events are anticipated, and any set plans should be carried out without hindrance or setback. Unlucky for speculators.

The child born on this May 20th will be a bit on the slow side, but will be well able to keep up to the average in most of its school work. It will show a natural bent for some line of work, and should be encouraged and given special training for whatever talent is indicated. It will have an appreciative nature, and will be willing to work hard for the fulfilment of its own ambitions.

Born on May 20th you have an extravagant, a reckless and an adventurous nature, and you believe in making merry during the days of plenty. It may be true that there is no doing without some rueing, but you seldom regret your bargains. When you have drunk your wine, you make yourself content with Adam's ale. It is difficult for your family or other associates to keep pace with your sudden vagaries, and although you may mean no harm to them, they are always worried about the harm you will bring upon yourself.

If you be a man, you will do many spectacular things, and make many brainy moves, but you will never ride on the top of the waves for long at any one time. You are always staging a come-back, and each time are full of enthusiasm, "brain storms," and concentrated effort. You are too much the born lover to entirely escape the microbe of illicit love affairs. Your personality is never in full bloom unless fed with admiration, and covered with love. You like to be fussed over too much to exhibit much paternalism.

If you be a woman, you have a restless spirit and a dissatisfied nature. You are full of envy and are inclined to be mercenary. The passing through some zone of extreme suffering would test your character, and not find it wanting, you would come out a more understanding and more spiritual being.

CZECH DOWRIES FOR DAUGHTERS STILL REQUIRED

Wide Differences in Views on Retaining Custom Found in Europe.

REQUIRED IN ADVANCE.

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia.—Czechoslovak parents continue to be legally bound to provide dowries for their daughters on marriage, the state commission, now busy revising the text of the civil code, has decided.

Present economic and social relationships, it was argued by the minority, have changed since the World War, daughters have had the opportunities of higher education and are now in a position to make provision for their own future, so that this heavy financial burden should be removed from the shoulders of the parents.

But the majority of the commission supported the old custom on the grounds that the abolition of the dowry would mean the undermining of the economic foundations of marriage.

Formerly also, the dowry had to be paid at the time of marriage; now it is stipulated that it must be paid in advance. In case of the bankruptcy of the husband, the wife will henceforward be empowered to obtain immediate control of the equivalent of her dowry, even though it cannot at once be returned to her; formerly, she could only demand that it be protected.

Engaged Attention.

The question of the provision of a dowry has engaged the attention of many women's societies both in this country and in central Europe during the post-war years. To many of the younger women, the whole issue is judged from the point of view of the equality of the sexes and the dowry irea condemned; others maintain that only after this equality has become an actuality can the dowry be dispensed with.

The whole problem resolves itself into the question of how to satisfy quite different conditions. In some cases, women continue in their profession or employment after marriage, and contribute to the upkeep of the new home; in other cases, it would be impossible for the future husband to provide the necessary means for fitting out a home from the meager salary which he is paid, especially if he is an "intellectual."

Public opinion in Czechoslovakia has not yet reached that stage where there is a popular demand that this custom should go, but new economic and social conditions in the urban populations are causing it gradually to disappear of itself,

Suffered Severely With Pimples Over Face. Cuticura Healed.

"For over a year I suffered severely with pimples that were scattered all over my face. At first they were small and I paid little attention to them. Later they became hard, large and very itchy, causing me to scratch, and when I scratched them they used to fester. They were very painful.

"A friend advised Cuticura Soap and Ointment so I purchased some. After using one box of Ointment and one cake of Cuticura Soap they started to get better, and before I had finished the second box of Ointment they were healed." (Signed) Miss Margaret E. McDonald, Kouchibouguac, N. B.

Next Stage Will Be in England to Investigate Torpedoing Reports.

REGISTRAR QUESTIONED.

OTTAWA, May 20 (C.P.).—All the evidence concerning the prosecution of the reparations claim on behalf of the schooner Gypsum Queen, the payment of the award of $71,000, and the disposition of the award money, was concluded before Mr. Justice Horace Harvey to-day, and adjournment taken until Wednesday morning next at ten o'clock. At that time Peter White, K.C., Commission counsel, and L. A. Forsyth, K.C., counsel for Senator Hance J. Logan, will sum up their opinions of the evidence. The next stage will be a visit to England by Commissioner Harvey and Mr. White to investigate reports that the Gypsum Queen was not torpedoed by a German submarine off the Irish coast in June, 1915, but foundered in a storm. Neither Senator Logan nor his counsel will accompany the commission to England.

Contradictory Evidence.

To-day's evidence was a continuation of the examination of John Henderson, registrar of shipping at Parrsboro, N.S., and his office assistant, Miss Grace Pettigrew. Both contradicted a great deal of the evidence given by Senator Logan on his first appearance on the witness stand, the main points being that, in contradiction to the Senator, they swore that he had been fully aware that the Gypsum Queen registry had been transferred to Barbado, and that Mr. Henderson had never signed the certificate of ownership used by Senator Logan in prosecuting the reparation claim of Capt. Freeman Hatfield, master and owner of the schooner.

Mr Forsyth questioned Mr. Henderson as to his sobriety, his political activities and his connection with a liquor theft in Parrsboro some years ago. Mr. Henderson maintained that he was never helplessly drunk, was an occasional drinker, had taken no part in politics since entering the Civil Service in 1916, and had never been questioned regarding the theft of rum from a bonded warehouse in Parrsboro.

BOWLING SEASON OPENS ON TUESDAY

Mixed Tournament Will Be Held on Local Greens—Entries From District.

Final arrangements were made last evening at a meeting of the Games Committee of Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club, Limited, for the grand opening of the bowling season on the afternoon of Tuesday next.

A mixed tournament is slated as the opener of the season, and besides entries already in from Cobourg and district, the majority of the local rinks have signified their intention of competing for the honor of the day. Skips who have not yet entered their rinks are urged to do so without delay, in order to facilitate the early completion of every detail.

The Games Committee revised the schedule last night and reported that it is now about completed, while plans were also discussed for Friday Night Tournaments throughout the coming season, and the committee was empowered to purchase prizes for these events.

The prizes are to include a handsome special for any bowler winning four games. In addition, the chairman of the Games Committee has thrown out a special inducement in the offering of a medal to any one man winning three special prizes!

Hard effort is being put forward these days by the caretaker and by the Greens Committee, and it reported that the greens are getting into fine shape. They will be in A1 condition after the roller has been over them a few more times between now and Tuesday.

After the meeting last evening an informal bridge party wound up the activity at the clubhouse, resulting in easy victory for Harold Freeman and Ben Chesler over "Doc" Long and the president.

Do-X Taking On Fuel For Atlantic Flight

HOLYROOD, N.F., May 20 (CP) The giant aeroplane DO-X, enroute to Europe, landed at Holyrood at 9.20 a.m. E.S.T., after flying from Dildo, where it was forced to land yesterday.

The progress of the great 12-motored craft over Newfoundland has created tremendous interest among the population and crowds greeted its arrival as it alighted on the water of this little port.

The task of loading fuel and supplies was begun at once, in preparation for the next leg of the flight to the Azores.

TARZAN AND THE GOLDEN LION. NO. 5 By Edgar Rice Burroughs

(Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.)

"Once we are come to Nimmr," continued Ibn Jad, "there will be no difficulty in finding the treasure. The trouble will lie in getting out of El-Habash with it and the woman. If she is as beautiful as the Sahar said, the men of Nimmr may protect her even more savagely than they would the treasure. But we shall find a way."

"Often do magicians lie," replied Tollog, sagely. Just then came the sound of men approaching through the jungle. "It is Fahd and Motlog coming back from the hunt," said the Sheik. With astonishment, they then saw Tarzan, surrounded by his guards, making his way toward the beyt. For a moment the ape-man intently scrutinized Ibn Jad and the shifty-eyed visage of Tollog.

Tarzan was the first to speak. "Who is Sheik here?" he demanded in tones of authority. "Behold him," replied Ibn Jad, "and by what name are you known?" "They call me Tarzan of the Apes, Moslem," said Tarzan calmly. "I have heard the name," sneered the Sheik. "All Arab slave raiders have." Tarzan said. "Why then, have you come to my country?"

"We come but to trade in peace for ivory," Ibn Jad began suavely. "Thou liest in thy beard," returned Tarzan quietly. "I have seen Galla slaves in thy menail. They are not here of their own choosing. Remove the thongs that bind me and prepare to return north from whence thou came." At that, Ibn Jad's eyes narrowed and he came close to the wrist-bound ape-man.

MUST CUT COSTS C. N. SHIP LINES

EXCELLENT SERVICE GIVEN.

OTTAWA, May 20 (C.P.). — Utmost vigilance should be exercised to reduce operation costs of the Canadian National (West Indies) Steamships service, the House of Commons Committee on Railways and Shipping recommends in its report tabled by R. B. Hanson (Cons. York-Sunbury) to-day. The operating loss for this service in 1931 was $446,568. This was "slightly above the amount of the subsidy previously paid to an independent company by the Government for a much inferior service," the report says.

"Your committee are in agreement with the principle that this steamship service is a matter of treaty obligation and should be continued," the report continues, "but your committee are of the opinion that the utmost vigilance should be exercised by officials directing and in charge of this steamship line so that, if possible, the cost of operation to the Dominion should be reduced to a minimum consistent with efficiency; and that the earliest possible moment turned into an operating profit.

Splendid Service.

"The service performed by this line on both routes is an excellent one and should be constantly brought to the attention of the Canadian people whenever and wherever possible with a view to their patronizing the service.

"With respect to the traffic originating in the British West Indies, served by the ships, your committee are of the opinion that every effort should be made to induce the residents and commercial interests in such colonies to patronize the service thus made possible for them at so great an expense by the Canadian people, to the fullest possible extent."

Passengers Dropped From 4,000 Feet Up Parachuted To Earth Below In Own Chairs

SANTA ANA, Calif., May 20 (A.P.)—Four men were parachuted from an airplane recently in a demonstration of a new method to release passengers from distressed ships. All landed safely. They had cleared the ship in five seconds, Mr. Harry Trusty, a designing engineer, calculated.

In a cabin monoplane, 4000 feet over the airport here, the pilot pulled a lever. Two of the passengers were swung outward through doors in the fuselage and scudded off into the air while parachutes blossomed above their heads.

The pilot pulled a second lever. The other two passengers swung through two more doors, and the parachutes automatically took them in tow. All four landed sitting on the same seats they occupied in the plane.

Mr. Trusty describes the device:

The doors in the sides of the fuselage open automatically when the pilot pulls the lever. Davits swing outward with each seat and an automatic trip drops the seat once it has swung clear of the ship. The 'chutes are carried under the seats. A metal band slips around the waist of the passenger as the device begins to operate to discourage panic.

Obituary

THOMAS ARMSTRONG

The death occurred in Toronto this morning of Thomas Armstrong, former resident of Peterborough, who was born at Keene 67 years ago. For some years he was employed as a clerk in the Turnbull store which used to be located at the northwest corner of Simcoe and George Streets, and he was also engaged with the Fairweather Company. Leaving here about twenty-five years ago he went into the fur business in Lindsay, and had lately lived in retirement in Toronto.

Mr. Armstrong was a member of Otonabee Lodge I.O.O.F. which he joined on May 30, 1887, maintaining his membership to the time of his death. He was a Past Grand of the lodge and had acted as financial secretary for a number of years. He was a valued and active member and received his veteran's jewel in 1912. Mr. Armstrong is survived by his widow and one son, Edward, of Toronto, and one brother Dr. Robert Armstrong of Whitby. He was a member of the United Church.

OFFICERS BEGIN TO BE DOUBTFUL OF CONFESSION

Believe Curtis' Story of Astonishing Lie May Be Partly False.

HINT OTHER MOTIVES.

Claim Rum Runners Benefitted Through Patrols Avoiding Parts of Coast.

HOPEWELL, May 21.—The possibility that John Hughes Curtis' story of his astonishing lie may in itself have been false in part, received police attention today.

A portion of the Norfolk shipbuilder's confession that his efforts in the Lindbergh baby case was a hoax already was considered as disproved. That was the portion in which Curtis explained his purpose in the elaborate lie was to get money by the sale of his story to newspapers.

Police pointed out that the hoax was three weeks old before Curtis attempted to sell his story; and that even so, he could not hope to find any buyers unless he recovered the stolen Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr.—which must have known was impossible, inasmuch as his negotiations were not negotiations at all.

An enquiry was quietly under way to learn if Curtis may not have had some other motive, quite removed from the sale of his "story", for inventing the deception. It was recalled that due to the "delicacy" of the negotiations with a vessel at sea, coast guard craft refrained from their usual careful patrols in some waters, fearful of causing the collapse of negotiations for the baby's ransom.

Rum Runners Benefited

As a result of this relaxed vigilance, rum runners were able to move more freely, and to land cargoes of liquor without running the customary gauntlet of United States federal craft, authorities pointed out.

The Rev. H. Dobson-Peacock, former Canadian rector, whose connection with Curtis as an "intermediary" in the hunt for the Lindbergh baby is also under scrutiny, declined again to come to New Jersey for questioning, even with the police offering to pay the expense. He offered to tell what he knows to a representative of the police who will come to Norfolk.

There have been no developments in the hunt for the man or men who kidnapped and killed the 20-month-old Lindbergh child the night of March 1 last.

Dr. John F. Condon, the "Jafsie" of ransom negotiations, was praised last night by Col. Henry Breckinridge, Lindbergh's friend and counsel.

"The doctor is a very active and wonderful man" Breckinridge said. "It is too bad half the people in the country are not just like him with the same measure of integrity and high resolve."

More than 4,000 miles of roads in the national highway system of Italy were surfaced with bituminous dressing in the last 12 months.

UNUSED LAND STIRS DEBATE

TAXES INVOLVED.

OTTAWA, May 21 (C.P.)—Discussion developed in the House of Commons to-day over the resolution of Hon. W. A. Gordon, Minister of Immigration, dealing with the amendments to the Soldier Settlement Act. The object was to transfer from the Director of Soldier Settlement and to municipalities and provinces unoccupied land which, for the preceding two years, had not been the subject of contract or sale. It also provides for such transfer involving properties greater than five acres in extent. The resolution was adopted and a bill based on it given first reading.

Mr. Gordon explained that one of the difficulties in the administration of such unoccupied land was that the director had not the power to pay taxes.

Controversy arose when F. G. Sanderson (Lib., South Perth) asked for the name of the 4,165 men who, the Minister had said some time ago, had been placed on the land by the Government in the past year in Ontario. The Minister promised to produce a list giving numbers, but regarded the publication of names as not in the public interest.

BEAVERBROOK OPPOSES BRITAIN PAYING DEBT TO UNITED STATES

Says League of Nations Unnecessary Expense—Prying Leads to War.

IRISH CASE—"A PITY."

NEW YORK, May 21 (C.P.)—En route to Montreal and the Maritime Provinces, Lord Beaverbrook, Canadian-born publisher of London, is visiting New York to-day. He is accompanied by his son, Maxwell Aitken and by Viscount Castlerosse.

Interviewed after his arrival concerning a variety of world problems, Lord Beaverbrook expressed opposition to payment of debt by Great Britain to United States and to the League of Nations, which he considers an unnecessary expense on the British Empire.

It remains his steadfast opinion that the quicker each nation gets down to the business of minding its own affairs and keeping its fingers out of other nations' pies, the better for the welfare of all concerned. The British tariff policy is not yet inclusive enough to suit him, but he thinks that the approaching Dominion Conference in Ottawa will result in its application to the Dominions. That would help some, he

Lands in Ireland After Battling Storms 10 Hours

Daring Lone Woman Flier Is Unhurt As She Brings Fast Monoplane Down Undamaged Near Londonderry—Had Trouble With Exhaust Manifold.

GREAT GERMAN CRAFT WITH 14 ON BOARD REPORTS "ALL FINE," 300 MILES OFF COAST.

LONDON, May 21.—(AP)—The Press Association reported from Londonderry, Ireland, this afternoon that Amelia Earhart Putnam, solo trans-Atlantic flyer, had landed there.

Mrs. Putnam, the news agency said, was unhurt.

Her monoplane was reported undamaged.

"I had this trouble with the exhaust manifold for about 10 hours," the Press Association quoted Mrs. Putnam, "and for a lot of the way I was flying through storms—mist, rain and a little fog."

When Mrs. Putnam landed, the Press Association said, she declared: "I've done it!"

"I had to land here in the pastures outside Londonderry," she continued.

"Not a Bit Hurt.'

"I'm not a bit hurt and I think the plane is all right. I had trouble with my exhaust manifold, which had burned out.

"In addition the gasoline gauge had broken, probably in the storm last night, and there was a little leakage, so I decided to come down. I landed in an open field."

"To my friends," Mrs. Putnam went on, "I want to send this message: I am very glad to have come across successfully, but I am sorry indeed I did not make France. I am going to speak to my husband as soon as I can, by the Atlantic phone."

Her husband is George Palmer Putnam, New York publisher.

The Press Association said Mrs Putnam telephoned their office from a hotel at Londonderry.

"My first thought on getting here," she said, "was to call up so that my safe landing might be known without delay."

Second Crossing

Once before in June, 1928, the flier crossed the ocean in an airplane. But that time she was a passenger. Asked to compare her first flight with her second, she said: "There is no comparison. On this go I was flying low the whole time and had to rely on myself. I am afraid I am a bit deaf after the terrible roar of the engine in my ears all the time, but at any rate I have done it."

"I want to find out what I shall do," she continued. "I think I may go to London, but the only clothes I have with me are the flying suit on me now, and I haven't much cash.

"I'll probably go to London after the week-end, but it all depends on what my husband thinks about it."

The lithe, blonde flyer, who took off from Harbor Grace, N. F., at 4:51 p.m., e.s.t yesterday got a lift by motor to Londonderry, five miles away, where the first thing she did was to get on the telephone to report her success to London in order that her husband, George Palmer Putnam, New York publisher, and her friends back home might know that she was safe.

It was 3:30 p.m. 8:30 a.m. e.s.t., when Mrs. Putnam landed here. She had made the trip of approximately 1,900 miles in 16 hours and 50 minutes

VALLEYFIELD, Que., May 21 (C.P.)—Damage estimated at $23,000 was caused and 50 men were forced to flee from their sleeping quarters yesterday, by fire at St. Louise de Gonzague. The blaze swept through the sleeping quarters in a wooden building, destroying several outbuildings and a barn before it was checked.

The men, employed by the Beauharnois Construction Company, fought the fire until firemen arrived. With some difficulty the flames were prevented from spreading to other sleeping quarters.

Cause of the blaze is unknown.

Man Gets Ducking Launching Cruiser

Even though the open air bathing season has not yet been officially proclaimed, a citizen took a cold-water bath in the river today.

Rye's dockyards was the scene this morning of a gay launching party that took one of the assistants, as well as the boat, into the river. In other lands, they launch boats with champagne. On the Otonsbee, we launch the man, as well as the boat.

With the aid of a number of those willing hands that offer themselves at such moments, the first cruiser of the season, Benjamin Moore's boat, took the water this morning. Shoving it off the cradle over the ties, a wielder of a helpful pike pole worked too hard and went along with it, up to the neck in icy water. By the grace of unseen fairies, his eyeglasses stuck fast, with one bar over one ear to hold them from the grasp of the treacherous Otonsbee.

And so the first cruiser and the first man went in with a real splash.

CAMP WORKERS STAGE FRACAS AT MOOR LAKE

Unidentified Ring Leader Arrested and Rushed to Pembroke Jail.

EXTRA POLICE CALLED.

Malcontents Refuse to Work —Demand Free Clothing and Tobacco.

NORTH BAY, Ont., May 21. — An unidentified man was under arrest after he had allegedly led 65 transients employed at Moor Lake Trans-Canada highway camp in a demand for free clothing and tobacco.

The camp, 100 miles east of here and 35 miles west of Pembroke was in an uproar until police arrived and arrested the alleged ringleader. He was taken to Pembroke and lodged in jail pending further police action.

A second camp at Moor Lake failed to follow the lead of demonstrators in its neighborhood and was to-day peacefully at work. About 35 of the malcontents returned to work following the disturbance and to-day said they intended to remain on the $5 a month basis on which they were hired.

Work or Leave

The remaining thirty were given dinner and supper yesterday and breakfast this morning, but were denied any more meals. They were ordered at the same time to resume work or move out immediately. They elected to leave but held the citizens' committee of Sudbury which sent them to camp should be held responsible for their transportation back to that town.

Sheriff Alex Morris and a number of constables were expected back in the camp to-day to keep order. Should the dissenters refuse to leave the camp it was said they would be arrested and lodged in jail at Pembroke.

CRASH FATAL TO CLARENCE COLE

24 YEARS OLD.

Without regaining consciousness Clarence W. Cole, teller-accountant of the Bank of Montreal, Chesley branch, died at Owen Sound yesterday afternoon as a result of injuries sustained in an automobile accident the previous night. He was twenty-four years of age.

Mr. Cole had numerous friends and business acquaintances in this city, having served as teller in the George Street branch for almost five years. He was promoted as teller-accountant at Chesley branch at the end of January this year.

According to a brief news despatch from Owen Sound, Mr. Cole was driving in company with E. Fussey also of the bank staff, when the car left the road north of Chesley, plunged into a deep ditch, and then broke through a strong wire fence. The present condition of the survivor of the accident is not known, although his injuries were described as serious.

Mr. Cole entered the service of the bank in Picton, his home town, in the year 1923, and was transferred to George street branch here five years ago this month.

"Pete" as he was more familiarly known to his host of friends, was endowed with an exceptionally happy and carefree disposition. Among the local banking fraternity he was regarded as one of the most efficient tellers, while his contacts with the public were always marked by his gentlemanly and courteous bearing, under all circumstances.

Mr. Cole is survived by his widowed mother, one sister and a twin brother, Claude of Picton, and a married brother in Toronto.

An inquest will be held.

RUMOR SENATE PLANS RETURN OF OATH BILL

Would Give Free State Dail Chance for Further Consideration.

THOMAS MAKES PLEA.

Is Unable to Believe Two Countries' Relations Will Remain Strained.

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, May 21.—(C. P. Cable)—Usually well-informed sources last night forecast the Irish Free State bill providing abolition of the parliamentary oath of allegiance will be returned to the Dail Eireann for reconsideration when it comes before the Seanad Eireann (Irish Senate) next Wednesday.

Whatever treatment the bill may receive in the Senate, that body cannot however exercise a final vote. After 18 months refusal by the Seanad to pass the measure it automatically comes before the Dail which may again approve it. If it is refused consideration by the Senate a second time the bill becomes law after 60 days.

The most notable repercussion of passage of the bill in the Dail last night, came when J. H. Thomas, British dominions secretary, said he could not believe relations between the two countries would remain strained.

Pleads for Anglo-Irish Friendship

In a vigorous plea for Anglo-Irish friendship, the dominions secretary pointed out prosperity in the Free State was bound up in the economic conditions of Great Britain. It was in the best interest of both countries, he said, they should remain linked together, within the British commonwealth.

Mr. Thomas recalled the widespread belief at the time of the adoption of the Anglo-Irish treaty in 1931, that it would open a new era in Anglo-Irish relations. That belief had been justified, he said, in the last 10 years which had witnessed a marked improvement in Anglo-Irish political relations and a growing friendship and understanding between the two countries.

On the basis of the treaty, Mr. Thomas said, the Irish Free State had become a member of the British Commonwealth of Nations, with rights equal to those of all other members. Free State representatives had been among the foremost workers in the constitutional development of the Empire which had resulted in the Commonwealth as it was known today, a group of nations on a complete footing of equality.

Will Attend Ottawa Parley

The Government of the Irish Free State last night issued a statement that its acceptance of the invitation of Prime Minister R. B. Bennett to attend the Ottawa Imperial Economic Conference still holds good.

The Government at the same time made it clear it was willing to commence discussion with other governments which will send delegations to the conference as soon as its own preparations are sufficiently advanced.

Earlier in the day Patrick McGilligan, who was Minister of External Affairs in William T. Cosgrave's Government, had asked if the Government intended to have its High Commissioner in London confer with British officials regarding preparations for the conference. He reminded the administration the former Government had promised preliminary discussions with Great Britain.

Uruguay Will Name Delegate To Ottawa

MONTE VIDEO, Uruguay, May 21 (C.P. Cable). — Appointment of an observer to the forthcoming Imperial Economic Conference at Ottawa will be made by the Government shortly, it is announced.

The Government announcement said it was considered imperative to have an observer at the Conference in view of the "importance of the meeting in connection with the production of Uruguay."

MISS MACPHAIL LEADS ATTACK CADET TRAINING

Claims $260,000 Outlay Not Justified When Many Schools Are Shut.

SUTHERLANDS DEFENDS.

Sauve Undergoes Grilling on Subject of Postmasters' Dismissals.

OTTAWA, May 21. (CP)—Cadet training in schools was attacked in the House of Commons yesterday as the thin edge of militarism, especially in these days of distress and impoverished communities, it was impossible to justify an expenditure of $260,000 when many schools were closed, Hon. D. M. Sutherland, minister of national defence, was advised.

Leading the attack on cadet training was Miss Agnes MacPhail, Canada's only woman member. Even if the country could afford the money, the work should not continue, she said. It was a "terrible waste of money" and even from a military point of view cadet training was a failure—"it doesn't make soldiers."

Col. Sutherland was strongly in favor of cadet training in schools and, replying to several opposition members, he was unable to undertake to cut the expenditure next year. The offending item finally passed but not before Dr. Thomas Donnelly, (Lib., Willow Bunch) said it would be difficult to explain such a large expenditure to poor people whose children were unable to attend schools.

Busy Day

Swinging along toward prorogation next week, the house put in a busy day. The last estimates for the postal department and department of national revenue were passed. All but one item in the defence department went through and some progress was made with fishery estimates.

When postal estimates were under review, Hon. Arthur Sauve, once again was grilled on the subject of postmaster dismissals. Individual cases were brought up by members and explanations sought.

Hon. E. B. Ryckman, minister of national revenue, was the target for many questions when his estimates were under consideration, especially on the subject of applying dumping duties.

DIRECT RELIEF TO BE CONTINUED

Dominion and Provincial Government to Contribute Two-thirds.

Supplemented If Necessary.

TORONTO, May 21. — Official announcement long expected, was made by Hon. George S. Henry last night, that the Federal and Provincial Governments, jointly would continue to contribute at least two-thirds of the cost of direct relief in municipalities, and that the former plan of stimulating joint public works would not be renewed.

In a prepared statement, the Prime Minister of Ontario made it clear that while two-thirds is simply the minimum joint contribution of the Governments, and that where municipalities are in especial difficulty, which arises usually through non-payment of taxes or inability to collect them, the Provincial Government will contribute more.

Such municipalities are invited by Premier Henry to lay their especial needs individually before the Government, so that proper consideration may be given them in fixing the higher amounts which the Government will authorize.

Advisory Committee.

Mr. Henry also announces that very soon he will name an advisory committee to assist the Government in the problem of adequate food to the needy, and also with regard to the special assistance that may be needed by municipalities that find difficulty in meeting their normal one-third of the cost of direct relief.

An advisory Committee to aid the Provincial Government in the task of handling the problem of feeding the needy and of rendering especial assistance to the municipalities will soon be appointed, the Premier states.

FIERCE QUARREL ENDS IN DEATH

Police Called By Neighbors Find Indian Woman Strangled.

NEGRO HELD.

MONTREAL, May 21. (CP) — Mary McLeod, 26, Indian, was strangled to death here to-day. Police held Frank Cane, Negro, as a material witness for the coroner's inquest.

Neighbors of the couple who share an apartment told police Cane, out of work for some months was to start work on a new job today and was angry when his breakfast was not prepared for him in sufficient time.

Sounds of a fearful struggle in the tiny apartment brought neighbors on the run and a police call was sent in. Detectives and constables were admitted by Cane and found the woman lying dead on the bed, her face puffed and swollen and marks of fingers on her throat.

JOHN M. ODDIE DIES SUDDENLY

HEART SEIZURE.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 21 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — Driving cattle into the lane from the pasture to be milked at 2.00 o'clock yesterday afternoon, John M. Oddie, prominent Seymour Township farmer, residing at Burnbrae, took a weak spell, leaned against a fence, then collapsed and died. A heart seizure is given as the cause of death. He has suffered from his heart for the past five years, but despite this fact his death was a shock to his wife and daughter Helen, with whom he had recently dined. Aged 66 years, the late Mr. Oddie has played a very important part in the building up and life of the community, and was a man who was loved and respected by all with whom he came in contact. Born in the district, he lived for a number of years with his wife in Manitoba, later coming back to the township to reside. Of Scottish descent, he had all the characteristics of his race, and was a Presbyterian, being a member of St. Andrew's Church, Burnbrae, and a prominent and active figure in church life.

Surviving are his wife, who was Miss Minnie Morrison; one son, J. Mack of Detroit, Mich., and two daughters: Mrs. V. I. Stafford of Beamsville, Ont., and Miss Helen at home; also four brothers: William G. of Cleveland, Ohio; Bert of Deloraine, Manitoba; Melville of Winnipeg, Manitoba, and Percy of Seymour Township, and five sisters: Mrs. Wm. Ingram, of Fernie, B.C.; Mrs. Wm. Varcoe, of Windsor, Ont., and Mrs. John Thompson, Mrs. A. T. Donald and Mrs. John Rannie, all of Seymour.

The funeral will be held on Sunday afternoon at 2.30 from St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Burnbrae, interment being made in Burnbrae Cemetery, the Rev. Donald A. McKenzie officiating.

LANDS IN IRELAND AFTER TEN HOURS

waiting eagerly for news of her, special interest centering on the fact that to-day was the fifth anniversary of the flight of Col. Lindbergh, to whom attention had been directed anew by the tragic death of his child.

When Mrs. Putnam had reported that she was safe, she got into an automobile and left Londonderry for an unannounced destination.

Later she returned to the field and looked over her plane, which wil be dismantled and shipped to London.

The difficulty with the exhaust gauge developed about four hours out of Harbour Grace, Mrs Putnam said, but she decided to stick to it rather than turn back. There was hardly any gasoline left in the tank when she landed.

DO-X Aims at Azores

Guards on the coast of Ireland were watching for Mrs. Putnam in clear, mild morning, when the DO-X, fueled to capacity, raced its 12 motors and taxied to a take-off on Mrs. Putnam's trail at 3 a.m. Eastern standard time to-day.

The DO-X, largest heavier-than-air machine in the world, was bound for the Azores. She carried 7,000 gallons of gasoline, and her commander, Capt. Frederick Christiansen, estimated she would use in a single hour more fuel than Mrs. Putnam's single motored monoplane carried for a 20-hour flight. The DO-X, however, was not expected to make half as fast time as the smaller, swifter plane of Mrs Putnam.

The DO-X had 14 persons aboard, including a woman, Fraulein Antonia Strassman. The plane took off from New York early Thursday morning after a winter spent in reconditioning her after a leisurely flight across the South Atlantic from Switzerland.

All Clear

NEW YORK, May 21.—The Radio Marine Corporation announced the receipts at 9.50 a.m. eastern standard time to-day, of this message from the German airliner DO-X:—"Position, 4.00 Greenwich mean time, (9 a.m. Eastern standard time), 44.00 north, 41.18 west. Winds west southwest. Speed, 90 knots. All clear." Approximately 500 miles off Cape Race.

RAINS RELIEVE FIRE MENACE AROUND ROUYN

Wooden Trestle on C.N. Line to Taschereau is Destroyed —2 Weeks Tie-up.

RANGERS GET CONTROL.

Bunkhouses, Steel Shop Are Wiped Out on Waite-Ackerman Property.

ROUYN, Que., May 21.—Heavy rain which fell overnight has relieved Rouyn and Noranda from fear of surrounding forest fires, which three times within a fortnight menaced the Northern mining towns. The downpour removed the shadow of threatened destruction which had overhung the twin communities and brought under control the fires which have been raging in the district.

A survey of the situation shows that property damage was less extensive than feared. Approximately 1,000 feet of wooden trestle in the Canadian National Railways line to Taschereau was destroyed, but it is hoped this will be repaired and service restored to normal in two weeks. The trestle was at Mileage 40, across an arm of Dufault Lake.

The Powell Mine and surrounding buildings were destroyed.

Bunkhouses Razed.

The bunkhouses, steel shop and a log building at the Waite-Ackerman-Montgomery property were wiped out. At the Amulet Mine one shaft was burned.

Reports that the Newbec Mine buildings were destroyed are unfounded, it was learned.

Fears that two trappers had lost their lives in the advance of the flames along the shores of Dufault Lake were also believed unwarranted. So far as is known, the fires have caused no fatalities in this district.

Planes to Survey.

New Brunswick authorities planned an airplane survey of the situation, if the weather is favorable. A commercial plane will fly over the ravaged areas near Kedgwick, Restigouche County, and Bathurst. From observations and mapping by the pilot, directions will be issued to the forces struggling to subdue the flames. It is the first time such a method has been employed in fire fighting in New Brunswick. Fires in the vicinity of Kedgwick and Bathurst continue menacing.

HOPES DWINDLE FOR BURIED MEN

Rescuers Continue Efforts But Fear 50 in Tunnel Are Drowned.

FALSE RUMOR STIRS CITY.

TEMUCO, Chile, May 21 (C.P.).—Fifty men who have been imprisoned in the Las Raices tunnel near here for three days, following a landslide, were still prisoners today, and slender hopes were held out for their rescue.

The force of rescuers who have battled vainly for the three days against new landslides, falling machinery, cold weather and torrential rains, continued jabbing away at the mudbanks, however, even has hope faded.

An electric thrill ran through the city shortly before midnight when a message was received from the tunnel saying all the men were rescued. The message came to a newspaper here by telephone and was confirmed by the Postmaster-General. Later it developed watchers at the scene had misinterpreted the words of a man who came running from the tunnel and flashed the false news.

Gases from dynamite explosions as the rescue work went on caused a number of cases of partial asphyxiation and it became necessary for the rescue crews to work in short reliefs.

SEVERE QUAKE REGISTERS AT WASHINGTON CITY

WASHINGTON, May 21.—A severe earthquake, estimated to be 1,850 miles from Washington in a southwesterly direction, was recorded today on the Georgetown university seismograph.

Officials said their computations placed the disturbance either in Mexico or Central America. It began at 5:15:54 eastern standard time and entered a second phase at 5:20:41.

NEW YORK, May 21.—The New York Giants yesterday announced the unconditional release of Pitcher Joe Genewich and Infielder Bill Hunnefield.

Genewich, returned to the Giants by Minneapolis of the American Association recently, has been suffering from a sore arm for several seasons. Hunnefield was returned to the Giants by Jersey City of the International League a few days ago.

SUING VICTOR FLEMING.

LONDON, Ont., May 21 (C.P.).—Fred Thrower, Kerwood, horse breeder and owner of the internationally-known pacer Gratian Bars, is suing his former driver, Victor Fleming and John H. Cahill, of Syracuse, N.Y., in County Court here. He claims $750 from the two New York horse dealers for services rendered by Gratian Bars.

PERMANENT CONCRETE HIGHWAYS

for Safety, Comfort, Economy

Concrete paving means driving comfort because of its even, non-glare, low-crowned surface. Tires grip and are held by it. You relax and enjoy the trip. It means safety too, with exceptional night-time visibility and clearly defined edges.

Concrete saves money for the motorist with reduced fuel consumption and less tire wear. Its reasonable first cost and low maintenance spell economy to the taxpayer. Advocate concrete. It is all-Canadian, using local labor and local materials.

PARLEY AT GENEVA.

GENEVA, May 21. (AP)—Financial assistance was promised to Austria by representatives of Great Britain, France and Italy to-day speaking before the council of the League of Nations.

Capt. R. A. Eden, British delegate, said his government was ready to join in an international loan to Austria and to do what it could to permit the Vienna government to repay to the Bank of England its credit of 100,000,000 shillings (currently about $14,000,000).

British participation, Capt. Eden explained, depended on Australia's continuing to meet payments on foreign obligations.

Blossoms

EVERYWHERE Nature is renewing her youth. The blossoms tell of the new life and energy which vegetation is drawing from Mother Earth.

For us humans spring time is often marred by the after effects of artificial winter life. We have lived too far from Nature and the thin, watery blood is lacking in certain elements of Nature which are essential for the nourishment required by the nervous system.

These elements are happily combined in Dr. Chase's Nerve Food so as to make it the ideal restorative for the blood and nerves at all seasons of the year. It is especially appreciated in the springtime when almost everybody feels the need of tonic and restorative treatment.

DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD

Restores color to the cheeks, brightness to the eye and elasticity to the step. Tired languid feelings disappear, you sleep well and rest well and you feel better in every way.

HEADACHES caused by ACID

ACIDITY haunts its victim like a shadow. No appetite; what you do eat disagrees, causes flatulence and makes you sluggish. Work is an effort. Before night, a headache.

Do you know what is wrong? An acid-soaked system! Too many acid foods. But you need not diet your way out of this difficulty! Take a tablespoonful or two of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

From the hour you relieve that acid condition you will feel like another person. Every spoonful of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia will neutralize many times as much acid. Take it when stomach nerves are over-stimulated through worry, or excitement; when everything ferments in your stomach, and waste matter is poisoning the bloodstream or whenever the bowels are clogged.

Phillips Milk of Magnesia has a gentle, laxative action. It is ever so much better for one than the harsh purgatives that upset the stomach or weaken the bowel muscles. An occasional dose of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia is all that is necessary to avoid those periodical attacks of sluggishness so apt to occur with any person who does not get a great deal of physical exercise.

Phillips' Milk of Magnesia is sold at drug stores everywhere in the dominion in 50c bottles. Be sure to say "Phillips'" when you buy. Then you're sure of getting the product that doctors prescribe.

The ideal dentifrice for clean teeth and healthy gums is Phillips' Dental Magnesia, a superior tooth-paste that safeguards against acid-mouth. (Made in Canada).

World Famous Churches

CORDOVA, famed in history and song, is known for something besides the leather and silver with which its name is so closely associated. That is the mezquita, or mosque, now a cathedral, and by far the most beautiful and picturesque of any building, Moorish or Christian, to be found within the limits of the city.

Cordova is an episcopal see. Few fragments remain of its Moorish walls, built on foundations sunk by the Romans. Modern factories skirt its edge, in contrast to the orchards of orange, lemon, and olive trees. Narrow crooked streets lead to its centre and the farther you penetrate to its heart, the nearer you come to yesterday.

CATHEDRAL OF CORDOVA.

The cathedral of Cordova was originally founded as a mosque by Abd-ar-Rahman I. on the site of a Roman temple and a Visigoth tower. Immigration soon made a larger mosque necessary and various additions were made. Minor changes were followed by the most important alteration when Al-Mansur, vizier of Caliph Hisham II. enlarged the secca or House of Purification, making it the largest sacred building of Islam after the Kaaba of Mecca.

The mosque is a rectangle 570 feet long and 425 broad—just a little less than St. Peter's at Rome. One-third of this is occupied by the courtyard and the cloisters to north, east and west. With its square buttress towers, the exterior is somewhat heavy, but the interior is one of the most beautiful specimens of Moorish architecture.

Passing through the grand courtyard, with its palms, cypress and orange trees watered by five fountains, you enter a bewildering labyrinth of pillars of porphyry, jasper and many-colored marbles. Some of this was spoils from Narbonne. A part came from Tarragona. A portion is ruins of ancient Carthage, and the rest is truly Moorish. Originally of different heights, its pillars have been leveled to 12 feet by sinking in the dirt, or addition of Corinthian capitals. There were 1200 of these originally, but many have been destroyed.

These pillars divide the building, longitudinally into nineteen and trasversely into twenty-nine aisles. Each row supports a tier of Moorish arches, with another tier above. The height to the ceiling is thirty-five feet.

The Moorish character of the building was impaired in the 16th century by the erection of a high altar and cruciform choir, which necessitated the addition of numerous chapels along the sides. At the same time, a belfry 300 feet high was erected in the old minaret.

Magnificent as the building now is, it is almost impossible, as one stands there, to picture what it must have been when the worshippers, thronging through its nineteen gateways, bowed before its 4700 lamps fed with perfumed oil.

9. Where did he send Joseph and why?

ANSWERS.

1. Joseph was born 1752 B.C. His dreams took place in 1736 B.C. He was 16.
2. Joseph was born at Haran in Mesopotamia. He spent his boyhood in Hebron.
3. Joseph was the favorite of his father. When he was nearly seventeen years of age, he reported to his father of his brothers' derelictions, which made him unpopular with them.
4. The coat of many colors was a tunic, reaching to the hands and feet, instead of being sleeveless and short. It was gayly decorated with many colors and embroiderings. No doubt his brethren feared that this indicated that Joseph would be chosen to succeed their father as head of the house.
5. Joseph told his brothers of a dream. They were binding sheaves, when his sheaf stood upright and theirs bowed before it.
6. The brothers interpreted this dream to mean that Joseph was to become their leader and superior.
7. Joseph said that his second dream was such that he saw the moon, sun and stars bowing before him. Jacob rebuked him for he took it to mean that Joseph would prove superior to his family.
8. Jacob controlled a large amount of territory, for his sons wandered with their flocks many miles away from their home.
9. Forty miles to the north of Hebron, Joseph's brethren were tending their sheep at Shechem. Jacob sent Joseph to them as his messenger.
10. When Joseph arrived at Shechem, he found that his brethren had gone on seventeen miles to the north to Dothan. So he set out to join them there.

ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON FOR MAY 22.

IT'S nice to read the story about those two brothers, Jacob and Esau, coming together after twenty years of hard feeling and making up again. Any sort of a quarrel is bad enough, but when two brothers get at outs, it's dreadful. Isn't it sad to think that the first quarrel the Bible tells about was between two brothers and look what it ended in. So I tell you it's mighty nice to read of Jacob and Esau shaking hands and burying the hatchet. They say it takes two to make a quarrel, but sometimes just one can make a peace. You know, "Pilgrim's Progress" is a wonderful book, but I never read it, but I think that John Bunyan was a greater man than his book. Did you ever hear what caused his death? It was this way. He heard about a long-standing quarrel between two members of a family. It was some distance away and very stormy weather, but John determined to try what he could do to bring the two together. He went and succeeded, but on the way back in the storm he caught a severe chill, and had to stop off at the house of a friend before reaching home. He got rapidly worse, and died in a few days, but happy and rejoicing because he had made peace in that family. I think that was a bigger thing than his book. "Blessed are the peace-makers," says the Saviour.

But after all, it's better to keep the peace than have to make it after it has been broken. An old elder once said to his boy: "Jock, when ye hae naethin' else to do, ye may be aye stickin' in a tree; it will be growin', Jock, when ye're sleepin'." That's good advice. We can all be sticking in and cultivating the plant of peace, for the Saviour has given us the seed: "Forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those that trespass against us."—Young Canada.

TALE BEARING

By HARLOWE R. HOYT

IT is one of the interesting phases of the Old Testament that we are told the good with the bad. Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, all are very human individuals. They have their virtues, and, by the same token, they have their faults. Because they are possessed of these very human attributes, they come nearer to us, sharing with us the trials and victories of every day.

We are told in to-day's lesson how the boy, Joseph, fell into disgrace with his brethren by his tale bearing. At this time, the youth was about seventeen years old. Jacob's territories had extended across the plains and fields, and his sturdy sons, many of them with wives and families of their own, were attending to their father's sheep. The distance was great; and probably the sons were separated, here and there, for weeks at a time, returning to the central home only at intervals.

Then it was that Joseph became a tale-bearer. What reports he brought to his father is not known. "Evil report of them" is what he brought, we are told, and are left to imagine the rest. But whatever it was, it proved sufficient to turn his brothers against the lad.

Out of the multitude, there must have been one who would have seen the justice of Joseph's complaints if they had been well found. One can but presume that Joseph was a tattletale. His brethren unanimously turned against him.

There is a time when one must tell the truth about others. Often it demands great moral courage to do this. Often it tries the person to the utmost and leaves him temporarily unpopular. But if there is justice in his story, truth will prevail in the end.

But the tale-bearer who "tattles" is to be despised and discredited. He is one of little foresight. In Joseph's case, we may generously attribute it to his immaturity. Had he been older, he would have acted as wisely and kindly as he did years after when he forgave his brothers their great wrong.

If we must bear tales, let us make certain there is no other way in which justice may be attained.

Joseph The Dreamer

Sunday School Lesson
Genesis 37:1-11

By Harlowe R. Hoyt
Walter Scott

Joseph, beloved son of Jacob and Rachel, was the favorite of his father who gave him a coat of many colors. With his brothers, Joseph watched his flocks in the fields, but they disliked the youth because of their jealousy and because he brought tales of their shortcomings to their father. So Joseph came near to seventeen years of age, and his brothers grew to hate him.

One day Joseph dreamed a dream, which he related to the others of his family. "We were binding sheaves in the field," he said, "And, lo, my sheaf arose, and also stood upright; and, behold, your sheaves came round about and made obeisance to my sheaf." His brethren were angry, for they interpreted the dream to mean that Joseph was to rule over them, and they hated him the more.

Again Joseph dreamed a dream and told it to his family. "I dreamed that the sun, and the moon, and even the stars, made obeisance to me, he reported. His brothers listened in silence, but his father rebuked him. "What manner of dream is this?" he asked. "Shall I, and thy mother, and thy brethren, indeed, come to bow down ourselves to thee to the earth?" For so Jacob interpreted the dream.

So the brethren hated Joseph and waited their chance to be revenged for their fancied wrongs. One day, Jacob sent Joseph forty miles away to Shechem, where his brethren were tending their sheep. There he found that they had sought pasturage thirteen miles to the north of a place called Dothan. So, in order to fulfill the orders of his father, Joseph continued in search of the brood.

FLY THE FLAG.

Peterborough citizens, who are not as a rule given to a great deal of flag waving, are being given an unusual opportunity to break through their difference in that respect next week, and The Examiner would respectfully suggest that they rise to the occasion.

In the first place, Monday is Empire Day, the following day is Victoria Day, and on Wednesday Peterborough is honored by a visit from Canada's Governor-General, the Earl of Bessborough.

There is, therefore, a three-day chance to fly the flag and dress the city in gala garb, and this should apply not only to the business sections but throughout the residential areas as well.

It is a glorious occasion to get away from the ordinary hum-drum appearance of things, so let Peterborough be gay with flags and bunting next week.

"ACCIDENTAL!"

Another automobile killing has been declared accidental by the coroner's jury which investigated the affair.

In this tragedy an aged woman was run down on a highway and slain by an automobile, the driver of which testified that he saw the victim in an apparently bewildered state on the road in front of him, and that she at the last moment ran back in front of his car and was struck.

The motorist swore that his machine was travelling 35 or 40 miles an hour; police testimony based on measurements set the speed at 50 miles or more.

It is certain at all events that the car was moving at least at the maximum legal limit, or possibly beyond that.

Having regard to the fact that he saw that the aged person in the path of his car was bewildered, was it not the plain duty of this driver to have slowed down so as to be ready for an emergency?

Had he any right to approach a rattled old woman at the rate of 35 or 40 miles an hour?

And when he elected to take the chance and bore down at a speed that was obviously dangerous under the circumstances and a death resulted, how could any jury of supposedly intelligent people find the killing entirely accidental?

With such findings as that it is hopeless to expect that there will be any falling off in the slaughter on the highways which last year in the United States took 36,000 lives.

NOT A PARTY ORGAN.

Addressing an audience in the West York by-election on Thursday night, Hon. Leopold Macaulay quoted a recent editorial reference to Mr. Hepburn from these columns and referred to The Examiner as a "Liberal newspaper."

If the Minister's other remarks were as up-to-date and as accurate as his description of this paper it is to be imagined that his speech would have been materially improved by complete revision.

The Examiner has no objection to Mr. Macauley or anybody else quoting what is said editorially in these columns, but we must enter a protest at being rated as a party organ.

The Examiner is not, nor has it been for many years, a Liberal newspaper; it is not a Conservative newspaper; it strives to be purely and simply a newspaper that in its news columns endeavors to give its readers a complete and authentic picture of political activities generally, and on its editorial page reserves the right to take an independent stand as regards parties and policies.

In following this course it must necessarily result that in some cases we step on the corns of some of our Liberal readers, just as in others we sting our Conservative friends; no truly independent journal can avoid such consequences, and they are in themselves the best proof that this is not a party organ.

We hope the Minister of Highways will not fail to note that The Examiner has no politics.

A GREAT HARBOR.

That interesting booklet, the annual report of Montreal Harbor, arrived in the mails yesterday, and as usual was found to contain a vast amount of information in regard to the activities of Canada's greatest sea port.

It is gratifying to note that despite the fact that last year was the third successive year of depressed conditions in commerce and business, a slight but encouraging improvement in general activity is reported by the Port of Montreal.

Grain shipments from Montreal increased by about 8,000,000 bushels over the previous year, and import bulk commodities were notably on a satisfactory scale.

The total of cargo imports reached a new high scale, oil tonnage attained the highest level in the port's history, and domestic merchandise continued its unwavering increase of several years past.

The Harbor Commission's revenue, too, increased over the 1930 figure by approximately $190,000.

The report also calls attention to the fact that the steady growth of Montreal as a general cargo port has been overlooked in the record set up in connection with grain shipments.

In 1921 the tonnage of commodities other than grain handled at Montreal amounted to 2,719,671 tons.

In 1931, despite the world-wide depression in shipping and trade generally, the tonnage of commodities exclusive of grain was 7,757,203 tons, an increase of 177 per cent. in a decade.

DE VALERA'S DIFFICULTY.

Eamon De Valera, the new President of the executive of the Irish Free State, has not encountered entirely smooth sailing in regard to his proposal to delete the oath of allegiance from the constitution. He has been able to command the majority in the Dail Eireann, but his bill has yet to be passed by the Senate. In the meantime the Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas, Secretary for the Dominions, who has been a thorn in De Valera's flesh ever since his election, in answering a question in the House of Commons declared that if the oath of allegiance is abolished by the Free State, Britain cannot enter into negotiations looking to any further agreements with the Free State Government.

The declaration is most explicit. "The position of the British Government," Mr. Thomas declared, "is that the Free State bill for the abolition of the oath is directly in conflict with the obligations undertaken by the Free State under the treaty of 1921. It appears to the Government that, if the bill becomes law, it will be unreasonable to expect that it should enter into negotiation for further agreement with a Government that had repudiated an existing agreement." The latter is the crux of the situation. De Valera cannot keep the Irish Free State both inside and outside the Commonwealth of British Nations at the same time.

The attitude of the British Government cannot fail to exert a tremendous influence at the economic conference at Ottawa regarding the status of the Free Sate in these deliberations. In this connection it is interesting to note that Premier Bennett stated that the Irish Free State had not yet accepted the invitation to the conference. For many years the Irish people have expressed dissatisfaction with their relationship with the United Kingdom. If the Free State Government persists in its present course, the people of Southern Ireland will probably have the opportunity of seeing how they can get along economically outside the family of British nations.—Brantford Expositor.

SOME REASONS FOR CONFIDENCE.

Mr. F. W. Field, British Trade Commissioner to Canada, reports to London that, should world conditions improve, this Dominion will likely be one of the first countries to recover. He adds that Canada has exhibited an extraordinary vigor in withstanding the blows of adversity.

The latter statement is something we in this country are too apt to forget. Immersed in our own affairs, and nursing our own troubles, we overlook the fact that other countries have suffered, and are suffering, far more than Canada.

Compare Canada's position, for example, with that of the United States. For the eleven months ended on January 31, Canadian exports fell off only 17 per cent., while United States exports declined 36 per cent. The production of electric power here has decreased three per cent., as against six per cent. there. Construction contracts awarded in Canada during the 12 months concluding with February shrank 33 per cent. in the Dominion and 76 per cent. in the Republic. Railway car loadings fell off eight per cent., as against 24 per cent. Manufacturing production was down 13 per cent. in Canada and 36 per cent. south of the international border.

Canada has special reasons for counting on a measure of economic recovery in the not remote future. It may be delayed by the world situation, but certain specific developments support the view that conditions in this Dominion should show considerable definite improvement this year. There is backing for this attitude in the reassuring speech of Mr. E. W. Beatty at the annual meeting of the Canadian Pacific Railway in Montreal last week. There is special reason for cheer in the reports showing that throughout the whole of the three Western Prairie Provinces growing conditions point to one of the largest grain crops in history. Nor should we forget for a moment the potentialities lying within the Imperial Economic Conference to be held here in Ottawa in July. There is every reason for thinking that that conference will stimulate intra-Empire trade in a way that will be beneficial to this country as well as to other parts of the Empire. Our agriculturists stand to profit soonest by such a development, but the gain will spread throughout the whole Dominion.—Ottawa Journal.

ADVERTISING THAT FAILED.

One insuperable drawback to radio advertising is that the advertisers have no means of ensuring that the public is listening to their programs. Sponsors seem to be dazzled by the salesmen's talk that there are so many million people within the radius of so many radio stations, and at, huge cost, they buy time over a certain number of stations, fondly believing—or just fondly hoping—that a few million people are listening to the programs. But many of them have had very disappointing results.

There is the case of a hosiery manufacturer who booked thirteen weeks over one of the big American chains. With a large part of the contract unexpired, he has asked to have it cancelled because the advertising has cost a great deal more than it has brought in.

The advertiser's program was heard over 42 stations every week. By way of "keying" the result he offered prizes for a contest. Yet, out of all those millions who were supposed to be listening, only 4,800 answers were received, or an average of about one hundred people per station, each being in a large city.

The program was one of those irritating fifteen-minute affairs with a sales talk at the beginning, middle and end, from six to seven minutes being taken up with the ballyhoo. Obviously, the advertiser did not care a rap about the entertainment; it was publicity for his goods and nothing else he wanted.

That is just a sample of what the public has to put up with under a system of radio run for private profit. Soon, it will be impossible on Canadian chains.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The Hydro probe seems to be developing into a battle between the commissioner and A. G. Slaght, K.C.

Dame Nature is doing her best to have Peterborough look its prettiest for the Governor-General next week.

Canada cannot afford to stand such losses as are entailed in the damage now being done by forest fires.

Despite the fireworks during the sittings, the report of the parliamentary railway committee was unanimous.

The abandonment of Canada's Merchant Marine is recommended by the railway committee. That service lost $440,000 last year, and there is no prospect of improvement.

DEADLY ANTAGONISTIC FORCES AT GENEVA

By H. W. MAHOOD

Think not that all the forces in conference at Geneva are harmonious. No greater clash of the forces that make for war and for peace has ever been recorded. War-minded leaders of the whole world are either on the ground or are ably represented. The conclusions reached before the conference ends will either set the world forward a hundred years and determine a modern world, or they will set the civilisation of the world back with its face to the past.

At no period in the world's history have such gigantic preparations been made for war. European nations are spending in dollars 180,000,000 more than they did before Great War. Leaving Germany out of the reckoning, Europe spent before the catastrophe in dollars 1,549,000,000. Europe is now in these times of tragic concavity spending in dollars 1,948,000,000. The United States spent in dollars 316,000,000. Her army and navy budget now call for 760,000,000 dollars. Will this hold as an axiom? The greater the preparation for war the greater the certainty that war will come and come speedily. Prior to 1909 the world was conscious that unusual preparations were being made to have well drilled soldiers ready for the battlefield, and the latest war equipment ready on a moment's notice for service.

Just now at the Geneva Conference much is being made of armaments for defence. Every defence force is a threat to all who are not defended by like preparation. Thus all nations are caught in the net of "defence." Science has become the servant of the war-minded nations. Never before was science so given to the discovery of destructive war methods. Never did the nations guard so carefully the results of scientific research. Krupp sold to the whole world his secrets for the manufacture of destructive war weapons. The governments, now, take over all the discoveries touching military equipment. It is a crime in Europe for a discoverer to sell or disclose to any other nation any war equipment secret. This secrecy has popularised an old profession. Each of the great nations now employs trained spies to find out what the other nations are hiding in secret preparation for war. An ambassador is accompanied by a certain number of attaches. These men report to their governments the results of their spying. Never before was this spy system so developed and so important.

What will happen after Geneva Conference? We cannot forget what happened after the signing of the Kellogg Pact. Within two hours after the Pact was signed aeroplanes were practising over Paris with bombing planes. These soldiers of the air were demonstrating what could be done in war over any enemy city. And Paris cheered the spectacular display of her air forces. The very same kind of reception was given the Kellogg Pact by the air forces of London. The Kellogg Pact was peace-minded. Paris and London were war-minded. Just what will be the reception given the Geneva accomplishments remains to be seen and will reveal just how peace-minded is the world. By the side of this black picture let us consider some favorable forces making for peace quietly and silently but surely. Industrialism is a mighty force for peace. Too often the material side of life is discredited. We speak of a material age. We denounce its sordidness. But at the heart of this material industrial age there are mighty spiritual forces leavening all that man does. And these forces are fostered by the materialism. Industrialism has made mankind interdependant and cooperative. Many hands are needed to make a shoe. These hands cooperate. These workers are dependant upon each other. "We did it. It is not, "I did it." Thus the whole world is being bound together as it becomes industrialized. This binding force is greater than any force that generates the war spirit. The toilers of the world are the real peace makers. We have had enough of the lip kind of peace makers in high places and in low. The sword shall be changed into plough shares by the world's toilers. Some of these days the voice of the industrial world will be heeded and will be more potential than so many disarmament conferences have been.

SON OF THE GODS

By REX BEACH

Now that Sam was known to be in complete control of his own affairs, certain of his former college friends endeavored to capitalize their acquaintance with him and among the number was Kicker Wade. Wade came to see him one day and announced in his breezy, hearty way that it was high time he and Sam renewed the bonds that had united them at Eastern. He had been intending for some time to drop in and say hello to his old pal, but—you know! Sam certainly had been missed at the university. Dirty shame he had been fired. All that hooey over a frail! Colleges were the bunk, anyhow, and about all a man got out of them were his acquaintances.

Kicker was a stock salesman now and doing well. He was with one of the younger, more aggressive houses on the Street. Fine people! A fellow had to be up and doing every minute to make good with a house like that and he was more than making good. But he wasn't too busy to remember old times. No, sir! The only lasting friendships a man made were the ones of his youth. He and Sam must see a lot of each other, beginning right now. And how was the old boy, anyhow? Well, well, it certainly was great to touch his flesh again. How was he behaving himself? Not so good, maybe, from what the papers said, but why shouldn't a guy have as much fun as he could afford? And how was his tennis game? . . . Too bad to let that drop. Sam had the makings of a champ in him and the chances were he'd have been on the Davis Cup team if he'd followed the game up. That back-hand of his put blisters on a ball and he had the fighting heart, too. Remember that team match with Princeton? Some match, wasn't it? Kicker would tell the strabismic world it was a match. And Sam had pulled it out of the fire for old Eastern.

Now Sam was a big man of affairs! Rich! Living like a potentate! Hot ziggity! That certainly was fine. Kicker ran an admiring gaze over the treasures of Sam's home, and whistled.

"What a room to throw a go-to hell party," he exclaimed. "Sound proof and too high to jump off. Say! I know a bunch of step-ins that would dress this place up like Altman's. I dare you."

Sam declined the suggestion with a shrug and a smile. He wondered how much Kicker hoped to borrow.

Wade had not come to borrow, however, he had come to lay an offering upon the altar of that friendship, the memory of which raised a lump in his throat. Sam had been mighty generous to him and Kicker remembered it. Yes, sir. He wouldn't be where he was now if Sam hadn't helped him over those lean years at Eastern. Good old Eastern! And Kicker was one hombre who never forgot a favor. He wasn't in a position to do anything at the moment but he had something in mind and when a certain deal came off he proposed to pay Sam back a hundred to one. No fooling. . . . All right! All right! They'd say no more about it—for the time being.

Kicker rang up several times during the next week and chatted breezily. Sam waited. The game amused him. He was not surprised when his old friend came in person finally, much excited, vaguely mysterious. Wade began his business by stating cryptically that fortunes on the Street were not made by taking chances. No, sir. The little fellows took chances but the big insiders always played safe.

"We handle oil stocks, mostly, in our shop," he explained, "and when a proposition is better than usual we sometimes underwrite it. That's where the nourishment is: the public doesn't get its teeth into the good things until most of the juice is gone. Understand? Well, we've got a sweet one, Sam, and I've put you in. I said I'd blow back——"

"I never speculate, Kicker."

"Exactly. That's where you're smart. I wouldn't let you speculate if you wanted to. This isn't that kind of a deal: our group never speculates, it just divides profits. I'll tell you how it is; we've got an option on a big acreage in Texas, owned by some non-residents who are drilling a well. At least they think they're drilling it: as a matter of fact, it's down, finished, and they don't know it. The oil is there and the Standard will take the property at a figure that nets us a cool million and a half over our contract. The whole thing will be cleaned up in thirty days. I'm going in for what I've got and I'm taking this way to square my old account with you. You'll get a sure ten to one on your investment. Say, boy, you ought to know I'd die before I'd let you lose."

Sam was sure this was true. Kicker was indeed a genuine, an unselfish friend but Wall Street was a dangerous playground for an inexperienced investor. Of course if this deal was as sure as Kicker claimed—— On the other hand—— Doubt and indecision pryed upon Sam, he asked for a day in which to make up his mind. After more discussion, further explanations, renewed assurances of love and confidence, the friends parted. They wrung each other's hands at the door, Sam made the eight obeisances of brotherhood and Kicker's voice grew husky, his eyes moistened. Good Old Sam! Gee, it was great to be pals again! And about a party here in this penthouse, Kicker would guarantee to stage a board-walk beauty parade on a day's notice. A form-fitting riot that would have to be seen to be appreciated.

They met again on the following afternoon and Sam greeted his caller with an agreeable display of emotion. "It's nice of you to go to all this trouble, and it touches me. Friends have been without a source, a tree without a root."

"Exactly!" Wade helped himself to a cigar and to the easiest chair in the room. "About this deal: I don't want to rush you, buddy, but it's closing to-day."

"I was raised on proverbs," Sam continued. "My father used to warn me to guard my heart with the same vigilance as the ramparts of a city. In spite of the fact that your face warms me like the sun and your words of affection evoke in me a harmonious ecstasy, I nevertheless felt that I owed it to him to heed his admonitions as a matter of filial duty, therefore, I investigated this proposition of yours Kicker." Sam smiled queerly and Wade looked startled.

"Yes? Well, I guess you found everything O.K."

"On the contrary I found everything N.G.'

"What d'you mean? I could have answered any questions. I put you next to this in strictest confidence. Good Lord, I hope you didn't doubt my motives!"

"Fortunately for me, I did, and I found them counterfeit, as usual."

"As usual!" The visitor paled and rose to his feet. "That's a nice thing to say to a pal. I don't give a damn what you found out, or think you did. It's boloney. . . . Humph! This is a sock on the button. It cures me of doing favors for a friend." He turned to go but Sam said:

"Permit me to tell you exactly what I discovered."

"To hell with your discoveries!" Kicker cried angrily. "I ought to take a wollop at you for good luck. I'm not used to insults——"

"But you're going to hear a few, just the same. Bah! Don't bluff and bluster: you're a paper tiger and you always were. Times have changed, Kicker, I'm giving insults nowadays instead of taking them, and it's very agreeable. I investigated that firm of yours and they're swindlers."

"You're crazy! But—rave on, I'm leaving you. 'Swindlers! That's a laugh. Wade uttered these words on his way towards the door but he halted when two Chinese men barred his way. They were thick-set young fellows and they stared at him from unfriendly eyes. "Hello! What's this?"

"Merely a couple of my servants.

"Don't you—intend to let me out? the visitor queried in amazement.

"I intend to throw you out.

"What?

"But first I presume I should call up Police Headquarters.

"Now see here, Sam——

"I know all about that oil enterprise. You said the well is down——

"It is. So help me——

"It has been drilled for three months and it's dry. And that option. Imaginary! . . . You're just what you were in college, Kicker, just a cheap grafter imposing on your friends.

"You can't have me arrested. You haven't lost any money, have you? All right! What have I done? I thought it was a good proposition, Sam. Honestly I did. You've got the whole thing wrong. Have a heart, old man. We used to be——

Sam uttered a command to his houseboys and they seized the caller. The latter protested furiously, he struggled, over his shoulder he shouted: "You rotten little skunk! I wouldn't—treat a dog—like this."

In spite of his bulk Wade was half dragged, half carried from the room and hustled across the entrance hall. He almost expected to be flung into the elevator shaft, but instead a door was opened, he was urgently propelled through it and a final shove sent him reeling down an iron stairway. With a dislocating jar he fetched up on a landing half a flight below, the door above him slammed with a metallic clang. Wade was skinned and bruised, the metal floor upon which he sat was painfully corrugated.

He rose and slunk down from landing to landing, muttering the while. Sam Lee was a yellow dog. There was friendship for you! Served a white man right for being pals with a Chinaman!

THE TRENT VALLEY

Dear Examiner:—

Mr. Fred Roy deserves the gratitude of every one in this glorious Trent Valley for the admirable story in The Examiner this week. It's forceful and practical. If what Mr. Roy so directly suggests is made effective, effective planning is the first step to be made. Many of the attempts to attract tourists are little more than bursts of enthusiasm, temporary both in thought and action. The marvellous attractions of rural Michigan and all New England (for tourists and summer residents) are the result of well-directed, purposeful planning and resourceful, long-continuing cooperation. That no doubt is what Mr. Roy means.

Respectfully,
Ryerson Ritchie.

FAR WEST LEADS IN PRODUCTION OF SILVER ORE

Canada Ranks Third Among Nations of World in Production.

MEXICO IS FIRST

Output From Cobalt Mines Declined in Recent Years.

OTTAWA, May 21—The Canadian silver production in 1931 was approximately 20½ million ounces, or 10.5 per cent of the world's computed production of 196 million ounces. Canada has for many years ranked third amongst the silver producing countries of the world, being exceeded by Mexico and the United States, the former contributing about 42 per cent and the latter about 22 per cent annually to the world's total production.

The silver mines of Cobalt and adjoining areas in northern Ontario were for many years the principal source of the Canadian production, but their output in recent years has shown a gradual decline, accentuated these last two years by the unprecedented low price of silver, according to A. Buisson of the Dominion Department of Mines, Ottawa. This decrease in production from the Cobalt mines is now being partly offset by the silver recovered from the International Nickel Company's blister copper at the Ontario Refining Company's plant at Copper Cliff.

Important contributions to Canada's silver production are now being made by Noranda Mines, Limited, Noranda, Quebec, and by Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Company, Limited, Flinflon, Manitoba. The blister copper produced from ores obtained from the properties of these two companies is shipped to the Canadian Copper Refiners' plant at Montreal East, where the silver is recovered. Yukon Territory has for several years been producing annually about four million ounces of silver, derived from the argentiferous lead ores of the Mayo district.

British Columbia Leads

British Columbia is now the leading silver producing province in the Dominion ,having contributed about 39 per cent of the total production in 1931. The silver is obtained mainly as a by-product in the treatment of the lead-zinc ores from the well-known Sullivan mine at Kimberley. These ores are treated at Trail for the recovery of metallic lead and zinc. The residues are then treated for the recovery of silver. Important outputs of silver were also obtained in 1931 from the Premier and Prosperity mines, near Stewart, the Britannia mine near Vancouver, the Granby Consolidated Company's mine near Anyox, and the mines near Beaverdell, in south-central British Columbia. The ores from the Prosperity mine, and those obtained from mines near Beaverdell occasionally have a silver content up to several thousand ounces a ton.

Development work is being carried out by Eldorado Gold Mines, Limited, on its pitchblende-silver deposits at Labine point on the east side of Great Bear Lake, discovered early in the summer of 1930. This is the most interesting discovery of silver made in Canada in recent years and the progress of development work is being closely followed by the public. Several other companies, including Consolidated Smelters, Dominion Explorers and Northern Aerial Minerals Exploration, are active in this area, and silver has been found on several of their claims, usually in association with other minerals.

As Canada's silver production is now mainly obtained as a by-product from the treatment of nonferrous ores, any general improvement in market conditions should bring about a noticeable increase in production of silver in Canada.

Brazilian Traction closed at 9½ up to 1-8 from previous close. Nickel showed a small fractional loss at 5½, off 1-8. Canadian Car and Foundry common and preferred were both unchanged. Smelters sold off a point at 27.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE.

TORONTO, May 21 (C.P.). — Stocks moved within a restricted trading circle on Toronto Stock Exchange this morning. Price changes were irregular and, for the most part, of little significance.

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, May 21 (C.P.). — The stock market maintained a good undertone in another sluggish session to-day.

A sag in the first hour carried a number of leaders off a point or so, but the list hardened in the last hour, and losses were largely regained. The market closed with a steady tone. The turnover was only about 300,000 shares.

New developments of a character to influence the market were meagre, but financial quarters remained hopeful over the formation of the Board of Industrialists and Bankers to aid in credit expansion, some of the amusements.

Among a number of issues finishing fractionally higher were U. S. Steel, Eastman, National Biscuit, North American, and Union Pacific. American Can. recovered a fractional loss, and American Telephone virtually unchanged after selling a point.

Tobaccos again ran into some selling. Liggett & Myers was an isolated soft spot, losing about 4 points, while the Class B declined 1½. Amerian Tobacco B lost a major fraction, but Reynolds was steady. More selling appeared in some of the amusements.

No Winnipeg nor Lakehead passengers made reservations, it was said, and company officials said the C.P.R. boat coud have had very few passengers.

F. CHRISTOPHER IS FOUND DEAD

LIVING ALONE.

Frank Christopher, one of the oldest employees of the City Board of Works, was found dead at his residence, 480 Parnell Street, last evening by a neighbor. Death was ascribed by Dr. F. P. McNulty as due to natural causes.

Mr. Christopher, who was a native of Italy, came to this country as a young man. He had resided in this city for about forty years, previous to which he lived at Madoc, where he was married to Mary Tobin, who predeceased him fourteen years ago. He is survived by one son Joseph of Ilion, New York.

It is stated that Mr. Christopher who was in the middle sixties, had enjoyed a good measure of health. As recently as Thursday morning he attended Mass at Sacred Heart Church, as was his daily custom. He lived alone on Parnell Street, and was not seen out at all on Friday. Last evening a neighbor, Guy Berardi, went into the garden which he rented from the late Mr. Christopher, and seeing the paper still lying on the stoop he picked it up and entered the house with it.

Mr. Christopher was reclining on a couch, and had apparently passed away in his sleep some hours previously.

Well respected and regarded as a good citizen by all who knew him, Mr. Christopher was a devout member of Sacred Heart Church and the Holy Name Society. He also belonged to the Catholic Order of Foresters.

The funeral is to be held on Sunday at 3.15 p.m. from Lane and Eano's Funeral Home to the Church of the Sacred Heart, and with interment at St. Peter's Cemetery.

TWO YOUNG MEN ARE ORDAINED

which the sacrament of Holy Orders was administered by Bishop O'Connor to priests of the diocese of Peterborough. At the conclusion of the ceremony Bishop O'Connor said he wished to be the first to offer congratulations to the two young priests and also to their parents and other members of their families.

Gladsome Day

"To them this is a gladsome day, and I should like to be permitted to associate myself with their joy," His Lordship said. "You have been elevated to the dignity of the priesthood of the new testament. There is only one priesthood of the new testament, the priesthood of Jesus Christ. You have been made sharers in that priesthood. Its first purpose is the administration of the sacraments."

E. T. Grant

Bishop O'Connor admonished Father Grant and Father Rishea especially to encourage in the people who would be entrusted to their care a deep devotion to the eucharist. "Let their attitude toward the eucharist be the criterion of your success. Give them the saving grace that flows out from Calvary through the Sacrament. You will preach to them the eternal truths."

"You are the first young priests whom I have ordained for the diocese of Peterborough. You are admitted to the goodly company of the priesthood of this diocese. I hope you will be a help to your Bishop. I hope you will be a credit to your families and to the seminary from which you have come."

Rev. Father Rishea was born in Peterborough and was educated at the School of the Sacred Heart, St. Peter's high school and St. Augustine's seminary. He played baseball and hockey here in school league games.

Father Grant is also a native of this city, was educated at St. Peter's lower and high school, also spent several years at St. Peter's school in London, Ont., and completed his theological course at St. Augustine's. His brother, Frank Grant, is also training for the priesthood at St. Augustine's seminary, and a sister, Sister M. Germaine of Sault Ste. Marie, is a member of the sisterhood of St. Joseph.

BEAVERBROOK

said, but Colonies should be included, too.

"The National Government got a mandate for an Empire tariff at the last election," said Lord Beaverbrook. "If they do not fulfil it, we must oppose them."

Extravagance Unnecessary

As to the pyament of England's debts to the United States, Lord Beaverbrook regards any such action as an unnecessary extravagance.

"Gentlemen," he said, "I should not pay you a penny, but I fear you will get the money, nevertheless. At the present rate of exchange on the pound, the $32,000,000 due you on Nov. 1 will cost us $11,000,000 more or $43,000,000 and, much as regret it, I fear it will be sent to you on the date due by the British Government—and you can rest assured that I will abuse them for doing it."

The failure to include provision in the British budget for interest payment on the debt to the United States was of no significance," Lord Beaverbrook said, as the budget was "a matter of taxation." A remark was made about the League of Nations, and Lord Beoverbrook gave his opinion of that.

"My opinion as to that has not changed an iota," he said. "The League of Nations is an unnecessary expense on the British Empire. We simply pay so much a year to get into trouble. With League of Nations' loans and Austrian loans, it has cost us plenty.

May Lead to War

"I feel the same way about the Geneva Conference. These meetings, where one nation is prying into the affairs of another, asking 'How many guns have you? How many cruisers have you? Have you got any of this or any of that?' are all intolerable and, I tell you, they are liable to lead to war. I am a Nationalist, and I am against all foreign complications and foreign commitments."

Informed that the bill for the abolition of the oath of allegiance to the British Crown had come up for final reading in the Parliament of the Irish Free State, Lord Beaverbrook said that the Irish situation was "a pity," but that it would be a mistake to "be too tragic about it." So far as Ireland was concerned, he said, he was "a pacifist."

42 ARE SAVED FROM TUNNEL

Only 12 Able to Walk After Being Imprisoned 100 Hours in Wet and Cold.

ALL EXPECTED TO LIVE.

TEMUCO, Chile, May 21. —(AP) —Forty-two men who had spent 100 hours imprisoned in Las Raices by a landslide finally were rescued today. All of them are expected to live but some came out in pitiable condition.

Only 12 of the men were able to walk out of the railway tunnel, the others being carried on stretchers.

The men had suffered much from bitter cold weather and from lack of food. In addition, torrential rains during the last few days had covered the bottom of their prison with water.

CAMP WORKERS

all Trans-Canada camps, and run up the Red emblem. This didn't get beyond the threat stage.

Four camps with a total force of approximately 360 men were recently reopened with the two Moor Lake comps the first to be established. Everything was peaceful, and the men thoroughly contented until yesterday's disturbance at one of the Moor Lake camps. The other three are operating and without a semblance of discontent.

This morning L. S. Clarke, North Bay, received a letter from a spokesman for one of the Moor Lake camps which stated that the men are entirely satisfied with their lot. The other operating camps are at Rankin and Klock, east of Mattawa.

New Camp to Open.

Another camp, the fifth to be reopened, will be in operation next week. It will be located at Burritt's Creek, in the Klock area. It will accommodate 60 or 70 men all of whom have been already recruited from North Bay and applications received from many southern Ontario points and Northern Ontario points. The Northern Development Branch, at North Bay, stated that there the required men are readily found and that the majority are anxious to take up work on th prescribed basis.

Great Britain Has Lead Over France

H. G. N. Lee and G. P. Hughes, England's Davis Cup pair, defeated Christian Boussus and Rene de Busselet, 6—3, 7—5 in the final match of the day, which was put on as an additional attraction.

Babe Ruth Connects For His Ninth Homer

NEW YORK, May 21.—(CP) —Babe Ruth hit his ninth home run of the season with the bases full in the fifth inning of the first game between the Yankees and Senators today. The circuit blow, scoring four runs, gave the Yanks a lead of 5-2.

Ruth connected with his second home of the game and his tenth of the season in the sixth inning. The drive into the right field bleachers also scored Lary and put the Yanks out in front 10-2. Lou Gehrig followed with his sixth home run of the season.

Grain Reviews

(By John P. Boughan—A.S. Market Editor).

CHICAGO, May 21.—Suggestions came to-day from authoritative trade sources that the United States 1932 winter wheat yield will amount to only about half the 1931 harvest.

The prospect of such an abnormally curtailed output of winter wheat is associated with what happened in previous years when conditions were similar to those which now exist. On this bases, a crop is reckoned of somewhat under 13 bushels an acre, and would mean roughly 400,000,000 bushels, a total of 40,000,000 bushels less than the latest official estimate.

Compared with a week ago, wheat prices this morning showed 1¾-3 cents a bushel advance, with corn ¼-1⅜ up, oats unchanged to ⅛-¼ higher, and provisions at a rise of 7 to 12 cents.

It is pointed out that normally when there has been big abondonment of winter wheat, the crop condition in May will average somewhat better than in April owing to disregard of poor acreage. However, such was not the case this season, the May condition being practically identical with that of April A parallel state of affairs developed in 104 A year in which April and May reports showed the crop condition at 765 per cent, or slightly better than this year, and the harvest was 12.4 bushels an acre, a rate even less than is now suggested for 1932.

Another material revision of prospective supplies of wheat arises from world's wheat acreage for the 1932-33 crop year. Returns from leading countries indicate the total is about 10,000,000 acres less than a year ago. This is chiefly owing to heavy decrease in the United States and to apparent likelihood that almost 1,000,000 acres less will be shown as having been seeded in Canada. In addition there seems virtual certainty that Russia's seeded area will fall below 1931's, that Poland looks for a 1933 domestic scarcity of wheat, and that Ruman is also expects little wheat for export.

AT WINNIPEG

WINNIPEG, May 21. (By the Canadian Press).—Ending another week of narrow markets and quiet trading, wheat prices on Winnipeg's grain exchange managed to show moderate advances at the close Friday, the finish of the weekly cycles. Constructive news featured the week but failed to impart more than temporary upturns to values.

Grain traders appeared to be in a waiting mood and for the most part displayed little sustained interest on either side of the market. Closing prices on wheat futures were: May at 63 cents, July 63¾ to ⅞ and October 67⅛ to 68, an advance of⅝ to ⅞ cent.

Large Export Sales

Export sales continue to be worked with regularity and while the amount was not available, the total for the week was expected to be fairly large.

Announcement that 2,000,000 bushels of wheat had been sold for export through Churchill created considerable interest among traders but had no affect on prices.

Prospects of Europe requiring large quantities of Canadian wheat shortly improved when reports of bullish crop conditions in several European countries were received. France was said to have suffered deterioration to her new crop while Spain, Portugal and Greece were reported to be short of wheat. Crop conditions have improved in Germany, the only European country to report any betterment.

FOR THE YOUNG PEOPLE

Young Prospector's Luck

WHEN Mel opened his eyes that morning he saw that it was not yet daybreak. He rose from his blankets, however, and stirred himself about the camp, gathering what wood he could find for a fire. Old Peter was still asleep.

In the gray gloom of a cloudy dawn the country in which their tent had been pitched was not attractive. It was the dry lake region of Nevada, where the levels were now like frozen beds of lava and the hills were barren rocks. There was not a tree nor a blade of grass in sight.

"Prospecting for gold," mused Mel to himself, thrilled in spite of this cheerless outlook. "Roaming the plains and the hills looking for riches under the ground!"

Together They Dug Into The Hard Stony Ground

"Aye," grumbled a voice from the tent. "An' never finin' them. Nothin' to gain, and everythin' to lose, that's what an old prospector like myself thinks."

Mel grinned.

"You'll feel better after breakfast Pete," he said, cheerily. "We've got bread, and cheese, and two whole slices of pressed ham."

"You mean bologney," corrected the prospector. "It's so long since I've had real ham for breakfast that I've forgotten the taste."

Old prospectors always grumble about the food, the location, the weather and the company. To say nothing, of course of how they continually complain of not being able to locate a "pay streak."

"Any coffee?" asked Peter, hopefully.

Mel shook his head.

"Precious little other stuff, too," he replied. "We'll have to go into town soon and fill up with grub."

Old Peter did not answer for a minute or so; then he said:

"I've got bad news, Mel."

"What about?"

"About our huntin' for gold. Maybe I've been givin' you the idea that I struck it rich last month and had a ton of pay dirt in my pocket to pay expenses from now 'til doomsday. But I haven't. I'm broke, and when we hit town this time, it'll be to sell our gear and break up."

"Not us, Pete," replied Mel firmly. "I can work in restaurants or in hotels and make enough money in a few weeks for both of us to start again."

"Don't you stick with me," advised Pete, dismally. "I'm nothin' but a broken-down old man."

"Pete, do you believe in hunches?" queried Mel, suddenly.

"Not lately, I don't."

With this blighting gloominess the old prospector dismissed the idea that "funny feelings" had anything to do with finding gold. Mel was only half-convinced, anyhow, so he said nothing more about it. Instead he fried the "boloney" and handed a slice of it to Pete, who regarded it in disgust.

"What's the use, Mel?" he said. "Let's give up and go back. I don't feel like diggin' all day long and findin' nothin' but dirt."

Mel shook his head.

"We've got enough grub left for another meal," he replied. "We'll stick it out for today, anyway."

The old prospector grinned in spite of himself.

"It's the spirit of '49," he said, approvingly. "You must have gold in your veins."

"I'd much prefer to have it my pockets," laughed Mel. "Maybe I will, if my hunch holds good," he went on, dropping the words sideways.

"Just where does this hunch tell you to dig? queried Pete.

For reply, Mel took a pickaxe and flunge it with all his strength toward hillside. It struck the ground at a spot which was once the high water mark of the lake, long since dried up.

"Right there," said Mel.

Pete laughed, rubbed his hands, and said:

"It's the most unlikeliest spot in the neighborhood, but there it is, an' I wish ourselves luck."

Pete was getting along in years, it was true, but he worked with a young man's vigor. Mel joined him and together they dug into the hard stony ground, turning the loose earth over to look for the tell-tale signs of yellow. At noon they had found nothing, although by then they had dug a trench more than fifteen feet long.

"Is your hunch still workin'?" queried Pete, straightening out a crook in his back.

Mel nodded vigorously.

"Stronger than ever," he replied.

"Then thar must be gold in these yere hills," answered the old prospector, broadening his accent so that Mel would not take him too seriously. "I'm not sayin' as how I don't respect your hunch, Mel, because I do. If you say so, we'll stay here 'til we starve."

"No," was Mel's reply. "If we don't strike anything this afternoon, we'll give it up."

The noonday meal reduced their provisions to what Pete called the "heel" of a loaf of bread and a few crumbs of hard cheese. Neither wasted any time bemoaning the fact, however, for Mel was anxious to keep digging and Pete was curious.

Suddenly Mel saw something glitter at the point of his pick. He gave a low cry of discovery. True enough there was a thin scattering of gold mixed with the clay, but it was so thin and so faint that Pete advised keeping cool.

"I've seen better strikes than that pan out to nothing," he said. "Gold is tricky that way."

After several more hours of feverish work without results Mel was obliged to admit that perhaps Pete was right.

"Pretty near time to quit," spoke up the prospector, wearily. "Sun's dropped pretty low an' it'll soon be dark."

"Get the gear together," replied Mel, reluctantly. "I'll be ready to leave when you are."

The old man packed what little equipment they owned and rolled it into two packs, one for him and one for Mel. He was just about to call for the boy to join him when he was surprised by a sudden yell from where Mel was digging.

"Look!" cried Mel, holding up a yellow rock as big as a man's fist. "A nugget!"

"It's no nugget," replied Pete, as he examined the find. "A nugget is solid gold an' there's a lot of rock in this."

"But what's the yellow substance?" cried Mel.

"Iron rust," replied Pete. "I've seen too much of it to be fooled."

"But there must be some gold in it," insisted Mel, doggedly.

He could not believe that this glittering rock was worthless. Working with a real determination he uncovered a streak of it which seemed to extend indefinitely along the one-time shore of the dry lake.

"Look, Pete," he cried. "There's tons and tons of it!"

"An' not worth a nickel" replied Pete. "C'mon. Let's get goin'."

Mel stowed three hunks of the "iron rust" rock in his knapsack and plodded along the trail in the direction of Tenopah, which was the nearest town. It was midnight before they reached there. Mel insisted that they go to the assay office at once.

The official looked at the samples sleepily at first but opened his eyes in astonishment as he examined them under a glass.

"Where did you get this rock?" he asked, suspiciously.

"We mined it," replied Mel.

"I know you mined it, but where?"

"I'd rather not say," answered Mel. "At least not until I know whether it is any good or not."

Pete nodded.

"The boy may be right," he said. "But in my opinion it's too rich to be anything but iron rust."

"It is rich," replied the official. "And the boy is right. If you haven't got that location staked out in your name, you'd better do so at once."

"Then it's gold!" cried Mel.

"Every grain of it," was the reply.

"Then we're rich!" gloated Mel, turning to old Pete. "There's enough of it out there to make both of us millionaires!"

Without even waiting for the next day, they went back to the edge of the dry lake and laid out the spot in which the precious metal had been found.

When the rush followed, and the hillside was turned into a thriving mining town overnight, old Pete was elected Sheriff and Mayor. Whenever anyone asked him how he came to discover the "pay streak" which was making him rich, he would grin, point proudly to Mel, and reply:

"Young prospector's luck, that's what I'd lay it to."

PLANTING BEANS

(To be colored with paints or crayons. Whenever you come to a word spelled in CAPITAL letters use that color)

YELLOW-haired Susie May and BROWN-haired Teddy are planting a row of GREEN beans. Teddy took them out of the little YELLOW box at his feet and dug all the holes to plant them in with his YELLOW handled spade. The blade of the spade is GRAY (use BLACK lightly).

Susie May is watering the plants with a bright BLUE watering can. It has a RED spout.

Teddy wears YELLOW overalls and a PINK (use RED lightly) blouse. Susie May wears a light PURPLE frock with YELLOW sash and socks. Her shoes are BLACK like Teddy's are. The earth is BROWN and the grass GREEN, and the sky is light BLUE with a big White cloud in it. The RED barn has a BROWN roof and a YELLOW weather cock. There is a RED (use a touch of PURPLE in it to darken it) brick walk between the grass. The window in the barn is GREEN.

Susie and Teddy both have PINK cheeks and RED lips.

"We will have a fine crop of beans this year I am sure," says Teddy. "And I have tried to plant them in a perfect row so they will look nice."

"Oh, they're wonderful, Teddy!" exclaims Susie May. "Just think how splendid it will be to raise our very own vegetables!"

The Pansy

THE pansy is the fairy of the flowers, with funny little faces, just like real people. Looking down on a bed of pansies, is like looking into the faces of a crowd of everyday folks—some white—some yellow—some brown—and some black. They actually seem to smile back at us, and we would not be surprised if they said hello! or good morning!

You see all sorts of expressions among the pansy folks. Some grin at us like little brown monkeys; some greet us with a smile so broad, that the whole flower seems to be bubbling over with fun and good humor; some make ugly faces; and some seem to be wondering what the big creature can be, that is trying to stare them out of countenance? If you look very closely, you may see flowers that look like some one you know—some funny little old man, or some very prim old lady.

So having a pansy bed is just like owning a whole lot of folks, or going to see all the people of the town, without having to dress up for the occasion.

Each one of you ought to have a pansy bed this summer, even if it is a very small one. You will get more fun out of your pansies, than out of any other kind of flower. As there will be little new faces peeping up at you every morning—little new folks to get acquainted with and love.

Some morning, you will find a little grandmother, wearing a purple cap with white ruffles; or a chipper looking little old man, with pink cheeks and lavender whiskers. And if you slip up right easy, you may surprise a pair of lovers with their golden heads bent towards each other, and whispering secrets that only pansy lovers know.

Pansies are friendly little people, and don't mind a bit being plucked, and arranged in a bowl of water on the sitting room table. In fact, they rather seem to like it, as it gives them a chance of getting to know each other; as out in the yard it is only those on the same plant that can whisper and nod. So with them, being placed in the bowl, is like going to a pansy party.

They like plenty of water, and when the weather gets dry and hot, they hang their heads, and look very miserable and woe-begone—but just let a shower come, and in a little while they are all looking up, and smiling as happy as you please.

They get thirsty just as you do—so when you see them looking down at the ground, and not at the sun, you can know they are thirsty—so give them a drink, and they will smile and thank you.

Pansies seem to have the best time early in the morning, when the drops of dew roll around over their velvety faces like happy tears—you know there are such things as happy tears.

One of the greatest pleasures

The Pansy Is The Fairy Of Flowers

you will get from your pansy bed, will be the giving of the blooms to those who love flowers as much as you do, but are not so fortunate as you. A handful of pansy blossoms can do more to brighten and cheer up a sick room, than even the jolly old family doctor himself—for they can stay and smile, and smile, long after he has gathered up his pills and powders, and gone.

A Great American Writer

The 25th of May commemorates the birthday of a great American writer—Ralph Waldo Emerson, who was born in 1803.

Among the many wise things he said in his writing was this: "Hitch your wagon to a star."

Why not make this your motto? Your wagon is your life. It should be filled with such ideals, that a star in heaven would not be too lofty a place to which to hitch it.

Emerson, himself, had such ideals and his life was a motto in itself.

Here are just a few words of hope and courage and inspiration of his that should be learned by heart:

"The first wealth is health."

"There are twenty ways of going to a point, and one is shortest; but set out at once on one."

"Be content with a little light, so it be your own."

"A man should make life and nature happier to us, or he had better never been born."

"Be sure to read no mean books. Consider what you have in the smallest chosen library."

"So nigh is grandeur to our dust,
So near is God to man,
When duty whispers low, 'Thou must,'
The youth replies, 'I can.'"

HANDY BOY'S GARDEN
PLANTING IN CANS & TRELLISES

MANY "Handy Boys" and older folks too find after a plant has started to grow they wish it had been planted somewhere else. If the plants or vines had been planted in cans by the method indicated in the sketch it would not have been a difficult matter to remove the cans and trellises with a little help. Also by this method a plant may be placed wherever it will work out the best in realizing a landscape ideal.

The cans used were round five gallon oil cans scalded with boiling soap powder water. Slots about 2½" long were cut with a sharp cold chisel as suggested at A, a vertical cut B was made and the sides of the can pounded well in as at C which left ample space to receive the seeds. Cross cuts were made at D and the metal bent in as at C; through these holes the can was filled with earth and watered when necessary.

The trellises were made of common laths cut and placed about as suggested and nailed together with 1" tinned clinch nails. The laths may be pointed and forced into the ground as shown unless the ground is very hard in which case the earth may be loosened with a bar.

Paint the trellis with contrasting colors and the cans a bright red or green, and there will be spots of color that will attract and interest any one who appreciates pleasing contrast with the surrounding growing plants that have not yet put forth their flowers.

Live Dollies

HOW I used to love my dolls!
My, how sweet I dressed them!
Every day and every night,
I would hug them up so tight,
Hug them close with all my might—
Goodness how I pressed them!

Now my dollies line the shelf—
Guess you think that's shocking;
But I like to hug and feel
Something warm and sweet and real;
Something that can coo and squeal—
Now when I am rocking.

Dollies are so cold and hard,
And they cannot kiss you;
They can never hear you hum;
They can never grab your thumb;
They are simply deaf and dumb,
And they never miss you.

And if baby should grow up,
I would search the city,
For another one to tease;
For another one to squeeze;
And if there were none of these,
I would rock a Kitty!

Surveyor's Records Yield 1834 Map Of City

LOCATION OF BROWN'S MILL POND SHOWN ABOVE KING STREET DAM WHEN CREEK WAS POWER SOURCE

Flume Along King Street Carried Water to Run Primitive Machinery in Adam Scott's Original Grist and Lumber Mill.

SCOTT WAS FIRST PETERBOROUGH SETTLER; LOST ALL HIS LOCAL PROPERTY BY 1827

An original map of part of the central section of Peterborough, drawn in 1834 by John Huston, deputy land surveyor, indicating the names of property owners in the area from Aylmer street to the river and between Charlotte and Wolfe streets, was shown to The Examiner yesterday by J. W. Pierce, O.L.S., who recently opened a land surveyor's office in room 14 of the Bank of Commerce building.

From F. T. Webster, O.L.S., Toronto, who preceded him here, Mr. Pierce secured possession of thousands of plans and survey records that have accumulated from the practice of John Huston, beginning in 1822, and extending through the successive work of John Reid, T. B. Clementi, J. W. Fitzgerald, both father and son, A. J. Cameron to that of Mr. Webster.

Included in the boxes of papers and other data is a voluminous series of interesting historical records associated with the first settlement and early events and development of this city, county and surrounding district.

The examination of these documents and reports will occupy Mr. Pierce's spare time for months, and only then will the full significance of this promising mine of supplementary local history be known. Some of the old papers selected at random turn back the pages of time a full century, recalling names that are all but forgotten, but once actors in the community drama of this neighborhood. The original stage has been shifted and changed, and is still changing, but the cast of characters of that time have gone the temporal way of man, and only their names and written words have come down to us as reminders of the personalities that were once familiar figures on these same streets.

Map Made In 1834.

John Huston's sectional map in 1834 was drawn to show the limits of Brown's mill property, extending along the river front from Wolfe street almost to Charlotte street and projecting along King street more than half way to Aylmer street.

Because flowing water was an essential power for industrial purposes a century ago, the creek from Jackson Park to the Little Lake was a valuable asset. Brown's flour and grist mill was situated at the east end of King street on the bank of the river, and its grinding stones, the cereal machinery of that day, were driven by a fall of water from what is marked on the old map as "Brown's Mill Pond."

The pond was formed by damming the creek at the King street bridge. The little artificial lake lay on part of King street, extended westerly almost to Louis street; spread out on the east over the Border Transit Bus property up to the White House, narrowing considerably at the Charlotte street bridge.

Flume to the River.

From this head of water a flume was built parallel to King street and near its north side crossing George and Water street and turning into the mill. The map of 1834 shows that all this pond property, except the lot on Charlotte street, together with the river frontage from Wolfe street north almost to Charlotte street belonged to Brown. The only house marked on the map occupied approximately the present site of Comstock's funeral home on Water street.

The house and the combined grist and lumber mill, which was nearby on the bank of the river at the foot of King street were built and owned by Adam Scott, Peterborough's original pioneer and for a time its only resident.

Adam Scott's Experience.

Adam Scott had come to Peterborough in 1818 after settling in Port Hope, where he worked in a flour mill. He trudged through Northumberland, crossed Rice Lake and paddled up the Otonabee to a landing place near the end of Wolfe street, in the vicinity of Canada Packers' factory. At once he conceived the plan of utilizing the creek by damming it, and using the resulting water power to run the mill which he had visualized.

In a brief period Adam Scott was Peterborough's first and sole citizen and industrialist, but by 1827 his primitive fortune here was shattered. He built his mill, to grind grain and cut lumber, in 1820; through other transactions he got in debt to John Brown of Port Hope and lost his possessions in the place which in 1925 changed its name from Scott's Plains to Peterborough.

In 1827 Adam Scott returned to Port Hope, and if he ever came back to Peterborough there is no record of any visit.

Presumably his property fell into the hands of John Brown, for whom John Huston, the land surveyor, made that first map in 1834, bearing the legend, "Plan shewing Brown's mill property in 1834."

There is a remembered record that the mill was enlarged in 1834 by Hamilton and Fortye. Successive owners were Scott, Brown, Lundy, Parnell and Denne.

Some time after Adam Scott departed, broken in finances, from the community which had suddenly taken on life and expansion with the coming of the Robinson immigration, his house on Water street was occupied by Dr. Hutchison, the town's third doctor, who moved in from Cavan township, where Huston the surveyor also lived.

It is safe to assert that this Brown, the mill owner, was the maternal grandfather of the late J. J. Lundy and D. J. Lundy, and the great grandfather of George and James Lundy, who are living here now. In that course of relationships he was the father of Mrs. William Lundy.

James Grey Bethune

Brown owned the lots on King and Charlotte streets covered by the ponk and creek.

James Grey Bethune was something of a "big shot" in local realty here a century ago. He owned all the lots on the south side of Charlotte street from George street down to the river; also the lots on the west side of George street between Sherbrooke and King streets; and the north half of the George street frontage, east side between King and Sherbrooke streets. This is where the Hood and Cummings Ford agency is located.

At the southeast corner of the market square Bethune kept a store which the first settlers called "The Red Store." It was also the first post office in Peterborough.

Other Property Owners

The southwest corner of Charlotte and George Streets where the new C.D.S. store is to be built, was owned by a man named Yates, and older residents of the city remember when it still bore the family name, a place with an orchard and various wagons, for Yates at that time was a teamster. Other owners on the south side of Charlotte street going west to Aylmer were in order, Wright, Brown, Oakley, Buck and Tighe; and on the north side Patrick Ryan who later built an imposing drygoods store where McDermid's drug store is now situated, Elsworth, Andrews and O'Brien.

Mother Carmelita of the House of Providence, daughter of Edward Hurley, is the granddaughter of the original owner of the Hurley lot; and J. P. Shevlin is the grandson of the owner of the O'Connor lot at the Aylmer street corner.

Owners of the lots on the north side of King street from George street were: Brown, John Rea, Thompson and Harvey. And on the south side of Simcoe street easterly to the creek the owners wer: Corneal, where the Salvation Army Temple stands, McCamus, Batty and McComb.

On the south side of Sherbrooke street, west of George, the first five lots bore the names of Bethune, Bapty, Stevenson, Rosby and Griffith, Murphy and Orton owned the west side of George, from Dalhousie up to Sherbrooke, and on the east side the owners were Elsworth and Stevenson.

A Road Petition.

Mr. Pierce showed The Examiner a letter dated "Smith, February 10, 1836, to John Huston of Cavan, in part as follows: "The application of twelve freeholders sheweth that the inhabitants of the township of Smith, Emily, Ennismore and different other back townships are laboring under a serious disadvantage on account of a marsh or beaver meadow lying right on the allowance for road on lot 5 on the 4th concession of Smith on account of the proprietors of lot 5 on the 3rd concession in the said township commencing to clear on the rear end of their lots. We have every appearance of being left destitute of a road very shortly. We therefore pray that you will inspect the said marsh or meadow as quick as you can make it convenient and you in your judgment may think proper what way to proceed. Signed: Thomas Milburn Sr., William Simson, Thos. Milburn, Jun., Isaac Nicholson, Michael Sanderson, Thomas Lockhart, Robert Milburn, Thomas Milburn, John Milburn, William Dixon, Joseph Smith, Joseph Dixon.

On February 9, 1839, John Huston wrote a report of his valuation of lot 3, concession 5, in the township of Monaghan, a clergy reserve, and concluded as follows: "There are 30 acres improved on the south half. On the east side thereof there is a log house and small barn occupied by Thomas Baxter. On the west side of the said south half there are two small buildings unoccupied said to be owned by Thomas Garnett. Taking the lot together I think it worth thirteen shillings an acre, and I consider the south half worth eighteen shillings and nine pence an acre."

When Men Were Men.

Here is another record of the year 1838: "To William English, constable of the Newcastle district, Forasmuch as James Shields of the township of Ops, yeoman, hath been charged before me, Richard Wright Marmion, one of Her Majesty's justices of the peace for the district aforesaid, on the oath of a credible witness, for that, he the said James Shields, on the 22nd day of August, at the township of Ops did bite off part of the nose of said witness, Abraham Hartley, and also bit him on his face in several places, and also threatened to take out the eyes of said Abraham Hartley of the township of Ops the younger and put them in his pocket —these are therefore in Her Majesty's name forthwith to apprehend and bring before me the body of the said James Shields an answer unto the said charge and to be further dealt with according to law. Herein fail not. Given under my hand and seal at Emily in the said District the 23 August in the year of our Lord 1838.

Incident of the Rebellion.

During the Rebellion of 1837-38 John Huston was Captain of Company No. One, Durham Volunteers, which he recruited in this district. The names of the personell of the company, their rank, their pay and allowances and correspondence in this connection, has been preserved. An insight to what evidently was a near tragedy of those early times will be apparent in the following quaintly worded affidavit.

New Castle District. To Wit: I, Thomas Short of the Township of Ops in the said district, Ye Yeoman, who being duly sworn, deposeth and saith that said deponent and one William Killabee of the said Township of Ops in the winter of 1839, joined the Durham Volunteers under a promise from the person of whom, we were enlisted to be atached to Capt. John Huston's Compy,—but was prevented by Major Elliott, when deponent and the beforenamed William Killabee insisted to Major Elliott to be allowed our agreement to join Capt. Huston's Company, he Major Elliott drew his sword and made an attempt to stab him the said William Killabee and in the attempt cut his coat and then sent deponent and W. Killabee to the guard house and afterwards compelled deponent and Killabee to join Capt. Brown's Company.

A suggestive glimpse of Peterborough almost a century ago, showing the course of the creek when it ambled at will out onto George street. A dam at King street was conceived by Adam Scott, Peterborough's first settler who built a combined saw and grist mill on the bank of the river at the foot of King street diverting an overflow of water from the artificial pond through a little canal or flume down King street. Scott's house on Water street, the first built in Peterborough, was later occupied by Dr. Hutchison, who moved from Cavan township to fast growing community on the Otonabee, the first of many Cavan people who have since made the same change of residence. The dotted lines indicate the extent of the Brown property and the course of the creek.

REPEAT PERFORMANCE GIVEN BY Y.W.C.A. PAGEANT GIRLS

BALLET DANCES.

Members of the Y.W.C.A. gymnasium classes gave an interesting display of their intricate drills and exercises, including the pretty ballet of Mother Goose and Her Children, last night in the Collegiate Auditorium to an appreciative audience.

To those who had not been privileged to see the pageant at its first presentation, these glimpses proved a real treat, both in beauty and gymnastic skill, while to those who had attended the pageant, it served to refresh a delightful memory.

Under the direction of Miss Caroline Littlefield, the program opened with its usual enthusiastic swing, when the intermediate gym. class presented their graceful reed exercises.

Careful training and precision in muscular control was demonstrated in the snappy work done by the senior advanced gym. class in their exhibition of Swedish gymnastics.

The ever-popular club-swinging exercises were done with bewildering ease by the senior class, followed by the intermediates in their colorful tennis dance. With the graceful motions of the racquets, and the effective red and white costumes, this group presented a striking picture.

"At the Country Fair" included two sprightly dances—the first, the Sword Dance by the intermediate girls in their dashing green and black outfits producing a fine rhythmic effect with their black "swords." The second to the merry strains of "Pop goes the Weasel" was the work of the elementary class in their "Haymakers' Dance" with typical costumes.

Presentations Made.

The presentation of Royal Life-Saving Certificates and Medals was an important and interesting feature of the program. Mrs. E. Harvey, president of Y.W.C.A. Board of Directors, offered a few words of cordial welcome to those present, and thanked them for the interest which they thus indicated. Mrs. Harvey commended the work of the "Y" in that it stood behind the young womanhood of Peterborough. At this time she referred particularly to the splendid work carried on at the Y.W.C.A. camp and at the swimming pool. In closing, the speaker expressed sincere appreciation to the Kiwanians and Rotarians for their interest, courtesy and kindness in the past. By virtue of the gifts from these clubs, some sixty teen age girls were enabled to receive swimming instruction.

R. F. Downey, president of the Rotary Club, and Mr. Webb, representing the Kiwanis Club, were assisted by Miss Littlefield in the presentation. The following is the list of prize-winners:

Silver medals: E. Mulholland, M. Kingsbury, B. Rogers, M. Scott and R. Milburn.

Bronze medals: T. Schiarizza, C. Whatman, E. Scott and C. Gibbons.

Proficiency certificates: Irene Donnelly, Virginia Madill, Margaret Louden, Mabel Barnes.

Vocal Numbers.

Another highlight in the evening's program was the group of vocal songs so beautifully rendered by Miss Geraldine Collins, and which included: (a) "Bird Songs at Eventide", (b) "Wake-up Song." Miss Collins also read the story of Mother Goose, which introduced the closing ballet.

The famous story-book character was enacted in fine form by S. Ecobichon, accompanied by her faithful "cat," Lily Long. As Mother Goose dreams, the stage is gradually filled with the nursery-rhyme folk "come alive" and in modern garb.

With their huge white gloves and funny costumes, the juniors excelled in their tap dancing, in the role of "Mickey Mice." Then come the familiar Jack and Jill, Boy Blue and Bo-Peep, who, in their pretty costumes, did some fine work in tap dancing.

The babies' gym. class is always captivating, and they were particularly cunning in their jaunty black costumes representing the Four and Twenty Blackbirds, who quite frightened the pretty little maid.

Among the most charming of the dances was that done by Mary, Mary, Quite Contrary and her flowers in their dainty frilled frocks of green, rose, blue and gold, with picture hats to match.

Most effective was the number by the senior dancing class, entitled the Marionettes' Romance, which told so picturesquely of the courtship of a Russian maiden by her tall lover. The irate parents and the maid added much to this "story" dance.

As a fitting finale to this clever ballet, came the King's Soldiers, accompanied by Humpty Dumpty. In their smart uniforms, these Guardsmen formed an amusing contrast to the rotund Humpty, who joined them in their excellent bit of tap dancing.

With the ensemble arranged on the stage, the curtain fell to the strains of the dance in which Mother Goose and Humpty Dumpty were the chief figures.

The singing of the National Anthem brought to a close this splendid evening's entertainment.

The stage was tastefully decorated for the occasion and the excellent and stirring music provided by the orchestra added greatly to the success of the presentation. Pianists for the evening were Miss Mildred Hetherington and Mrs. Agnes Logan Green, while Messrs. Robert Beach and Alexander Robertson were the violinists.

THREATS SENT TO CONTRACTOR

Vineland Man Told Labor Saving Paving Machinery Will Be Blown Up.

POLICE ON GUARD.

GRIMSBY, May 21. — Roy Honsberger, contractor, of Vineland, who was awarded the contract to pave Depot Street in Grimsby, and who has moved in a large steam shovel, gravel unloader, and cement mixers, has received a warning that his labor-saving machinery will be blown to bits.

A close watch is being kept on the machinery by the Grimsby police, and Chief Constable Demille is following up several clues. He scouts the idea that the threats were made by the same men who have carried out bombing activities in other Ontario centres, and is working on the assumption that Grimsby workmen, dissatisfied that hand labor is not being used exclusively in this work, are responsible.

SOVIET AIDING ITS FARMERS

New Decree Allows Individual Peasants to Compete With Illegal Trades.

MORE TAXES LIFTED.

MOSCOW, May 21.—(A.P.)— The Soviet government showered fresh favors on its farmers to-day.

As a further spur to the workers of the collective and private farms to engage in private trade, thus increasing food supplies in the cities and stimulating farm production, the government decreed the abolition of all State and local taxes which heretofore have been assessed against these groups if they sold their produce outside of State contracts.

The new order was issued by the executive committee of the Communist party and the council of the peoples' commissars. It applied not only to the sale of surplus bread and meat such as was authorized by an order a few days ago, but also to the sale of chickens, eggs, dairy products, vegetables, fruit and other farm commodities.

To-day's decree provides that individual peasants must sell at open market prices so as to compete with illegal private traders and speculators such as Kulaks (rich anti-Soviet peasants) and the collectives must charge prices not exceeding the average received in the government's commercial or high-prices stores.

BREWERS HELD TO AGREEMENTS

Others' Status Unaffected by Carling Tax Decision Ryckman States.

NO LICENSES ISSUED.

OTTAWA, May 21.—In spite of the Privy Council decision, which supported the Carling Brewery's stand on the matter of payment of back taxes due to the national revenue, others who had made private settlements of their obligations prior to the decision were being held to the agreements, Hon. E. B. Ryckman, Minister of National Revenue, told the House last night.

Hon. W. D. Euler, former Minister, asked Mr. Ryckman if any of those who, previous to the final judgment, had agreed to pay were carrying out their obligations. Good progress was being made with the collections, the Minister replied.

To further questions by Mr. Eular, the Minister stated that, although several applications for distilling and brewing licenses had been received in the last fiscal year, none had been granted. None ever was granted until after consultation with the Provinces concerned.

LINDSAY MAN IS ACQUITTED

Eldon Woman Celebrates 99th Birthday—Honored By Friends in District.

C. P. GETS GRAIN ORDER.

LINDSAY, May 21 (Examiner Correspondence). — Joseph Beaucage, town, who was arrested here on the charge of false pretences and taken to Toronto, was honorably acquitted of the charge. The young man, it appears, had changed boarding houses. He had not received his pension cheque for the month, and assured the landlord that he would pay the small amount due when the cheque arrived. The landlord at that time cancelled the debt, but later had the charge laid.

Mrs. Rachael McMillan, of Eldon, who this week observed her ninety-ninth birthday, took a motor trip over the trail by which she entered the township ninety years ago. On the occasion of her birthday she was showered with flowers and presented with an address by the people of the district.

The sudden death took place of a well-known Manilla resident in the person of Sarah Ann Skinner. The deceased, who had spent part of the winter in Florida, was suddenly stricken while greeting her friends on her return. Two sisters and two brothers survive her.

It was announced yesterday in railway circles that the C.P.R. had received an order for a couple of hundred cars of grain, which will be shipped from Port McNicoll to eastern ports.

A feature of the Bay of Quinte Conference to be held in Lindsay in June will be the laymen's banquet to be held in the Armories. The main address will be given by Bishop Francis McConnell, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, New York. It is expected this gathering of the laymen and clergy will number between 400 and 500.

LET'S ALL GO SHARK FISHING; PLENTY OF 'FIN' MONEY IN IT

U. S. Concern Can Use All Hides Supplied—Even Carcass Valuable.

BOON TO FISHERMEN

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C., May 21 (Special to The Examiner). —Anxious to get in touch with anyone on the West Coast who can supply shark hides, fins and liver oil, British Columbia fishing interests are being circulated by a Newark, New Jersey, manufacturing concern. In a pamphlet entitled "The Product of the Shark," a great deal of detailed information is given. Sharks, in this particular instance, are confined to three varieties—Eastern, sawfish, and nurse sharks. Principal products desired from these particular denizens of salt water are the hides, which produce a high-grade leather, the fins, a delicacy with a strong appeal to the Chinese palate and the liver oil, used in the manufacture of soap, tanning oil and greases, as well as possessing considerable medicinal value. In addition meat, fertilizer feed for poultry, and the teeth, used for novelty purposes, all provide opportunities for the fishermen looking for the odd chance of augmenting his income, which is slender enough at best these days.

Under the circumstances, selling the idea to the fishermen should prove a comparatively easy matter, for the recovery of the hides, fins, oil, meat, and teeth require no expensive equipment; and as they frequently find sharks hooked on their trawling gear and tangled in their nets, the return might more than compensate them for any damage sustained, while baiting for sharks as a sideline to their regular activities would probably mean the difference between breaking even and earning a profit for the season's work.

The pamphlet goes on to state that the publishers can use all the shark hides that can be supplied. It gives detailed information on how to skin, flesh, cure and pack the shark hides and fins as well as a schedule of market prices. It emphasizes that the quality and value o fshark products depends largely on the proper skinning of the shark, and the curing and preparation of hides and by-product. An average sized shark yields about 2½ pounds of dried fins, three gallons of shark oil and about 150 round teeth of large size. There are seven rows of teeth in a shark's jaw, the pamphlet states, containing in all some 300 teeth.

Began With Small Part in a Lloyd Hamilton Comedy.

ONLY EIGHT YEARS OLD

Jackie Cooper, a little fellow in everything but dramatic talent, wears a cripple's brace as the leading character in "When a Feller Needs a Friend." At the age of 8 this unusual lad has become to the talking films what Jackie Coogan was to the silents.

He was born on Sept. 15, 1923, and spent his earliest years getting wheeled about by his grandmother in the streets immediately adjacent to the Metro studios where he now works. His mother, Mrs. Mabel Cooper, made her living as a vaudeville pianist. A small bit in a Lloyd Hamilton comedy, which paid him $5, was Jackie's first toddling debut in films. A little later his mother happened to be working in the Fox music department at the time the "Fox Movie Tone Follies" was in production. They needed a child to sing a short number in the revue. Child after child tried for the role, but none suited the director. One day Mrs. Cooper brought Jackie with her to the studio. He sang a little song, danced a little jig and was given the part. After that he retired once more to 5-year-old private life. Not long after that he joined Hal Roach's "Our Gang." Last Spring Paramount borrowed him for the lead in "Skippy" and he forthwith became one of the most famous children in the world.

Following his appearance in "Donovan's Kid" for RKO, Metro place him under a long-term contract, the first fruit of which was "The Champ" with Wallace Beery and Jackie as the stars. Paramount borrowed him for "Sooky" and then he made "When a Feller Needs a Friend." He says that he is going to be either an aviator or a civil engineer when he grows up, but it looks as though the cinemoguls will have something to say about that.

Tweed

Bobbie, four year old sonu of Mr. and Mrs. William Courtney received very painful scalp and facial injuries, that might easily have terminated fatally. Boy-like, he desired to experience the thrill of a swift ride on his wagon; but he was unable to judge a safe means to obtain it. He took his wagon to the Anglican Church hill, the steepest hill in the village and set off down the sidewalk from the highest point.

Before he had proceeded far, the speed of the wagon increased beyond the safety margin for a small boy, and he soon lost control. Leaving the sidewalk, the wagon struck a nearby telegraph pole with considerable force, resulting in the injuries mentioned above.

A large number attended the bridge party and dance held under the auspices of the Tweed branch of the Army and Navy Veterans' Association in the Oper House on Wednesday evening. The affair was a splendid success due to the work o fthe committee. The bridge prizes were won by Miss L. Woodcock and A. B. Allen and the euchre prizes by Mrs. Archie Campbell and Thomas Graham. The presentations were made by Dr. Dales, the president, who extended the thanks of the association to all those who helped to make the event a success.

During the evening round and square dancing was enjoyed with music supplied by Jerry Luffman's orchestra. The orchestra is composed of Mrs. Madeline Fawcett, piano; Jerry Luffman, violin; Stanley Luffman, banjo; Clarke Brown, drums; and James Arkells, saxaphone. The latter is a musician of particular note and he has written several numbers, some of which have been accepted and will be published. At present Mr. Arkells is residing in Plainfield, after coming from Toronto, where he had lived until a few months ago. The orchestra played one of his latest numbers which was a decided hit with the crowd. Those in charge of the party were Dr. Paul, Dr. Dale, Tom Beatty, Samuel Hampson and other committee members. The funds realized last night will be used to assist needy veterans. The hall was donated for the event by Stan Quinn.

PATRONS' ASSOCIATION WILL MEET ON MAY 31

CAMPBELLFORD, May 21 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — Postponed from last April when road conditions made it impossible, the first district meeting of the Central Ontario Cheese Factory Patrons' Association will be held on May 31 in the Public Library, Campbellford. It is expected that special speakers will be featured at this gathering. This association was formed by factory patrons to enable them to advance the interests of milk producers connected with cheese factories and to try and improve the quality of the raw material supplied to the factories and has jurisdiction over Victoria, Durham, Peterborough, Northumberland, Hastings, Prince Edward, Lennox and Addington and Frontenac counties. Fred W. Barnum is the director in charge of the Campbellford district.

LILIAN HARVEY A GERMAN STAR

English Girl Got Film Start in Berlin Studio.

IN "CONGRESS DANCES"

Lilian Harvey, star of the German-produced "Congress Dances," is the English girl who went to Germany to make good. The young woman was born just outside of London, at Muswell Hill. When she was 5 the family took her to Germany for a vacation with her father's relatives. That was early in 1914, which turned out to be a fateful year for Lilian as well as for the world generally. War broke over Europe and the Harvey family had to stay where they were. She played child bits with a studio on the outskirts of Berlin toward the end of the war, in between going to a German school with her brother and two sisters. Not being much impressed with nations hatreds that were far over her little head, the girl stayed on in Germany when the war ended and studied dancing at the school of Mary Zimmerman. One night in Vienna Richard Eichberg, German film director, saw Lilian, and back into the films she went as an ingenue. London saw German pictures from time to time in which a young woman named Lilian Harwey—that was the German spelling—appeared, but it wasn't until "Congress Dances" that the knowledge of her origin became generally known. Now that she has reached the pinnacle in a strange land, she finds herself feeling as much like a Teuton as a Briton. It does not, parenthetically, take much of a pinnacle to hold Miss Harvey, for she weighs a meager eighty-five pounds and stands just one inch over five feet.

SCREEN AND STAGE NOTES

Metro again is teaming Johnny Weissmuller and Maureen O'Sullivan n a 'Tarzan' sequel.

Story is being written on order by Edgar Rice Burroughs author of the jungle hero series.

What is considered the first manifestation of England's re-enforced censor laws is the shearing 'Tarzan' (MGM) underwent before it was considered satisfactory for British eyes.

Eliminations, according to advices last week to American quarters, include: crocodile eating native, Tarzan killing lion, lion devouring zebra. Tarzan fighting gorilla, dead and wounded eelphants.

With 138 roadshow dates booked Metro is counting on grossing $1,000,000 with 'Grand Hotel' at the $1.50 top.

Picture is going into minor towns on the twice daily basis and in many spots where Loew can't make a deal for a theatre, the circuit is changing policy in some of its own houses to accommodate.

"The Challenger," which George Bancroft is making currently, may be his last for Paramount.

Bancroft refuses to accept cut from $80,000 to $50,000 for picture.

Parents of William C. Scott, husband of Lillian Roth, admitted here that the singer had filed suit for divorce in Mexico. Action, they said, was not contested and was brought on the grounds of incompatability.

The Scots were married in Atlanta in April, 1931, just three months after the death of Miss Roth's fiance, Herbert Ochinsky. Scott is now in the east.

Herbert Marshall and Edna Best made a picture in England entitled "Bachelor's Folly," and Sono Art World Wide Pictures, which has acquired the American distribution rights, promises it for a Summer showing. The couple appearer on American screens earlier in the Spring in A. A. Milne's "Michael and Mary," also English-produced. "Bachelor's Folly" is based on Edgar Walace's stage play "The Calendar."

Warren William, who did so well by himself in "The Mouthpiece", will be the star of "Three on a Match," which is planned for early production. Mervyn LeRoy will be the director. There will be three featured feminine roles, two of them to be played by Joan Blondell and Bette Davis, and the third probably by Mary Brian. The story will deal with the lives of three very different types of young women, the title referring to the ominous superstition about lighting three cigarettes from one match.

There are comedians and to spare in Paramount's Olympic Games farce, which has been given the title "The Million-Dollar Legs." Jack Oakie is at the head of a group of merrymakers that include W. C. Fields, Ben Turpin, Lyda Roberti, Hugh Herbert, Andy Clyde and that same Hank Mann who took the part of the alcoholic millionaire in Charlie Chaplin's "City Lights." Master Dickie Moore is another member of the cast.

Clara Bow is now working for Fox. Sam Rork, who has her under personal contract, has had offers of Broadway productions, of national tours and of other pictures. But to date she remains a Fox star in "Call Her Savage."

The most interesting current activity on the Fox lot is Will Rogers in white powdered wig and knee breeches. In "Down to Earth" his wife forces him into a Colonial costume for a fancy dress ball.

"Red-Headed Woman" got under way at MGM with Jean Harlow in the title role. Miss Harlow appeared at the opening of "Grand Hotel" with red hair as part of the Ballyhoo for her own picture, and considerable talk was started about her dyeing her hitherto platinum locks. That there may be no epidemic of dyed hair, America should know that Mis sHarlow merely wears a red wig.

George M. Cohan is going into the pictures that talk. Mr. Cohan will put his Broadway affairs in order and soon got to Hollywood to begin working out a contract with Paramount. First of all he will assist in writing "The Phantom President,' a musical comedy romance, in which he will also play the lead. Afrter that it will be back to the typewriter for Mr. Cohan, to write the story for "The Song of the Eagle," which Paramount plans to make on a sufficiently grand scale with most of its stars in the cast. This is not strictly a cinema debut for him. Back in 1916 and 1917 he played the leads in three silent films—"Broadway Jones," "Seven Keys to Baldpate" and "Hit the Trail Holliday." Hollywood has grown since then, but so has Mr. Cohan.

Russia's wild children, the parentless waifs who roamed the streets of Moscow, will be presented through American eyes in Paramount's "Forgotten Commandments" a drama of modern Russia. Thirty-four Russian children, ranging in age from 8 to 16, have been given parts in the film, which is now being produced under the direction of Louis Gasnier and William W. Schorr. The children were recruited from the Russian colony in Los Angeles. All of them attended the Los Angeles public schools and speak English and Russian. "Forgotten Commandments," with a cast headed by Irving Pichel, Sari Maritza, Gene Raymond and Marguerite Churchill, will include episodes from Cecil B. De Mille's "The Ten Commandments."

Lewis Carroll's Alice would be right at home on the set of RKO's "The Truth About Hollywood," where everything is topsy-turvy and upside down and backward. Constance Bennett, the star, is playing an extra girl, Extras are playing stars. A director is giving orders to executives and the executives are saying "No" to a producer. Now if they can get Rosco Ates to play a radio announcer the picture will be complete.

BODYGUARDS FOR PEOPLE OF FILMS

Protectors Disguised as Chauffeurs or in Other Duties.

HOLLYWOOD, May 21.—Pugs in berets and slave bracelets, gunmen in chauffeur's livery, hard muscled femmes as secertaries and companions—such is the newest strata in Hollywood life. Picture people are going in for bodyguards.

Protectors are disguised in snappy clothing or given the nominal duties of servants or employee, but their real purpose is to guard the person who pays them.

Unpleasant experience sold some of the picture elite the idea. Others are surrounding themselves just in case.

Josef von Sternberg acquired a husky chauffeur after being taken for a ride by holdup men. On leaving for New York he passed the bodyguard to Marlene Detrich.

Others who have acquired watchful companions for themselves or children include Bert Wheeler, Edgar Allan Wolff, Ann Harding Harold Lloyd, David Butler, James Dunn, Ben Lyon and Bebe Daniels, Jackie Cooper and George Bancroft.

The Pas, Northern Manitoba's important business and commercial centre, is expected to have motor road connection this year with the Western Canada highway system.

There will be no Chautauqua in Campbellford in 1933, the local representative, Miss Mildred Thackery, being unable to sign up the required twenty-five names for the guarantee. The Governor General's party will arrive here officially at 9.30 Wednesday morning. His car will pull in to the C.P.R. station at 1 o'clock in the morning but he will not leave his car until 9.30 when he will be welcomed by the members of the City Council and civic and county dignitaries.

Besides the Earl of Bessborough the party will consist of: A. F. Lascelles, secretary to the Governor General; Lieut. D. Fuller, R.N., A. D.C.; and R. Bearing, His Excellency's nephew.

The Earl of Bessborough is of the Irish peerage. He has had a wide experience in Parliament, in war service and in financial affairs. He is a member of the Ponsonby family, long prominent in public life of Ireland and of the United Kingdom. He was born in 1880, and after attending Harrow and Cambridge was called to the bar (Inner Temple) in 1903.

After three years' service on the London County Council, from 1907 to 1910, and a year in the 1910 Parliament as member of Cheltenham, he served during the war in Gallipoli and also on the staff in France. From 1913 to 1920 he sat in Parliament as member for Dover, resigning on his father's death in 1920, when he became the ninth Earl of Bessborough, and Viscount Duncannon, in the Irish peerage. He sits in the House of Lords as Baron Ponsonby, in the peerage of the United Kingdom.

In 1921 the Earl of Bessborough became chairman of San Paulo Railway, and in 1924 vice-chairman of De Beers Consolidated Mines.

STIRLING A.Y.P.A. STAGES COMEDY

Group is Well Received in Marmora—Guests of Local Association.

ATTEND DANCE AFTER.

MARMORA, May 21.—(Examiner Correspondence)— The three act comedy, "The Human Alarm Clock" was ably presented at the Town Hall on Friday evening by a cast chosen from St. John's A.Y.P.A., Stirling. The title role was ideally portrayed by Jerry Craven. His live wire speeches and attempts to wake up the sleep town of Eureka enliven matters. The character of Jud Fenton, who never liked work, was cleverly impersonated by Austin Gould.

Harry Morrow handled the part of Bob Mannion, village editor, in realistic style and Alice Morgan excelled in her portrayal of the widow, Mrs. Nelson Dodd, who was a prominent worker in the Upliftment Society at Eureka. Hazel Danford showed ability in the role of Peggy Acton, who is in love with Bob Mannion and provides means to extricate him from the hold of John Wargrim, village tyrant.

The part of John Wargrim was well sustained by Reg. Coombes. Virgy Mannion (Margaret Danford) engages in snappy repartee with Jimmy Samson, the Human Alarm Clock in a way that could not but amuse any audience. Maria Wargrim, the tyrant's daughter, shares his overbearing and selfish ways. Way Harkness did well in her impersonation of that character.

Before the rise of the curtain and between acts instrumental numbers were given by Miss Alice Calow, violinist, accompanied by Miss Jean McCubbin, pianist. A good crowd was present for the performance and applauded each act. At the conclusion of the play, the local A.Y.P.A. entertained the cast and visiting members with dancing and refreshments in the Parish Hall.

KINSMEN HEAR A. E. CHALMERS

New County Road Superintendent Addresses Local Kinsmen Club.

INTRODUCE NEW MEMBER.

An outline of some of the major activities of the Lions organization with particular reference to the endeavors of Ridgeway, Ontario branch of which he was a member, constituted the substance of an interesting address delivered by A. E. Chalmers, Peterborough County Road Superintendent, in speaking before the Kinsmen Club at the bi-monthly meeting at Empress Hotel Thursday evening.

President G. Wilson Craw presided, and called upon Dr. Ralph Honey to introduce the guest speaker.

Mr. Chalmers related an unique piece of service work performed in the little community of Ridgeway by the Lions Club, in the restoration of an ancient cemetery which had been sadly neglected and where many of the tombstones had tottered over or become broken. The club saw an opportunity to do a service to its community and undertook work which included the painting of the cemetery and the compilation of a plan which marked as far as was possible the resting place of all those who were buried within the hallowed spot.

Other efforts of the Ridgeway Club included the planning of a "Clean-up Week" campaign, and looking after the eyesight of children and in several cases providing special treatment, operations and eyeglasses.

The Lions Club the speaker explained was similar in its main principles to other service clubs. Referring to the type of service which is popular amongst the Lions Clubs in some of the larger centres of the United States, the speaker said, that in many cities the blind people are provided with white canes and under provisions of city by-laws the raising of the cane is regarded as a signal and traffic comes to a dead stop to allow the safe passage across busy streets of those afflicted with blindness.

Mr. Chalmers address was listened to with a great deal of interest by the local clubmen as it contained many worthwhile ideas which are possible of duplication by the Kinsmen Club here in their effort to be of service to this community.

One pleasing feature of last evening's meeting was the initiation of a new member in the person of Dr. Stanley Braund, who was duly installed by the Past District Governor Ernie Ritchie of Toronto.

At some length and with forceful eloquence Mr. Ritchie outlined the principles and ideals for which Kinsmanship stands, and traced the history of the organization back to the time it was founded, shortly after the close of the late war, at Hamilton.

Only one oil is good enough for household equipment, says chemist

Chemists, mechanics and lubrication experts say only one kind of oil is good enough for your expensive mechanical devices—the best. To get the best results from your sewing machine, vacuum cleaner, lawn mower, washer, electric fan, refrigerator and other household appliances, you should use an oil that not only lubricates, but also cleans and protects.

3-in-One Oil is different from all others, because it is a scientific blend of animal, mineral and vegetable oils. It gives you the best properties of each. It dissolves and works out dirt, protects against rust and wear and gives the most efficient lubrication, thus eliminating unnecessary repairs and replacements.

Naturally such oil costs more to make, but it really costs less to use. Play safe, insist on 3-in-One Oil. At good stores everywhere. For your protection, look for the trade mark "3-in-One" printed in Red on every package.

CANADIAN DEPARTMENT STORES

GRAIN, CATTLE, PRODUCE

TORONTO PRODUCE.

TORONTO, May 21.—With butter prices holding steady this week and the demand fairly good, the prospects for the future on the local market were better than previously, at the week-end. Ontario and Western creamery solids brought the same prices this week for choice quality, and, though supplies were received steadily, the demand was sufficient to prevent accumulation. Yesterday's prices for solids, quoted by local brokers, were 17¼c to 17½c for No. 1, and 16¼c to 16½c for No. 2. During the week 17½c was obtained on this market, but for top quality, and there were sales at 17¼c.

Cream Up.

Cream prices gained a full 1c per pound for fat during the week, the new levels quoted by local buyers being 18c for special, 17c for No. 1, and 14c for No. 2 f.o.b. country points.

Cheese Easy.

Since the opening of trading at country cheese boards, new makes have found a fair demand only, and prices have been low. The demand locally has not been too good and prices during the week ranged from 9c to 9½c, with a flat price for the week-end of 9¼c for large, 9½c for twins, and 9¾c for triplets. Prices to retailers were reduced ½c per pound this week, wholesalers quoting new makes at 10½c for large, 10¾c for twins, 11c for triplets, and 13c for Stiltons.

Egg Prices Drop.

There were no great shipments of eggs this week, but the demand locally was poor and prices eased accordingly. Brokers reduced levels on ordinary and storage packed supplies, country shippers suffered a 1c decline, and quotations to retailers were 1½c per dozen below previous levels. Brokers offered graded eggs, in used cases, at 15c for extras, 13c for firsts, and 11c for seconds, and storage packed at 15½c for extras, and 13½c to 14c for firsts. Country shippers were quoted 13c for extras, 11c for firsts, and 9c for seconds, delivered, ungraded, cases returned. Retailers were able to secure supplies at 18½c for extras in cartons, 16½c for extras loose, 14½c for firsts lose, and 12½c for seconds loose.

Some Demand.

There has been a decided increase in egg breaking and freezing activities during the week. This will lend some support to the market for the next few weeks, as it will result i na considerable quantity of low grade eggs being withdrawn from present markekt channels. The keenest kind of competition to secure contracts for frozen eggs is reported.

Little Exporting.

There have been no further developments during the week with respect to contracts for the export of storage eggs in the fall months. Prices in Great Britain and offers by importers there are below the Canadian market. The opinion is growing, however, that with the trend of production in Canada, and the light storage stocks, no exports this year will be necessary. British prices are, therefore, of less comparative significance with respect to the Canadian situation, than was the case earlier in the season.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, May 21.—Butter receipts were again light here yesterday, amounting to 1,042 boxes, and as a result prices were slightly firmer, the range being 16¾c to 17c per pound for No. 1 quality, in car lots or less. Yesterday's price was 16¾c.

The cheese market continued to ease fractionally, being quoted at 8¾c to 9c per pound. Receipts were 541 boxes.

Eggs held steady at yesterday's levels. Graded Ontarios and Prairies, on spot, 17½c to 18c per dozen for extras, mostly 14½c for firsts and 13c or slightly less for seconds, in car lots or less. Receipts were 1,652 cases.

The potato market was unchanged.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, May 21.— Influenced by firmer Liverpool cables, reflecting a slackening of export from the Argentine and a continuance of drought over the United States winter wheat fields, grain prices moved to higher levels yesterday. Prices closed ⅝c to ¾c higher for the day.

May gained ⅝c to 63c, July ⅝c to ¾c at 63⅛c to 63¾c, and October ⅝c to 66c.

Only a scattered export was worked overnight and less during the day. Broomhall reported a lessening of Argentine offers and this, coupled with the uncertain condition of wheat crops in France and the United States South-west was the main factor in the move to higher prices here. The better tone of the stock market was not without its influence.

Trading in cash wheat was slow and demand not keen. Spreads were unchanged. With the exception of some demand for barley, the coarse grains section was dull and neglected.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, May 21.—Wheat traders showed ardor yesterday in taking at face value reports of a concerted new effort by financial and industrial leaders to energize business revival.

A maximum upturn of 1⅞c a bushel for wheat took place, lifting the market to the highest point since April 27.

Wheat closed unsettled 1¼c to 1¾c above Thursday's finish, corn ⅝c to ¾c up, oats ⅝c to ⅞c advanced, and provisions at a rise of 2c to 12c.

REPORTS ARE READ HAVELOCK MEETING

United Church Women's Missionary Holds Monthly Meeting.

HAVELOCK, May 21 (Examiner Correspondence) — The regular monthly meeting of the United Church W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. R. Vansickle, with a goodly attendance of the members. The devotional exercise was under the leadership of Mrs. Davidson, assisted by Mrs. Cochrane.

A leaflet on "The Ministry of Prayer" was given, Mesdames C. Spencer, A. Anderson, R. Campney, and H. Hoard taking the various leads.

The secretaries' reports were given and two of them especially stressed. The bale to be sent in September was provided for, and the members were urged to order "The Story of the Years" and "The annual reports." Mrs. Gordon Denike sang "What a Friend we have in Jesus." The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Longmuir, instead of as arranged at a former meeting.

Institute Bird Houses

A handsome bird house in the beautiful garden of T. P. Lancaster, local member for the Provincial House, is exciting a great deal of local interest. While bird houses are not unusual in Havelock, this particular one is, because it was especially constructed to tempt the beautiful "Purple Martin" heretofore rarely seen in these parts. Mr. Lancaster expressed the wish that some of those pretty birds could be attracted to Havelock, and was told that they would come if suitable houses were erected for them. There is one type of house only which will attract this bird, and Mr. Lancaster was told if he would procure one the bird would surely come, even though he said he had never seen a single one hereabouts.

Relying on Mr. Miner's assurance, the bird house was duly installed, one large enough to house twenty-four birds. It was placed in position on Monday evening and the next morning, quite early one of the Martens was seen to be hovering around inspecting it. He flew away and later in the day returned with seven others of his kind, all of whom are now busy building nests in their new home, much to the delight of Mr. and Mrs. Lancaster.

This may be an inspiration to someone else who has some particular bird which he would like to attract to his garden. The method would seem to be, select the kind of tenant you want, and provide a suitable house for him, and he will come very quickly. Of course the house must be provided at the time the bird is known to be house hunting, on his return from his winter abode in the sunny south.

The term "habitant," often used to describe a French-Canadian farmer, was originally applied only to those tenants who held seigniorial lands.

The Medicine-Maligne late system in Jasper National Park, Alberta, first stocked with Eastern brook trout in 1927, will be thrown open to anglers for the first time on June 1, this year.

A new monthly record in Canadian gold production was set in March when the output reached 355,875 fine ounces.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE WEEKLY COLUMN

A goodly thing it is to meet

Where nothing stains the pleasure sweet,
Or dims the radiant light
No unkind word our lips shall pass,
No envy sour the mind;
But each shall seek the common weal—
The good of all mankind

MILLBROOK

Since the rhubarb season is now well to the fore one Institute branch decided to have its program centre round recipes for "The First Spring Fruit," the members busily using note-books, hence it is safe to presume that many families in that neighborhood had this healthful article of diet served in a number of new ways, or will have, in the immediate future.

A request for rhubarb marmalade brought several replies, one that seemed to gain most favor being made as follows: Five oranges, ten cups rhubarb, two cups sugar to each orange. Boil oranges until soft, then add rhubarb and sugar, and when thick fill jam glasses and seal.

The president dealt briefly with the objection advanced by many housewives, that they cannot afford to use rhubarb freely owing to the quantity of its demands, assuring her listeners if the fruit is fully ripened, and the stalks freshly gathered, this difficulty is lessened considerably, especially if a small pinch of baking soda is added while the sauce is rapidly boiling. "Do not add the sugar until the rhubarb is nearly cooked, and remember that if you cut up the stalks, place in colander, and pour a very little boiling water over the whole, much of that sharp acid taste is eliminated, and less sugar will sweeten the dish. Bake it then in the oven, placing a layer in the pyrex bowl, then sprinkle with sugar, and continuing until the dish is within an inch of the top, covering while cooking, and you will be delighted with the result."

Another suggested that the familiar stewed rhubarb may be improved by adding a few raisins, a little grated lemon peel, or bits of sliced oranges, while it is cooking, the raisins actually lessening the amount of sugar needed as well. Some of those present objected to the skinning of the fruit before cooking, others contending that it was better so, the discussion finally ending with the decision by the majority at least, that when the rhubarb first comes in the pink skin adds a lovely color to the sauce, whether baked or stewed, and removing the outside covering is a mistake.

An unusual recipe called "Scalloped Rhubarb with Meringue," was copied down by several its making being: Cut the rhubarb into inch lengths; in a baking dish place a layer of thin slices of sponge cake, lady fingers, or small individual sponge cakes, and over this a layer of the spring fruit; sprinkle with sugar, add a grating of orange rind, and a few grains of salt. Cover the dish and bake for half an hour; then beat the whites of two eggs until light and dry, fold in one tablespoon of sugar and spread over the top. Brown in a moderate oven and serve with a liquid sauce.

Rhubarb pot pie was another 'new idea' which one member declared she made every spring, and of which her family was quite fond; the ingredients are: Half fill a deep buttered dish with sliced rhubarb and sprinkle with brown sugar; add sufficient boiling water to half cover and cook, covered, in a slow oven until tender. Make a rich biscuit crust, using two parts whole wheat flour and one part white; roll one inch thick, lay over the rhubarb, and cook forty minutes in a hot oven. Serve with maple syrup.

Old fashioned rhubarb fritters were contributed by an Old Country member, famous for her good cooking, "the trouble being well worth while" being her response to one objection made that "they seemed to make a lot of trouble for the cook," though indeed it was given laughingly and no one minded the speaker's smiling remark. "This is an old colonial recipe and it is very good. Beat two eggs lightly, and add one cup of milk; then mix together two cups whole wheat flour and one of white flour, two tablespoons of sugar, half a teaspoon of salt and two rounding teaspoons baking powder. Stir into this the egg and milk mixture, add one and one half cups finely chopped rhubarb, two tablespoons melted butter, and more milk if necessary to make a drop batter. Fry in deep hot fat, until crisp and brown and roll in grated maple sugar."

WARSAW

The paper given by Mrs. Thomas Cooper on Garden Insects was an eye-opener to many, especially when she mentioned that many insects, bugs and worms seen in our gardens are not injurious but beneficial.

Many found they had ruthlessly killed little friends, among them the pretty little lady-bug which feeds upon plant lice and scale insects and the ground beetle and the big black grub, commonly by those who know its value, called the cut-worm lion, as it destroys cut-worms when it gets them. The ground beetle is easily distinguished, as it is a very dark brown, with red wings and head. Then there are flies some with two wings, others with six, which deposit their eggs on the bodies of cut-worms, and caterpillars and feed upon plant lice.

Healthy plants grown in good soil will withstand the ravages of insects better than others, just as healthy children will withstand illness better, than unhealthy ones. However, wire-worms and white grubs and any others harmful should be destroyed. It is not easy to do so by hand, and it is a good plan to let the fowl scratch in the garden before seeding is done.

Weeds of course are injurious in themselves, to plants, and they are wonderful harbors for all sorts of injurious insects.

Insects that bite and chew their food, like the cut-worm and bugs should be poisoned and different insects require different poisons. Those that such require a poison that permeates the plant, yet does not injure it, and it is wise to study the formulae given in pahplets and books on gardening, for the various garden pests and safe to use on the various plants.

Lice of various kinds are sucking insects.

For onion maggots, two tablespoons of coal oil in a pail of water, kept well stirred and the plants well watered with it has been found very useful. For biting insects, a teaspoon each of lime and Paris green in a pail of water sprayed on the plant does good; a dry poison of one pound of Paris green to 20 pounds of land plaster, well mixed and dusted on the plants while the dew is on is good. A rain shortly after will wash either of these off, and another application will be necessary. Many prefer using arensate of lead, because it sticks better, and does not burn the leaves so easily if they get an extra dose. An old formula for cut-worms and grasshoppers to sprinkle on the ground early in the morning, or some find better, in the evening, as the cut-worm works very early, is made of 200 pounds of bran, ½ pound Paris green, 1 quart of molasses and 3 gallons water well mixed.

Many in transplanting tender plants, wrap a little collar of some bitter leaf around the stem to be just a little above and below the earth surface where the cut-worm bites. He objects to the bitter. Others sprinkle a little tobacco powder in the surrounding earth. However any seed man will carry the most up-to-date preparations.

LIFFORD LINE

At this season of the year one of the many interesting topics of discussion at Institute meetings and other similar gatherings is the Pestiferous Moth and how to avoid it—or fight it.

If ever the vaunted ounce of prevention is worth a ton of cure that ounce lies in the avoidance of the clothes moth. With the possible exception of the common house fly it is our most pestiferous pest. Constant vigilance is the watchword—and a knowledge of the moths' habits and preferences will be useful, both in planning a campaign of protection and one of aggressive warfare once the enemy is in possession.

If you have recently groaned over a hole placed cleverly right where it will be most conspicuous or have found the lovely wool you had put away for some special knitting, separated weakly into strands—you will be quite ready to believe that the annual loss through this evil little pest runs into millions of dollars.

Given its choice of food and lodging—what does the moth prefer? It likes to feed on things of animal origin—wool, fur or feather. Most people are familiar with the moths lifting for fur and woollen materials, but many are amazed and anguish—which they had put away, falling apart because of moths, or their best down cushions infested.

If our hens would lay as generously as the moth does we should never have to worry about the price of eggs. And it is from these numerous eggs and not from the moth that flies about on rapid wing, that the damage comes directly. Our interest in following up and killing the fluttering moth is in preventing it from laying more eggs. The actual destruction to our furs and fabrics is done by the larva or worm which develops from the tiny moth egg.

It is not enough then to give a garment an occasional shaking to make sure no moth flies out of it; you must examine it especially in seams and creases for deposits of moth eggs.

This particularly true when you are putting away warm garments at this time of year, hoping that you will take them out again next fall in equally good condition.

Because the moth so dearly loves to burrow deeply into soft fur and deposit its eggs, and because that same soft fur has probably cost us considerable money—we give a special care to the manner in which it is cleaned and put away for the warm months.

You have probably been astonished before now at the amount of soil which your furs collect. The shorter time dust and dirt is allowed to remain in the fur the better for the beauty of the fur and the life of the leather. Cold storage is always advisable for a good piece of fur—it offers about the only certain protection. Any fur that you are storing at home, should be shaken, beaten and cleaned as well as possible first, then wrapped carefully in stout paper coverings (tar paper and carbolised paper are sometimes used) with camphor, moth balls or cedar shavings strewn in generously. A second wrapping should be put on, sealed tight and the package stored in a cool dark place or in a box closely sealed with paper.

The warm woollen garments that will not be needed again till fall, need special attention before they are packed away out of sight—and probably forgotten. They should be hung out in the sun and air beaten free of dust and brushed over every inch of their surface, to be quite sure that any unobtrusive moth eggs are removed. An overcoat or fur-trimmed coat that if of real value will be absolutely secure if you send it to a dependable co'd storage concern. The very low temperature that is maintained in these places is a complete protection against moth attack.

A good chest which is heavily lined with red cedar will prove an effective container for storing garments at home during the summer. Although it cannot be depended upon to kill the well developed worm. Recent years have brought a lot of insecticides on the market—preparations which will make it very unattractive to the marauding moth. It is necessary to study the special instructions and use them in the way and quantity advised on the well cleaned fabric. The good moth-proofing liquid should be sprayed thoroughly over every bit of the fabric if it is to prove effective.

GEORGE STREET CHOIR PRESENTS FINE PROGRAM

Evening of Choir, Organ and Piano Music Features Fine Program.

MENDELSSOHN'S WORKS.

(By Jeanette)

An evening of choral, organ and piano music that featured the noble compositions of Felix Mendelssohn-Bartholdy gave an hour of beautiful melody to the small but very appreciative audience that gathered in George street United Church last night.

The choir, with D. R. Howat, organist and choir leader, at the organ, and Miss Dorothy Sager taking the soprano solos, gave "The Forty Second Psalm" while Mrs. D. R. Howat was the piano soloist of the evening and Mr. Howat played organ numbers. It was a very fine recital that occupied only a little over an hour in length, and that gave its audience a glimpse of the contrast between the work of the famous composer, Mendelssohn, and several of the moderns.

The glimpse of contrast was more noticeable in the piano solos, where the difference was very marked.

In the First Organ Sonata of Mendelssohn, composed in 1844, when he was only thirty-five years of age, in the setting to the 42nd Psalm, the vast imaginative faculty and individuality, the massive, dramatic and emotional feeling, the florid, yet rich, harmony and melody, of Mendelssohns work was manifest. They were beautiful conceptions of that school that was midway between the classical and romantic mode in music, with scholarly and impressive detail, but a broad conception and poetical intention.

The 42nd Psalm was superbly rendered. The graceful, melodic choral passages were marked by strength and dignity, the choir displaying a volume of fine, clear tone and reverent conception of the noble musical setting to noble words.

Inspired by Romance

This composition was the work of Mendelssohn while on his honeymoon. It commences with a chorus, "As the Hart Pants" the words of which are at first heralded quietly by the altos and then work up in crescendo style to an impassioned cry.

Miss Dorothy Sager had the soprano solos, her clear, ture and beautiful voice ringing out in the graceful melodic strains. She sang two very fine arias, "For My Soul Thirsteth for God" and "My Tears have been my Meat", the latter developing melodiously into a chorus for female voices. Then came a forte chorus, "Why, My Soul, Art Thou so Vexed?" followed by the soprano recitative, "My God, Within Me is my Soul Cast Down." A vigorous male quartette is then heard, full-voiced and strong, and a repetition of the last chorus makes the finale to a very majestic rendition.

The organ sonata, played by Mr. Howat, was a sonorous and impressive selection with forte, rolling passages on the Greater Organ, and was followed by the piano rendition of the Concerto in G Minor, 1st movement.

Mrs. Howat's piano playing was delightful and extremely effective. Playing with a firm, steady tone that produces very satisfying melody, with a sure and easy method and a memory that carried her through several lengthy numbers, her music was interesting in the extreme and evoked much applause. The Concerto was a brilliant and masterly selection, superbly played.

As a distinct contrast to the smoothly-flowing, legato mode of the great composer of other years was the halting rhythm and somewhat syncopated type of music that was demonstrated in Debussy's "Danse Sacree" (Sacred Dance) played by Mrs. Howat, also entirely from memory.

The recital ended with two organ numbers played by Mr. Howat. They were Vierne's "Allegro Vivace" 1st Symphonie, a somewhat eccentric composition, with the insistence first on sharply-accented groups of high treble notes, then closing with an abrupt series of passages almost in staccato style.

A charming Fantasia on the Dominion's national song, "O Canada" demonstrated music of a milder, smoother-toned type. This was dedicated to Mr. Howat by the composer, his friend and former pupil, H. W. Sparrow of Fredericton, N.B.

CHOIR CONCERT MUCH ENJOYED

Pleasing Program Presented By Members of St. Peter's Presbyterian Choir.

ASSISTING ARTISTS.

MADOC, May 21 (Examiner Correspondence)—St. Peter's Presbyterian choir concert at the Empire Theatre on Wednesday evening was one of the most enjoyed of all that has been offered the Madoc public during the season. Other attractions contributed to making the attendance not so large as desired, but those unable to attend missed a delightful program of choruses, solos and duets.

Assisting artists were James Bankier, tenor of John Street Church, Belleville; Charles Casement, baritone, of Madoc; Prof. Ernest Wheatley, A.R.C.O., pianist, of Belleville and members of St. Peter's Church choir.

A brief introductory address by Rev. R. Bertram Nelles, pastor of St. Peter's, opened the program, and E. Bedford as chairman spoke of the assisting artists from Belleville, who had graciously given of their time and talents to help make their program a success.

The choir then gave a rousing chorus, "John Peel," very effectively.

Mr. Bankier was then called on and gave "Arise, O Sun," and rewarded the generous applause with "In the long, long ago," which all enjoyed.

Mrs. Bedford gave a quaint selection "My Grandfather's Clock" in excellent voice, followed by "Just a-wearying for you."

Mr. Charles Casement, playing his own accompaniment won all hearts by his rendering of "When you are happy, Friend of Mine," and his "The dear little girl."

Two little Scotch songs were Mr. Bankier's next choice "Hame of mine," and "Lassie of Mine."

Prof. Wheatley, whose very pleasing personality won a very appreciative audience, delighted all by his instrumental number, "Prelude in C. Minor," and for his encore brought with him his favored pupil, Mr. George Maybee, and gave as a duet, "Nola."

Miss Lenore Vandervoort followed, and in wonderful voice gave, a vocal solo, "O Fair the land of Spain," and "Just that one hour."

A. C. Anderson, principal of Madoc High School pleased his audience with his selections "The Devonshire Miller," and "Rollin' down to Rio."

A full chorus by the choir "Bells of St. Mary's," was followed by a duet by Messrs. E. Bedford and W. Hawthorne, "The World is waiting for the sunrise," and complying with an enthusiastic encore gave "Flow on thou shining river," without piano accompaniment.

Mr. Bankier this time chose two Irish songs, touching many hearts with his "When Irish eyes are smiling," followed by "There's a tear in your eye," and his closing number left few eyes dry, bringing memories of the war time with the Old Veteran's song, "Long live the King, can't you hear them," and softly closing with "Mother Mine."

Mr. Casement then gave "Bluebird," and "My longing for you," which were well received.

George Maybee was then called on for a piano solo, playing "Sonata Pathetique, (Bethoven)" and receiving a vociferous recall gave "Polonaise in A." (Chopin).

After Mr. Bankier's closing number the audience, lead by the choir joined in the National Anthem.

BABY FRETFUL, RESTLESS?

Look to this cause—

Does your baby have nights when he fusses, tosses and seems unable to go quickly, quietly to sleep? Look for one common cause, doctors say. A constipated condition.

To get rid quickly of accumulated wastes which cause restlessness and discomfort, nothing is better than genuine time-proven Castoria.

Castoria, you know, is made specially for children's delicate needs. It is a pure vegetable preparation; contains no harsh drugs, no narcotics of any kind.

It is mild and gentle enough to relieve a young infant's colic pains, yet is an effective regulator for children of school age.

When your baby is upset and unable to sleep, or has a little cold or fever, it is a wise precaution to give him the gentle but sure regulative help of Castoria. With regulation come relaxed comfort and restful sleep.

Keep a bottle always on hand. Children like the taste of real Castoria—which always has the name, Chas. H. Fletcher, on the package.

The following item from the London (Ontario) Advertiser of recent date will be of interest to the many friends in Peterborough of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Stewart and their daughter, Miss Jean Stewart, who at present reside in London and are planning to return to Peterborough to live, about the first of December. They lived here about six years ago:

"A. E. Stewart, for 49 years a railroad man, has been retired on pension by the Canadian Pacific Railway, according to announcement at division offices here today.

"Mr. Stewart, whose home is at 186 Oxford street, began as a fireman in 1883 on the old Toronto & Nipissing Railway, a narrow-gauge road, over which ran wood-burning locomotives. Since then he has held many important posts with the Canadian Pacific Railway since he started with the system as a fireman out of Toronto in 1885.

"He was given his first engine 45 years ago, 1887, and drove C.P.R. train until 1911 when he became division master mechanic at London. The next year he became assistant superintendent here and was later transferred in the same capacity to Havelock. Two years later he became divisional master mechanic at Toronto, and in 1915 was transferred to the New Brunswick district with the rank of assistant superintendent. This post, Mr. Stewart held until 1918.

"In 1921 he took over one of the new fast engines and has been at the throttle ever since, running out of St. Thomas, Woodstock, London and Toronto.

"For the past two years Mr. Stewart has been what is known in railway parlance as a "high baller," driving the fast crack expresses between Toronto and Windsor. He was for a time trainmaster at Walkerville.

"One of Mr. Stewart's first railway jobs, in the days before he joined the Canadian Pacific, was on Grand Trunk construction work on the line between Gravenhurst and North Bay.

"There were no big steam shovels then," he said. "All the digging had to be done by hand shovels.

"Mr. Stewart has not been in good health lately and his retirement has been dated as of April 1 by the Canadian Pacific. He will reside in London until the fall when he and his family will move to Peterborough, in which city he was located for five years during his C.P.R. service."

The St. David's Society brought their social activities to a close by spending a delightful evening in the W. O. W. Hall with a large attendance present. The meeting was officially opened with the singing of the National Anthem and after a short business session, the evening's entertainment was left to Miss Flowers who was ably assisted by Mrs R. Bugg. The stage was beautifully decorated with a profusion of flowers and evergreens. The first half of the programme was given by the children and took the form of a May Day Festival, with Miss Martha Wells, arrayed in white, as Queen of the May followed by a retinue of smaller girls all dressed in pure white, with garlands of flowers. Miss Anne Cairns, dressed for the occasion as a herald, welcomed the Queen of May to the Festival and then choruses were sung to the Queen by her followers. Solos were also sung by Master Lyall Glover and Miss Eileen Hughes and pianoforte solos were given by Miss Margarite Kennedy and Miss Toaze. Then the Qneen thanked all her entertainers. Lastly, all the girls dressed in hiker's suits and carrying their packs returned to the stage and sung "Hiking Down the Highway." The children's programme being over, Mr. Gwilym Davies, the president took the chair and the remainer of the entertainment was given by the adult members of the society. Solos were sung by Mesdames Davies, Cairns and Armstrong, Rev. J. L. Hughes, Mr Toaze Mr Williams and Miss Wells. The Welsh National Anthem was sung in Welsh by three English members of the society, Messrs Cairns, Kirkcaldy and Blowers. To wind up the programme, Mr. Harry Morton was called upon to entertain the audience and in his humorous manner sang verses composed by himself referring to different members of the society. Refreshments and ice cream were then served by the ladies of the society. The evening's entertainment was brought to a close with each person drawing a number out of a box, for surprise packages distributed by Mr. Harry Morton. The contents of these brought much laughter from the audience. The meeting was then closed with the singing of the Welsh National Anthem.

St. John's Women Hold Good Meeting

The monthly devotional and business meeting of St. John's W.A. was held Tuesday afternoon; the president, Mrs. H. A. Morrow, in the chair.

In the absence of the rector, Archdeacon R. C. Blagrave, the prayers and Bible reading were taken by the Rev. E. R. James, who spoke very feelingly upon the life of Lydia, an old Biblical character, who, he said, could be termed the first W. A. member; she opening her home to those who preached the word of the Lord.

The Treasurer gave her financial statement, explaining the balance in the Dorcas funds was for next season's work.

Very concise and beautifully read reports were given by the two official delegates, Mrs. Cooper and Mrs. Eldred, who were the representatives at the recent annual W. A. convention, held in Toronto. The president, who also attended unofficially, gave her impressions. A very hearty vote of thanks was voiced by all members for these reports. Mrs. Stanger, director of the Juniors, reported for them, also with Mrs. Stanton, director of the 'Teen Age Girls, an exhibition of their work, next Thursday, at 7.30, should not be missed by anyone.

Discussion followed regarding the annual picnic, and it was decided that we close the season on the second Tuesday in June, with a tea on the church lawn, weather permitting, and invite a speaker.

Archdeacon Blagrave called in before the close and congratulated the members on so good a year's work.

After the General Thanksgiving and Benediction, tea was served by Mrs. D. Eldred.

HEMORRHOIDS—SURGERY AND INJECTION METHODS.

A striking newspaper advertisement for a certain 'cure' for hemorrhoids or piles displayed a well-known corner of two busy streets well crowded with people, and underneath this picture were the words, 'One in every four of these people has hemorrhoids (piles).

Now this statement was not true and the advertisement was suppressed, but many people immediately got the idea that as the condition was common, they might be afflicted, and should prevent further trouble by using this remedy.

Are hemorrhoids common?

Yes, but instead of there being one case in every five people it should be about one in twenty or thirty. Even this is a large number, and the pain or distress, and the annoyance from bleeding, make life very miserable for most sufferers.

In former days, when surgical operation was the usual method of removal, and the results were not uniformly successful, many people were afraid to undergo it.

However, removing hemorrhoids by surgery is not considered a simple operation as there may be complications of various sorts, and once operation is under way anything aside from the hemorrhoids that should be corrected is done at the same time.

Fortunately the majority of hemorrhoids can now be removed without an operation by the injection of various solutions which destroy these enlarged veins, as this is really what forms the hemorrhoid.

This method is now used all over the world.

However, it must be remembered that all cases are not suitable for the injection method, and if your physician informs you that your particular case can not be cured in this way, and that you must go into hospital and undergo operation there must be some good reason for it.

Piles that are very severe with much swelling, ulceration, or piles outside of the body and difficult to return should not be treated by the injection method. Even piles that are well inside, if they are infected, should not receive the injection treatment.

The main thought, then, is that no one should 'suffer' with piles. Fortunately most cases can be cured by the injection method at the surgeon's office, which means no loss of time from work, no time in hospital, and less expense.

DROP-LEAF FURNITURE is one of the types much in vogue at the present time, I am told.

* * * * * * *

There is a wider variety of pieces than one who is not acquainted with novelty furniture might suppose.

* * * * * * *

Everyone is familiar with drop-leaf tables, but not all realize that ironing boards can be this style of equipment furniture. Nor does everyone associate drop leaves with arm chairs; yet drop-leaf arm chairs and even davenports have come into fashion.

* * * * * * *

Drop-leaf furniture has been designed, as one might suppose, to conserve space and suit convenience. Before the extension dining-room table was invented, there were but three ways of enlarging tables—by raising drop leaves, by pushing out leaves which slide under the table top, and by putting two or more similar tables together.

* * * * * * *

The drop-leaf arm chairs and davenports are now enjoying popularity. They are primarily built for convenience, but they certainly conserve space also. Not only do the leaves take the place of extra occasional tables, but when dropped the size of the chair or sofa is not enlarged at all.

* * * * * * *

What could be more comfortable than to sip a cup of tea conveniently placed on the arm of one's chair? Or for two persons seated on a davenport to each have her own table for her tea service?

* * * * * * *

There is always a table at hand merely by adjusting the drop-leaf arm, whenever one wants to lay a book down or to have one's sewing appointments at hand. So comfort and convenience are admirably coupled in these drop-leaf arm chairs and davenports.

* * * * * * *

There is a difference as well as a distinction between drop-leaf tables and tip-tables, although each conserves space and contributes to convenience. In the tip-table, the whole table swings on hinges and pivots. Part of the top is raised, while part drops, and the table it utterly useless when tipped.

* * * * * * *

Ironing-boards which are hinged to the wall of laundry or kitchen, and which can be raised or dropped when in or out of use, is another idea in drop-leaf furniture.

* * * * * * *

Very often, to-day, these ironing boards when raised fit into a nich in a wall, and when behind the door closed against it, the board is completely concealed.

* * * * * * *

There are drop-leaf draining boards for sinks, drop-leaf tea-wagons, and innumerable tables consisting of shelves hinged to a wall, which shelves when adjusted make admirable tables, and when dropped take up no room.

CULBERTSON on CONTRACT

TRUMP CONSERVATION

Everyone who has sat down at the Bridge table has seen what appeared to be an ample supply of trumps melt away before the barrage of the defending players who compelled the Declarer to use his trumps to stop the run of an adverse suit. There are situations when a policy of wise trump conservation should be adopted by the Declarer, otherwise he is apt to find not only that his contract is impossible, but that it is doomed to disastrous defeat. The policy of discarding a loser on a loser, while not nearly as generally known as the play of discarding a loser on a winner, is one that in many cases pays just as rich dividends.

Today's hand, which was sent me by Mr. Paul B. Galer of Mt. Pleasant, Iowa, is directly to the point. Mr. Galer played the East hand in a Duplicate match and triumphantly fulfilled his contract through his adherence to the policy of trump conservation.

Neither side vulnerable.

South—Dealer.

	♠ Q 10 ♡ Q 9 5 ◇ A K J 7 5 4 ♣ K 6
♠ 5 3 2 ♡ K 10 7 ◇ 4 2 ♣ 10 8 6	N W E S	♠ A K J 9 7 ♡ 8 6 ◇ — ♣ J 10 3 7

The Bidding:

Pass	4♠(2)	Pass(3)	Pass
Pass

1—East's values do not justify a rebid. However, his defense against the diamond bid is weak and he hopes to buy the contract himself or else force his opponents beyond their depth.

2—West's support for a rebiddable spade suit is adequate, although his Raise to game is extremely optimistic.

3—If North could have peered into the future, doubtless he would have bid five diamonds for a sacrifice. He would lose only one club, one heart and two spades, which if doubled would mean a penalty of only 200 points as opposed to the game scored by East. However, North felt that it was preferable to take a chance on defeating the contract, which it was apparent from the pace of the bidding that neither East nor West considered certain, than to bid five diamonds and thus accept a penalty.

South opened a diamond in response to his partner's bid and East won with a trump. A club was then led to the Ace in Dummy and North won the return of the suit with the King. North returned the diamond and East again trumped, so his five trumps had been reduced to three, the same number as each of his opponents held. In order to avoid additional Forces in the diamond suit, Mr. Galer now led a club and while South played the Queen, the commanding card of the suit, Mr. Galer refused to trump in the Dummy, but instead discarded the remaining diamond. This was the decisive step in the policy of trump conservation. It is, of course, apparent that for South to lead another diamond or a heart would be to give East his contract, so South shifted to the trumps and East won the trick. East then led a heart which South won with the Ace, but North and South were through. South led another trump, but all East's cards were now established. The last trump was drawn, the established clubs run and the thirteenth trick was won with Dummy's heart King. East's failure to make any effort to win the third round of clubs by trumping in Dummy had paid rich dividends—a contract made from tricks that at one time appeared as light as down and as transparent as gossamer.

TODAY'S POINTER

Question: How are trumps counted in Declarer's hand?

Answer: A four-card suit is worth 3 tricks, a five-card suit is worth 4, and a six-card suit is worth 5.

Wants Strict Probe Of Liner's Burning

PARIS, May 21.— (A.P.) —The newspaper Le Matin to-day demanded a rigid investigation into the causes of the fire which last Monday destroyed the French motorship Georges Philippar in the Arabian sea.

Le Matin quoted shipping experts at St. Nazaire as saying the fire started simultaneously in three different places in the ship's superstructure and remarked that this circumstance was "inexplicable and suspicious."

MADAM MILLER ABLY DESCRIBES SUMMER STYLES

Wear a Swagger Coat, Hat on Side of Head and Carry a Cane.

BIG HATS ARE GOOD.

Sports and Dresses Were Very Fetching at Style Show.

A bride in gleaming white satin with a wreath of orange blossoms that Madam Hale Miller described as a "halo of happiness" and a long white tulle veil that the same brisk lady called "clouds of glory" was a feature of the Summer Fashion Show presented yesterday afternoon and evening at the Capitol Theatre, under auspices of the Canadian Department Stores.

Madam Miller has become well known in Peterborough by reason of her snappy and original presentation of style revues, and this event was quite as successful as previous exhibitions under her direction. Set on the brilliantly-lighted Capitol stage, with a background of black and silver, to soft music played on the piano by Mrs. J. Foster, with a bevy of models whose ranks included three cunning small girls, it was a very interesting display of early summer modes.

"We have a tall, broad-shouldered girl to dress this year. She is practical yet very romantic on occasion. Her bust line is more of a fact than fiction and her waistline has the wanderlust. Sometimes its here and sometimes its there. Her skirts are the same length as in the spring."

Madam Miller explained the various highlights of the mode, as the young ladies displayed dresses and coats and hats.

She wore at first one of the new practical, swagger coats, without a belt and in three-quarter length.

"Wear a swagger coat, wear your hat on the side of your head and carry a cane, if you want to be smart", she said.

Big hats are good this season, worn with a tilt to one side. And white is going to be a general favorite. White shoes and white gloves are worn with almost any costume, with hose of a modified suntan shade. Lacy weaves are to the fore, and cotton goods will be worn in many of the old-time materials; seersucker, linen, pique.

"Rag" Hats

"When in doubt, wear a blazer", and also wear one of the little new "rag" hats, so named because of their crushable qualities.

The dresses and sports outfits were very fetching, with these tiny hats at the acute angle, with white shoes and white gloves. There was a striking red and white outfit, the red developed in the short jacket, the little hat and the scarf.

A patriotic-minded girl had a red, white and blue costume; a blue skirt, a white blouse and red jacket and hat.

The new "Ghillie" shoes of snake-skin were featured.

"Women are paying more for their hats and dresses, even in these times", said the stylist. "Because they are willing to pay more for a hat that will go with any costumes, like these large Merry Widow sailors or the large, stiff hats that have a crushable crown. Another large hat with a soft crown had a wide band of red plaid silk.

"Use your hands when you put on your hat", exhorted Madam Miller, displaying the difference in the dowdy ensemble of the woman who put her hat and cape scarf on almost any way, as contrasted with the smart tilt and the sidewise scarf closing of the lady who cares about her clothes. "Because it isn't the amount you pay for the clothes—it's the way you wear them that counts."

A lovely gown of embroidered batiste with eggshell ground had a two-tone belt of orange and brown.

"Belts are wider and jackets are shrinking."

Dotted Swiss muslin, an old-time favorite material, is very popular this year and stripes are extremely smart. Lace is used to a great extent, one stunning gown of cotton "angelskin" lace being modelled.

Several pretty suits in georgette, for warm weather wear, were much admired.

Wedding Parade

For the wedding display which featured the Style Revue, Madam Miller donned a lovely, very long gown that showed the tight-fitting hipline and the flare commencing at the knees and widening at the ankles. It was developed in dark eggshell net with a double frill to the skirt, the lower frill ornamented with green motifs. She wore a tiny "cocktail" hat of dark eggshell and a little shoulder cape of transparent velvet in emerald green.

The bride, modelled by Miss Dorothy Marshall, was a tall, lovely figure in oyster white crepe-back satin, very long, with long sleeves. Her tulle veil was very long also and her dress, called a "self contained" model, could be used in several ways. To the short jacket was attached a long train, the discarding of the jacket and train causing the frock to become a pretty evening affair, as the long sleeves were also attached to the jacket.

The two dainty small flower girls who preceded the bride were little Shirley Thorndyke and Jean McGee, wearing organdie frocks of pale pink and green with frilly poke bonnets to match.

The maid of honor, Miss Maisie Collins, was in blue organdie, with a very wide flare of tiny ruffles from the hips down to the toes of her slippers. The bridesmaids, Miss Marcelle Garvey and Miss Florence Hetherington, wore lovely gowns of organdie in pale pink and pale green, with a smart arrangement to the contrasting fitted girdles in harmonizing satin ribbon and little puffed sleeves. The three attendants wore huge, wide-brimmed lacy straw hats of matching hues and carried small old-fashioned nosegays. In the wedding party were the mother of the bride, Miss Jean Langton of Brantford, and the mother-in-law Miss Fanny Doris, wearing lovely gowns.

The bride came back later in her travelling outfit of soft grey, with a little red hat, red and white blouse, red purse and grey gloves. Mr. E. Fowler, the lone man in the model line, escorted her from the stage as the happy bridegroom.

Other models than those already mentioned were Mrs. Elliott of Lindsay, Mrs. Furrie, Miss Freda Allison, and little Donnie Elliott, modelling clothes for small tots, in replicas of the styles used for their elders.

A. Woodburn, assistant manager of the local Canadian Department Store, introduced the Revue and the stylist, Madam Miller.

Add the sale to the boiling water. Add the meal gradually, so that the water will not stop boiling, and stir continually, keeping it directly over the heat ten minutes. Cook over boiling water one-half to three hours longer. Pack into a bread pan. When cold cut into slices one-half inch thick. Dip each slice in flour. Melt one-half teaspoon fat in a frying pan. Reds Cut Chicago's Lead in National Race

ANDY HIGH'S TRIPLE GIVES REDS 3-2 WIN

Former Cardinal Star Bats in Two Runs in Eleventh Inning.

COMEZ STOPS SENATORS.

Castillian Southpaw Scores His 6th Victory for Yankees.

(By Gayle Talbot, Associated Press Sports Writer).

The Cincinnati Reds, fighting to maintain a foothold in the National League's first division, are giving the pace setting Chicago Cubs one of the grandest battles of the young season in their series at Redland field.

For two straight days the students of Howley and Hornsby have gone into extra innings to settle their bitter dispute, and neither side could claim an advantage to-day. The Reds pulled a 3-2 decision out of the fire in eleven rounds yesterday after having been beaten in twelve innings the previous afternoon.

Andy High is Hero

Andy High, the little third baseman the St. Louis Cardinals shipped away, was the hero of the latest thriller. Two were out, two on base and Chicago one run ahead when High was inserted as a pinch hitter in the last of the eleventh yesterday. Lonnie Warneke, the Cubs, sensational young pitcher, breezed two strikes past diminutive Andy, and then the explosion. Two runs and victory rode in on High's smashing triple.

Floyd Caves Herman kept the Reds in the running with a home-run in the last of the ninth, depriving Warneke of a shutout. Benny Frey and Si Johnson divided a fine job of pitching for the Reds, holding the Cubs to seven hits.

The loss cut Chicago's advantage to two games over the Boston Braves, who were achieving a 10-9 triumph over the Phillies. "Buck" Betts, the Braves' 2-year-old "rookie" yielded five hits in winning his fifth straight. Wes Schulmerich hammered two homeruns for the winners.

Larry French proved that Steve Swetonic is not the only pitcher on Pittsburgh's staff when he blanked the Cardinals, 5-0, on two scattered hits. His co-star was Paul Wanner, who divested himself of four pounding doubles at the expense of Derringer and Carleton. The New York Giants climbed into fifth place as they battered Vance from the box in the eighth and defeated Brooklyn, 9-4.

Yankees Hold Lead

Lefty Gomez pitched deadly ball in the pinches to beat Washington, 6-3 and keep the Yankees on top in the hot American League race. The Yanks sewed it up in the third round when they tagged young Monte Weaver for four hits and as many runs.

The Athletics ran up their fourth straight victory and Rube Walberg his first of the season at Boston's expense, 6-1. Jimmy Foxx again led the A's attack with two doubles and a single.

Wesley Ferrell shook off the hoodoo that trailed him through the east as the Cleveland Indians outslugged St. Louis 11-7. The crack righthander had to have relief but was credited with the victory.

Detroit's Tigers got to Vic Frasier for two singles and Jonathan Stone's home run in the eleventh inning to score three runs and beat the White Sox, 8-5.

ROCHESTER WINGS DROP TO 5th PLACE

Canada's Billion Dollar Industry

With the racing season upon us and the King's Plate running today, I called on Ottawa for a few facts and figures—and they are startling. Do you know that racing in Canada is one of our greatest industries? In the ten years ending in 1931 pari-mutuel machines throughout Canada had taken in a total of $542,401,736. A half a billion in cold cash—not to mention the amounts wagered with the "man around the corner." Curiously the biggest year of all was 1921, when seventy-five millions was wagered. 1928 was second with fifty-nine, 1924 third with fifty-two and then betting went into decline until in 1928, the biggest year of the biggest boom in history, only a paltry forty-five million was wagered. And 1931, if memory serves, was then called a year of depression!! Depression in 1929, '30, '31, brought the levels down to forty-five in '29, to thirty-eight in '30, to thirty-three in '31. What will this year bring forth? Well, some of the story will be told today when for the seventy-third time the thoroughbreds will line the barrier for North America's oldest racing classic. Good luck, all!

HERD KEEP PACE WITH THE BEARS

Buffalo Takes the Second Straight from Wings While Bruins Beat Keys.

OTHER GAMES ON TAP.

(By The Associated Press)

Taking advantage of a day of idleness for the other three contenders, the Newark Bears and Buffalo Bisons had stepped out a little further in front of the close international League race to-day.

Both checked in with victories yesterday, Newark beating the Reading Keys, 5-2, while Buffalo was defeating the Rochester Redwings, 4-2. This left Newark in first place, a half game in front of Buffalo, with the Montreal Royals and Baltimore Orioles another game and a half to the bad. Rochester trailed these latter two by a half game.

Don Brennan's pitching was the decisive factor in Newark's victory. He gave the Keys only six hits, Fred Bennett's double in the sixth driving in Rabbit Whitman with Reading's only run of the game. Newark collected 12 hits off Adams and Zumbro, three going to Andy Cohen.

Fred Fussell stopped Rochester cold with seven hits and struck out six men but found a worthy foe in Ira Smith of the Red Wings. Smith struck out nine men and also allowed only seven hits but unfortunately for him one of them was a home run by Wissett with one on in the fourth, and another was a triple later in the same frame by Crouse. The latter subsequently scored on Ryan's long fly. George Puccinelli collected two doubles to prolong his streak of consecutive hitting to 31 games, drove in one run and scored the other.

All four clubs had an open date.

MARMORA BRUINS DEFEAT BONARLAW

Visitors Cop 31-18 Decision in Exhibition Softball Tangle.

BONARLAW, May 21.—(Examiner Correspondence).—At Bonarlaw last night the Marmora Bruins won out, 31-18, against the Bonarlaw Tigers in the first exhibition game of softball of the season.

The manager of the Bonarlaw team, William Prest and the captain, W. J. Barlow, both expressed satisfaction, however, with the game as they had a number of new men who have not before played on this team, and considering that at the end of the fifth innings the local boys were leading the visitors by one run they are well pleased.

The Bruins were too speedy for them, however, in the last two innings. J. Cronkright was on the mound for the entire seven innings and pitched a good game as did Gerald Bristol for the Tigers. G. Thompson made a home run for the vistors in the sixth and Roy Neal for the home team in the second innings.

The line up was as follows:

Bonarlaw Tigers—G. Bristol, p; Wm. Prest, c; C. O. Reid, 1b; Clarence Wellman, 2b; Charles Wellman, 3b; Barrons, ss; C. Nobes, rf; David Wellman, lf; W. J. Barlow, and Roy Neal, cf.

Marmora Bruins—J. Cronkright, p; G. Thompson, c; G. Hewitt, 1b; T. Davis, 2b; H. Phillips, 3b; T. Gray, rf; Wm. Neal, cf; C. Deline, lf; T. Neal, ss.

Umpire—Isaac Neal. Base umpire, M. R. Neal.

The next game between these two teams will be played at Marmora and will no doubt be very interesting.

Score by innings:

Marmora Bruins	(10)100497—31
Bonarlaw Tigers	2 63323x—18

Inside Sportin' Dope—By A. Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well, Mac, box lacrosse gets introduced to Peterborough to-nite, but I won't be able to comment, if any, on that till next week. However, I dropped in at a practice of 1 of the City League teams the other nite; and as I watched the boys laying it on in a big way, it looked to me like a game with a lotta possibilities. It's got speed and plenty of robust checking, and that oughta be enough to keep the cash customers up on their toes all the way.

The pro rasslers was here last Fri. nite, Mac, and they put on quite a show, although I for 1 woulda enjoyed the 1st bout better if the crushing Cossack, Mister Alex. Kasaboski, had been tossed in there against the corpulent Mister Dick. Our Mister Frankie Hart ain't the right type for that bird, who can look fiercer and register pain better than any talkie actor on the screen to-day. Mister Kasaboski is he best foil possible for Mister Dick.

The mysterious Masked Marvel, looking like a colored Ku Klux Klansman, smothered Mister Abe Kashey of Armenia or thereabouts in 2 straight falls. The Marvel has a great act with his masked manager supplying the ballyhoo, and the fight Mister Kashey and the disguised grappler staged outa among the ringsiders got a lotta customers excited. By the way, the Armenian and the dark cloud had a narrow escape when they was out there. That well-known minion of the law, Mister J. Deannard, which used to play rugby when that game made pro rassling look like ring-around-the-rosey, advanced upon the scene, and was just going to throw the 2 battlers for a total loss when he remembered it wasn't up to him to crab the show. It was a close call for Mister Corcoran's talent.

In the ball show, Mac, the N. Y. Yanks has been supplying the feature of the American loop. Up to to-day they have copped 9 in a row, and with the pitching they're gretting, they're going to be hard to knock off. Mister Johnson's Senators run into a bunch of misery this week when St. Louis took 4 straight from them, and the Yanks is now out in front. My own pick, the A's, is only doing so-so, although if they was all coming through like Mister Jimmy Foxx and Mister Lefty Grove they would be no stopping them. Mister Foxx is leading both leagues in batting average, No. of hits, No. of homers, etc., and he's been poison to all the tossers.

Well, a big week next week, Mac. The lid comes off the C.O.B.L. and the Softball League, and they'll be box lacrosse and rassling, so the customers will be able to forget the depression stuff.

Trusting you'll do the same.

A. WISE CRACKER.

FORMER CHAMPS ARE ELIMINATED

Jimmy Allen and R. G. Thomas Defeated in Olympic Wrestling Tests.

IN TORONTO ARENA.

TORONTO, May 21 (C.P.). — Canada's Olympic wrestling team will be selected at Arena Gardens to-night when survivors of 50 of the finest amateur matmen in the Dominion renew their struggle to make a place on the 1932 Canadian Olympic team.

Two former Canadian champions, Jimmy Allen of Toronto, former king of the welterweights, and R. G. Thomas, Montreal, bantam titleholder, fell from the picture in the preliminary rounds last night, losing to a pair of apparently unknowns.

A strong man from the West, Johnny Buzovetsky of Edmonton, earned recognition among the welters defeating young Allen, but his measure was quickly taken in the second round when he bowed to Danny Macdonald, another Torontonian, in a gruelling match. Macdonald, a member of the 1928 Olympic wrestling team, showed with greater speed and experience outlasted th Western strong man, to gain the decision.

Westerners figured prominently in the preliminary card with Dan Matheson, rangy Regina policeman, defending his Canadian crown by flopping A. Gorham, of Toronto, in little better than two minutes. Jimmy Trifunov, another member of the Regina squad worked his way into the final rounds defeating Orvel Mason of Toronto and G. Murray of Montreal.

Herby Parks, determined young Westminster, B.C., grappler, was the hard luck man of the night. After riding the rods from his far Western home, the ambitious Parks defeated Harry Peace of Toonto in the preliminaries. He was forced ut of further competition when he suffered a broken rib.

SEES MORE CHAPMANS

Roy Spencer, Washington catcher, sees more Ben Chapmans. Sez he: "Chapman started it last summer and Martin showed them the way in the world's series. Once the 1932 season starts every club in baseball will try to run wild on the bases. They'll look like a field of jack rabbits and I think the catchers will be plenty busy."

LONDON, May 21. — (Canadian Press Cable.)—Rain over England and Wales to-day prevented start of play in five coun championship cricket matches scheduled to start this morning.

In the friendly match between all India and the M. C. C. Wazir Ali, formidable batsman who scored a century in two successive matches, was struck on the temple by a ball from Bowes and seriously hurt. He dropped to the ground and was taken in agony to hospital, where his head will be X-rayed.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

"WHITEY" HEWITT OPPOSES MARVEL

Memphis Grappler Signed by Corcoran to Appear in Thursday Night's Show.

While The Masked Marvel, conqueror of Abe Kashey here last week, has beaten some outstanding grapplers, he has yet to meet an opponent in Canada as outstanding as the man with whom he has been matched for the main bout of the Queensbury Club's show at the Brock Street Rink next Thursday night. Word from Promoter Jack Corcoran is to the effect that "Whitey" Hewitt of Memphis, Tennessee, has accepted terms for the match with the Masked heavyweight, giving Peterborough one of the best main bouts it would be possible to arrange anywhere.

Hewitt is so well known that it is doubtful if any of the fans of this district have not read of his exploits. He was formerly one of the king pins of the Paul Bowser group of wrestlers, and the Jack Curley organization, of which Corcoran is Canadian representative, scored a ten strike when they secured him.

In Toronto alone Hewitt has had some twelve main bouts and he figured in the first bout in that city to go the full time limit of two hours. One of his most notable bouts was against "Gus" Sonnenberg, whom he punished severely in a gruelling bout, tat one time practically knocking the flying tackle expert out and forcing him to take refuge outside the ropes. He has met Menri Deglane, one of the world's championship claimants, three times and has also had bouts with the former champion, Ed "Don" George, as well as such stars as Ed "Strangler" Lewis, Count Zarynoff, Pat McGill, Ray Steele, and other noted heavyweights.

The Marvel and Hewitt both have the same objective—a championship bout with Jim Londos. The Marvel seeks a return bout with the Greek star, while Hewitt, who has never met Londos, is anxious for the opportunity to do so.

MEL GLIONA TAKES KNOCKOUT VICTORY OVER FRED DECARLO IN PIONEER A. C. FISTIC SHOW

Three of Queen City Mitt Slingers Gain Verdicts Over Local Boxers.

GOOD CURTAIN RAISER.

Hap O'Toole, Jack Minicola and Bone Victors in Home-brew Section.

Fred DeCarlo was dropped by a left and right hook after two minutes of the first round in the main bout last night, Mel Gliona winning by the only kayo on the Pioneer Club card at the Legion Hall. A fair-sized crowd witnessed nine bouts, most of them fast and full of action, with three of the four Toronto boxers winning. Tony Minicola gave his Toronto opponent a severe lacing in the semi-final.

The first two were no-decision affairs, O'Toole took an easy decision over Murphy in the next, Jack Minicola outpointed Monaghan, and Bone nosed out a four-round verdict over Peel in the fifth. Vic Bagnato was too experienced for Vitarelli, and in the seventh Frank Battaglio defeated Chamberlain on points in five rounds. Harry Hance refereed, while Bob Merrett and Henry Noakes were judges.

Good Curtain-Raiser

Belland and Jordan, 85-pounders, staged a nifty curtain-raiser with neat boxing and some hefty clouting seen by the two kids. The last round was plenty lively and they drew a big hand. Shorty Saunders and Harold Kane, 100-pounders, went on next and Kane belted the other around for two rounds, using his longer reach to advantage and throwing in a flock of left hooks and right uppercuts. Shorty evened it up in the third and they battled away hard on even terms to draw cheers at the end.

Hap O'Toole, 147, was too strong for Bill Murphy, 145, and had things his own way throughout. He hurt Murphy in the first with a wicked one-two to the head and some mean ones close-in. Bill boxed carefully all through, with Hap laying into him once in a while, but they did real fighting the last half of their bout, and the crowd was yelling for action at the final bell.

Jack Minicola Wins

Jack Minicola, 130, hit harder and oftener and showed more aggressiveness to outpoint Jimie Monaghan, 118. The latter had a neat left to the head with the odd right cross, and showed fair footwork, but Jack made it a fight with his quick rushes and two-handed attack mostly to the head, earning the verdict by winning the first and third rounds while the second was even.

Jack Bone, 135, pulled out a win in overtime over Jack Peel, 135, a fourth round giving him a slight edge. They mixed hard and hurt each other in the first which was even, but Peel took the second when he put Bone in the resin for a nine-count with a terrific right drive to the body after a flurry. Bone had a shade in the third as they stalled and did little damage, Peel using a nice left hook to the body but taking several jabs in the face. In the fourth, there were several hard flurries with Bone landing more, but not much difference shown.

Loses to Toronto Boxer

Vic Bagnato, Toronto 100-pounder, was too finished a scrapper for Ned Vitarelli, being fast, flashy and aggressive. He tore into Ned from the start, driving his around with a quick up-and-down attack with both hands and pounding his ribs when they clinched. Ned kept away and used his left but was outpointed the first and second rounds. There wasn't much difference between them in the third, although Vic was still aggressive and better at infighting, but Ned swapped punches twice and held his own, finishing strong. There was plenty of clinching toward the end.

Feature Bout

The highlight of the show was that between Frank Battaglia, 130, of Toronto, and Jack Chamberlain, Pioneer lightweight, with the former winning in five two-minute rounds. Frank was aggressive throughout and packed a hard wallop in both dukes, but Jack outboxed him defensively and tied him up repeatedly. Battaglia took the first two with his hard rushes and punishing infighting, but Red balanced it up in the third, as they slugged each other around. Chamberlain landing often to the head with right uppercuts and jabbing with the left to keep Frank off. The crowd was in an uproar time and again.

The Toronto boy finished stronger and kept flailing away with both mitts in close. In the last session, he pinned Jack in a corner and hamered away up and down unmercifully, but the local boy was durable and game and came out smiling and dancing around to jab his opponent continuously till the bell. He got a great hand.

The semi-final saw Tony Minicola, 124, smash his way to a well-deserved victory over Bill Bagnato, a fleet-footed feather from Toronto. The first was even, both mittsers moving around lively and throwing plenty of leather mostly to the pantry, with both finishing the round fresh.

Hands Out Beating

Tony bored in for the second with his clubbed right hand wreaking havoc on the other. He smashed in some wicked uppercuts and only the clever footwork of Bill's saved him from a kayo. At that, he took a crushing left and right drive to the jaw and was on the floor for six seconds at the bell. Tony kept on top of him in the third and the fans were shouting as he pounded away with the Queen City pug finally standing up and slugging away with him. He was weak and hanging on while Tony was quite fresh at the bell.

The main bout went just two minutes, Mel Gliona, 133-pound Toronto scrapper, winning by a clean knockout over Fred DeCarlo, Pioneer, 138. They started fast, Mel being shifty as ever and rapping in some lightning jabs and hooks to the head as Fred moved slowly forward. The latter connected with a couple of hard ones, and Gliona danced away. As he caught Fred in a corner he bounced a couple of fast ones off his jaw, stepped in closer and jerked up a sudden left hook, followed instantly by a dynamic right hook and DeCarlo fell flat. The referee raised and lowered his arm ten times over the dazed Italian, and the crowd started to leave.

JAMES CAGNEY IN "THE CROWD ROARS"

We quite agree with the gentleman who said: "If your choice of entertainment runs toward action and thrills, "The Crowd Roars" ought to keep you entertained for a week at least."

It is a picture that is full of thrills. They don't come singly. The old idea of having a big race as the major event of a picture has gone by the board. Now we have two or three. And there isn't one smash-up, but several. Cars jump fences, they catch on fire and the driver dies in the melee, they turn somersaults and do various stunts on a hard-ridden track. And 'the crowd roars,' anxious for more.

James Cagney, always looking slightly drunk and walking in the same way, is the stellar figure. He is a fine actor but maybe not so good as he thinks. He, with Joan Blondell, also in this talkie, recently went on strike for higher wages —and didn't get them. He is supposed to be definitely out of the studios now, as a result.

Cagney is Joe Greer, speed champion of the auto track, whose kid brother, Eddie, gets the fever for racing and follows in his footsteps. They fall out over a blonde and the resulting bad blood leads to some strange track adventures.

Ann Dvorak is Lee Merrick, the girl of Joe Greer, who goes after him when he cracks up. Joan Blondell is Anne, the blonde.

"The Crowd Roars" is the latest in the series of speed pictures which delineate tragedies. There was "Hell Divers" and "Sky Bride" speed-mad stories of the air. Now we have the track thriller, and it certainly provides plenty of chilly spine-crackling and tension for the customers.

There is a jolly little animated cartoon bit, with Mickey Mouse as "The Grocery Boy' and "Wide Open Spaces", by the Masquers Club of Hollywood, features the rigid-faced Ned Sparks as the sheriff, in a farcical "mellerdrammer" of the great West, "where men are men and women are glad of it." The style show appears in another column.—Jeanette.

CASUAL COMMENT

Amateur boxing made its bow here for the summer last night with the Pioneer Club show at the Legion Hall. A pretty fair crowd took it in and it wasn't a bad card, though draggy in spots. The two best bouts were the Battaglio-Chamberlain and the Bagnato-Minicola ones. These were well worth seeing for boxing and honest-to-gosh scrapping.

• • • • • • •

"Red" Chamberlain gave a fine boxing display against the tough Toronto Italian. The ordinary mittser wouldn't have lasted long under the heavy gunning handed out by the weaving Battaglio. But "Red" is a nifty defensive boxer, that is for blocking, footwork and countering, and besides he can take it and keep on grinning. It was a classy five-round scrap and suited the fans okay.

• • • • • • •

The semi-final fight was all of that, with Tony Minicola slamming hard rights and lefts into Billy Bagnato. The latter tried to box but the going was too heavy, so he tried to stand up and slug. That was a mistake and he finally had to grab and hang on for his life to go the distance.

• • • • • • •

DeCarlo lacked the speed and experience of Mel Gliona and took it on the chin in the first round. He was considerably heavier than the Toronto pug, but was slow getting started and you can't fool around with a socker like Gliona who has quite a rep in the Queen City. He pasted Fred a couple of T.N.T. raps to the whiskers and it was "tweet, tweet" for the local boy. Oh, well, that happens once in a while to the best of them.

• • • • • • •

Young Ned Vitarelli had a real handful in Vic Bagnato but he weathered the storm of leather-covered fists in good style and finished strong. Ned has good prospects but shouldn't be hurried too much. At that, he wasn't hurt any by the much more experienced and harder-walloping Toronto boy, and he probably learned a lot.

• • • • • • •

The Kane-Saunders go wasn't bad, the Minicola-Monaghan affair was good but slow at times, the Peel-Bone scrap was fine until late in the session when the boys wearied, and the others were just so-so. There's plenty of good material here for next fall.

• • • • • • •

The new local Baseball Commission will hold its first meeting Monday evening at eight o'clock in Duffus'. Two representatives from the City League, the E.P.L. and the senior club will be on hand, under the chairmanship of Alex Kay, and certain rules will be drafted and various measures for the good of baseball here will be brought up.

• • • • • • •

Things are moving along in the C.O.B.L. and the four teams are pretty well organized. Cobourg is still somewhat of a mystery, their full line-up not yet being announced. Outside of Hoot Gibson, they don't seem to have much in the way of pitching. Their infield should be fair, but we imagine they'll have trouble with the outfield.

• • • • • • •

Belleville wil be good and bad, their battery strength good, their infield fair and the gardeners inexperienced young fellows. The Nats always had good hurling and dangerous hitting, so they'll be no set-up. Kingston has a classy team, but appears weak on the mound with half a dozen twirlers, none of whom is outstanding. At least, that's the way it looks to us now.

• • • • • • •

The Petes should be just about as strong as any of them, if not a little better. They have three nifty pitchers, a couple of reliable receivers, a smart infield and an outfield that looks good on paper. If this bunch clicks all right, the Petes will prove hard to "take" for any of them. All in all, the league looks better than it has in years and should be a real race. They go to the post May 24th, Kingston playing in Belleville and Peterborough going to Cobourg. The first game here will be June the 4th, Cobourg being the visitors.

• • • • • • •

The softball season opens officially Monday evening at 6.15 at Central with Red & White Stores playing Sugar Bowl. Percy Harrison has a strong crew signed up and the Grocers may prove tough onions to the champs. Still, the Dormer outfit hasn't been weakened any since last year when they romped through to cop the silverware. Opening ceremonies will start the new softball rolling again.

• • • • • • •

A meeting of the City Lacrosse League has been called for Monday evening at eight in the Brock, and the three teams should have representatives on hand. They'll arrange for the opening date, the schedule, type of playoffs, referees, and a flock of other business at this time. Yeah, summer seems to be here alright, as all the fair weather sports swing into action once more.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

A RUDE AWAKENING.

Of circumstances, make the best,
And of your troubles make a jest.
—Old Mr. Toad.

Troubles are a part of life. Anyway it would seem so. And few there are if any who do not have troubles. Some people manage to hide the fact while others tell the world about their hard luck. It is those who master their troubles instead of allowing their troubles to master them who get the most from life.

All winter long Old Mr. Toad had had no troubles and for a very good reason—he had been asleep. Late in the fall he had chosen a place in Farmer Brown's garden and there dug his way down in the earth and buried himself. He had buried himself very thoroughly without even an air hole to the surface. He had done it by the simple method of digging with his hind feet and at the same time backing in while the loose earth fell in on him and buried him. He didn't need a hole for air, because he would have no use for air as we know it, for he intended to stop living in so far as everything but his heart was concerned, and that would have so little to do that it would seem not to be alive.

So with his head bent down and his feet tucked under him, Old Mr. Toad had become almost as cold as the cold earth around him, and as stiff as if he were indeed frozen, and had not been uncomfortable in the least, for he had known nothing about it. He had been asleep in that strange sleep that is called hibernation. But for this strange sleep a lot of little people and some bigger ones would die with the coming of winter, for there would be no food for them and they would starve to death. Asleep they need no food.

So Old Mr. Toad slept the winter away in Farmer Brown's garden and no one knew he was there, for no one had seen him dig himself in. Sweet Mistress Spring had arrived. Winsome Bluebird and Mrs. Bluebird were inspecting the houses Farmer Brown's Boy had put up for them in the Old Orchard. Down at the Smiling Pool was Redwing the Blackbird, adding his voice to the chorus of rejoicing from the little music bags of Old Mr. Toad's tiny cousins the Hylas. Still Mr. Toad slept. He knew not that winter was over and Mistress Spring had arrived, for she had not yet awakened him.

Then came Farmer Brown's Boy to the garden with his spade and hoe and rake. There were certain seeds to be planted early, and he had come to prepare the ground for them. He whistled as he turned the brown earth over with his spade. Now and then he stooped to pick up an angle worm and toss it out to one side where Welcome Robin was watching. Now and then he turned up a stone and picked this up and tossed it aside.

It was what he took to be one of those stones that he had turned up that he took in his hand to toss aside. It didn't feel exactly like a stone, and this drew his attention to it. Under the earth clinging to him he recognized Old Mr. Toad. His face lighted in pleased surprise.

For a few moments he stood over Old Mr. Toad, gravely watching him.

"Well, well, well!" he exclaimed. "So this is where you spent the winter! And you are still asleep. I'll put you out in the sun and see what that will do for you."

So Farmer Brown's Boy gently placed Old Mr. Toad in a sunny spot and went on with his work. The sun was warm. The air was warm. After a while Old Mr. Toad moved a leg just a little. He was beginning to waken. It took a long time to waken, for you know he had been a long time asleep. Even after he began to feebly kick he knew nothing about it.

Now Flip the Terrier had followed Farmer Brown's Boy to the garden. He had sniffed at Old Mr. Toad when Farmer Brown's Boy had put him down in that sunny spot but found nothing to interest him. Later he came back that way as Old Mr. Toad was feebly kicking. He saw those moving legs and at once he was interested. For a few moments he stood over Old Mr Toad gravely watching him. Then he put out a paw and gave Old Mr. Toad a poke. Old Mr. Toad rolled over on his back and his legs waved foolishly. Flip was delighted. Here was something to play with. He gave Old Mr. Toad another poke just as the latter was beginning to be enough awake to know that he was alive. Flip barked and poked him again. Old Mr. Toad was becoming more awake every minute, but it was a rude awakening.

What To-Day Means To You

"TAURUS"

If May 21st is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:30 a.m. to 11:45 a.m., from 4 p.m. to 5:45 p.m. and from 9 p.m. to 10:20 p.m. The danger periods are from 7:30 a.m. to 9 a.m. and from 2 p.m. to 3:15 p.m.

The planets will be adversely placed on May 21st, and it would be advisable to tread carefully, speak prudently, and to keep your ear to the ground to prevent some hidden disaster tumbling into your life. Every danger will be well signalled, however, if you are not blind to the signs.

Children born on this May 21st will be indifferent and rather cold-blooded little individuals. They will have decided ideas and will cry hard for the things they want. They will take a keen interest in games and sports and will prefer an outdoor life and work. Great care should be taken of their nutrition, as intestinal disorders are indicated.

Born on May 21st, you are a wide-awake, highly strung individual, and you possess both nerve and nerves. Your spirit often urged you on beyond your physical and mental endurance, and although you are too gritty to ever say "quit" until you have seen a thing through, the finish often finds you on the verge of a collapse. One part of your make-up is in need of a sedative; the other part of you is constantly seeking stimulation.

Your actions are often both erratic and illogical. You do things for your own immediate satisfaction, which may seem pointless to another. You do not strive for any set pattern in life, and your crazy weaving is almost a puzzle to those who make it a study. You are an inspirational talker and writer, and although you can not help "romancing" a little, it is a pleasure to listen to you or to read one of your chatty letters. You are superficially intellectual, and create an impression of having a greater knowledge and education than you actually possess. You talk around subjects without touching any of their vital parts. You have a parrot-like memory, and readily pick up information or stories which can be passed on.

You are so versatile that you can do many things with an equal degree of efficiency—it is all a matter of interest or indifference whether you do anything well.

Sunday, May 22—"Gemini"

If May 22nd is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m., from 3:30 p.m. to 4:50 p.m. and from 8:30 p.m. to 10 p.m. The danger periods are from noon to 1:35 p.m. and from 6 p.m. to 7:30 p.m.

An at home Sunday would be an astrologer's advice for May 22nd preparatory to an unusually strenuous week ahead. No adverse indications for the day, and a maximum of good will be derived from whatever source you seek pleasure, rest, or comfort.

Children born on this May 22nd will have independent and forceful temperaments, combined with more than average vitality. Parents should strive to direct this vitality into constructive channels, for without some natural outlet, these children are apt to become restless and irritable. They will be quick, ready-witted, a trifle brusque in manner, but will make excellent companions.

Born on May 22nd, you are generous and kind-hearted to a fault. You readily forgive in others what they quickly would condemn in you, yet, this unselfish and warm-hearted attitude wins for you many a dear and and loyal friend. You are very much alive and vital to the joys of living, and even small every-day happenings enlist your interest and sympathy. You are sensitive and imaginative in you dealings with others—their troubles sadden you; in their joys, you find happiness. You are inclined to underrate your own ability and to overrate the ability of others. You often let chances go by, not feeling yourself quite up to the mark, whereas, in truth, you are more than capable and by your adaptability are equal to any situation.

You should cultivate more ambition and self-confidence, and give your talents a chance for growth. You are sitting in a back seat from choice and not from necessity. You need have less fear of the limelights than most people. There is something delightfully charming about your shyness, but, nevertheless, it is a detriment to you in the business side of life. All children make an appeal to you through your maternal or paternal instinct as the case may be, and with a sympathetic mate, your home life should be ideal.

My heart would beat so fast I could hardly breathe, and I had headaches, and dizzy and fainting spells.

I couldn't get my housework done I was so weak.

I took three boxes of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and felt much better, and now I would not be without them in the house."

C.P.R. Excursion To Toronto Saturday

Many excursionists have already signified their intention to take the Canadian Pacific Railway Company' bargain coach trip from Peterborough, Tweed, Havelock, Norwood, Lindsay, Bobcaygeon and other eastern points to Toronto on Saturday, May 28, and many attractions will await them here as it is the closing day of the Woodbine Spring Meeting. On Saturday evening, too, box lacrosse enthusiasts will be able to watch the match against Montreal at the Maple Leaf Gardens. In addition, Mayor Stewart of Toronto has extended greeting to the visitors and expressed the hope that they will visit all points of interest during the day. The special excursion which will be built up entirely of modern Canadian Pacific equipment will leave Tweed at 5.30 Saturday morning, Havelock at 6.35 and Peterborough at 7.15, arriving in Toronto at 9.45. Returning, tickets are good on all trains Saturday and Sunday. Last train leaves Toronto 9.45 Sunday night, and only stops at Peterborough, Havelock and Tweed. For other points will require to leave not later than 9 o'clock Sunday morning train.

Exhibition Grant Will Be Continued

The federal government's grant of $1,500 to the Peterborough Exhibition will be continued this year according to a grateful announcement received this morning from the Hon. Robt. Weir, Minister of Agriculture.

Peterborough is in the class B group of fairs, and its program for this year the directors have aspired to maintain the stimulus to the agricultural industry in this district which the finances of recent years have made possible. Toward that end the Dominion grant is most acceptable, and will be welcomed by all the directors.

TARZAN AND THE GOLDEN LION. NO. 6 By Edgar Rice Burroughs
(Metropoli tan Newspaper Feature Ser vice, Inc.)

"We will pay you well for permission to pass through your country,' the Sheik snarled. "No!" thundered Tarzan. "Peace and profit have I offered thee, Christian dog," and Ibn Jad's voice took on an ugly tone. "Since thou wouldst have war—so be it!" Then to his men: "Take him away and bind his feet."

"Be careful, Moslem," warned Tarzan, "the arms of the ape-man are long. They reach out even in death and their fingers encircle thy throat." "Thou shalt have until dark to decide," called the Sheik to the ape-man. "Know this also, that Ibn Jad will not turn back until he hath that for which he came!"

They took Tarzan and at a distance from the beyt of Ibn Jad, pushed him into a small tent. Within this flimsy prison, it required three men to throw him to the ground and bind his ankles, even though his wrists were already bound. In his own quarters, Ibn Jad sipped coffee and sank into profound thought.

Presently he leaned forward and addressed Tollog: "The Christian dog lies yonder, securely bound. The night will be dark. A dead Tarzan may not reach out to harm us. Thou, Tollog, shalt attend to this matter for me." Then Ibn Jad arose and entered the quarters of his harem.

MUSIC RECITAL IS BIG SUCCESS

Pleasing Program Given By Pupils of Miss Aileen Rose.

SENIOR AND JUNIOR.

The recital given by the piano pupils of Miss Aileen Rose last night in Wesley Hall, St. James' United Church, was interesting from many standpoints. The first was the fine training that was in evidence from the first to the last number on the widely varied program in the work of both senior and junior pupils. Then for the technical ability shown as well as for the sympathetic comprehension of the young musicians who give promise of an unusually bright future. Flowering plants and ferns with softly shaded lights made a suitable setting for gaily-frocked girls who assisted in the program. In the first number "Good Morning" (C. Curlitt) Miss Rose played in duet with her clever little pupil, Dorothy Frost, and little Dorothy played again in solo, "Daisy Chains" A by Slater. A pleasing interlude in the instrumental music were the solos by Roy Pitchford, the boy soloist, of St. John's Anglican Church, who gave as his greatly appreciated selections "Keep on Hopin'" (Maxwell) and "Rock Me to Sleep" (Hall). A pleasing change in the program was introduced by the extremely humorous reading, "A Small Boy," in Miss Gwen Parnell's best style. As a recall number she delighted her audience once more with "Grandma's Heaven." Miss Marjorie Sims' selection, "March des Troubadours" was played evenly and smoothly through the difficult and exacting composition, while in her group, "Twelve Little Preludes and Fuges" (Bach) and Frolics (Von Wilm) Miss Margaret Smart showed her artistic ability in interpretation. With the outstanding characteristic of a degree of soft brilliance, little Miss Ruth Fisher gave as her first contribution of violin music "The Norwegian Dance" (Greig) and "Idyll" (Dolb). Another group which was equally applauded was "Gavotte" (Thomas) and "Traumerei" (Schumann). The piano duet, "Tripping Through the Heather" (Holst) was played in perfect harmony by Miss Margaret Smart and Miss Rose. Little Dorothy Frost gave as her final number entirely from memory, "Narcissus" (by Slater). The work of Margaret Smart in the piano solo "Sonatina in G" (Beethoven) and "L'Hirondelle" was excellent, while Miss Margaret Sims gave a perfet rendition in "Yellow Jonquils" (Johanning). "The Witches' Flight" (Russell) was the brilliant finale of this fine program played by Misses Jean Rose and Margaret Sims, with a technique and verve little short of perfection.

Miss Rose acted as accompanist for the vocal numbers and Miss Marguerite Rome accompanied the violin solos. A large audience of appreciative parents and friends enjoyed this real musical treat given by Miss Rose, her piano pupils and the assisting artists. The ital to a most successful con- National Anthem brought the reclusion.

LITTLE IN SIGHT FOR CREDITORS

Swedish Investigators Into Ivor Kreuger's Affairs Urge Bankrupty.

168 MILLION DEBT.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, May 21. A Swedish investigating committee yesterday revealed that Ivar Kreuger had $168,300,000 in personal debts and indirect liability when he fired a bullet into his brain in Paris on March 12.

Pointing also to "deliberate falsification" of the books of Kreuger & Toll, the match king's main company, over a period of at least eight years, the committee recommended bankruptcy.

"There will be little, if anything, left over for distribution to unsecured creditors" the report concluded.

The committee laid gigantic fraud to the manuipulations of this man, who until the first of this year was regarded as one of the most powerful financial geniuses of modern times.

HEALTH ASSOCIATION ASKING FOR $1,000 FOR GREAT WORK

Members Freely Give of Their Time 12 Months in Year.

FULL TIME NURSE.

No one is broke who has their health; no one is down and out while well and hearty, but when health is broken and the wolf of hunger stalks restlessly at the door, then there is cause for worry. It is among such cases the Health Association does its work. In homes where the puny baby is crying for a cupful of milk that is not to be had. Where the crippled child lies counting the hours until the Health nurse comes. The Peterborough Health Association is composed of persons interested in the work, who freely give of their time and substance throughout the entire year. A full time nurse is engaged and a car furnished for her use. From morning until often far into the night she is out on her errands of mercy. The Association is nearly self-supporting; all that it asks of a generous public is only a thousand dollars to carry on for the entire year. The work is among those who are not only destitute but also broken in health, who would have no chance of recovery if they were not supplied with free medical attendance and nourishing food. There are many who regularly each year aid the association in carrying on their work; there are other who perhaps might also want to participate in such a worthy cause. Please send all subscriptions to Mr. Borland, treasurer, Bank of Toronto, where they will be gratefully received and acknowledge.

FIRES SWEEPING OVER MANITOBA

Three Major Blazes Lay Waste to Thousands of Acres of Valuable Timber.

VILAGE MENACED.

WINNIPEG, May 21 (C.P.).—Three large forest fires and many minor blazes raged in Northern and North-Western Manitoba yesterday, laying waste thousands of acres of valuable timber land and menacing one northern school home and village.

The most destructive fire is in the Porcupine Mountain Reserve, where 400 men are battling a rapidly-spreading blaze.

Other large fires are destroying valable forest areas in Duck Mountain Reserve, 135 miles north-west of Grandview, and at Cumberland House, north of The Pas, where Guy School and the village of Sturgeon Landing are imperilled by the advancing flames.

The fire was still burning in the vicinity of Cumberland House yesterday, but it was believed that Guy Catholic school and the settlement of Sturgeon Landing had been saved.

4 YEAR OLD BOY SERIOUSLY HURT

Driver of Truck is Held on Charge of Criminal Negligence.

TRUCK BADLY DAMAGED.

MILLBROOK, May 21. (Examiner Correspondence).—Struck by a motor truck when at play on King street yesterday afternoon, Donald, four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Edmunds was seriously injured about the head.

Harry Seamark, driver of the truck which belonged to E. A. Keljaway of Belleville is being held on a charge of criminal negligence at Port Hope. He was arrested following the accident by Provincial Constable W. Carey of Cobourg and Traffic Officer E. A. Hornick of Peterborough, who had charge of investigations.

It is stated that the child was running across King street after a dog with which he was playing, and was struck down by the truck despite every effort of the driver to avoid the accident. In taking a sharp swerve with his truck Seamark struck the curb and tore a large hole in the sidewalk, afterwards crashing into a house tenanted by Fred Smith. The vehicle was badly damaged.

Bleeding freely from the ears and nose the injured child was rushed to Dr. H. A. Turner's private hospital. His injuries are regarded as being serious.

The child is a grandson of R. H. "Bob" Edmunds veteran curling skip of the local club and widely known throughout the district.

The resolution provided that if Japan refused to do so all nations should withdraw their diplomatic representatives from tokyo and apply economic and financial sanctions against the Japanese it also demanded that workers boycott ships plying to and from Japan and refuse to embark munitions bound for Japan.

A war between Japan and Soviet Russia would cause revolutionary uprisings in Russia and bring about a world conflict. The resolution said.

DR. BARR SPEAKS TO CALEDONIANS

Well Balanced Program Provided at Local Scotch Club Meeting.

SPLENDID ADDRESS.

A concert and talk by the Rev. Dr. Barr was the program at the Caledonian Club meeting held in the Woodmen of the World Hall last evening. D. Anderson presided over a large audience of members and friends. The chairman, in a few well-chosen words welcomed the guest speaker and the audience.

R. Hendry sang "My Bonnie Jean" and "My Ain Wee Hoose," accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Hendry, and was well applauded.

Two readings by Margaret Wyllie, "The Minister's Mistake" and "The Feller My Mother Thinks I Am," were well received.

Miss Jessie Pattison sang "Come to the Fair," "Trees," "Bird Songs at Eventide," and "Coming Home" in her usual attractive fashion. Her accompaniments were played by Miss Pearl Smith.

Sam. McKinley, the youngest member of the club, gave a clever exhibition of characture drawings, which was something new, and received much applause.

Dr. Barr chose for his talk the novel subject, "The Revolutionary Shirt." His very interesting talk was received with rapt attention. This badge of the revolutionists has come down through the ages, and the speaker described its significance in many different climes and situations. He quoted Thomas Hood's famous poem, "The Song of the Shirt," which helped to work emancipation for the slave-driven factory workers of England, and whose influence is felt to-day.

Dr. Barr received a vote of thanks by the chairman for his interesting talk, and this was well responded to by everyone. The other artists also came in for a share of the applause.

After the concert tea was served and an hour spent in dancing to music by G. Low and R. Gilmour.

DEFEAT PLAN LIMITING TEA DUTY UNTIL APRIL

By George Hambleton, C. P. Staff Writer

LONDON, May 23.—The House of Commons today rejected a Labor amendment to make a proposed duty on tea applicable till next April only when the Finance Bill giving legislative effect to the budget was considered in committee of the whole. The vote was 232 to 24.

The House resumed sessions with speed. Debate on the amendment lasted scarcely five minutes before the vote was taken.

Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, is still ill with gout and was unable to attend.

YOUTH JAILED AFTER CRASH

Davies is alleged to have been the driver of an automobile which sideswiped another car and then swerved across the street and struck the couple. After a two-hour search through the beach resort, Davies surrendered to police there late last night.

Both Charlton and Miss Austin were terribly injured.

An ambulance hut has been opened at Tarpot's Corner, near Southend, England, where 364 accidents occured in the last 300 days.

CRAZED RUSSIAN INVADES CHURCH WRECKS HOME

Congregation Amazed, Acts as Man Threatens to Sacrifice Daughter on Altar.

ESCAPES TO HOUSE.

Police, Called By Neighbors, Are Shaken Off Till Doctor Gives Narcotic.

MONTREAL, May 23 (C.P.). — Zabo Tosky, a native of Russia, will undergo an examination to determine his sanity when he wakes from the effect of a narcotic hastily administered last night after he had attempted to smash the interior of his home after disturbing a service at St. Hilda's Anglican Church.

The Sabbath calm of St. Hilda's Anglican Church was rudely disturbed yesterday when the Russian walked up the church aisle to the altar, brushed away the vases containing flowers, took a large brass cross from the altar, bent it in two and then proclaimed himself as rector.

The congregation was so astonished that for a moment no one knew what to do. Finally one of the wardens seized the man, who freed himself and walked out of the church. Nothing more was heard of him until late last night when police received a report that a man was smashing the interior of a house on Cartier Street. A small detachment of officers was unable to control him until a doctor, hastily called, injected a narcotic into his arm. He was left at home overnight under guard of detectives.

Startling Procedure.

Worshippers in the church, awaiting the start of the service, described the man's actions as little short of amazing. He, his wife and four children arrived together. He had on an old overcoat, to which was pinned a colored apron. The family arrived at the church doors wheeling a baby's carriage loaded with two boxes enveloped in an old colored cloth. Through the church doors the man carried the two boxes, while between his teeth he

DETROIT POLICE HAVE IN TOILS J. W. BORBRIDGE

Local Man Intended to Take Own Life After Forging Cheque.

MAKES CONFESSION.

Unable to Find Work Forced to Forge Cheques in U. S. Cities.

DETROIT, May 23 (Special to The Examiner).—Arrested in a downtown hotel shortly after he allegedly passed a bogus check for $25, and on his way to buy a revolver to end his life, according to the story he told police, John W. Borbridge, 30 years old, of Peterborough, to-day had confessed a two months' career as a forger.

In Borbridge's pocket was a letter addressed to the District Attorney, in which he admitted cashing 18 worthless cheques for a total of $350.70, mostly in payment for hotel bills. He had come to Detroit two months ago from his home in Peterborough, the letter said, and being unable to find work, had been forced to pass the bogus paper in order to live. He told of fleecing hotels in Windsor, Detroit, Chicago and Flint.

The confession, a six-page tale of unwilling indulgence in crime, was dated May 20. It expressed a desire either to make restitution in money or to serve a prison sentence. Borbridge told police he had originally intended to give

STORM THINS CROWD.

Is Guest at U. S. Embassy—Premier MacDonald Telephones Congratulations.

LONDON, May 23 (AP)—Amelia Earheart Putnam, blonde woman flyer who last Saturday became the first of her sex to fly the Atlantic alone, was a guest at the United States embassy to-day

She landed at Hanworth airdrome last night during a terrific thunderstorm after a flight from Londonderry, northern Ireland, in a borrowed plane.

To-day her first thought was of a shopping tour to replace the jodphurs and the leather flying suit which made up her wardrobe.

She arose soon after seven this morning, declaring she was thoroughly rested, and after a light breakfast was off on her shopping tour into the west end before nine.

"I can't be borrowing always" she said. At a dinner last night she wore a dress loaned her by Mrs. David K. E. Bruce, daughter of Ambassador Andrew Mellon and hostess of the embassy.

The crowd which greeted her as she splashed to a landing at Hanworth was small but enthusiastic. Other thousands had gone to the Croydon airport believing she would land there.

"I don't mind the rain" she said, "I got used to it Friday night."

The slim young woman made friends instantly with the crowd by her quiet smile and gay manner.

To-day the newspapers were filled with the story of her flight. A struggle with storms and failing apparatus from Harbor Grace, N.F. to the pasture near Londonderry where she landed. Most of them printed editorials of hearty tribute to her courage and skill.

She had scarcely arrived at the clubhouse on the flying field when Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald called on the telephone from his home at Lossiemouth, Scotland, where he is recuperating from an operation on his eyes, to welcome her officially.

Miss Earhart said she would leave Europe for home about June 10, without going back to Ireland to supervise the crating of her plane which will be dismantled and sent back to the United States.

She said she would go from London to Rome, where an international conference of transoceanic flyers is being held.

Fortune of $180,000,000 Lies in India Waiting Aged Armenian Woman's Call

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, May 23 (C.P.). — To take possession of a fortune of about $180,000,000, a white-haired Armenian woman, Marianne Djanikian, 80, has gone to India with her two sons.

In 1882 Eli Amirhanian died in India and left the large fortune. His will stated that it should not be turned over to his heirs for fifty years.

The fortune, administered by a group of lawyers, had grown until its value is now estimated at £36,000,000.

With the expiration of the fifty years, the executors searched for the heirs, and found Marianne Djanikian, a granddaughter.

The fortune consists of real estate and deposits in British banks.

MANITOBA FIRES RAGE UNABATED, RAIN ONLY HOPE

Hundreds of Men Fight Futile Battle to Check Destruction.

BUSH TINDER DRY.

Lumber Company Loses Buildings at Porcupine Mountain Reserve.

WINNIPEG, May 23. —(CP) — Hungary flames which annually feast on Manitoba's forests in the spring today are eating woodland tracts in a dozen districts while hundreds of fire-fighters, hastily mustered, fight a futile battle to check the destruction. Forestry officials say only rainfall can halt the advance of the red attacker.

Only a few of the fires, scattered over northern, western and eastern Manitoba, are under control. The others are burning fiercely and two threaten to destroy valuable timber and pulpwood limits.

A roaring blaze in the Porcupine Mountain reserve, northwest of here, has destroyed several buildings owned by the Burrows Lumber company, swept through miles of young green timber and easily jumped the fireguards which 250 begrimed fighters placed in its path.

Forest Very Dry.

More valuable timber will fall prey to this careening conflagration, said Col. H. I. Stevenson, chief of the province's forestry department, unless a fall of rain occurs within a few hours. Bushland in the Porcupine mountain region is tinder dry.

Pulpwood limits of the Manitoba Paper Company are endangered by a series of fires in the Central Manitoba mining area, east of Lake Winnipeg. Company officials are confident they will be brought under control before heavy damage has been done.

Burning unabated near Flin Flon in the north, a brush fire has defied all efforts of more than 100 men to check its advance. To-day it continued its flaming march through dried-out scrub and heavier forests.

In Eastern Manitoba, fires have broken out in the Rice Lake and Manigotagan districts. Large crews of men have been sent to both places. A hundred men are making good progress in holding back fires in the Duck Mountain Forest Reserve.

POLICEMAN SHOT DURING HOLD-UP

Mowed Down Without Chance Carrying Cash Into Bank.

$23,000 LOOT.

NEWCASTLE, Pa., May 23. — A policeman was shot and killed and two bank employees robbed of $23,000 by four holdup men to-day.

Patrolman Clarence Campbell was killed with a sawed-off shotgun as he stepped from an automobile carrying the money to the Mahoning Trust Company bank.

The bank employees had just arrived with the money from the First National Bank when the robbers walked from the lobby of the Liberty Hotel. Two of the bandits stepped upon the running board and Campbell jumped from the machine.

Covering the officer with the shotgun, one robber ordered him to put up his hands, and then fired without further warning.

"JASFIE" STARTS NEW HUNT

GREAT BARRINGTON, Mass. — Dr. John F. Condon, the "Jasfie" who paid $50,000 in an attempt to effect the return of the kidnapped Lindbergh baby, arrived in Great Barrington to-day and said he would organize a search in this vicinity to-day.

Says Police Action Evidently Unfair, Asks Explanation

Facts Not Correctly Stated When Winnipeg Laborite Speaks Of People Being "Snatched From Homes," Gordon Answers—All Moves Legal.

HALIFAX CHOSEN CONCENTRATION POINT BECAUSE OF NEEDED DETENTION QUARTER.

OTTAWA, May 23 (C.P.). — With a request to know why "this policy of snatching people from their homes" was being continued by the immigration authorities, J. S. Woodsworth (Lab., Winnipeg North-Centre), brought up the Stahlberg case in the House of Commons this morning. He said that he had received a letter from Mrs. Stahlberg, who lived at 1342 St. Antoine Street, Montreal, complaining that her husband had been arrested and taken to Halifax without trial.

The arrest appeared "very unjust," said Mr. Woodsworth, and he asked for an explanation from the Minister of Immigration.

He had before him some particulars in respect to the Stahlberg case, replied Hon. W. A. Gordon, Minister of Immigration, but he must first say that Mr. Woodsworth was not stating the fact correctly when he spoke of people being "snatched away from their homes."

The law under which this man was being held had been on the statute books for many years, said Mr. Gordon. It provided for the detention and examination of those who were suspected of being in the country illegally, or of having so conducted themselves that they had forfeited their right to remain. They were given counsel at the expense of the Government and were subject to the privileges of the Habeas Corpus law.

Has Needed Quarters

Halifax was chosen as a concentration point for the examination of these suspects, the Minister said, because it had the necessary detention quarters; was an immigrant port of entry, and had competent experienced officers. Most of the evidence in connection with these men was in the hands of one officer, he said, and it was convenient to have all the examinations made at one place.

There were a great many people in Canada from foreign lands who were glad to remain here and content to obey and uphold the laws. These persons were being penalized, he said, by the actions of a small body of their countrymen who seemed bent on attacking law and order and undermining the system of society of this country.

KING EDWARD SCHOOL CADETS WIN DENNE CUP

Second Year in Succession for South End Cadet Company.

IMPRESSIVE SHOWING.

Public School Cadets Are Inspected by Captain Isbister.

Earning the warm congratulations and appreciation of Captain M. Ismister, District Cadet Officer for M. D. No. 3, and the plaudits of the citizens who thronged about the parade ground at Confederation Square this afternoon, the Peterborough Public Schools Cadet Corps made an impressive display as it went through its annual inspection day exercises.

Captain Isbister his congratulations at the completion of the thorough inspection said "I want to express my appreciation to each individual cadet for the effort he put into his drill this afternoon. Every cadet did his best to uphold the honor of his school and that earnest endeavour is worthy of the highest praise."

He expressed the satisfaction it gave him in reviewing the corps and spoke of the difficulty he had experienced in selecting the best school company. He stated that each had been excellent.

King Edward School, B. Company, was chosen by Captain Isbister as the winner of the coveted Denne Trophy, emblematic of the best cadet company in the inspection.

Douglas Mowry, company commander of the King Edward School, was presented with the cup, while the cheers of the other companies, which had each striven so hard for the same honor, rose loud in congratulation.

Repeats Success.

In winning the cup, King Edward repeats the success of last year. In fact, King Edward has possessed the cup more years than any other school in the city. Central School held the trophy in 1930, but in 1929 and 1928 King Edward held it. Altogether King Edward has earned first honors at inspection six years. One year the cup

LORD INCHCAPE DIES SUDDENLY

Famous Shipping Magnate Passes on Yacht Off Monte Carlo.

ROMANTIC CAREER.

LONDON, May 23 (C.P.). — Lord Inchcape, world-famous shipping magnate, died to-day on his yacht off Monte Carlo, said a message to his home here. He was 79 years old.

Born of Poor Parents.

James Lyle Mackay, first Earl of Inchcape, who was born in 1852, had his earliest intimate experience of the sea when, at the age of 8, he was taken for a voyage from Kirkcaldy to Archangel and back in a barque of 300 tons. Eventually he became chairman of the famous Peninsular and Oriental Line of steamships, his name being held in the deepest respect in every port of the seven seas. In his time also Lord Inchcape was a member of the Council of India. His services to the nation during the years of the war and immediately afterwards, particularly in regard to shipping matters, were prodigious in their extent and variety.

Lord Inchcape was born of poor parents in Forfarshire, and at the age of 22 landed in Bombay without influence or monetary resources. Straightway he began to carve out for himself a career as romantic as any which has been achieved in the last two generations. Before he was 40 years of age he was one of the leading me. in India, and his name was amongst the most powerful of those who "do business in great waters." Probably no man ever accepted membership of more

CLOUDBURSTS OVER ENGLAND CAUSE WORST FLOODS IN YEARS

Hundreds of Square Miles Covered—Crops Are Washed Out.

ENORMOUS DAMAGE.

LONDON, May 23.—(AP)—Hundreds of square miles of country in Central England were under water today following a series of cloudbursts and consequent overflow of rivers over the week-end. Scores of towns and villages in nine counties were swept by floods, said to be the worst in 50 years. In some cases the water rushed in torrents in the streets, breaking in shop windows, flooding dwellings and other buildings and doing an enormous amount of damage.

Farmers throughout the wide area were in a desperate plight. Their crops were washed out or submerged and great numbers of sheep, pigs and poultry were lost.

Two Who Slew Lad Will Stand Trial

DETROIT, May 23.—Authorities to-day declared themselves ready to proceed against two young men, one of them an uncle of the victim, for the killing of seven-year-old John Chomacki.

The uncle, Frank Jakimovicz, 22, prosecution officials announced, has confessed that he and Frank Kaminski, 18, were responsible for the strangling of the boy.

Police have regarded insurance carried on the lad, whose mother is a widow, as a possible motive.

McQUADE BARN SWEPT BY FIRE

Emily Township Farmer's Barn Destroyed Saturday Evening.

SECOND BARN IGNITED

OMEMEE, May 23.—(Examiner Correspondence).—Fire of unknown origin destroyed the barn and outbuildings on the farm of William McQuade, on the Lindsay-Peterborough Highway, two miles east of here early Saturday evening, causing a loss of $5,000 which is only partly covered by insurance. Mr. McQuade lost 28 hogs, five calves, a large quantity of hay, 150 bushels of wheat and considerable farm equipment. The flames spread through the buildings rapidly and the McQuade dwelling caught fire several times, but was saved. The roof of the barn on the farm of Albert McConnell on the other side of the highway was ignited and badly damaged and McConnell's house also caught fire. The flames, however, were quickly extinguished.

McQuade took over the farm a year ago and yesterday's fire will be a heavy blow, as only part of the loss is taken care of by insurance.

CRASH IS FATAL TO PEDESTRIAN

Truck Struck by Passing Car Overturns Upon Victim on Side of Road.

INQUEST UNDER WAY.

FORT ERIE, Ont., May 23.—One man was instantly killed and another injured shortly before noon to-day in a crash between an auto and a truck on the Garrison Road, about five miles west of Fort Erie.

The dead man is Nick Rusnak, aged 26, Berkeley street, Toronto. The injured is Harry Grinham, 50, of Stevensville, who suffered a fractured leg.

Rusnak was walking west along the highway against approaching traffic when killed. Grinham was driving a truck west and had two children with him in the cab of the vehicle. A car driven by Louis Douglas, Canadian Superintendent of the Peace Bridge, moved out to pass the slowly moving truck. At the same time the truck moved out a little to miss two other men, companions of Rusnak, who were walking on the opposite of the road. Douglas pulled back and apparently struck the back of the truck which rolled over twice along the road. Rusnak was struck in the crash and tossed about 20 feet.

The top of the truck was demolished but neither of the children were injured while Grinham escaped with a fractured leg. Douglas was unhurt but his car was badly smashed.

An inquest was opened this afternoon in Ridgeway by Coroner Dr. W. Stackhouse.

BLAME COUPLE FOR FIRING HOME IN BOBCAYGEON

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Forrest Are Committed for Trial on Arson Charge.

PRELIMINARY HELD.

Home Was Burned in Early Hours of Morning of April 27.

LINDSAY, May 21.—Evidence of a very sensational nature featured the preliminary hearing of the evidence in the charge of arson preferred against Frank and Dorothy Forrest in police court Saturday. The accused are residents of Bobcaygeon, coming to that village from Harvey, and the court room was filled by a large contingent from the village.

The charge arose out of a rather serious fire which occurred in the village in the early hours of April 27, during which the house occupied by Forrest as well as a section occupied by the Peters family and the Presbyterian Church sheds were destroyed. An investigation was instituted by the insurance firms interested as well as the authorities, which culminated in the arrest of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Forrest by Police Constable Nelson on the charge of arson. They were brought to Lindsay one week ago and remanded until Saturday.

County Crown Attorney Anderson conducted the prosecution, while the accused were represented by I. E. Weldon, K.C.

Mrs. Ruby McFetters, daughter of the accused, in her evidence, told of the circumstances leading to the removal of a dresser, stand and bed from the Forrest house to her home on the day before the fire. These had been given her, she swore, by her father, on the occasion of her wedding, but had been loaned to the Forrest family, who since secured bedroom furnishings of their own and no longer needed the set, set. On the night of April 26 (the day before the fire), her mother, Mrs. Forrest, had been at witness' home planning a visit to friends in Peterborough the next morning. Witness declared that her mother informed her that she had the insurance policy in her purse and always carried it on her person when going away.

Mrs. Ira Peters, who lived in a section of the house occupied by the Forrest family, in her evidence, said that just before the fire occurred Mr. Forrest had come into the house all dressed up. When the flames broke forth he helped the witness and her husband to save a table, two chairs and their clothes, but did not bother about the effects in his own section of the house. About two weeks prior to

Suicide Report Gets Press Sued

ISTANBUL, May 23 (A.P.)—The Turkish Government is bringing suit against the entire press of Istanbul for having published the news of the suicide of Ivar Kreuger, Swedish "match king" in Paris on March 12, and photographs of him.

Suicides increased so alarmingly in Turkey, owing to moral and social upheavals, that the Nationalist Government passed a law forbidding newspapers to give any publicity to any suicide. But every newspaper forgot the law when it came to the Kreuger tragedy.

Heavy fines are the penalty for violation of the law.

ITEMS RUSHED THROUGH HOUSE

Members in Generous Mood Saturday—Prorogation Likely Wednesday.

SLIM ORDER PAPER.

OTTAWA, May 23 (C.P.).—With the end of the session in view, Parliament entered the week with a slim order paper and a minimum of contentious issues. In a whirlwind finish Saturday the House appropriated hundreds of thousands of dollars in Departmental estimates. The members were in a generous mood and as quickly as they were read by the chairman, they were passed by the House.

Prorogation has been set tentatively for Wednesday and already many members have left for their homes in distant parts of the country.

Fish Day.

When estimates of the Hon. Alfred Duranleau, Minister of Fisheries, were under review, Saturday's sitting developed into a regular fish day. Maritime members referred to problems facing the fishing industry in that part of the country. The Pacific Coast was represented. Also the inland waters and even Hudson Bay in the north.

In a last-minute rush, the House passed dozens of items in Departmental estimates. Every item was passed in the Fishery Department. Then different Ministers hurried into the House to take advantage of its generous mood. Jumping from one department to another, the House passed on all but one item in every department which had not been cleared altogether. The single item was left to permit members to debate further any subject they might desire in the remaining days of the session.

Mrs. Putnam's Flight Thought New Record

PARIS, May 23 (C.P.).—Airmen here to-day estimated that Mrs. Amelia Earhart Putnam had broken the world's non-stop distance flying record for women in her flight from Newfoundland to Londonderry, Ireland.

They said her flight outdistanced by 180 miles the record of Mme. Maryse Bastie, French woman flyer, who flew 1,800 miles without a stop in June, 1931.

The record will not become official, however, until it has been passed upon by the International Aeronautic Federation here.

DEER A NUISANCE TO YORKSHIRE FARMERS

They're Hunting a Herd Escaped From Escrick Park

Leeds, Eng.—An attempt to reduce the herd of deer which escaped some weeks ago from Escrick Park and have been responsible for serious depredations on farms in the Escrick and Skipwith area, has been made with some success.

An effort was made a fortnight ago, when farmers and local sportsmen failed to secure a bag. This week, five were accounted for.

The deer, about twenty-five in number, have taken refuge in the deep woods on the outside of the estate, and it has been difficult to locate them.

ADMIRAL SAITO GIVEN CONTROL

Seveny-five Year Veteran of Two Careers Will Form New Japanese Cabinet.

ABLE ADMINISTRATOR.

TOKYO, May 23.—(AP)—Admiral Makoto Saito, 75-year-old veteran of two careers, conferred today with Japanese political leaders, preparatory to forming a cabinet to succeed that of the slain premier, Suyoshi Inukai.

The admiral was commissioned by Emperor Hirohito on recommendation of Prince Saionji to head the next government. Besides his service as a naval officer, Admiral Saito is accounted one of the empire's ablest administrators as a result of 10 years' service as governor general of Korea.

It was expected the selection of his cabinet would take several days. He planned a conference with Prince Saionji and after that it was expected he would ask the outstanding leaders of the Seiyukai and Minseito parties and of the House of Peers to take places in his new government.

Parliament convened today in extraordinary session, in accordance with a month-old summons from the late Premier Inukai. Its chief business was to consider raising further funds for the Manchurian campaign, higher tariffs and control of foreign exchange. An adjournment was taken, after a perfunctory opening session, until the new cabinet is installed.

POLITICAL SCIENCE GROUP DISCUSS UNEMPLOYMENT

TORONTO, May 23.— (C.P.) — T... causes and cures of unemployment was the general topic of discussion at the opening session this morning of the Canadian Political Science Association. Dr. S. J. Mc-Lean, a member of the Board of Railway Commissioners of Canada and President of the Association, presided and briefly welcomed the delegates.

For the first four months of 1932 the number of Canadian unemployed was estimated at more than 700,000 in a joint paper by Professors H. M. Cassidy, G. E. Jackson and A. G. Heakes, of the University of Toronto. This figure, the papers explained, referred to the extent of unemployment in the only eight branches of industry for which information was available—manufacturing, logging, mining, communications, construction and service and trade.

May Know To-night Whether He Will be Indicted for Bogus Hunt.

FAILS TO RAISE BAIL.

Officials Consider Dobson-Peacock Insignificant as Far as Probe Concerned.

HOPEWELL, N.J., May 23 (C.P.).—John Hughes Curtis may know by to-night whether he is to be indicted for his bogus bid to get the Lindbergh baby back.

The Hunterdon County Grand Jury convenes to-day and is expected to consider the case of Curtis, now in jail accused of giving false information and hindering the hunt for the kidnappers and murderers of the child.

The Norfolk man's counsel, William C. Pender, conferred with him yesterday after a trip to Philadelphia, where he was understood to have tried, without success, to raise $10,000 bail.

Seeking Bootlegger.

Col. H. Noram Schwarzkopf said the hunt was still in progress in Maryland for a New Jersey bootlegger, said to have predicted the finding of the child's body.

Schwarzkopf also said Dean H. Dobson-Peacock, whom Curtis enlisted in his "negotiations," is "considered insignificant as far as the investigation is concerned."

Dr. John F. Condon, who paid $50,000 ransom to a man in a Bronx cemetery, was expected to visit rogues' galleries in New Jersey to-day, trying to put police on the criminals' tracks.

CHICAGO, May 23—The village blacksmith is staging a comeback. Blacksmiths, who three years ago were ready to take up other lines of work, are doing a brisk business now in repairing farm machinery, it was said to-day by wholesalers of farm equipment.

The wholesalers, and officials of mail order houses, said sales to Midwest farmers of harness, machinery, repair parts and horse-drawn equipment attachments for the first five months of 1932 would likely exceed those of any period in recent years.

ST PAUL'S PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH CELEBRATES 99TH ANNIVERSARY

Rev. Dr. W. H. Leathem, of Ottawa, was the Special Preacher.

FRANK OLDFIELD SOLOIST.

The 99th anniversary of the beginning of Presbyterianism in this city was reverently observed yesterday with impressive anniversary services in St. Paul's Church. The great part that St. Paul's had played in the early history of Peterborough and the faith and stout-hearted zeal of its builders were remembered; and also the leading place the church had continued to fill with lasting benefit to the Christian life of the community which it has served so long.

In an effort to secure in more complete detail the storied history of St. Paul's and the life of those of its past congregations who so vitally aided in its endeavors for Christianity, Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr, pastor, announced yesterday the preparation of a complete history of the church. Members of the congregation were urged to assist this effort by loaning the committee in charge of the work whatever treasured data they possessed. The history will appear next year when the church begins upon the second century of its existence.

Rev. W. H. Leathem, M.A., D.D., of St. Andrew's Church, Ottawa, preached at both services yesterday. His morning message was founded upon St. Matthew, 16 chapter 18 verse, "And I say also unto thee, that thou are Peter, and upon this rock I will build my church; and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it."

Speaking of the long history of St. Paul's and the sacred memories, Dr. Leathem advised his hearers never to forget that they were a part of the great Christian Church founded 1900 years ago. During the centuries it had continued to keep burning the star of hope in humanity during long years of warfare.

The words of his text were not difficult in themselves, he said, but they had been the basis of much ecclesiastical debate, not because of the ambiguity of the words but because of the indications that might have accompanied their expression.

Such ambiguity disappeared, he said, when one gained a knowledge of the place where the words were spoken. The place was Ceasara Philipae and there built on the hill top was a temple built by Herod to the worship of Augustus Ceasar and about on the rock-strewn hillside were the traces of the emblems of worship to the Greek god, Pan. The stones of limestone and down the hillside from beneath a stone flowed a swift stream.

Limestone, stated Dr. Leathem, was deceptive but in the hour of trial it proved weak. Jesus, he interrupted, likened Peter's nature to that of the rock and he meant that he would His church upon human nature. Jesus revealed at that time that Peter was to become a witness for Him, and from him was to gush forth the river of Truth that to save mankind.

"He saw there in Peter, that one believer, the great multitude of believers that were to follow after," he stated. He interrupted that the "gates of hell" meant the two hateful worships there present.

The promise of a deathless church has been fulfilled, despite the prosecution of imperial Rome and others who had striven to destroy it, and the message of Christ has also remained deathless.

Large congregations attended both services and heard the fine voice of Frank Oldfield, of Toronto, in several selected solos that made a deep impression. The large choir also sang specially prepared anthems under the leadership of M. B. Chenhall, A.R.C.O.

the fire, Forrest had declared that he did not like the house because of the absence of windows on two sides of it. Mrs. Forrest, about two weeks before the fire, had asked witness, "How much would you take and burn the house the first time we are away?" There were no other person present when Mrs. Forrest made the statement. She swore that she had heard Mrs. Forrest say previous to that, that she wished the house would burn down.

The witness was subjected to a gruelling cross-examination at the hands of Mr. Weldon, but adhered to her story. "What did you say," asked Mr. Weldon, "when Mrs. Forrest made this proposition to you?" Witness replied: "I said nothing." Her husband had been asked by Forrest at one time to put insurance on his contents in order to burn the house.

J. A. Campbell of Bobcaygeon, who lives about seventy-five or eighty feet from where the Forrest home stood, stated that he looked out of his window, about 1.15 o'clock on the morning of April 27th, and saw the fire. It seemed to be centered in the Forrest section. He rang the fire bell and called the brigade.

Orville Culbert of Lindsay, insurance agent, stated that his company carried $1,000 insurance on the house, payable to F. J. Carew of Lindsay, who held a mortgage on the building.

Ira Peters, in his evidence, stated that last fall, Forrest had approached him and suggested that he get out insurance on the contents of his section. He replied that he was always careful of fire. Forrest came back with the statement that he could get $400 or $500 insurance very cheap. In case of a fire he could get sufficient money to buy a building lot from him. Some six weeks before the fire, witness declared that Forrest had again approached him and said: "Why don't you get your contents insured and burn the damn place?"

It was brought out by the Crown during the proceedings that the Forrests carried $1,200.00 insurance on their contents.

Magistrate Jordan bound the accused over to appear at the next court of competent jurisdiction.

G. B. Hay, insurance adjustor, of Toronto, and F. Bass, representing the Fire Underwriters' Association, were present in the court.

Sparks Ignite Roof Campbellford Home

(Examiner Correspondent)

CAMPBELLFORD, May 23. — Sparks from a hot stove ignited the roof of the kitchen of a dwelling owned by Archie Hatfield, Sebastopol and Palliser Streets, about nine o'clock last night. Before the fire was extinguished, a large part of the roof was burned. Neighbors first noticed it while returning from church and sent in an alarm. The prompt response of the local fire brigade was responsible for the saving of the rest of the dwelling.

The damage was not very great, only the roof of the kitchen and the interior suffering from fire and water, and this is covered by insurance. Mr. Hatfield has finished shingling the rest of the roof but had not yet started on the kitchen. The fire was believed to have been caused by sparks from the fire in the kitchen range going up the chimney and catching on the dry shingles. Mr. Hatfield is driver of the Brighton-Campbellford stage.

NEW LIGHT GROWS GREEN APPLES RED

Experts Put Crimson Blush on Fruits By Means of Ultra-Violet Rays.

Green apples are now grown a bright red at the Boyce Thompson Institute for Plant Research, at Yonkers, N. Y. This amazing feat is accomplished by means of the ultra-violet lamp, in the rays of which the green apple is transformed. The process, originated by Dr. John M. Arthur, has far-reaching commercial possibilities and is expected to prove of enormous value to the American fruit growers.

Apple consumers like their fruit red, and the blushing, scarlet-streaked varieties always command the highest prices in the market. Many apples ripen to a white juiciness inside but retain the green skin that makes small appeal to the eye. Hereafter the miracle-working method of Dr. Arthur may be extended to the entire yield of an orchard, and the apples, green by Nature, will be ripened to a fascinating crimson as the magic light plays upon them. Indeed, the plant wizards, beating Nature at her own game, can give the green apple an even, brilliant red all around, while the apple colored by the sun will be darkly stained on one side and fade to an unattractive pink on the other.

With only the sun to color them, apples need all the summer months to acquire their red, but with his ultra-violet lamp Dr. Arthur can give the greenest apple a rosy hue in forty-eight hours and in no way impair its natural flavor. The only apparatus required is the lamp, a pane of glass that transmits ultra-violet rays, and a refrigerator chamber in which to keep the apples cool during the process. Simple as it seems, it was only through patient experiment with a myriad light sources and color filters that Dr. Arthur found the particular rays responsible for the mysterious transformation of the fruit and learned how to use them.

Since the Boyce Thompson Institute is an endowed, non-profit making organization, the new process of coloring apples will be presented as a gift to the world, as have been its many achievements in the past.

Meanwhile its experimenters press on with other important and novel investigations. Plants are grown upside down. Flower pots travel along a railway, following a spot of sunlight from a huge lens in a greenhouse roof. An instrument resembling a spectroscope is used to imprint a rainbow pattern upon a leaf. Into a room full of vegetation coal gas is piped, and the plants thrive on it. A rosebush droops and withers under a bell jar filled with illuminating gas. Fantastic though they seem, all these experiments have a well-planned purpose.

Leakage of illuminating gas from pipes in green houses causes a staggering loss to nurserymen by poisoning their plants. "We have found a way to detect it," Dr. William Crocker, director of the Institute, explained, "as effective as the canaries that miners carry down shafts to warn them of gas peril. The humble tomato plant is our lookout. So sensitive is this 'botanical canary bird' that it will detect one part of gas in 100,000 parts of air and warn of danger by dropping its leaves."

Not satisfied with learning how to guard against it, the Boyce Thompson experts want to know just how illuminating gas poisons plants. It was Dr. Crocker who conceived the unconventional notion of growing plants upside down while gassing them. His associates were first amused, then surprised. Inverted, the plants were immune to poison!

Youth Ends His Life During Plane Ride

CHICAGO, May 23.—Several thousand feet above the city of Chicago a youth killed himself in an airplane yesterday, because his dreams of becoming an aviator had come to naught. He shot himself to death.

The youth was 19-year-old Ernest Lenkyel, of Suburban Forest Park, a messenger boy employed in Oak Park, who took a $3 sight-seeing ride in the plane and then as the pilot was about to descend, fired a bullet from a saved off rifle into his left temple.

Financial difficulties which prevented him from realizing his ambition to become a pilot, caused the youth to brood, members of his family said.

Several highway projects were started in Cirenaica and Tripolitania, Libya, in the last year.

I.O.O.F. LODGE GO TO CHURCH

Rev. R. C. Tait Speaks on Significance of Handclasp —Rebekahs Also Attend.

AT CAMPBELLFORD.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 23. (By Examiner Staff Correspondent).—A splendid sermon on "The True Significance of a Handclasp" as applied to Christian friendship was preached yesterday evening in St. John's United Church, Campbellford, by the Rev. R. C. Tait when a large congregation gathered to worship with Independent Order of Oddfellows and the Loch Lomond Rebekah Lodges when they attended divine service. Besides the local lodges many visiting bretheren and sisters were present.

Mr. Tait took for his text 2nd Kings, 10-15, "And when Jehu was departed thence he lighted on Jehonadab coming to meet him and he saluted him and said, Is thine heart right as my heart is with thine. And he said, It is—And he gave him his hand—".

The setting of the text the preacher said was that Jehu had been annointed king, and he was seeking the security and loyalty of his friends. This was signified in the handclasp. It was the meeting of two great souls swayed by the same purpose. And we, like Jehu, should have the honest determination to carry into life what we believe. The handclasp to us should mean friendship, the giving of a pledge of fidelity one to the other. History had been marked by many great friendships he stated, all of which had been bound up with God and His Son, Jesus Christ.

Christ, Mr Tait said, had always interpretated religion in terms of human relationships. To show the type of meaning of the fatherhood of God he had taken the beauty of home life. His own relationship with man he had called in the term of shepherd, master and teacher, but in these instances there was a great division between the term and man, despite the beauty of the symbol. But on that last night he came to the ultimate definition of religion when He stated "Ye are my friends" said the preacher.

Friendship

The first link in the Oddfellow's chain, Mr. Tait said, was Friendship. This taught us many lessons. It gives us a great joy in life for God comes to us through our friends. It was also the force that defends us against our enemies and through our friendships our own characters are helped, because the high use of friendship evokes within us the finer characteristics. And friendship is sacrificial for it has no jealously and envy but only help and joy in another's advancement.

But we must remember, he said, that in the heights of joy or depths of sorrow, when human friendships cannot reach us, the friendship of Jesus does. Jesus also defends us against our enemies as no earthly friend can. And the sacrifice of Jesus as friend is symbolic of calvary. "You will be better Oddfellows if you are better Christions" he declared, saying that before all things we all should belong to the order of friends of Christ.

The musical portion of the service consisted of a duet, "Love Divine," (Stainer) by Mrs. H. O. Richardson and G. W. Lucy; and H. Donald and organ selections by A. Hazell.

IS LIFE BEST FOR MAN OR FOR WOMAN?

Fascinating Question Discussed by Elinor Glyn and Others in London

London.—Who gets the best out of life, man or woman? This intriguing question was discussed after dinner at the Arts Theatre Club. Here are some of the views expressed:

Elinor Glyn: Men have much the greater chances, not altogether on their merits, but because of their unique opportunity in having been lords of creation since Adam gave up a rib.

Mr. Gilbert Frankau: Men have no chance at all. The result of Adam giving up a rib was that he was turned out of the garden. He was happy until Eve arrived.

"John Presland" (Mrs. Skelton): Women never get justice in this world. They either get more than justice or less.

Mr. Justice McCardie (summing up): Men have a far greater range than women. But don't think I don't like women—I adore them. A schoolgirl, he said, once wrote: "Both men and women sprang from apes, but women sprang much further." Could this debate have been held in 1832? In 1832 woman was the creature of man. In 1932 man is the creature of woman.

MAKE IT A SAFE HOLIDAY.

With the first holiday of the summer season to-morrow and the usual conditions that prevail when people take to the outdoors, comes the necessity for a note of caution.

Holiday outings are often marred by accidents; the highways are crowded with motor traffic, boats are being used for the first time on river and lake, and Victoria Day fireworks carry their own element of danger.

Under these circumstances carelessness frequently carries a terrible penalty; speed or cutting-in or similar recklessness at the wheel of an automobile, a little horse-play in a boat or careless handling of dangerous explosives—any one of these things is likely to have a disastrous ending.

It should be everybody's business to make to-morrow a safe and sane holiday, and it can be done if people generally will recognize the fact that more than usual care is necessary to avert accidents.

Drive with caution and some thought for the rights of others, be careful if you go on the water, and give intelligent supervision to the fireworks display the younger members of the family will demand as a fitting ending to Victoria Day.

If you follow such a program to-morrow you will contribute materially to a safe observation of the occasion.

EMPIRE DAY.

Throughout the Dominion May 23rd is observed as Empire Day, although with the exception of patriotic ceremonies in the schools there is practically nothing to mark the occasion.

This year, above all others, Canadians might well be expected to turn their thoughts to Empire matters in view of the fact that in a few weeks prominent statesmen from all parts of the far-flung British Commonwealth will gather at Ottawa, guests of this Dominion, to consider plans for knitting the Empire closer together in trade relationships.

If the Imperial Economic Conference should prove to be a total loss so far as the objects for which it is being convened are concerned, it would nevertheless be decidedly worth while from a Canadian viewpoint because it will bring the vastness and the wealth of natural resources of this country before a most representative group of Empire political leaders and serve as a most valuable object lesson to the illustrious delegates.

Empire Day 1932 is, therefore, a most fitting time for Canadians to grow Empire-minded, to realize the importance of improving Empire trade relations, and to decide that as individuals they shall be worthy of the traditions that are their heritage.

UNEMPLOYMENT RELIEF.

It is complained that Premier Henry's statement in regard to the continuance of relief on the part of the Government was made with an eye on the by-election campaign in West York.

Possibly it was, because one of the municipalities mentioned as about to receive special consideration is situated within that riding, but so far as the Province generally is concerned the important thing is what the Premier said and not why he said it.

The situation as regards unemployment relief has given grave concern to municipal authorities, more particularly in those centres whose financial resources have been virtually exhausted, and the announcement that the Provincial and Federal Governments are not only to continue to pay two-thirds of the cost of direct relief but that in certain cases where the financial plight of a municipality is obvious and where the calls for assistance are unusually numerous the whole burden will be assumed, will be decidedly welcome.

Mr. Henry makes it clear that there is to be no more Government assistance toward providing work, but the administration of direct relief will be aided in the proportion mentioned.

Individual municipalities are invited to discuss their problems with the Ontario Government so that the extent to which assistance will have to be given may be determined.

The Premier's statement will relieve a good deal of the uneasiness that has prevailed for some time.

THE CADET MOVEMENT.

The Examiner's belief in the cadet movement has been so often and so clearly stated that we have no fear of being understood when we say that we are more or less in sympathy with those who opposed the vote for cadet training in the House of Commons the other day, although our reasons may not be identical with their views.

We have always ridiculed the idea that cadet training developed a militaristic frame of mind, and we have always endorsed it as a form of physical exercise that helped to make boys more manly and at the same time gave them some much-needed idea of discipline.

Under ordinary conditions, therefore, The Examiner is a consistent supporter of the cadet system.

It seems to us, however, that at a period like this when strict economy is required of all our public spending bodies and when many important services are being curtailed that the appropriation for cadet instruction might be very materially reduced.

To save money by dispensing with the services of experienced aviators whose training has been an expensive matter and then to devote the amount saved in this way to drilling school cadets is not good business.

If something must be sacrificed—and there is no doubt of that—then surely it would be better to keep our flying service efficient and abandon the training of school boys.

Make it a safe and sane holiday. Be careful on the highway, on river or lake, and in your handling of dangerous fireworks.

DIFFICULTIES OF MODERN GOVERNMENT.

In its "Monthly Review," the Bank of Nova Scotia has an article on the present-day difficulties of government which is so sensible and so true, we wish it could be read and pondered by every citizen of Canada. Thus:

"There was a time, not long ago, when democratic governments faced simple issues. So long as the problems before electorates had to do mainly with extension of the suffrage, with the removal of religious disabilities and with the breakdown of inherited privilege, the voter was confronted with a limited number of straightforward questions, to which, by marking his ballot appropriately, he replied with a plain 'Yes' or 'No.' The questions themselves were within his comprehension; his answers could, with no great difficulty, be translated into law.

"To-day this is no longer so. The most important questions which governments and the peoples who support them now face are not political but economic. They are concerned, not with suffrage, but with the direction of industry; not with religious disabilities, but with the gold standard; not with inherited privilege, but with restrictions upon the freedom of trade. Anything that is done with reference to these problems involves intricate and detailed questions of administration. Whatever decisions are made and carried out, the reactions to them are complex, and affect every detail of the national life. The most important consequences of any policy may well prove to be, not those that were foreseen by the framers of policy, but those that were unexpected.

"The successful working of democratic institutions is thus infinitely more difficult at present, alike for the voters and their representatives, than at any time since democratic government began. A system that functioned with comparative ease and smoothness in the nineteenth century, now functions under great strain in the twentieth. In a number of western countries, young and old, in Europe and elsewhere, democracy has been succeeded by dictatorship. Democratic institutions are still intact in many countries. But even in certain of these, it is becoming increasingly clear that legislative machinery designed for the formulation of public opinion in normal times, on issues not of an emergency character, gives insufficient scope to leadership in a great economic crisis."

All of us are prone to exalt the "giants of other years," to contrast public men of the present, and unfavorably, with the Gladstones and the Disraelis, the Macdonalds and the Lauriers of a bygone age. Yet the truth is that the statesmen of fifty or twenty years ago faced nothing like the problems which are a part of government to-day. Up to 1914, when the war came to change everything, Canada had a total net debt of about $350,000,000. We knew nothing of the income tax, of the sales tax, of a score of other taxes. Revenue came almost solely from customs; our budget, but a fraction of what it is now, was easily balanced; we knew nothing of war pensions or of old age pensions; never heard or bothered about such things as the gold standard, or exchange, or gigantic railway deficits, or the complex problems of marketing and world trade. Our Governments simply kept the peace, were seldom called upon to go into business or to interfere with business, collected customs revenue, used it to build public works, never bothered their heads about foreign exchanges, or monetary and credit problems, or about foreign trade.

It is different to-day. We have a debt of $2,400,000,000; a war pensions bill of $55,000,000 a year; enormous interest charges; an appalling railway problem; a procession of difficulties in taxation, transportation, marketing, and in the field of foreign trade. No nation to-day can live by or unto itself. War debts and reparations, the condition of foreign exchanges and of foreign markets—all these things have their repercussions here; all affect our trade and our exchange and finance. Affect our workers and wage-earners, our professional people and small traders. Make difficulties for our Governments.

The lesson of it all, we suggest, is this: that none of us should be too easily critical, or too superior or too contemptuous in writing or speaking of our public men. Criticism, just and constructive criticism, will always be desirable, and independence of mere party programs and action will always be good. But let none of us think that independence is constituted by mere carping criticism, or by attacks that may rise out of mere malice, or that we are helping ourselves or democratic government by merely being censorious, or by assuming that our public men should be perfect, or that they are nearly always wrong.

Above all, we should try to be fair. It was Henry James we think who laid it down that without sportsmanship and a sense of fairness democracy could not exist. And that is true. Democracy does imply that we be decent and try to do justly, that we be prepared to abide by the verdict of the majority, and that we play the political game according to fair rules. The men who are governing us—and this is true of all parties and of the majority in Parliament—are on the whole able and honest men, men who are anxious to do well for their party and their country and for their own families' good name. And while it is well that there should be an alert, vigilant and informed public opinion to criticize and disapprove of any injustice or wrong that may arise, it is equally necessary or at least desirable that there be decent appreciation of what is good, an effort to avoid mere bigotry in partisanship, or mere crude and ignorant attacks upon public men, no matter what their party.

These things, some may say, are but platitudes; but they are platitudes that are too frequently forgotten; and forgetfulness of them at the present time is a poor thing for democracy and for Canada.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Fly your flags to-morrow and Wednesday for Victoria Day and the reception to His Excellency the Governor-General.

The world will take off its hat, please, to Amelia Earhart Putnam, the first woman to bridge the Atlantic Ocean in a solo flight.

It is claimed that in one Western Ontario county there are eleven rural school trustees who cannot write their own names. There must be a decidedly efficient administration of educational matters in that county!

ANSWERS FAIR PLAY

The Editor, The Examiner.

Dear sir:

Replying to a letter in your paper entitled "Fishing" and signed by Fair Play, we fail to see where this party has stated any concrete facts which he considers faults in the fish laws. Any laws that are made by the Government has been given very careful consideration before being put into effect and are solely for the purpose of insuring a continued supply of fish and game.

No waters can stand the strain of having fish taken without restocking and especially in the natural way, by closing the season during spawning, hence the new pickerel law.

In regard to the tourist traffic, Fair Play admits that they are welcomed by the merchants of the province and they pay for the privilege of fishing by license and rightly so, and as we are residents we have a better chance to take fish and game than they have.

The statement made by Fair Play that he saw dozens of lunge and a large quantity of bass being shipped back to the United States by campers does not show him to be the sportsman he claims to be, otherwise he would have reported this to the authorities as any shipment made has to be accompanied by coupon, which is attached to the license and cannot exceed two legal days catch.

We would also suggest that Fair Play, who is a believer in sportsmanship, join our Association and help in the work we are doing to make good fishing for all.

Yours truly,

S. J. BLACK,
President,
Peterborough Fish and Game Association.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, May 23.—Receipts of butter and eggs at Montreal last week were less than the previous week. The decline on eggs was not unexpected, it having been realized that the peak of production in Canada for this season apparently has passed. Butter receipts, on the other hand, are due at this time of the year to show substantial weekly increases, and a decrease is most abnormal. Late spring weather and a swing in some parts to cheese-making are held responsible. Stocks of butter are reported at record lows. The week's arrivals, with comparisons with the previous week, were: Eggs, cases, 17,039, 20,408; butter, boxes, 10,040, 11,100; cheese, boxes, 10,207, 6,512.

Exports of cheese from Montreal were very light, only 1,777 boxes for the week, bringing the season's shipments to date to 15,547 boxes, against 15,712 boxes a year ago at this time. There were no butter exports during the week, and only 295 boxes have been shipped this season, compared with 4,739 at the same date last year.

Butter ended the week firm, at 16¾c to 17c per lb., fractionally above the previous Saturday, for No. 1 finest, in cariots or less. Cheese was fractionally weaker on the same comparison, at 8¾c to 9c per lb. Eggs were about steady. The general market for cariots or less of Ontarios and Prairies was 17½c for extras, 14½c for firsts and 13c for seconds, graded.

The potato market was steady.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, May 23.—For the first time in a long while, the wheat market Saturday scored a substantial advance despite bearish cable reports.

Increasingly sensational crop damage developments in regard to United States winter wheat led to broader speculative buying, with the market at the last outdoing the topmost previous limit since April 27. Nebraska and Kansas crop advices were worse than any heretofore this season, and were supplemented by disturbing reports from Illinois and Indiana.

Wheat closed strong, ¾ to 1¼ cents above Friday's finish; corn, ¼ to ¾ cents up; oats varying from ½ decline to ¾ advance, and provisions unchanged to 10 cents higher.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, May 23. — Adverse weather reports and further setbacks to winter wheat crops in the United States south-west, gave late session strength to grain prices in the pit on Saturday, and values closed ¼c to ⅝c higher for the short week-end session.

May closed at 63½c, July at 64⅝c, and October at 66¼c.

Influenced at theopening by a weakened stock market and easier Liverpool cables, prices sagged in the initial hour. Later reports of active buying by New York and reports of increasing damage to the crops in the winter wheat belt soon overcame opening weakness and prices climbed steadily to reach the high levels.

Nothing of interest was uncovered in the cash wheat and coarse grain sections. Prices closed unchanged to a shade easier.

President Of Warner Picture Concern Made $9,251,000 In Company's Stock

WASHINGTON, May 23 (C.P.)—Harry M. Warnerfi president of Warner Brothers, moving picture concern, was charged before the United States Senate Banking Committee to-day with making $9,251,000 in buying and silling stock of his own company during 1930.

William A. Gray, committee counsel, had previously announced he wanted to question Warner about dealings in the stock of his own company.

Before Warner was called, Senator Brookhart, Iowa, asked Gray to have Richard Whitney, president of the Exchange, present to the committee a pool operation which he considered honest.

"I want to know whether there is anything honest in this institution," Brookhart said.

"Have you made money?" Senator Cousens (R. Mich.) asked Warner.

"We have."

"More than in the manipulation of stocks?"

"Everything we made, we made out of the development of pictures," Warner said.

He testified that he had bought stocks, however.

Cousens said he wanted to know whether they were more interested in the manipulation of stocks than development of the company.

Gray, as the committee counsel, said he expected to prove Warner had profited $9,251,000 in 1930 in buying and selling the stocks of his own company. He said the selling was when "journals were boosting the value of the stock before the public" and the buying was when the newspapers began to depress the price.

"I am going to establish," Gray said, "that this man through undercover channels and by covering up his transactions sold his stock while certain journals were boosting the value before the public."

Quoting Him Direct

Lord Jeffrey was once addressing a jury, and had occasion to mention frequently a major who was a witness in the case, and kept on describing him as "this soldier."

The major got annoyed and called out: "Don't call me a soldier, sir, I am an officer."

"Well, gentlemen of the jury," proceeded Jeffrey, "this officer, who, according to his own statement, is no soldier, etc."

The laughter in court was instantly suppressed.—Montreal Star.

"Oh, you never mind that," said the baker; "it won't be so heavy to carry."

"All right," said the boy, putting twopence halfpenny on the counter and walking to the door.

The baker called after him: "Here, boy. I want another halfpenny."

"Never mind that," said the boy; "it will be less for you to count."—Illustrated Bits.

SON OF THE GODS

By REX BEACH

INSTALMENT 26.

Prior to his divorce Albert Wagner had enjoyed a certain amount of home life but thereafter he had experienced little, and of late none at all. As a result he was beginning to yearn for it. That California estate of his was expensive to maintain and he loved living there, but during the past year he had scarcely been permitted to see it, for Alanna had kept him on the go and she had been content to remain in one spot hardly long enough for him to receive his mail.

If ever there was a stormy petrel, a pigwidgeon blown on the wings of a tempest, it was she and Wagner could not make out what had come over her. She made a thousand plans and changed them all. One day, for instance, she had refused to leave Paradis, the next day she had insisted upon leaving without a moment's delay: she had arranged to spend a season of gaiety in New York only to change her mind overnight and decide on California.

Alanna was never twice the same and yet she had the power to wrap him around her fingers. One moment she was loving and lovable, the next she was harsh and hateful. She was obedient and rebellious, humble and domineering by turns and always she was as restless as some Peri doing penance until it could be admitted into Paradise.

They were back in New York again, why nobody knew. The Wagner suite at the Ambassador was like a madhouse, maids and bell boys were on the run, some one of the several phones was constantly ringing with a clamor as irritating as a neuralgic pain. Lunches, teas, dinners, dances, theaters, all night parties, polo, races: her hours were too short to accommodate her overlapping engagements.

Wagner had set out to keep pace with her for once and she had been delighted to have him do so. She had swept him along for a while, then spurred him on when he faltered and finally roweled him into a gallop until his breath failed and he dropped hopelessly behind.

It was not often that he saw his daughter long enough to engage her in conversation, for she was always late—permanently late, as Wagner put it—for something or other, and she was seldom alone. Some male orchid was usually adroop over her shoulder, or some shrill-voiced neurasthenic of her own sex was shrieking at her to "make it snappy," "step on it," "give it the gun."

Occasionally there did come a chance for a word with Alanna, as, for instance, one night when she returned home about twelve o'clock. For once she looked exhausted, and her father was encouraged to believe there must be a limit even to her endurance.

"Well, well, well!" he began cheerily. "You certainly look rotten. In your dragging feet and haggard face I see hopeful signs of a physical collapse. How much longer do you think you can keep this up."

"How much longer can I keep what up, jelly bean?"

"This—dementia."

"Bless you, I m just getting up a comfortable glow. What about a kiss? Don't rise: I can make it.

"I wish you were an old lady. Aren't you ever going to settle down?'

"Horrors, no!"

"I wish one of these germs would marry you. I'd accept the worst one in the outfit."

"No danger. The more I consider matrimony, the better I like diphtheria. No, I shall never marry. I am content to remain at your side, a constant cheer and comfort."'

Wagner leaped to his feet and strode about the room, followed by the almost derisive gaze of his daughter. Up to this point he had risen to her banter as best he could, but now a change came over him and when he spoke it was in an altered tone:

"I've an idea it's all due to that infernal Chinaman. '

"Don't let's talk about him," said Alanna.

"Why not?' The father drew down his brows in a scowl; for a moment the two stared at each other.

There was a pause. Without rising, Alanna reached forth her hand, lifted the telephone and called a number.

"What are you doing? Who are you ringing at this time of night?'

"Sam Lee, ' said the girl.

Albert Wagner gasped, he moved as if to snatch the instrument but Alanna turned her shoulder, her eyes widened, an expression leaped into her face that warned him to keep his distance. Of a suden she had grown as white as paper.

"You—know his number! You've called him before! '

She nodded. "I looked it up when we came from Europe, and I've repeated it to myself a hundred thousand times. I called him, but he had gone to China."

"What are you going to say to him?"

"I don t know. If you move or make a sound, I'll tell him to come and get me."

"Alanna! For the love of Heaven!"

"Smother me with a pillow! Shake it out of me! I warned you not to threaten. . . . I—I want to hear his voice. I want to know he's there. I was half crazy when I came in and you. . . . Hello!"

Through the silence Wagner heard a faint, metallic answer.

"Is that you, Sam? This is Alanna. Oh, that explains it! But why sleep at this hour? Sam, you've been dissipating." The girl laughed hysterically, she was shaking, her face was strained, her eyes were wild. . . . "I don't know why, I'm sure. I never have a reason for doing things. Impulse probably. I want to see you. Yes, that's it, I want to see you. . . . But —there's something I must say. . . . Father and I have been quarreling over you."

Wagner shuddered, he felt a moisture start out upon his body.

Alanna went on, utterly heedless of him now:

"Oh, not a serious quarrel! Just our usual bedtime battle. Nothing like a few fast rounds to make you sleep. . . . Please, Sam . . . Why? Because I ask it. Isn't that enough? . . . We're at the Ambassador. Please! . . . Any time to-morrow. Whenever you say. . . . Thanks, old dear. I'll expect you."

'Oh, my God! ' the father exclaimed feebly.

That midnight message shook Sam and he slept no more after its receipt. When morning came he experienced a peculiar indecision: he looked forward with dismay to seeing Alanna again and yet the thought of doing so set his pulses to racing madly, stopped his breath. Well, he wouldn't go . . . And yet she had begged him. She was capable of anger but not of deliberate malice: perhaps she really had something of importance to say. To change his mind now would be a confession of weakness. Torn by unruly desires, hot with resentment, cold with dread of the ordeal, he spent the morning in a restless pacing of his rooms.

When the hour he had set arrived he went swiftly, eagerly, as he had known he would go.

Sam had named a time when the hotel lounge was likely to be least crowded and at his request Alanna met him there. Had he been less agitated when she came down the change in her appearance would have shocked him, for she was thin and drawn, there were ghosts in her eyes.

It required courage on her part to meet him but, as usual, she came to him as straight as an arrow in its flight. She put an icy hand in his and she met his gaze bravely. He was unusually pale; through his pallor the old mark of her crop stood out like a scar and for a moment she could not see anything else.

It was the worst experience either of them had ever endured: when it was over they seated themselves and exchanged commonplaces.

Only for Sam's inward struggle, his painful pre-occupation with himself, he surely would have noticed the girl's wistful yearning, for her self-possession was like a mask of gauze. As time went on, however, she managed to assert better control over herself, and to take refuge behind an artificial flippancy.

"I assume you go out as much as ever?"

"Um-m, yes. Father says it's as much as ever that I come in. That's hardly just for I'm seldom late for breakfast. Why, Sam, I broke a solemn engagement to see you and do my penance —— Oh, don't go! For the first time in a long while I'm in good company and it's helping me. Tell me something about yourself."

"I went to China with the remains of my father. It was a painful duty but I laid them to rest in the happiest spot in all that country."

"I gathered, somehow, that you intended staying there."

"So I had intended. But China wouldn't have me. Certain metals can't be made to fuse, you know, and it's the same with certain racial elements. It seems to make no difference whether they're inherited or acquired."

"I presume that's true, but I wouldn't think it applied to your case." Sam explained how it did apply, and the girl nodded her complete comprehension. "What a pity! How unreasonable it is—all this prejudice. And yet how real."

Alanna was staring fixedly at her companion; she roused herself and abruptly changed the subject. "Dad was in the room last night when I called you and it threw him into complete mental and digestive disorder. He's out yonder now, foaming like one of Wagner's Velvet Shaving Sticks. Funny, isn't it, how parents will clutch at the wheel and risk ditching the whole family? They're all back-seat drivers."

"I would be honored to have him join us."

Alanna shook her head at this. "Repentance is a chastener. Besides, this is probably the last time we'll ever see each other, so don't let's break up the meeting in a row.

As a matter of fact, if Mr. Wagner had overheard the conversation between the two young people, as he longed to do, he would have felt much easier in his mind, for they held the reins tight. Alanna maintained her flippant pose; Sam remained artificially polite and casual. So far, at least, the girl pretended that this meeting was a voluntary penance on her part, and nothing more; he gave no hint that he suspected otherwise. It was a painful game of make-believe and each realized that they were saying farewell, hence they were slow in bringing it to an end.

"On the night you left Paradis I went to Cyril Bathurst's place and waited for him," she announced in a desperate effort to prevent a pause which might induce Sam to go. "He may have written you about it." Sam shook his head. "That's probably because he told me exactly what he thought of me and couldn't bring himself to repeat it. He misunderstood me, of course, as everybody does. I'd like you to understand, before we turn the page, that I'm not quite as bad as I appear.

More gravely than he had spoken heretofore, Sam said: "I have never misunderstood you.

A silence fell between the two. Realizing its danger, he rose and said good-bye.

Grief looked out of Alanna's eyes as she put her hand in his and murmured through trembling lips:

"Good-bye. '

Without moving she watched him go, then she rose, went swiftly upstairs and locked herself into her room. For two days her father neither saw her nor heard her voice. Meals were brought up and sent back untouched, her telephone rang unanswered. But Wagner knew she could not be sick for whenever he knocked on her door she threw something at it.

Two Drown, Cyclist Dies in Crash With Fire Truck.

BOY MISSING.

MONTREAL, May 23 (C.P.). — Three deaths, two from drowning and one from a street mishap, were reported in the province over the week-end. A four-year-old boy disappeared from his home in Montreal and has not been found.

Andre Martel, 25, of La Tuque, was drowned in the Croche River, five miles from La Tuque, when his boat overturned, as he was getting into it.

Gustave Richer, well-known Montreal commercial traveller, was drowned while fishing at St. Donat, near Cap Bertrand. He was cast suddenly lost balance and fell into the lake.

Crushing his skull as he was hurled to the pavement as the result of a collision between his motorcycle and a fire-pump truck which was answering a false alarm, Georges Legault, 35, was instantly killed.

was held in partnership with Central School, both corps being ranked equal in the drill.

Central School again to-day was close on the heels of the winning school in the excellence of their work being declared second in the competition. Queen Mary and Queen Alexandra were tied for third place.

Some 300 boys, representing the older boys of the six public schools, were in uniform for the great event to-day. They went through the arduous drill with a snap and a vim that brought forth rounds of applause from the hundreds of spectators.

The march past to the sound of the Peterborough Collegiate Cadet Corps bugle band was impressive, the long ranks surging past in perfect step and order.

Physical Exercises.

Besides the difficult and intricate company drill, the whole battalion was put through physical exercises. Leslie Burton, of King George School, gave the commands for these exercises.

Ward Wright, of Central School, was battalion commander for the inspection, and he also commanded the Central School Company.

The officers and companies were:

B Company, King Edward School, 65 cadets; commander, Douglas Mowry; platoon officers, L. Hiscox, A. Heal and L. Grosse.

Queen Mary School, 41 cadets, commander, Joseph Leith, platoon officers, Grant Clark and Adolph LeClair.

Queen Alexandra School, 60 cadets, commander, Eric West; platoon officers, Clifford Morrow and Lloyd Ash.

Following the parade the battalion was drawn up and the individual cadets were presented with prizes for target shooting.

TORONTO. — William Harvey, Toronto, was sentenced to two years in Portsmouth penitentiary for car theft to-day. Harvey was warned by Magistrate R. J. Browne some months ago that if he ever appeared before the magistrate again, two years would be the sentence. He was arrested last night while driving another stolen automobile.

LAKE SHORE UP 10 ON QUIET MARKET

Teck-Hughes Sold at $3.40, Being Up a Couple of Points.

TORONTO, May 23.—(CP)—Preholiday feeling and absence of members and traders taking the long week-end resulted in a quiet session on the Standard Stock and Mining exchange market in the forenoon today, with price action firm though confined.

Trading in higher-priced stocks was limited to odd-lot transactions. Lake Shore turned over at $27 up 10, and Teck-Hughes sold at $3.40, up a couple, though a few small blocks changed hands around noon at slightly lower levels.

Kirkland Lake gold saw increased volume at 21, off a fraction, and Sylvanite and Ribago showed small recessions.

Base metal shares, while inactive, displayed a somewhat stronger tendency, International Nickel selling up 10 at $5.50; Noranda 5 at $14.56 and Hudson Bay a couple at $1.10. Homestead off a cent to 13, recorded the only change in the oil section.

Bank Shares Strong Montreal Gains Five

TORONTO, May 23. — (CP) — Stocks moved in a narrow range in typical pre-holiday trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Price changes were small, and for the most part, unimportant.

A favorable factor was the strength in bank shares. Montreal added about five points, while smaller gains were recorded by most of the other issues, with the exception of Royal, which sold about a point lower.

Bell Telephone, Brazilian, and C. P. R. sold lower, but other utilities were unchanged. Ford, about the only industrial to change, gained half a point.

Food, beverage, mining and oil shares were practically unchanged.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

TORONTO EXCHANGE.

TORONTO, May 23 (C.P.). — Typical pre-holiday in its appearance, Toronto Stock Exchange recorded few changes of note to-day. Bell Telephone was soft and down a point at 88 at the close. C.P.R. at 11⅞ was off ¼ point, and Brazilian just slightly lower at ⅛. On the other hand, B.C. Power A gained ½ point, Ford of Canada and Smelters each ½ point, and Consolidated Bakeries, International Nickel lesser amounts.

There was a much better tone to the bank stocks with Bank of Montreal up 5 points and Bank of Nova Scotia up a like amount, the greater part of the day, although the bid was lowered again towards the close. Royal was slightly lower and the others unchanged.

Oils continued to drift just above the same level. Changes of ¼ and moved back and filled and firmed ¼ point occurred as the market again.

Walkers Common and Preferred left off unchanged, and beverage issues generally enjoyed a firm although non-active market.

STANDARD EXCHANGE

TORONTO, May 23 (C.P.)—Trading interest broadened a little on the Standard Stock and Mining Exchange Market in the afternoon to-day and price action continued firm to slightly higher. Volume remained light, however, with trade in higher-priced issues confined to odd-lot transactions.

Dome was in renewed demand and up 25 on end, Hollinger gained 5, and Wright-Hargreaves and Teck-Hughes sold up a couple each. Kirkland Lake Gold, fairly heavily traded, finished with a fractional advance and McLeod River was somewhat higher.

Base metal issues developed some buoyancy, Noranda and Nickel advancing 25 apiece and Hudson Bay recovering 7 to $1.15. Silvers were unchanged and Acme Gas off a small fraction, recorded the only movement in the oil section.

WALL STREET

NEW YORK, May 23 (C.P.) — Stock trading dropped to the smallest volume in some time to-day. Leaders closed with a steady tone, although final prices represented some recession from the highs attained on a slow upward movement during the early afternoon. Fractional net gains prevailed in such issues as American Telephone, DuPont, Coca Cola, American Can, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Union Pacific and Santa Fe. Industrial Rayon broke 3. U. S. Steel cancelled an extreme rise of nearly a point. Transactions approximated only 500,000 shares.

MONTREAL EXCHANGE

Canadian Pacific Railway lost ¼ at 11¼. Montreal Power was off ¼ at 26½. Brazilian Traction at 9½ and International Nickel at 5½ were both unchanged.

Shawinigan Power equalled its low at 10 where it closed with a loss of a point. Dominion Bridge was off ¼ at 10½. Abitibi eased ⅛ at 1¼. Winnipeg Electric was down ¾ at 2.

Royal Bank lost 2½ points at 146. Odd lots of Bank of Nova Scotia appeared at 250, up eleven points from the low established last week.

OTTAWA PARLEY TO BOOST TRADE

Premier Forbes Urges Nation to Work for Good of Empire.

COOPERATION NEEDED.

WELLINGTON, N.Z., May 23.—(C.P. Cable)—Prime Minister G. W. Forbes, in an Empire Day message to the people of New Zealand to-day called on the Ottawa Imperial Economic Conference next July to bring closer commercial relationship between nations of the British Commonwealth.

"It is on this day" he said, "one pauses to give heed to the years of toil, foresight and initiative that have been combined in building the Empire as we of our generation know it. To-day nations of the British Commonwealth are on the threshold of what many hope will be a new era. The Ottawa conference may open the way to revival of lagging trade and a period of much closer relationship between nations of the Commonwealth.

"For the conference to succeed" he continued, "the peoples of the Empire must show a will to work for common good and determination to show a spirit of co-operation. Overseas trade, which is the life blood of this Dominion, can not be built up indefinitely by any one unit of the Empire independent of the rest."

Governmental Commissions. His directorships, apart from shipping companies, were concerned with banking, insurance, telegraphs, cables, and railways both at home and abroad. In the wartime he helped to guide the nation in the chartering of vessels. His direction was sought on food production and labor questions, and on matters of currency. One of his most spectacular deals was in 1919, when he took over all the Government "Standard" ships (built to replace tonnage sunk by submarines). In selling them Lord Inchcape realized for the Exchequer no less than 175 million dollars. The total sales cost was only $4,250. Lord Inchcape followed this up by disposing of the 418 ex-enemy ships which were allotted to Great Britain under the Treaty of Versailles. These sales produced a total of 20 millions sterling, the administrative cost to the Government amounting to but one-eighth of one per cent. In 1920 Lord Inchcape went to India and sold for the Government the Mesopotamian warcraft.

Lord Inchcape was fond of declaring his opinion that occupation was the cheapest form of amusement and idleness the most expensive. When the institution of a 42, a 48, or any other fixed hours of work a week came up, Lord Inchcape used to say that his own average for the last 50 years had been 98 hours weekly. He used to repeat what he heard once from King Edward, "We permanent officials," said his late Majesty, "never have a real holiday. We are on duty all the time—day and night."

Transatlantic Victim.

In 1928 Lord Inchcape's daughter, the Hon. Elsie Mackay, perished in attempting the passage of the Atlantic in an airplane with Captain Hinchcliffe. No trace of them was ever discovered. Soon afterwards Mr. Winston Churchill, as Chancellor of the Exchequer, announced in the House of Commons that Lord and Lady Inchcape, with their children, desired to place in trust with the nation the sum of half a million sterling, representing the residue of the Hon. Elsie Mackay's estate, which passed to them. None of them, it was added, wished to benefit by her death, and it was their wish that the money should ultimately be applied to the reduction of the national debt. The family proposed that it should accumulate for a period roughly of 50 years, unless at some other date the proceeds, with other sums which might be available, should be sufficient to redeem the whole of the liabilities of the State. Lord Inchcape also made provision for the widow of Captain Hinchcliffe.

Lady Inchcape was Miss Jane Paterson Shanks, eldest daughter of the late James Shanks of Arbroath. She was married to the future Lord Inchcape in 1883. They had one son, the Hon. Kenneth Mackay, who bears the courtesy title of Viscount Glenapp, and who married in 1916 a daughter of the late Lord Justice Moriarty.

HEARST WAITS FOR OUTBREAK

Jobless Delay Threatened Riot Till Council Appeals to Government.

NO RELIEF AVAILABLE.

HEARST, Ont., May 23 (C.P.).—Members of the fire brigade and a number of citizens have been sworn in as special constables to prevent any rioting on Wednesday, when several hundred foreign residents have announced they will take food by force if denied work or direct relief, Mayor J. C. A. West said to-day.

Last week, members of the Council and the Mayor received letters threatening to seize food. Mayor West has taken the matter up with the Government and asked that action be taken to prevent any trouble.

A large number of men invaded the town on Saturday, after having issued an ultimatum they would act at six o'clock unless their demands were met. Action was delayed, however, pending negotiations between the Council and the Government, and Wednesday was set as the day for a demonstration.

No Work for Some Time.

The men are in normal times engaged as bushmen and pulp cutters, but have been out of work for some time. The town has no fund for direct relief.

"The $2,000 appropriation for road work was spent last summer," Mayor West stated to-day, and "we have no means at all of providing direct relief. We are hopeful the Government will take some action to provide direct relief to these men, and if it does not we are unable to say just what will happen."

COACH LINES ASSESSED $666

W. A. McAuliffe Allowed Full Amount of Claim and Son Third.

BOTH GET COSTS.

W. C. McAuliffe of this city was allowed the full amount of his claim of $500.00 damages and costs against the Gray Coach Lines, Limited, of Toronto, while his son, Leo McAuliffe, was awarded the sum of $166.32 damages and costs by Judge L. V. O'Connor at a a resumed sitting of Peterborough County Court this morning.

J. A. O'Brien was counsel for plaintiffs and R. R. Hall, K.C., for the defendant company. The latter was granted a stay of judgment.

The action arose out of a collision between a Gray Coach Lines bus driven by John H. Montgomery of Toronto and an automobile driven and owned by Leo McAuliffe and in which W. C. McAuliffe was a passenger. The accident occurred on January 31st this year between Barrie and Orillia, during the course of a snowstorm.

"Taking all the evidence together," said His Honor in delivering judgment, "it does offer certain confusion, but the preponderance of the evidence establishes that the motor bus was well over on the left side of the road."

The Judge discredited the evidance as given by the coach driver by stating, "I place very little credence to the evidence of the witness Montgomery. The damage to plaintiff's car indicated that the blow given was a glancing one and not such a blow as Montgomery tried to make out."

Criticism was also offered by Judge O'Connor regarding the manner in which evidence had been given by Highway Traffic Officer Donald Fraser Bell of Orillia. "One would hardly be inclined to feel that statements made by an officer like Bell should be questioned." His Honor observed, "but I was not only astonished by the way in which witness gave answers but that his whole examination of the situation was superficial for a man of that kind. He stated that he saw no indication of tracks of the car coming from the other direction. One thing, however, that he was so certain about, and it is of importance to both parties, was as to the location of the bus in relation to the car after the accident. If what Bell says were true, plaintiffs would have no case. If Bell's evidence was right, the conclusion would be that the bus veered over to the centre and caused the collision, but that plaintiffs would have had the opportunity of being over further to their right, and that by not doing so they contributed to the accident."

Evidence Supported.

"I have come to the conclusion that the evidence of plaintiffs as to the location of their car was supported by the evidence of James Vincent Byrne of Barrie and by one of the young lady witnesses. Their evidence may be regarded as correct, and although Bell was a witness for plaintiffs, his evidence was damaging to them. I feel he was mistaken in his observations," the Judge stated.

"Taking all the evidence, the only conclusion I come to is that this accident occurred by reason of the negligence of the defendant. The collision occurred at a point in the highway where plaintiffs had the right to be. It was urged in cross-examination that plaintiffs should have seen the bus approaching and that they should have swung their car to the left. I do not agree with that at all. Had he turned left the chances are that there would have been a much more serious accident," said Judge O'Connor.

In assessing damages in the case of Leo McAuliffe, His Honor took into consideration repair bills amounting to $116.32, while the extra $50.00, making in all a total award of $166.32, was given in consideration of personal inconveniences and loss of time caused to the younger plaintiff through the accident.

Of the $500.00 awarded in full to W. C. McAuliffe, the sum of $109.50 represented hospital and doctor fees. The elder plaintiff, it was stated by medical witnesses, was stiff suffering from severe injury to his wrist, that would greatly affect plaintiff in the execution of his work as millwright.

POLICE ACTION SAID UNFAIR

goes on," said Mr. Gordon, "that the last place these people want to go is back to the land of their origin. But that is where they should go if they do not appreciate conditions here." Every suspected person was given the fullest possible investigation and all their rights protected. If they were found blameless they were returned to their homes. If they were found to have broken the laws of the country while in residence here, or to have entered the country illegally, they were deported. He proposed to carry out the law to the letter, Mr. Gordon said, so long as he was responsible for administration of the department.

Cancellations

Mr. Woodsworth wanted to know if there were any cases in which naturalization papers had been granted and afterward cancelled.

The Minister replied that he did not know of any specific cases offhand, but he knew there was authority in the statutes to do it and he believed that there should have been some cancelled, whether they were or not.

COMMONS ADVANCES MEASURE AMENDING CIVIL SERVICE ACT

Feature is Removal of Post Offices, Revenue $3,000, From Commission's Rule.

SECRETARIES' CASE UP.

OTTAWA, May 23.—(CP)—Second reading was given in the House of Commons today to a bill amending the civil service act. Based on the recommendations of the committee which recently investigated the administration of the civil service act by the civil service commission, the chief feature of the measure provides that all postoffices with annual revenues of $3,000 or less shall not be under the jurisdiction of the commission.

The measure was then considered clause by clause in the committee stage.

A new clause providing that a head official in certain cases might suspend an employee brought objection from A. W. Neill (Ind. Comox-Alberni) and E. J. Garland (U. F. A. Bow River) who thought there would be an abuse of authority and too many suspensions. Hon. C. H. Cahan, secretary of state, said the clause was aimed to cover "remote districts" where, for instance the head of a survey party wished to suspend a member of the party. If such suspension was afterwards disapproved at Ottawa, Mr. Cahan said, the suspended man would receive his back pay. The idea, he said, was to give the head of a survey party, for instance, sufficient power to suspend in the interim without first having to get the approval of the deputy minister.

Garland Complains

Inadequacy of the definition was complained by E. J. Garland (U. F.A. Bow River) who asked if the secretary of state would regard Vancouver as a "remote district." Where, he asked, would the centre of administration be? Mr. Cahan replied that Ottawa would continue to be the administrative centre of the act.

To Hon. Peter Heenan (Lib. Kenora) the minister declared that in the positions that would be exempted under the act from the jurisdiction of the civil service commission the returned soldiers preference would be retained.

The clause was allowed to stand.

The clause which takes away from private secretaries to the ministers the right to enter the civil service in a class not lower than chief clerk proved contentious. It was still under discussion when the house rose at 1 o'clock.

When a change of government takes place the majority of the new ministers usually bring in their own private secretaries and accordingly the private secretaries to the former ministers lose their positions. Some years ago the Civil Service Act changed so that these secretaries thus out of a job would be absorbed into the civil service.

Private Secretaries

The contention was raised in the committee which studied the civil service commission throughout the session and again in the house to-day that these private secretaries going into the service as chief clerks or other positions stopped the promotions of men and women with long years' experience in the department over whose heads they were placed. This was unfair to civil servants and contrary to the merit system.

The argument in favor of the provision as it now stands was that the private secretaries were naturally carefully selected and to leave them without jobs when a government changed was unfair.

There are of course several private secretaries who have served under both Liberal and Conservative members and are still acting in that capacity.

It was urged that the present private secretaries to ministers had come in with the understanding that if the government changed they would be absorbed into the service. Even if the clause carried, some members contended it should not apply to the present holders of these offices.

GASOLINE REPORT DEBATE ADJOURNED

Are Canadians Paying Too Much for Gas, Question to be Decided.

OTTAWA, May 23 (C.P.).—The report of the Banking and Commerce Committee which investigated prices of gasoline in Canada, came in for brief discussion in the House of Commons to-day. E. J. Young (Liberal, Weyburn), who on Friday gave notice that he would move concurrence in the report, opened the discussion. He explained that his reason for placing notice of concurrence on the order paper last Friday was that he feared the end of the session would arrive before the report could be discussed, consequently he had given formal notice in order to make sure that he report would come before the House.

"The important question to be decided," said Mr. Young, "was whether or not Canadians were paying too much for their gasoline, and, if so, why."

At this point, Premier R. B. Bennett suggested that Mr. Young might move the adjournment of the debate, and continue his speech tomorrow. Mr. Young agreed to do this, and the debate was adjourned.

MERCY SLAYER GETS 3 MONTHS

Woman Convicted of Assisting Mother to Commit Suicide by Overdose Medicine.

STIRRED WHOLE DENMARK.

COPENHAGEN, May 23 (A.P.)—Mrs. Else Wille Bang, defendant in Denmark's famous "mercy slaying," was convicted to-day on a modified charge of assisting her mother to commit suicide by administering an overdose of medicine to her. She was sentenced to three months in prison.

The conviction closed the case, which was a subject of widespread controversy in which the "right to kill was discussed.

Mrs. Bang's mother, Baroness von Dueben, died late in November. Her daughter was charged with murder on her own confession that she administered a lethal dose of narcotics to end her mother's sufferings from an incurable disease.

Her mother did not know she was "drinking death," the daughter testified, although the Baroness, she said, had expressed a wish to die.

CITY BY-LAW BEING TESTED

What Constitutes a Pit or Quarry is Question Asked.

PIT IN ASHBURNHAM.

Hinging on the question as to whether or not the condition complained of is a pit or quarry under the meaning of the wording of a city by-law, an interesting test case between the Corporation of the City of Peterborough and Joseph Frith, defendant of East City, was adjourned by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., before whom a portion of the evidence was heard this morning until Thursday at 10 a.m.

John R. Corkery is counsel for complainant corporation, while Gordon and Elliott are representing the defendant, who is charged with making a pit contrary to the provisions of a city by-law.

The by-law in question provides that on and after March 7, 1932, no person shall make or create a pit or quarry in the City of Peterborough within 200 feet of any public highway.

At this morning's hearing Thomas Starr stated in evidence that on April 26, he saw Frith and some other men begin to dig a hole on the lot in the field north of Haslett street, with a plow. They were not using a scraper, although one was there. "Frith was bossing the job and told the men to hitch on to the plow," he said.

Then men filled the trucks with gravel. They were using shovels. About eight or nine loads were taken away during the day, making a hole, according to witness, about 20 feet by 30 feet. He estimated that the hole was about 115 feet from Rogers street.

Under cross-examination Starr said, the top soil was removed last year and the workmen were removing filling on April 26.

Thomas O'Connor, 188 Haslett street, said he knew the property and also the accused. He stated Frith teamed and drew top soil and gravel. He corroborated the evidence of the previous witness, but said he did not see any gravel taken. He saw the hole left afterwards and estimated that it was too big for a house to cover.

City Engineer Roy H. Parsons gave evidence which established the fact that the condition complained of in the charge, was within 200 feet of a public highway contrary to the provisions of the city by-law.

NEGRO DETAINED IN STRANGLING

Dead Woman's Adopted Son Tells Police Halting Story of Crime.

MONTREAL, May 23.— (C.P.)— Philip Frank Kaney, 36, colored, formerly of Halifax, was to-day being held as a material witness for the inquest Wednesday into the death strangling of Muriel McLaud, 30, formerly of Bear River, N.S., on Saturday.

Muriel McLaud, an Indian, also known as Edith Clode, was found dead Saturday in the home which she shared with Kane and her four year old adopted son, Alber Girout.

According to police the child told them that he saw his mother's death and gave a halting description of what he saw from his cot. Detectives found a piece of parcel string hidden under a cement slab in a yard at the rear of the house. Dr. Rosaire Pontaine, provincial medico-legal expert, stated that the string fitted the deep groove on the woman's neck. He was positive it was the cause of death.

Kane called a doctor early Saturady morning stating that the woman was unconscious. Upon his arrival the doctor pronounced her dead from strangulation. According to the police Kane said that she had collapsed when she entered the house after saying that someone had tried to strangle her on the street.

It was the annual Empire Day review, and shortly before the parade 1,000 gaily dressed girls had decorated 27 monuments and memorials in various parts of the city.

A young man with a modern wife, and few of the comforts of home, takes matters into his own hands

It was along about midnight when Joe awakened to see Millie standing over his bed. . . . And was she burning up? . . . "You didn't even leave a light for me!" she exclaimed.

The Copy Chiefs Husband

By DAVID WILLIAM MOORE

JOE HAYDEN punched the elevator button, then turned nonchalantly about so he could see the lettering on the office door from which he had just emerged.

SMITH
SAUERFIELD
LANGDON
HAYDEN
Attorneys at Law

That last name, Hayden, was his, and it had just been added this afternoon. Joe's eyes brightened, and his shoulders squared back. Mr. Smith's words still rang in his ears.

"You've made a good record, Hayden," the senior member of the firm said. "We're mighty proud to take you in. You'll go far."

"Just watch me show him!" breathed Joe. Then the elevator came and his triumphal reverie was interrupted. Joe stepped briskly into the waiting elevator and looked expectantly at the boy. However, the young fellow wasn't at all concerned with names on office doors.

Joe smiled to himself. His success didn't mean anything to the world. Not yet. But to Millie—

THEN he remembered Millie had told him at noon when he telephoned her that she wouldn't be home to dinner. Hmph! It was like the time at college when he was elected captain of the football team and his folks were in Europe. It just wasn't any fun doing things when you hadn't anybody to whom you could tell the news.

So Joe wandered over to his club. Maybe he'd find some of the fellows hanging about. He found only Tom Ennery, who was also boyishly eager to talk.

"Let's have dinner together, Tom," said Joe. "I've got something to tell you."

"Fine," agreed Tom.

They got a quiet table. "I've just had a break," began Joe.

"Yeah?" from Tom. "Well, so have I. I landed that Carrouthers contract today. It'll net me a cool twenty grand. I reckon the depression is over, old timer. Why, I've been working on this deal for eight months and if it hadn't come through—"

When Tom reached home at nine o'clock, the house was still dark. He switched on the light savagely, and looked about. So this was the little "love nest" he and Millie were going to enjoy so much! Lots of sense having a home if nobody stayed in it.

He tossed his hat toward a table, but it fell to the floor. Joe let it lie there. He took a cigar from his pocket, bit off the end angrily, and lighted the thing, tossing the burnt match on the rug Millie had brought from Constantinople. To hell with it!

Then he threw himself into a chair and picked up a book. This was a fine way for a young married man to spend the evening after he had just been taken into the firm!

BUT in a few minutes Millie's mother, a spry little cricket who lived only a block up the street, bustled in to leave a pattern Millie had wanted. "So she isn't home yet!" Mrs. Gregory had positive ideas about things. Also she liked Joe. "I think it's an outrage for a woman to do as she's doing. She ought to be here with you."

Joe felt he should be loyal. "But she's a big success, mother. She's copy chief, you know. There was a conference this evening."

"Conference or no conference, a woman's place is at home in the evening. You worked hard today, didn't you?"

"Aw, I reckon I didn't hurt myself," grinned Joe. "But I was taken into the firm. The name is Smith, Williams, Sauerfield, Langdon, Rennels and HAYDEN! Got my name on the door."

"And to think Millie isn't here! Why, she ought to be ashamed of herself. She's simply amusing herself. These modern women make me sick."

"Well," and Joe shrugged his shoulders, "I suppose they have a right to live their own lives."

"Hmph! I hope you wake up before it's too late, Joe Hayden, and put your foot down. If I were a man and my wife wanted to be gallivanting around all the time, then I'd show her I wouldn't be repressed either. There's no sense in a man making a worm of himself." And Mrs. Gregory stalked out.

HE turned back to his book, but he didn't read. He found his mind toying with the idea Millie's mother had left behind. So he shouldn't be repressed, eh? Not a bad idea. Maybe, after all, he did have a life of his own to lead.

All right. He was tired and sleepy. He'd go to bed. Joe had always waited up for Millie and patiently listened to her triumphal narratives. But now—

It was along about midnight when Joe awakened to see Millie standing over his bed. And was she burning up! "You didn't even leave a light for me!" she exclaimed. "It's the first time you ever did such a thing, Joe Hayden."

"I've quit being repressed," and Joe yawned sleepily.

"You've what?"

"I was taken into the firm today."

"Well, what of that? I suppose you want me to sing and dance, after you forgot all about me. I suppose my work isn't important any more." And Millie flounced out of the room indignantly.

Joe closed his eyes again, realizing vaguely that he had been quite heroic. His conscience was troubling him, but not much. He was very sleepy. Bless old Mother Gregory's heart!

MORNING—and Joe hopped out of bed. The air was fresh and crisp. What a morning for a walk. He wished he didn't have to wait to drive Millie down. Then he remembered. He would walk. Top of the morning, old lad!

An hour later, Millie awoke. She had overslept, of course. And she had another session of the conference at ten o'clock. It was nine o'clock now. But Joe was a good driver.

She would forgive him for his rudeness if he'd hurry, like a dear. But she must take plenty of time with her toilet. She must look her best. The meeting this morning was important. She studied herself in the mirror, and was pleased.

Yes, she could probably go into the movies, if advertising failed. When she was finally ready, she hurried into the hall.

"Oh, Joe! Get the car out! I can't wait for breakfast. And you'll have to eat somewhere after you drop me at the office."

No answer. At that moment, Joe Hayden, having completed the first two miles of his jaunt toward downtown, was sipping a very delectable cup of coffee in the Belvedere Coffee Shop.

Millie came running down the stairs. "Joe! I must be going. Hurry, darling!"

THE only comfort she found was a note from Joe on the hall table. "I'm walking down this morning." She stamped her foot a time or two, and clenched her dainty fists, but finally called a taxicab, reaching the office an hour late.

Meanwhile, a brilliant young attorney was hustling about his duties in the offices of Smith, Williams, Sauerfield, Langdon, Rennels and Hayden. Now and then he would stop to chuckle.

Noon came, and he mechanically reached for his telephone. He had always called Millie at noon. Sometimes she could have luncheon with him. Often, though, she had to go with Mr. Hannibal to talk business. Too, there were times when she didn't even have a minute to talk to him. Joe had never minded.

But today—he set the telephone down again. Let her call him. She owed him a thousand calls.

When he got back after lunch, there was a note on his desk telling him Millie had called. Ah-hah! He crumpled it in his hand and sent it sailing across the room. He didn't call back until five o'clock, when he had something to say.

"I'm staying down," he announced lightly. "Tom Ennery and I are playing a set of Kelly pool. I'll be late."

"But Joe! You'll have to play your game with Tom some other evening. I've invited the Smarts for bridge—"

"Listen, Millie. I told you last night I'd quit being repressed. I'll be home about midnight. Goodby."

WHEN Joe reached home, the house was dark. Millie was paying him back. All right, it was no time to be soft with the enemy. He was up early again the next morning and off for his walk. A day passed without telephone calls. Another game of Kelly pool with Tom. But Millie was waiting for him this time when he arrived home.

"Sit down, Joe," she said icily. "It's time we had a talk."

Joe threw himself into a chair and waited. He lighted a cigaret and held the pack toward her. She nodded wearily. "Yes, please bring me one."

"You're welcome," said Joe grimly, "but you'll have to come and get it."

Millie came for the cigaret, and the look she gave him would have curdled milk. But it didn't seem to bother him.

"I don't know what's come over you, Joe Hayden. I believe you've lost your mind. If you're trying to be funny, please stop. If you're trying to make me quit work, then you may understand right now that I do not intend to quit."

"I haven't asked you to quit," said Joe. "I'm just trying the experiment of going without repressions for a while."

"Well, I think it's silly. And my work is just as important as yours. If you are—"

That name, Hayden, was his, and it had just been added.

HE got up and stood facing her. "I think I'll take in a picture show. Jack Oakie is at the Orpheum. Want to go along?"

"Oh, I suppose so," said Millie indifferently. "But we'll go to the Plaza. I want to see Garbo."

"Nothing doing. But I'll match you."

They matched and Joe won. Millie suddenly decided she had a headache. Further, she explained that she had another meeting tomorrow evening at the office.

That is, it was a sort of business meeting. The distributors who had come for the big conference were going to be taken to a theater with their wives. Mr. Hannibal had planned that Millie should go with him. "So, I think I'll stay home and get some sleep."

"Say," exploded Joe. "Why can't that Hannibal bird take his own wife?"

"He has no wife, Joe. And he expects me to be a sort of hostess to the distributors' wives. We're going to the Grand, and it's all very proper. I hope you're not going to worry about me," she added with fine sarcasm.

MILLIE got a big thrill as she walked into the Grand Theater with Mr. Hannibal and his crowd of distributors. The man was very gracious, a perfect host. The distributors and their wives were laughing and talking, having a big time.

Then Hannibal said something to her. Millie couldn't help realizing what a handsome brute the man was. He leaned down close to her. "Having a good time, little partner?"

"Glorious!" beamed Millie.

Suddenly she grew rigid in her seat. She stared, her eyes following a very smart young couple taking seats three rows in front of her. The man was Joe, and his companion was a very personable young lady with auburn hair and a most agreeable manner. Why, she acted as if she owned Joe!

Hannibal noticed Millie's discomfiture. After a while he leaned down again. "Your husband seems to be enjoying himself."

"Yes," said Millie.

The curtain went up, and Millie sighed with relief. But she didn't see the play. Her eyes were on Joe and that hussy. How could they be so brazen? She left before the end of the second act. Tired out, she told Hannibal. And she refused to let him go with her.

When Joe got home, the house was dark again. But Joe was feeling mean and despicable. He had a hunch he'd carried his role a bit too far. He looked for Millie. He found a note which explained that she had gone over to her mother's house. Further, this note explained, she didn't ever want to hear from him again.

The next day, Joe could hardly hold himself in until noon. He called Mrs. Gregory's home. He simply had to talk to Millie. But, of course, Millie wasn't there. Yet Joe had half expected her to stay away from her office for a day or so.

Mrs. Gregory answered the telephone herself. And Joe was glad to talk to her. "I've been a fool, Mother Gregory," he said. "I've got to see Millie and—"

"You haven't been a fool, either. Millie's been the fool, and I told her so. You should have taken her over your knee and spanked her. But she called me a few minutes ago to tell me she is leaving on a trip west."

"Leaving on a trip? When? Where is she going? Why—"

"I don't know anything, except she's leaving at the Union Station at five o'clock. She said a man was going with her. If I were you, Joe, I'd hurry down there and stop her."

THAT afternoon, a taxicab dashed up to the Union Station, a bit more energetically than the others. A vigorous young man hopped out, looked at his watch, and hurried into the waiting room. His fists were clenched and his eyes were filled with murder. He quickly spied Millie, and he stalked over to her. Before he could speak she laughed.

"Hurry up if you want to make that five o'clock train," she cried. "Yes, you're the man who's going with me—hurry up!"

In their compartment, she explained.

Mr. Hannibal had called her in and told her that he had watched Joe in the theater, and that Joe, after Millie left, had simply gone to sleep—which made it obvious that he wasn't interested in the girl with him. And Mr. Hannibal, remarking that no job was worth losing a husband, had then fired Millie and had given her three months' salary.

And Millie snuggled against Joe and said, "Now, darling, tell me about your junior partnership."

CROOKS IN WINNIPEG PREY ON CONFIDENCE OF BUSINESS MEN

Outwitted By Merchants After Swindling Others of Large Sums.

ARRESTS ARE MADE

(Special to The Examiner)

WINNIPEG, Man., May 23.—With Saskatchewan business men as victims, an outbreak of confidence games is rampant in Winnipeg apparently, although all of them have not succeeded.

Two cases of swindling have been reported by Winnipeg police recently. Frank Karue, described as a Saskatchewan cattle dealer, was doped and robbed of $205 Another Saskatchewan business man, whose name police refused to divulge, was doped and robbed of $1,100 in cash and about $7,000 in bonds. Arrests in the latter case were subsequently made at Hague, Sask., and most of the loot recovered. Three men have also been arrested in the Karue case by Winnipeg police.

One Saskatchewan business man outwitted the crooks, and escaped with his money after a week's holiday in Winnipeg at the expense of his "host."

According the the story, a well-dressed traveller, introducing himself as representing a well-known line of goods, called at a store in a northern Saskatchewan town.

During conversation with the store-keeper, the "traveller" who may be referred to as the crook, suggested that he knew of a buyer for the business.

Substantial Figure

Name your price, he said. And the storekeeper named a substantial figure, hardly expecting that it would be satisfactory. To his surprise the traveller agreed with the figure named, suggested an amount that would represent his commission if the deal went through, said the "buyer" was a United States banker, who wanted to buy a business for his son (in order to keep the son out of city life) and promised to let the storekeeper know if the deal was "on."

A few days later along came a telegram from the traveller in Winnipeg asking the storekeeper to come at once, all expenses paid and the plot began to thicken when the two were comfortably established at a well-known Winnipeg hotel.

It was necessary to wait for a few days, the storekeeper's "friend" said, as the banker from across the line had been delayed. In the meantime there was plenty to do in seeing the sights of the city. Finally one day the traveller was seized with cramps, he said, while the two were dining in the hotel. He excused himself and went to the washroom.

Discovery of Bait

Coming back, the "host" displayed a well-filled wallet, which he had found in the washroom. The two opened it and found it was crammed with $100 bills. An address was also found in the wallet. The two immediately communicated with the owner, who came to the hotel, identified his wallet and thanked them.

The new figure in the story offered the two each a $100 bill. They refused, saying that they required no reward for finding the wallet.

Finding they would accept no reward, the third man then confided that he was running a "sure thing" on American race horses, and if the two would not accept the money, he would "invest" it for them in his game. They agreed and back came their new friend with $300 where there had been only $100 before. His scheme was a sure thing, he explained, and if they would like to make a little easy money while waiting for the banker to turn up, they were welcome. The traveller became eager to get in on the racing game. But the Saskatchewan business man "smelled a rat." He had heard of swindlers, and began to get suspicious.

Wanted to Get Friend

A little quick thinking on his part was required. He said that he had a friend in Winnipeg who would like to get in on it. Despite the objections of the two crooks he left to get his friend. He walked around the corner to the office of a Winnipeg business man he knew and told the whole story.

"What will I do?" he asked.

"Go back, and you'll find the crooks gone" replied the Winnipeg business man.

Returning to the hotel, he discovered the crooks had checked out.

CONFERENCES, HOUSE TOPIC

Britain Likely to Name Chamberlain in Case Baldwin Cannot Attend at Ottawa.

THOMAS SUGGESTED.

LONDON, May 23 (C.P. Cable).—The House of Commons reassembled to-day and was expected to sit only until the second week in July in order to let the British delegation to the Imperial Economic Conference reach Ottawa by July 20.

Apart from financial problems and Government estimates the three chief subjects for consideration during the next few weeks will be the Lausanne Conference on Internation debts, the Irish situation and the Ottawa conference.

Current reports that Stanley Baldwin, Lord President of the Council, would be unable to go to Ottawa, were discounted in usually well-informed circles, although should last-minute events prevent his attendance, Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, was seen as a possible substitute leader of the British delegation.

Usual Practise

Naming of Mr. Chamberlain as substitute for Mr. Baldwin would follow usual Parliamentary practice, but some observers said the name of J. H. Thomas, Dominions Secretary, could not be overlooked. Possibility that Mr. Baldwin might eventually find himself unable to attend brought to light general Conservative assertions that Mr. Thomas must not lead the delegations, and provided political gossips with a subject of conversation.

It appeared certain, however, that the Government had no intention of whittling down its delegation, as it has already expressed a wish that the strongest possible body should make the journey to the Canadian Capital.

CRAZED RUSSIAN INVADES CHURCH

held a pillow case filled with some colorful dresses. While his wife and children slipped into a pew he marched straight up to the altar and placed the two boxes on the floor.

Opening one of the boxes he took out some gramophone records, bottles and statues. He then brushed aside the flowers on the altar and placed the statues and bottles in their place. The statues were decorated with streams of colored cloth. Next he took down a large brass cross from the altar and bent it in two. He then proclaimed himself rector and addressed the congregation in Russian.

Daughter To Be Sacrificed.

Removing the dresses from inside one of the pillow cases, the man called his youngest girl to come up to the altar. She did so and he instructed her to tell all the women wearing black dresses to take them off and don the colored dresses. Taking the child by the arm the man announced that he was going to sacrifice his youngest girl.

At this juncture one of the wardens approached the man and grappled with him. Another warden called police. Before the officers could arrive the man, powerfully built, freed himself and marched out of the church, holding a lighted candle in his right hand. All trace of him was lost until the call came to police headquarters to the effect that a home was being wrecked in the north-east section of the city.

Lawn Bowling

Tomorrow Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club will open their season with a big local tournament. There will be no entry fee and prizes will be given. The draw will be made at 1.30 p.m. and all players are urged to be on hand early so that play may be got away to a good start. The draw is being made from the board so that every bowler will be in the games. New members are specially invited to turn out and get their hand in. The lawns are reported to be in splendid shape and everything points to a big get-a-way.

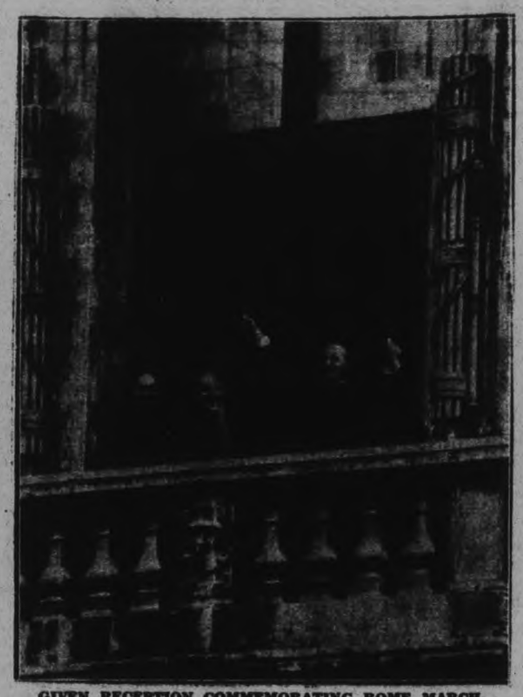
Demonstrates Fascist Policies



GIVEN RECEPTION COMMEMORATING ROME MARCH.

Premier Mussolini appears to be more than satisfied with the reception he is receiving as he addresses a Fascist demonstration commemorating the decennial of the famous march to Rome on October 22, 1922. Note that the Duce is holding a musket in one hand and a book in the ther, symbolic of the strength and learning upon which Fascism is supposed to be based. By a curious coincidence the ancient Roman symbol of the Fasces appears at either side of the window at which the Duce stands. The Fasces is a bundle of rods enclosing an axe. It was borne by the victors before consuls and other magistrates as a symbol of power in Roman days.

In The Automotive World
WEEK-BY-WEEK

(By Roly Young)

Official figures on motor vehicles registration in Canada in 1931 show that the Dominion had a greater total of registration than any other country except the United States; Great Britain with 1,524,339 and France with 1,456,650. The figures show that there is one car to every 8.6 people in Canada, and if this is taken as a basis there are still only three countries with fewer people per motor vehicle. United States had 4.6 persons per vehicle and New Zealand and Hawaii 7 persons per vehicle.

Think! If you speed, do you do it because your are in a hurry to get somewhere, or do you just do it as a habit? If you do speed through city streets, take the trouble to check distance against minutes. You will find that the actual time gained usually amounts to a few ticks of your watch.

A report by the Police Department of Rochester, N.Y., demonstrates this fact. The results as reported by the National Safety Council in their periodical Public Safety, are as follows:

"Every morning when traffic was heavy, two cars were sent from Kodak Park in Rochester to police headquarters. One driver as rapidly as possible without actually causing an accident. It weaved in and out of traffic and jumped lights when possible. The other was driven in a careful, prudent manner.

"When the reports from the operation of these two cars over a period of a month were tabulated, it was found that the recklessly-driven car had gained an average of a minute and a half over the other car on the three mile traffic-congested course. In other words, by endangering themselves and others, the drivers of the carelessly driven police cars had gained approximately a half minute in each mile."

The report gives evidence to the fact that most people who drive recklessly are really in no hurry to get where they are going at the time. Here is the evidence:

"One morning the police followed another car that was weaving in and out of traffic. When they located the owner at the end of his dangerous journey they found him in his office, his feet on the desk and the morning newspaper spread out before him. He had had no real reason for his speed."

British motor-cars imported in New Zealand during the first three months of the year exceeded the combined total for all countries. Great Britain exported 873 cars to New Zealand in the first three months of this year compared with 1,064 during the same period last year. United States comes next with 127 this year compared with 307 last year.

Annoyed at several sharp blasts from the horn of a motor car standing outside the police court in Market Bosworth, Leicestershire, England, the other day, the magistrate sent a policeman to investigate. He found that it was being sounded by a dog, evidently tired of waiting for its master.

How often does the night driver get the impression that he is approaching an advancing motorcycle only to discover, a few seconds later, that it was another one-eyed highway menace. It is comforting to know that traffic authorities everywhere in Canada are concentrating this year on removing this danger to night driving. Driving with only one light, especially if it is the right hand one, leaves other drivers in doubt as to the type of vehicle, and on a narrow road, is often disastrous. More than that, the driver with a single bulb has an insufficient illumination of the road and the other cars' stronger lights even though not glaring, are often enough to blind him.

MAYAN TOMB IS UNEARTHED

Carnegie Foundation Workers Believe Vault Contains Remains of Kings.

MAY SOLVE MYSTERY.

MEXICO CITY, May 23 (C.P.).—Discovery of a tomb believed to be that of the ancient Mayan kings at Chicichen-Itza, State of Yucatan, was reported to-day in a short despatch from Merida.

The Carnegie Foundation, under the direction of Mr. Sylvanus Morley, has been engaged in excavation and reconstruction work at Chichen-Itza for several years, and it was presumed the discovery was made by the Foundation's excavators.

The despatch said a tomb was found a short distance west of the temple of the warriors, and that legends and signs painted on its sides indicated it was the tomb of the Mayan kings, long sought as the possible key to the mystery of the disappearance of the once powerful race.

The tomb has not yet been opened because its crumbling wall must be strengthened before anyone attempts to enter.

PLAN ATLANTIC PLANE SERVICE

General Balboa Believes Line Rome-Buenos Aires Would Pay for Itself.

3½ DAY FLIGHT.

ROME, May 23 (C.P.).—A project to establish weekly two-way air service between Rome and Buenos Aires was presented by General Italo Balbo, Italian Air Minister, at the convention of trans-oceanic flyers of all nations to-day.

The scheme resulted from studies conducted both before and after General Balbo's group flight to South America in January, 1931.

The War Minister presents cost figures and even a time-table and declared that "even commercially speaking the line would pay for itself."

Under the plane the 7,185 miles from Rome to Buenos Aires would be covered in 3½ days.

The ships would fly night and day. Both land and water craft would be three-motored and a total of 11 planes would be necessary, each manned by two pilots, a navigator, a mechanic and telegrapher.

QUINN'S APPEAL IS UNDECIDED

Court Withholds Judgment on Sentence of Death Set For June 24.

SHOOTING IN LONDON.

TORONTO, May 23.—(CP)—The appeal of Henry Quinn, Sarnia, from his conviction and sentence of death in connection with the shooting of Samuel Weinstein, aged London grocer, was heard today, with the appeal court withholding judgment.

Quinn was convicted of murder by a jury in assize court at London and sentenced to be hanged June 24.

Quinn, was convicted of the crime as an accomplice of Wallace Ramesbottom, who has already suffered the death penalty for the killing of Samuel Weinstein during an attempt to rob the latter's shop in London. The evidence in the case was that Ramesbottom and Quinn went in a stolen car to Weinstein's shop, that Ramesbottom entered the shop, armed with a revolver, held up Weinstein at the point of the weapon and, in a struggle with the shopkeeper, shot the latter. Quinn remained outside the store in the automobile.

Equally Guilty

The contention of the Crown was that Quinn abetted Ramesbottom in the crime and was equally guilty, with Ramesbottom, of murder. J. M. Donahue, London, who presented Quinn's appeal before the court, argued that the charge of Mr. Justice Sedgewick to the jury at Quinn's trial was contradictory and confusing on the question whether or not Quinn was aware of the "probable consequence" of the attempt to rob Weinstein. Counsel for the defence also contended that the trial judge had erroneously instructed the jury to accept Ramesbottom's evidence at Quinn's trial, in the absence of conflicting testimony. There was in the evidence of Mrs. Bertha Weinstein, widow of the victim of the shooting, and that of Mrs. Betty Weinstein, daughter-in-law of the victim, Mr. Donahue maintained, conflict with testimony of Ramesbottom. Counsel also argued that the trial judge had indirectly commented upon the fact that Quinn did not give evidence at the trial in his own defence.

Edward Bayly, K.C., deputy attorney-General, appeared for the crown and the court of appeal reserved its judgment.

LINDSAY TO STAY ON STANDARD TIME

Daylight Saving Will Not Be in Force This Summer—Dragging Operations Cease.

LINDSAY, May 23 (Examiner Correspondence).—Lindsay will not adopt daylight saving this year. The new system apparently has no friends among the citizenry, and no request will be submitted to the council in favor of the change. Two years ago, Lindsay adopted daylight saving at the request of the merchants, but before the summer was over, they again asked the council to revert to standard time. The council declined to comply with the request.

Dragging operations at Sturgeon Lake for the bodies of William Smith and Samuel Sloat, the two victims of last Sunday's drowning, have ceased. Superintendent Hilliard Lang and Seaman Jack Sullivan, of the Toronto Life Saving Department, who co-operated in the search for the bodies during the week, have returned to the city. They dragged the lake for two days without results. No one was able to give the searchers any idea of the section of the lake where the tragedy occurred. The water has been very rough for the past week, and this retarded the work somewhat. It is expected that the bodies will come to the surface and probably drift to shore in the next few days.

The sergeants of the 45th Regiment are staging a garrison parade here on Sunday, June 10th, when sergeants from Peterborough, Oshawa and Toronto units will participate.

According to the local Agricultural Department authorities, farmers in Victoria County are practically through with seeding, with the exception of those living on low land. There appears to be a tendency on the part of the majority of farmers to engage boys and young men for farm work this year rather than more experienced help. The monthly wage scale has been badly slashed, farm help being paid as low as $10.00 a month with board, in a great many cases.

Heated debate featured the session of the County Good Roads Board of the County Council during the week-end. One or two of the township representatives felt that constituencies were not getting their share of road work. One representative made the statement that Lindsay had not anything to depend upon except the farmers. He was not trying to slur the town, but felt that it got returns in trade from the farmers because of the money spent by the town to help the county road system. Chairman Begg, Reeve of Lindsay, stated that the Deputy Minister of Highways was the authority for the statement that Lindsay was the most generous town of them all with its county. Last year it paid into the county $11,000 more than it got out. Reeve Endicott of Ops remarked that the tourist never made much money for the farmer. He felt the people of the county wanted the board to cut out as much construction work as possible. Reeve Harry Endicott of Emily came right back with the remark that his township had not been getting its share of road work. Reeve Endicott of Ops had a pavement right up to his door, and why should not he speak for a lower rate? The board finally struck a rate of 2½ mills for the year; last year's rate being 4½ mills. This was accomplished by paring $36,000 from the good roads cost.

World's Smallest Fire Engine

FULY EQUIPPED FOR SERVICE.

The smallest fire engine in the world, weighing only 28 cwt., made its debut at Kingston-on-Thames where it has been secretly built. It has a speed of 50 miles per hour, and its inventor claims that it can tackle any fire, and that it carries more fire-fighting material than any other fire engine. Photo shows a view of the baby fire engine. It has a 27-foot ladder an carries a number of hermetically-sealed tubes containing fire-extinguishing chemicals.

HUNT ABANDONED

NOME, Alaska. — Attempts to find the abandoned Hudson's Bay Company fur ship Baychimo and the salvaging of a rich fur cargo believed to be aboard, have been given up by William R. Graham and Mrs. Edna Christofferson. On their return here Sunday after an unsuccessful aerial search, Mrs. Christofferson said she planned to return to her home in Portland, Ore, aboard the steamship Victoria.

SHANGHAI FEELS POSTAL STRIKE

Mail Bags Pile Up in Customs Sheds as Men Refuse to Work.

CONFINED TO CITY.

SHANGHAI, May 23 (C.P.).—Shanghai was completely isolated from the rest of the world to-day as far as mail is concerned.

The indoor postal workers joined the outdoor workers in a strike during the day. All postal facilities were at a standstill. Outgoing mail steamers carried none and the mail bags were piling up in the Customs sheds.

Authorities said the strike would not last long, however, for although it was tightened up here postal workers throughout the rest of China refused to join.

To Japanese Advantage.

HONG-KOING, May 23 (C.P.).—Chinese newspapers here to-day quoted C. C. Wui, noted Chinese Government leader, as saying the truce recently signed with Japan at Shanghai was "slightly to China's disadvantage."

He said although he had accepted the assurances that there had been no secret understanding between the Chinese and Japanese, signers of the truce agreement he now thought probably there was one, of which withdrawal of the Japanese troops in exchange for suppression of the Chinese boycott against Japan was a part.

"Surely it would be a pity," he said, "if we should discard the only weapon we still possess against our aggressors."

He urged that a public demand be made for a statement whether any secret verbal understanding exists.

JUDGE IS SHOCKED BY LADY'S SQUANDERINGS

She Has $65,000 Liabilities and No Assets

Croydon, Eng.—When an application for her discharge from bankruptcy was made at Croydon county court by Lady (Mary Gwenap Douglas) Galloway of Brooklyn, Horley, Surrey, Judge Harington said:

"This seems to be a hopeless sort of case. I think the extravagance has been perfectly frightful."

He held that the application was premature and adjourned it till October.

The official receiver said the liabilities were £16,394, and there were no assets. Lady Galloway was the widow of Sir William Galloway.

Among the unsecured creditors £450 was owed for clothing and heavy amounts for household goods, £54 for minerals, £20 for cigarettes and papers, and £80 for hire of cars.

REPORT FAVORS GOLD STANDARD

South African Committee Sees No Benefit to Union By Its Abandonment.

UNANIMOUS DECISION.

CAPE TOWN, S.A., May 23.—(C.P.)—A parliamentary select committee appointed last February to decide on desirability of continued maintenance of the gold standard in the Union of South Africa, today reported unanimously that interests of the country demanded its retention.

The committee's report, 20 pages long, said among other things: "Abandonment of the gold standard would confer no absolute benefit on the Union and would not increase our national wealth by one penny. It could at best only temporarily alleviate matters by bringing about a redistribution of wealth in the country, the full effects of which it is difficult to foresee."

At the time of the committee's formation the opposition, led by General Jan Christian Smuts, gold standard foe, refused to participate in the face of a declaration by the government that should the committee's recommendations be unfavorable to its intention of retaining the gold standard they would be ignored.

A number of the opposition, however, were forced to attend the committee's first meeting by ruling of the Speaker of the House. They resigned immediately thereafter. Thus, while the report was unanimous as far as was possible, it bore signatures of government members and one Laborite only.

Warrant Officers and Sergeants Hold Church Parade

AVERTING OF WAR IN FAR EAST IS TRIUMPH FOR THE NEW IDEA DR. BLAGRAVE TELLS MILITIA MEN

Warrant Officers and Sergeants Hold Annual Church Parade.

INFLUENCE FOR PEACE

Floral Wreath is Laid on War Memorial in Memory of Fallen.

Carried out with a splendid degree of efficiency and precision, the second annual church parade of warrant officers and sergeants of Peterborough Garrison and other district units to St. John's Church on Sunday morning earned merited praise from Lieut.-Colonel W. Gordon Hall, V.D., Commanding the 7th Infantry Brigade, as well as favorable comment from the large number of citizens who lined the route of march.

The parade under the command of R.S.M. Sam Calladine of the Peterborough Rangers Regiment formed at the Armouries at 10.15 a.m., and included detachments of warrant officers and sergeants from Ontario Regiment, Oshawa; Haliburton and Victoria Regiment, Lindsay; and Northumberland Regiment, Cobourg.

Headed by the Rangers band, including the bugle and drum section under Lieut. W. Peryer the parade covered a route which took it past the Cross of Sacrifice on the grounds of the Canadian Legion and also past the War Memorial in Confederation Park. At the latter point the parade was halted while a floral token was laid on the monument—a tribute from the various units to their comrades who paid the supreme sacrifice. The brief ceremony included the sounding of the "Last Post" by the cornet section of the Ranger's band, and the "Reveille" sounded by Lieut. Peryer. Three shots were also fired from the roof of the Armouries by Sergeant J. E. Nixon of the 4th Battery C.H.A. The guard of honor was supplied by a detachment of Boy Scouts from 1st Peterborough (St. John's) Troop, under Scoutmaster Garry Johnson.

Resuming the march the parade swung down George street and to the church to the strains of lively martial music. The metallic clinking of medals and guns was heard above the tramping of feet and the brilliant sunshine glinted on the band instruments and badges and buttons, which, combined with the soldierly bearing of the men made the sight a particularly pleasing one.

At the church the men were joined by a large party of officers from the various units of the local and district garrisons, who attended Divine Service independently.

During the service the lesson was read by C.S.M. H. Chate of the Rangers, who was incidentally, instrumental in organising the parade which now promises to become an annual feature in the life of the local garrison.

The service was conducted by (Capt.) Venerable Archdeacon R. C. Blagrave, D.D., Chaplain of Peterborough Rangers, who preached an inspiring sermon appropriate to the occasion and taking his text from Psalm 97:1, "The Lord reigneth; let the earth rejoice; let the multitude of isles be glad thereof."

Respect the Uniform

In extending a welcome to the warrant officers and N.C.O.'s of Peterborough and neighboring garrisons, and other officers including Lieut.-Colonel Hall, Archdeacon Blagrave observed, "It would be an unworthy world which did not respect the uniform which is so symbolic of high sacrifice."

"So long as force is organized and so long as evil expresses itself in terms of force, so also must righteousness be organized," Dr. Blagrave observed during the course of an inspiring sermon. Not for a moment did the speaker believe that any one of the men was wearing the King's uniform in the expectation that there would be war, but it did signify that the men were prepared to defend law and order against disordered elements.

There were two great forces in influence at the present time, the speaker observed. There was the old idea that war was inevitable and that international disputes could not be settled without it; on the other hand there was the new idea that no nation shall gain anything by war and that even the victor would be vanquished. Disputes, he contended, should be settled between nations by judicial methods.

Triumph for New Idea

"The fact that a war on a large scale was averted in the far East during the past few months, was a triumph, such as it was, for the new idea," the preacher contended.

He dwelt upon the growth of the new idea touching upon the influence for world peace that is being exerted by the League of Nations which he said stood for the abolition of all sorts of social wrong and primarily for social justice.

"What is the new idea but righteousness and religion, and for which the church has always stood," he asked. "This matter of righteousness arises from the spiritual needs of the world; the good that the world wants and that religion stands for."

The League of Nations Dr. Blagrave maintained stood for all that religion stands for, and he contended, "Religion is preserved by worship. Worship of God is the enthronement of all that is good."

The collection was taken by members of St. John's Church scout troop, during which a trio of boy choristers under the direction of Frederic G. Mann, L.Mus., sang "The Heavenly Guide—Hamblin." The trio was composed of Victor Coleman, Arthur Barnes and Roy Pritchford.

Following the service the parade reformed and swung up Water street en route to the Parade Ground facing the Armouries, where the troops were dismissed after receiving the congratulations of Colonel Hall on their fine showing.

A base was established in Central Park where Colonel Hall's staff took the salute as the parade swung north on Water street. Colonel Hall's staff consisted of Lieut.-Colonel G. H. Weeks, V.D., Brigade Major 7th Infantry Brigade; Lieut.-Colonel Claire Stuart, O.C. 3rd Prince of Wales' Dragoons; Major J. A. Dewart, M.C., O.C. No. 3 Company 4th Machine Gun Battalion and Major A. B. Mills, V.D. Peterborough Rangers Regiment.

Warrant officers and sergeants of Peterborough Garrison were afterwards "at home" to visiting units in the Sergeants' Mess.

DUKE OF MONTROSE IN HAPPY MOOD.

From all appearances the Duke of Montrose has just told C L. Burton a jolly old British joke, and the popular Canadian merchant, without the slightest hesitancy, came right back with "Didja ever hear the one about . . ." Just as we were about to catch the words, Mr. Burton lowered his voice and the remainder of the story was told in the breeze. Whatever the story was, the Duke of Montrose laughed with glee. The happy scene was snapped by the photographer at C. L. Burton's home in Toronto, when a group of prominent citizens, including Sir Joseph Flavelle, Sir John Aird, and Charles La Fere, were presented to the distinguished visitor, who is touring the country.

WARSAW COUPLE RECEIVE HONOR

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Crowe Observe Thirty-Fifth Anniversary of Wedding.

DISTRICT NEWS

WARSAW, May 23.—(Examiner Correspondence)—A number of the relatives, friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Crowe on Wednesday evening, May 18, to congratulate them on the thirty-fifth anniversary of their wedding, and with them many more anniversaries.

Not a whisper had reached their ears, so when numerous guests arrived they were much surprised, but welcomed their guests most heartily. There was much neighborly chat and some games. Late in the evening all congregated in the spacious dining-room and another surprise came when Mrs. Uriah Payne read a short address and John Rose presented a handsome tablecloth to Mrs. Crowe. Mr. Crowe replied, thanking their friends for their presence and for the gift. He mentioned that they were more favored than many, for they had all their family and all were able to be with them. Short addresses were given by John Rose, Uriah Payne and others. The ladies served a delicious supper and a very happy gathering broke up in the wee small hours.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Crowe, now living in the village, have lived their lives within a few miles of Warsaw.

Interesting Debate.

A very interesting debate by representatives from Lakefield and Lakefield Regent Street Y. P. Societies was held in Warsaw United Church S. S. room on Thursday evening.

After preliminary exercises, led by Rev. J. W. Wilkinson, Mr. Clark, of Norwood, president of the Y.P. Societies of this Presbytery, took the chair. He read the rules—new to Warsaw—governing the debate. They must begin before 8.45 p.m.; each speaker has ten minutes, and the leader of the affirmative three minutes at the end; two debaters on each side; three judges, who must be seated apart, each work out his own decision, write "yes" or "no" only according to his decision, and hand it to the president. As these three decide the decision is given. It certainly took less time than having the judges discuss the points later.

The judges were Rev. Mr. Archer, of Regent Street Church, Lakefield; Rev. J. W. Wilkinson and Mr. Fred. Crowe, Warsaw.

The motion was, "Resolved that reading is more profitable to the individual than travel."

Presbyterian W.M.S.

The Presbyterian W.M.S. met at the home of Mrs. T. H. Crowe on Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Richard Tedford, president, was in the chair and led in prayer. Mrs. Tucker read the Scripture lesson, and the circle of prayer was handled by Mrs. Borland and Mrs. Greystock. Mrs. Bert. Thompson read a paper, "Our Part in the Home." Mrs. T. H. Crowe took the first chapter on the diamond jubilee work of missions in Formosa. Mrs. Greystock gave a short synopsis of the meetings she attended of the provincial Presbyterian W.M.S.

At the Ladies' Aid several matters were discussed, but decision held over until next meeting, except that they decided to hold the anniversary.

CADET INSPECTION AT "GROVE" SCHOOL

Captain Isbester Congratulates Pupils on Form and Appearance.

LAKEFIELD, May 23.— (Examiner Correspondence.)—Ideal weather prevailed for the inspection of 'The Grove' Cadets on Friday afternoon, with Capt. Isbister of the 3rd Military District, Kingston, as the inspecting officer. The corps, which numbers more than 70 boys, including a nine piece bugle band, presented a creditable appearance, gaining the heartiest approval of Capt. Isbister and many compliments from the spectators which lined the terrace overlooking the parade ground The parade ground, with its fringe of trees, with glimpses of the lake between the lace-like, new leaves, is an ideal setting for such an event, and the khaki uniforms blended harmoniously into the picturesque vista. The marching was especially fine, every cadet in step and marching with the ease of veterans. The drill, both company and platoon drill were carried out in a way which reflected great credit on cadet officers and privates and on the instructing officer, Capt. T. B. Marling. Both the marching and the drill won the approval of the inspecting officer, who did not hesitate to express the heartiest admiration for the soldierly bearing of the corps.

The physical training was under the capable direction of Mr. Smith, who even excelled last year's performance and won rounds of applause from the spectators. Every boy did his part well, showing careful attention to the drill and the results of first class training. The "collapse" in which about sixteen boys took part closed the exhibition and the cadets lined up to receive the opinion of Capt. Isbister on their showing in both departments of their training and in both cases his comments were more than favorable. He expressed admiration of the appearance and conduct of the corps and presented to MacDonald the Laura Secord medal for making the highest score of any cadet at a preparatory school in Canada. This honor has been won by The Grove this year and MacDonald is the winner.

The cadet officers and N.C.O.'s of The Grove Cadet Corps:

HUNT CENTRES UPON GANGSTER

Police Seek Man Who Said Lindbergh Baby Was Dead Before Body Found.

FEW DEVELOPMENTS.

HOPEWELL, N. J., May 23. — Search was intensified to-day for the mysterious gangster, believed to be connected with the Lindbergh baby kidnap case, who recently said in Maryland before the baby's body had been found that the baby was dead.

Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, Superintendent of State Police, disclosed for the first time yesterday that this gangster was being sought and to-day he gave him first mention in his morning bulletin.

That part of the morning bulletin dealing with matters other than the search for the gangster follows:

"Dr. Condon," the Jafsie who paid a futile $50,000 ransom for return of the murdered baby was taken to New Rochelle yesterday by our investigators to look over the criminal rogues' gallery in an effort to identify the man known as John, but failed to make any identification.

NoProgress.

"Joseph Perrone" the taxi driver who took a note from the supposed kidnappers to Dr. Condon instructing him about ransom payment had formerly looked over the criminal rogues' gallery in New York City and failed to identify anyone and yesterday he went over the gallery at the Central Bureau of Identification at the State Police Headquarters in Trenton, but failed to make any identification. He will be taken to another police department to-day.

"The King kidnapping case," a mysterious game thought to be possible connection with the Lindbergh case mentioned for the first time by Schwarzkopf yesterday, was gone into by our investigators yesterday, but no information of value could be ascertained.

Life Pleasant, But Full of Hard Work at Cocos Island.

HUNTERS OPTIMISTIC

(Special to The Examiner)

VANCOUVER, May 23 (SNS)—Life has been pleasant but full of hard work for Vancouver treasure hunters now seeking buried treasure on Cocos Island, according to a letter received from Capt. 'Bob' Adams, director of operations under Col. "Jack" Leckie.

Written shortly after the Silver Wave landed the Vancouver party at Cocos on March 20, and before the actual treasure hunting had been commenced, the letter breathes unqualified optimism as to the success of the quest.

Weather has been good, with only intermittent rain. The air was balmy, mosquitoes in myriads were innocuous compared with those of northern B.C. but sand flies were pesky trouble makers.

All in Good Health

All hands were in good health and spirits, Capt. Adams reported, including two dogs at San Pedro who are proving the life of the party.

Buildings were erected in three days, the shore cleaned and the most important commissary work got into working order. A special building has been provided for the metalophones. It meant hard work but the party is well established to meet any weather conditions in comfort.

Base lines have been run following the creek contours and clearing was to go on at once to provide working terrain for the metalophones. Preliminary surveys have revealed many tunnels opened up by former treasure hunters. These represent months of work in ground that could be covered by a metalophone in a few days. And the tunnels might miss a cache of treasure by only a few feet.

Topographical Changes

Topographical changes have made all charts obsolete and useless, but the metalophone will penetrate all this, Capt. Adams believes.

Cocos Island is very beautiful and the beach of Wafer Bay would make it an ideal resort but for the rain and the heat which bothered the argonauts at first but which they soon got used to. Nights are cool and pleasant.

There is abundance of good clear water and the soil grows anything that can be planted. Oranges and lemons were found to be of fine quality and one real find was a flock of roosters and hens left by Julius Fleishman, the yeast king, which seem to have flourished. There is an abundance of edible fish in the sea.

DESTROYED 1,522 CATS.

TORONTO.—Toronto is without the songs of 1,522 serenaders, back fence variety. The Humane Society to-day reported it had destroyed that number of stray cats during the past month. It also destroyed 430 dogs.

SCHOOLS IN MADOC DISTRICT HOLD FIRST MUSICAL FESTIVAL

Excellent Program Under Mrs. B. Alexander Draws Praise From Inspector

HALL CROWDED.

MADOC, May 23 (Examiner Correspondence). — The Rural Schools Musical Festival for this district was held in the Masonic Hall on Friday May 20, under the management of Mrs. Blanche Alexander, L.T.C.M., who has had the training of the pupils of the rural Public Schools throughout the school year, and was arranged to show the friends what had been done, and to provide funds for music books for the pupils. The platform was gaily decorated with the national colors, red, white and blue, and a large crowd of parents and friends gathered to enjoy the efforts of the children and encourage the pupils and teachers who were responsible for the training and the practice of the children during the week, and all were much pleased with the ambitious program presented.

Mr. Frank Reynolds, Reeve of Madoc Township, was chairman of the evening. The program given was as follows:

Two two-part songs — "May God Preserve Thee, Canada" and "The Mill by the Rivulet," given by Schools Nos. 13, 14, 15, 16, Madoc, and 12 and 10 Huntingdon; song, "The Vowels," by Schools Nos. 2 and 17, Madoc (Teachers, Miss Duggan and Miss Oliver); song, "Tura-lura-lura," S.S. THOMAS J. BROWN GIVES FLAG POLE

Adds to Appearance of Trent River Public School Grounds.

TRENT RIVER, May 23 (Examiner Correspondence).—A fine big flag pole was put up on the school grounds Thursday. Thos. J. Brown of Trent River secured the pole while Messrs. Harold B. Wood, Fred Cook assisted the teacher, R. W. Umphrey and boys of the school in the erection. The teacher and pupils of this schobl deserve much credit for their energetic efforts in improving the school grounds and securing the willing services and hearty cooperation of the trustees and ratepayers of the section in assisting in the work, if more school sections could profitably follow their example in planting trees on the school grounds, which would provide a valuable asset.

School closed Friday for over Victoria Day. The teacher, R. W. Umphrey and son Jimmie leaving Saturday noon to spend over the weekend and holiday at their respective parental homes at Udora and Pefferlaw.

A Record of Stability

THE year in which The Bank of Toronto opened its doors, Ontario rode the crest of a boom. Over $60,000,000 was spent on railways and canals in the six years following 1850. Millions of dollars of invested British capital stimulated prosperity. United States markets were thrown open to produce of Canadian farms. Prices were high. Immigrants poured in . . .

In the middle of all this inflation, the founders of The Bank of Toronto built for safety, avoiding speculation, purchasing only the best bills, operating at low cost and building reserves—always seeking for stability. When the landslide came in 1857, when harvests failed and capital dried up, and other banks suffered losses, The Bank of Toronto emerged intact from this first depression.

This policy of safe, sound banking has characterized The Bank of Toronto for three quarters of a century. Today the Bank stands for stability and safety in every department of its efficient banking service.

RESTORATION OF "FREE LIST" PRICES BROADENS TRADING

Definite Indications of Underlying Firmness at End of the Week.

HOPEFUL ATMOSPHERE.

(By Thomas C. Thompson.)

TORONTO, May 23 (C.P.) — Broadened trading resulting from the restoration of "free list" prices on the Toronto Stock Exchange and definite indications of underlying firmness at the close of the week were the predominant features of the week's activity of Canadian stock markets. There was no marked expansion in trading volume, but the market appeared to be free from pressing liquidation and a generally more hopeful atmosphere prevailed in trading circles.

It cannot be said, however, that the Canadian security list made appreciable progress toward higher levels. Too much uncertainty still surrounds the outlook in Wall Street and until there is a more impressive recovery trend at that market little is expected from Canadian exchanges. Buying this week was attributed to investment "bargain hunting," and more particularly among those stocks which have been depressed through the trend of the New York list rather than through any further recession in Canadian business activity.

Restored to Free List

The artificial character of price levels "pegged" since last October has discouraged trading in a number of Canadian securities. This week all listed issues on the Toronto Stock Exchange were restored to the "free list," and minimum price levels ceased to exist. The result was quickly manifest in the appearance of Canadian bank stocks on the Toronto board, but a comparison of prices with those of eight months ago is not feasible since bank stocks have had an unofficial "over-the-counter" market in the intervening months.

Another bright feature of a generally drab market picture was provided by the oils. Without important gains, these shares nevertheless reflect the improved sentiment of traders toward the petroleum industry and the possibility of more stabilized oil prices following the international petroleum conference at New York. Small gains appeared in all the Canadian leaders at the close of the week.

Industrials were affected by a variety of influences. The most striking aspect of this section of the market was its dependence on the New York trend. Little attention was pair to constructive developments of a purely Canadian character and traders appeared content to await decisive developments in the world situation. Meanwhile domestic stocks continued to follow the course of least resistance and a number of the leaders touched new all-time record of low levels prior to the slight recovery at the close of the week.

Followers Satisfied

The minor scope of the week's advance was therefore, not indicative of aggressive buying, yet without the necessary stimulus for an advance market observers were satisfied that the list at least had acquired a more stable character. One encouraging response to favorable news was the rise of Page Hersey Tubes on Friday, leaving the stock at 43 against 41 last week. Announcement that the company had experienced the third consecutive increase in monthly sales during April was the basis of buying. Steels as a group were irregular, however. Utilities were dull.

Mining stocks fluctuated within narrow price limits although there was evidence of moderately-increased demand for base metals during the latter half of the week.

PILES ALL GONE

Without Salves or Cutting.

Itching, bleeding, protruding piles go quickly and don't come back, if you remove the cause. Bad blood circulation in the haemorrhoidal veins causes piles by making the affected parts weak, flabby, almost dead. Salves and cutting fail because only an internal medicine can actually correct these conditions. Dr. J. S. Leonhardt discovered a real internal Pile remedy After prescribing it for 1,000 patients with success in 9 of 10 cases, he named it HEM-ROID. My sleep was restful and my natural color and appetite returned."

REGULAR MEETING ROSENEATH SOCIETY

Mrs. Frank Brown Entertains Members of St. James' Women's Auxiliary.

ROSENEATH, May 23 (Examiner Correspondence)— A very pleasant afternoon was spent, on Wednesday, when Mrs. Frank Brown entertained the ladies of St. James' Woman's Auxiliary. During the afternoon a pretty quilt was quilted which was already sold by Mrs. William Houghtailing.

The president, Mrs James Timlin conducted the meeting which was unusually lengthy.

A most interesting letter was read by Mrs. Brown from Mrs. M. G. Wood of Toronto who told of two English girls who had lived at their own expense, all winter alone in a little cottage in the far north, where it was often 40 or 50 below zero, yet their missionary work was most encouraging and successful.

The treasurer's report was as follows: Receipts, $463.86; expenditures, $237.00; Dorcas dept. for Indian missions and settlers, receipts, $133.65; expenditures, $402.57; nine bales were packed during March; $105.00; has gone to the west to be used for milk for under-nourished children. Of the money sent in for the milk fund $35 was sent to Athabaska. $35 to Saskatchewan and $35 to Qu'Appelle.

The hospital visiting committee reports 545 visits made during the past year.

Miss Margaret Battersby was present and gave a very inspiring address to the ladies, speaking chiefly upon the notes taken at the convention in Toronto last week. Letters and orders which the secretary receives has been very encouraging in view of the general depression felt everywhere. In fact it seems in some cases that this depression has been in some ways a blessing and is drawing people to think of God more seriously, and so in confidence we look forward that more and more lives may be inspired to share in the Master's work to "His honour and glory."

A vote of thanks was tendered Miss Battersby and also the hostess, Mr. Brown, after which the meeting was closed by repeating the Lord's pray in unison.

A delicious cup of tea, sandwiches and cake was served and a congenial half hour was spent.

Mrs. W. White of Burnley invited the society to her home for the June meeting. The invitation was accepted with pleasure and the president requested that all members should endeavour to be present.

The men then retired to another room and conducted the necessary business of the official board, while the ladies assembled as Fairview Ladies' Aid Society and conducted their regular monthly business meeting. One of the main items was arrangements for a strawberry festival to be held at their church on July 1. After each group had conducted necessary business they united again and a very appetizing lunch was served and a pleasant hour spent in conversation. About forty were present and everybody seemed to enjoy the evening. The people of the parsonage hope such gatherings may be held often.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

One of the little household devices which every woman should have who does any of her own washing is a convenient clothespin and clothesline holder.

• • • • • • • •

As any woman can make one at small cost and in a short time, there is no reason why she should not have one.

• • • • • • • •

Use an ordinary wooden garment hanger, denim and binding tape to fashion the clothespin and line combination holder. There are three pockets in the style described to-day.

• • • • • • • •

One is a large pocket or bag for the line. Two pockets of smaller size for the pins. The width of the garment hanger determines that of the holder.

• • • • • • • •

The length can be varied according to the length of line and the number of pins that are to be put in the pockets.

• • • • • • • •

One yard of denim will will make an ordinary sized holder. Measure the width of the garment hanger. From the denim cut a 23½ inch length, the width of the hanger plus seams allowance.

• • • • • • • •

Lay the garment hanger over one end of strip just cut. With a pencil or piece of chalk draw the top outline of the hanger which must be positioned with the hook extending up from the exact centre of this width. Fold the strip through the centre so that both ends come together. Pin securely and cut both ends along the marked lines.

• • • • • • • •

Cut an oval 4½ inches wide and 7 inches long from a piece of paper. Fold this through the centre to make a size 4½ by 3½ inches. Fold the denim strip through the lengthwise centre.

• • • • • • • •

Lay the folded paper pattern on it with folded edges together. The top of pattern should be 3 inches from centre top of textile. Pin pattern and textile together and cut around edges of pattern. Remove pattern and unfold textile and bind the oval opening with tape.

• • • • • • • •

Use the strip of uncut width of textile to make the pockets. Bind strip across top. Take two deep pleats in each half width. Baste pleated pocket portion along line of centre crosswise fold of large portion.

• • • • • • • •

Seam down lengthwise centre of pocket portion. Fold large portion to bring curved ends exactly together. Bind a small section in centre of each curved top end. Baste edges of large portion together and bind, leaving small previously bound portions open.

• • • • • • • •

It is through this opening that the hook of the hanger is run so that the curve of the hanger fits snugly under the curved top of the large bag portion.

• • • • • • • •

This clothespin and line holder is hung on the clothesline by the hook when the wash is being hung out. It slips along the line easily and conveniently.

TAX SPIES INCREASE AND SOME ARE PAID

It Is Estimated They Have Brought £100,000 to Income Tax Office

London.—Since 1930 the number of people who have given information about other taxpayers' incomes has been nearly trebled.

According to an expert estimate by a London newspaper, informers communicated with the authorities and 30 of them were rewarded.

The rewards probably total £2,000 to date.

£100,000 has been recovered in unpaid tax as a result.

Only eleven people were rewarded in 1930-31.

Many of the informers were discharged employees. Remarkably few were women. Some of the cases alleged were false, and innocent persons were put to great trouble to rebut allegations.

Many informers wrote anonymously.

Not all the informers claimed rewards, but one received £500.

Informers are only required to give their evidence verbally.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

ANGINA PECTORIS-BREAST PANG

One of the most alarming ailments that comes to man is what is called angina pectoris.

The pain which is very severe comes on suddenly right over the breast bone—a tightness that gives the patient the feeling that death is at hand. The pain usually goes through the chest to the back into the shoulders and left arm. The patient remains "pale, haggard, and motionless."

This condition lasts a few seconds or a few minutes, sometimes longer. When it has passed, there is often a passage of gas upward into the mouth, or out the lower bowel. You can readily see that a patient getting rid of this gas immediately afterwards would naturally think that indigestion was the cause of the trouble; which of course is not the case.

How are you to know if you really have angina pectoris or some other condition or pain which resembles it?

In true angina pectoris there is always some trouble with the heart or blood vessels—enlargement or dilation of the left side of the heart, flowing back of blood into the large chamber on left side, weakness of the power of the heart muscle, and hardening of the arteries or blood vessels. Your physician can usually discover the underlying cause.

However, there are a number of conditions which resemble angina pectoris—pain along the nerves in the region of the heart, gall stones, asthma due to weak heart, and false angina in which the patient is able to walk and talk and a feeling that the heart is distended or enlarged, and not constricted or tightened down as in true angina.

As it is important that the right diagnosis be made, it is interesting to learn of the discovery of Drs. A. Lenn, A. Carlton Ernstene and eBrnard M. Jackson, who found that injecting IC.C. of adrenalin (epinephrin) into the skin that the typical or true pain of angina pectoris was produced in patients who were really suffering with angina pectoris, whereas it had no effect on those who did not have the true angina pectoris.

The remedy during an attack is nitrite of amyl, a "pearl" of which may be crushed into a handkerchief placed in bottom of glass tumbler, and inhaled or breathed into the lungs.

Attacks may frequently be avoided by keeping mostly to a milk diet, cutting down on salt, keeping intestine active, the use of heart tonics, and rest in bed.

TURKISH INFLUENCE WANES IN CANAL ZONE

MONTREAL, May 23 (C.P.) — Turkish influence in the Suez Canal zone has not been felt since the end of the Great War and there has been little intereference by Mohammedans with work of Christian missionaries in that district, according to Mgr. Ange Marie Hardi, Bishop of Sululos and Apostolic Victor of the Suez Territory.

In an interview here over the week-end, His Grace told of the difficulties confronting Christian missionaries in their work amongst nomadic Arab tribes. "A special permit from the British Government was necessary before such work was undertaken, he said.

TREES DESTROYED IN MEMORIAL PARK

Act of Vandals Again Appears in Armour Hill Park.

On going over the Memorial Park the project of the Women's Patriotic League of Ashburnham, on a tour of inspection, it was found that a number of trees had been destroyed. The main stem of the trees had been broken—some of these trees were from six to eight years old and were becoming valuable. Trees were destroyed on both sides of the hill as was the case last year and gives quite a set back to the beauty of the grounds.

The trees were of such a size as to suggest that a grown up had done the damage. It was felt that after the notice given last year to those responsible for the vandalism that no further damage would be done, but as it has happened again notice is now given that the first one caught destroying even one tree will be prosecuted.

It will take six or eight years to reproduce the trees of the size of those destroyed.

CULBERTSON on CONTRACT

by Ely Culbertson

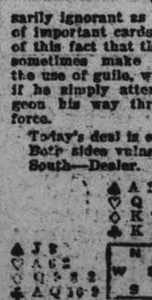
World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

185

THEY MAY GUESS WRONG

The obvious advantage held by the Declarer in the play of the cards is often stated by the rough approximation that the play of the hand is worth a trick. This may or may not be true. It is, of course, apparent that the Declarer, seeing all the cards, the play of which he can control, should be better able to combine them to advantage than can his two opponents, who are necessarily ignorant as to the location of important cards. It is because of this fact that the Declarer can sometimes make a contract by the use of guile, which would fail if he simply attempted to bludgeon his way through by main force.

Today's deal is exactly in point. Both sides vulnerable. South—Dealer.



The Bidding:

South	West	North	East
Pass	1♠	Pass	1♡
Pass	2♡	Pass	4♡
Pass	Pass	Pass

East found in his six-card suit the justification for a Rebid for game. The more prudent course would have been to stop at three, as East realized when the Dummy went down after South had led a spade.

North won the first spade trick and returned the suit. While it is not generally considered good play to hasten the opportunity for ruffs by the short trump hand, North had a rather difficult hand from which to lead, and he felt that nothing he could do would prevent trumping the third round of spades, as his partner was marked with four, so he decided to submit to fate rather than risk opening the diamond suit, about which he knew nothing, or making a trump lead, which might be very revealing to the Declarer.

East won this trick and then trumped his last spade in the Dummy. Three rounds of trumps accounted for all the adverse trumps and now East made the play upon which his success depended. Refusing to attempt the finesse in clubs, he led the 5 of diamonds. This was a very fine play, which could not lose and might win, the object being to deceive the opponents as to the location of one of the high honors in that suit.

South, holding A J in the suit, was given an opportunity to draw incorrect inferences as to the Declarer's holding. The play obviously located the King of clubs in the North hand; otherwise East would play that suit in preference to one in which he lacked both Ace and Knave. South reasoned that East must hold the King of diamonds and that to play the Ace would be playing the Declarer's game for him. He therefore played a low diamond and the 8 in Dummy was played. When North won this trick with the King, South realized too late the trap into which he had fallen.

North returned a spade, East trumped and led his last diamond, which South won with the Ace and led a club, but it was now too late to save the game as the established Queen of diamonds afforded a discard for East's losing club.

Through permitting an opponent to draw incorrect inferences as to the location of an important card, the Declarer had made an unmakable contract.

VETERAN OF MONS WINS WITH SLOGAN

Toronto Man is Winner of Chevrolet Coach in Bachelor Contest.

Ten words written one evening made an entire family happy when William Hart, 17 Kersdale Avenue, Toronto, was made the recipient of a fully equipped Chevrolet Coach as prize in the Bachelor Cigar contest.

Over 8,000 entries were sent in to the Bachelor Cigar Contest which called for ten-word slogans to hearten and encourage Canadians to work for prosperity. Mr. Hart's slogan, considered most inspiring by the judges, was: Let history write of Canadians: 'they were triumphant in adversity'."

It is interesting to note that Mr. Hart was one of the old British "Contemptibles." He fought in the retreat from Mons in August, 1914, as corporal in the Eleventh Hussars. In 1914 he was wounded and gassed while serving on the Canadian Flank and in 1918 was again caught by shellfire and blown up at Hamel Wood. He lost his speech for five months and incurred heart trouble through his long and arduous war service.

Coming to Canada in 1919, Mr. Hart, in spite of war disabilities, soon proved his mettle. To-day he is a well known Canadian citizen, active in the life insurance business. He is married and has two daughters.

Following the winning of this first contest, Andrew Wilson Company Limited, makers of Bachelor Cigars, announce another patriotic contest with a Chevrolet Coach as the prize. The details of this new contest are broadcast daily over local stations.

During Berlin's recent Educational Week for pedestrians 1,000,000 illustrated leaflets detailing traffic regulations, with warnings as to what may happen if disregarded, were distributed.

SPRING EXECUTIVE MEETING PETERBORO W. M. S. PRESBYTERY

Much Business Discussed at Spring Meeting Held on Friday.

REPORTS ARE READ.

The spring executive meeting of the Woman's Missionary society of Peterborough Presbyterial met in St. Andrew's church parlors on Friday afternoon, with a good representation of the executive ladies present.

The meeting opened with prayer by the president, Mrs. A. I. Brown, after which the Scripture lesson, chosen from the 8th Psalm was read by Mrs. William Watt.

Mrs. A. I. Brown brought an interesting and very comprehensive report of the Branch Executive meeting held in Belleville recently. This included several important items which were read and thoroughly discussed. Many changes have been made this year in the rules and regulations of the Branch and among these was the classification of organizations. The Young Woman's Auxiliary has been discontinued and the members will join with either circle or Senior Auxiliary beginning in September. The age limits for the different societies were defined as follows: Baby Band members up to five years. Mission Band from five to fifteen. C.G.I.T., fifteen to seventeen; Mission Circle from eighteen to twenty-five, or full adult age. Another change is the name of "Mite Box" which will now be "Gift Box".

Committee Appointed

A committee of three, including Mesdames Moyer, Morton and Watt were appointed to meet with the social service committee of the Presbytery to advance the Kingdom of God movement. In connection with this it was decided to urge the use of both membership and the Kingdom of God cards in the individual auxiliaries.

The Whitby school of Missions whose object is to train missionary leaders and is open to all desiring this training, was discussed and the delegates appointed from Peterborough Presbyterial were Mrs. W. H. Morton of Peterborough and Mrs. R. Pakenham of Norwood.

Mrs. Brown presented a long list of special objects for the W.M.S. Mission fields asking that these be kept prominently before our people. Among those specially in need of funds are, a car for use of a missionary in Africa; medical work in India; primary work in Chengtu, China; girls' school extension in Japan; native workers in South China; medical work in Korea; scholarships for students and many other worthy objects.

Reports Read

Another interesting feature of yesterday's (Friday's) meeting, were the reports of the various secretaries who gave a resume of the work completed up to the present in their own particular department. These reports included the following secretaries: literature, missionary monthly, associate helpers' supply, stranger's and press, the treasurer, also gave a very encouraging report of the Presbyterial finances.

It was with much regret that the resignation of Mrs. Lorne Cunningham, secretary of Bands and Baby Bands was received. This was placed in the hands of the nominating committee. The various vice presidents of the Presbyterial will be called by the president at an early date to arrange for the fall sectional rallies. The meeting closed with prayer offered by Mrs. S. H. Moyer.

A delightful social time was enjoyed at the conclusion, when St. Andrew's Auxiliary members entertained the visiting ladies with the service of dainty refreshments.

Among those present were the following: Mrs. W. W. Leonard, Lakefield; Mrs. Hugh Robb, Norwood; Mrs. A. I. Brown, Peterborough; Mrs. S. H. Moyer, Springville; Mrs. R. C. Hanbidge, Springville; Mrs. A. C. Denike, Havelock; Mesdames W. H. Morton, J. H. Spencer, W. Stevens, A. Porteous, Wm. Watt, E. J. Wagar, F. Stevens and Miss F. Dixon all of Peterborough.

Royals Take Three Straight Games From Leafs

MONTREAL WINS DOUBLE-HEADER

Leafs Drop Both Ends of Twin Bill at Montreal Sunday.

BY 3-1, 6-5 SCORES.

MONTREAL, May 23. — Royals had better luck against Toronto pitching here Sunday afternoon than at Maple Leafs Stadium on Saturday and took both ends of a double-header, 3 to 1 and 6 to 5, to climb back into contention for the International leadership. Both jobs were pitching duels. Walter Brown won his fifth victory of the season when he had the edge on Glenn Liebhardt in the first and Collingwood outlasted Art Mills and the Leafs in the second to win 6-5. Walker and Hughes hit homers for the Leafs and drove in four runs, nearly ruining the afternoon for young Collingwood.

Leafs, here for a one-day visit, left tonight for home with two wins out of the five-game series the teams had played since last Thursday. They meet Buffalo in Toronto this afternoon. Only five utility players and pitchers made the trip besides the regular nine.

Walter Pegs Brown turned in a stylish seven-hit performance to win the first game and his fifth victory of the season, but Stadium scouts are beginning to expect that sort of pitching from the talented young right-hander. It was something of a shock, however, to witness John Pennell leaving the game after pitching but one-third of an inning, but a pleasant surprise was in store for those who braved the cold weather to discover Collingwood made a high-class job of finishing and won his first victory of the season.

Leafs Get Only Rupees

Runaway had his troubles, however, and before the abbreviated second game was over the southpaw reliever from Boston's Back Bay saw the two Leaf batters go staging over the scoreboard and with them four runs of his five-run total. The first Leaf walkup was delivered by Hughes with none on in the sixth, but still Collingwood was ahead 6-3, but when Walker connected over the same spot with two mates on base to make it 6-5 with one out, there were murmurs of doubt among the gathering that Collingwood could finish.

Royals got eleven solid blows in the first game, but Liebhardt was great in the pinches, and many of their best blows were wasted. A four-hit attack produced two runs in the fourth, which gave Brown the slim lead he needed to win, and four more hits, among them a triple, added a paltry third run in the sixth. Brown allowed the Leafs to bunch their blows only once, Liebhardt's single, that drove in Hornbeck in the third, rubbing him of a shutout. Brown had better control than usual, and walked but two men. He fanned five, and personally inaugurated two double-plays, which erased a pair of Leafs from the paths in the fifth and sixth.

Bettie Thomas, who started his most recent hitting streak in Toronto, was the batting star of both games, and collected five hits during the two games. Among them was a triple and a double, all five hits came in succession before he struck out in the fifth inning of the nightcap.

SPENCE BROTHERS MAY SWIM FOR CANADA

Those who are advocating that Walter, Leonard and Wallace Spence of British Guiana swim for Canada at the Olympics may get their wish, although it is not likely that the C.A.S.A.A. will pay the shot for their trip. According to Tommy Walker, newly appointed coach for Canada's swim team, there is a likelihood that the Olympic committee may decide to fork over the necessary to take the famous trio to Los Angeles. Walter, it will be remembered swam for Canada at Amsterdam in 1928, but failed to get anywhere despite the fact that he held the world's breast stroke record.

Orwell Will Win Or Else

WINNER OF GUINEAS FAVORED FOR DERBY

Here is the horse that is called by the experts to win the English Derby which will be held June 1. He is quoted at odds of 2 to 1, but anything can happen between now and post-time. Witness the Kentucky Derby and Tick On. Orwell, owned by Washington Singer, was placed high in the betting books because of his outstanding performance in the classic Two Thousand Guineas at Newmarket last month, when he just romped home to an easy victory. Dastur, who finished second in the Guineas is quoted for the Derby at 32 to 1. If Orwell can come through again in the Derby he will repeat Cameronian's feat of last year in winning both these classics of the English turf in the same year.

Joe Lawson, the trainer of Orwell, said, after this race: "In my 30 years with good horses I have never known one so nearly human as Orwell. His intelligence is almost uncanny, and he seems to know the game of racing as well as I do. He knows exactly what is required of him, and he will never do more than necessary after a gallop at home. He will pull up in a few strides the moment he gets his head in front, while others go a hundred yards before they stop. In a race it is just the same—the moment the pressure on his head relaxes he stops. That is why he sometimes appears to be all out when he is nothing of the kind. He does not run again until the Derby."

C.G.E. DEFEATS DELORO 4 TO 2

Both Teams Give Good Display of Code in Initial Games of Season.

A KEEN CONTEST.

MARMORA, May 23 (Examiner Correspondence).—Honors went to C.G.E. in their league fixture with Deloro on the Smelters' enclosure on Saturday afternoon by the score of 4—2. It was the initial game of the season for both teams. For the Electrics, Anderson was making his debut, while Deloro had no less than three recruits in the game—O'Neill and Simmons who played throughout, and Stewart, who substituted for Smith in the second half. Anderson marked his first appearance for the C.G.E. by sharing with his captain, Ben McMaster, the score of his team.

For the Smelters, O'Neill gave a creditable display in goal, and with more experience should make a name for himself. Simmons, on the right wing, played his position neatly and sent in some good centres. It was from one of these that his team-mate Brown netted the only goal of the first half. Stewart showed much agility at inside right and was seldom at fault. Both teams were sporting new jerseys of dark blue shade, and Deloro players were only distinguished from their opponents at times by their white sleeves.

Visitors Win Toss

The visitors won the toss and kicked off with the wind in their favor. Five minutes later Deloro brought off a rush which culminated in Simmons passing to Brooks, who let the ball slip by to Brown for the latter to score with a stinging shot which gave Daynes no chance. Play after this was even. J. McMaster had hard lines in not equalising as O'Neill was drawn out of the net. Half time came with the score: Deloro 1, C.G.E. 0.

Early in the second half, Brown missed a good chance of scoring. At the other end, Quinn hit the upright. J. McMaster set in a lovely shot which O'Neill cleared well. The Electrics soon drew blood. Following a corner, a scramble took place in front of the Deloro goal. Quinn forced the ball through for Anderson to rush in and level the score. A few moments later, B. McMaster, who was at this time getting into his old stride, sent in a beautiful drive into the corner of the net. Shortly after, Quinn took a corner, the ball travelling dangerously towards the goal, but O'Neill fisted out in masterly fashion.

Deloro returned to the attack, but could not score. Back went the C.G.E. forward line, and after Ben McMaster had shot a trifle wide, his brother placed a nice shot just over the cross-bar and missed with a second good shot. Brown, at the other end, had hard lines in shooting a trifle high. Deloro got going strong on the other wing, the recruits, Simmons and Stewart shaping well.

Bradley received when in good position, but his shot went high. Brooks sent in a good drive which found Daynes on his guard. Brown, who had been playing aggressively throughout, secured possession and working his way through the visitors' defence, scored a lovely goal. A thrill came before another minute had elapsed. Daynes was drawn out of goal. The ball bounced off Brooks in the goal-ward direction and missed the net by inches. Both teams tried hard for the lead; the visitors being successful in registering further goals through B. McMaster, and Anderson. The final score was C.G.E. 4, Deloro 2.

The utmost good feeling prevailed throughout the game and both teams gave promise of developing into stern contenders for the league championship.

The teams:—

C.G.E.—J. Daynes, goal; J. Mitchell and C. Lewington, backs; W. Bolam, S. Clark and M. Schumacher, halves; J. Quinn, J. McMaster, B. McMaster, L. Anderson, H. Darling, forwards. T. Tice, reserve.

MACKS TAKE 7TH STRAIGHT

Grove and Homers Subdue Yankees and Athletics Cop 4-2 Decision.

BRAVES BREAK EVEN.

(By Herbert W. Barker, A.P. Sports Writer)

The good left arm of Robert (Lefty) Grove and the mighty bat of Jimmy Foxx fast are leading the Philadelphia Athletics out of the darkness of the American League standings.

Behind Grove's six hit pitching and with the aid of home runs by Foxx, Al Simmons and Mickey Cochrane, the A's bowled over the New York Yankees, 4-2, yesterday for their seventh successive victory. As a result, the A's moved into third place, three games behind the second place Washington Senators and four and a half behind the Yankees.

Grove, in winning his sixth game in a row, outpitched Henry Johnson by the narrowest of margins. John allowed only five hits in the eight innings he worked and struck out seven, but could not keep the home run ball away from the A's "big three."

Washington got four-hit pitching from young Monte Weaver and whipped the Boston Red Sox, 7-1. Cleveland dropped into fifth place as a result of a 4-2 beating at the hands of the St. Louis Browns who made only five hits off Clint Brown but bunched them for four runs in the fifth.

Ninth inning rallies won two games for the Chicago White Sox from the Detroit Tigers. Johnny Hodapp's homer won the first, 3-2, and Lou Blue's triple was the high spot of a five-run rally that won the second 5-7.

The Boston Braves drew to within two percentage points of the National League lead by splitting a double bill with the Phillies while the league-leading Chicago Cubs were taking another beating from the Cincinnati Reds.

Ed. Brandt pitched five-hit ball to give the Braves the opener, 6-2, but singles by Klein, Hurst and George Davis in the 10th inning gave the Phillies the nightcap, 5-3. A record-breaking crowd of 51,331 saw the battle.

Ray Kolp had the better of a pitchers' duel with Charley Root, as the Reds won their third in a row from the Cubs. The two Brooklyn east-siffs, Babe Herman and Ernie Lombardi, drove in all four Red runs.

Bill Clarke held the New York Giants to five hits as the Dodgers won a 3-1 victory with Alfonso Lopez driving in both tallies.

Pittsburgh won the first game from St. Louis Cardinals, 5-1, but dropped the second, 5-3. Steve Swetonic pitched his third three-hit game for the Pirates in the opener and would have had his fourth shutout but a home run by Pepper Martin. Bill Hallahan was walloped for 12 hits in the second game, but was tight in the pinches. He struck out eight men to run his season's total to 51.

Foxx Gets Two Homers

The American League's sweatsmith claimed attention in Saturday's games. Jimmy Foxx hagged two homers in as many games, and the Athletics walloped the Boston Red Sox, 12-6 and 6-5, but Babe Ruth kept pace with a pair in the first game against Washington, which the Yankees took 14-2. Lazzeri and Gehrig also hit for the circuit. The Yankees also took the second game, 8-0, urged on by Johnny Allen's homer with two aboard and his strong pitching in the pinches. Detroit subdued Chicago 5-1, with Vic Sorrell mowing down the opposition, and the St. Louis Browns put on a four-run show in the ninth to turn back Cleveland, 8 to 7.

In the National League the Boston Braves and Phillies struggled 14 innings before Wes Schulmerich's double, leaving Urbanski, gave the Braves a 6-5 win. Guy Bush walked Heath in the ninth to give Cincinnati a 6-5 victory over the Chicago Cubs, and the league's only doubleheader for the day found the Giants and Dodgers all even. The Giants' eight-run outbreak in the eighth inning settled the opener, 13-3, but Van Mungo tamed them in the second game.

Bobby Barrett, whom the critics were sure wouldn't be retained by Newark, was back at his old post at third base when the season opened. It was believed the veteran would be one of the first to go when the Yankees took over the Newark club as a farm for their youngsters.

Ernie Nevers, former pitcher for the St. Louis Browns, has been appointed assistant director of physical education at Stanford University.

Conditions in Turner Valley are stated to be decidedly favorable for the building up of a varied clay products industry.

Yesterday's Stars

SHAMROCKS WIN THIRD STRAIGHT

Team Gains First Place in Trenton Softball League by Reason of Win.

FINAL COUNT 9-5

The Shamrocks won their third straight game in the Trenton League Thursday night and this gives them the position of first place for the present at least. Their contestants were the Woolen Leafs and they sure put up a stiff battle.

The Leafs hopes soared high in the first inning when they tallied four runs. The Shamrocks changed pitchers however, and their Spanish castles fell. This, by the way, is the weakness of the Shamrocks. They have only one pitcher of much value as was very forcibly shown. Their one pitcher is good, but he is not a man of iron, and it is expected that the advancing season will bringe a change in the status of this team.

The Shamrocks administered their coup to the Leafs in the third inning when, with the bases loaded, Chase not only took the ball for a ride but also a drink. The Leafs loaded the bags in the fifth inning and one of their hood batters stepped to bat. It was a tense moment and the crowd groaned when in his excitement he swung at a high ball and went out on a fly ball, making the third out.

Shamrocks.—Bahon, ss; McCue, 2b; E. Hutton, cf; Smith, lb; Scarlet, 3b; Chase, lf; Miller, c; J. Alexander, rf; Coughlen, p.

Leafs.—C. C. Ruttan, 3b; Whitney, 1b; Davy, rf; Stacey, 2b; Radcliffe, ss; Free, p; G. Ruttan, cf; D. Fox, c; W. Reid, lf; A. Putman, who subbed for Reid in the sixth. Score by innings:

Shamrocks .....2 0 4 1 1 1 x—9
Leafs .....4 0 0 0 1 0—5

BEARS-WINGS AGAIN VICTORS

First Games of International Double-headers Are Extra Innings Affairs.

BIRDS-PESTS DIVIDE.

(By the Associated Press).

The Reading Keystones are a rather bad last in the International League standing, while most of the other clubs are fighting for first place or something near it, but the results of the past few days make it clear that Clarence Rowland's club does not intend to give up anything without a struggle.

Facing first Rochester, a leading contender, and then the League leading Newark Bears, the Keys have carried four of their last six games into extra innings. But they have won only one of them. Last Wednesday they battled the Red Wings ten innings, going down 1-0. The next day they took an 8-5 ten-inning game from Newark. Then went down four times in a row, playing eleven frames Saturday and twelve in yesterday's first game.

The Keys at least made things interesting enough to attract 12,000 fans, the day's piles crowd, for their last stand at Newark and they fulfilled the promise that drew the fans. They knocked three Newark pitchers around the lot for ten runs before Jim Weaver stopped them with three hits and 10 strikeouts in the last five innings. But Newark kept pace and in the 19th, Dixie Walker drove a homer into the bleachers with two aboard to give Newark a 13-10 decision.

Newark jumped into an early lead to win the second game, 8-5, but Reading still had power enough to drive Harry Holecker from the hill before the end.

The Rochester Red Wings provided an exciting time for 16,000 spectators as they jumped into second place with a double victory over Buffalo. The Red Birds had to go eleven innings and then score two runs in the last half of the final inning to win 6-5. A four-run rally behind Ray Starr in the sixth gave them a 7-4 decision in the second game.

Orioles in 4th Place.

Baltimore's Orioles wound up in a fourth-place tie with Buffalo after splitting a twin bill with Jersey City. The Skeeters rallied for three runs in the ninth to win the first contest, 9-7, while Baltimore came from behind to take the second 4-3. Clancy and Outen of Jersey City hit a homer apiece in each game.

Saturday's games in the International provided a division of honors in the Canadian sector, and single victories by Newark, Rochester and Baltimore. Art Smith of the Toronto Leafs blanked the Montreal Royals 3-0 with five hits, but the clouting of Thomas and Gautreau, each with a double and triple, propelled the Royals to a 3-2 win in the nightcap. Newark's Bears were carried 11 innings by Reading before the Keys succumbed 8-1, Cohen's sensational base-running with a flourishing slide home settling the issue. Rochester capped a strong finish with Manager Southworth's home run to defeat Buffalo 9-7, while the long-range guns of Baltimore scattered the Jersey City Skeeters, 9-6. Linton had two homers and Jordan and Packard one each.

JOYCE WETHERED RETAINS HONORS

English Golfer Defeats Glenna Collett Vare in Singles Match.

SIX AND FOUR.

WENTWORTH, Surrey, Eng. May 23.—(AP)—Miss Joyce Wethered one of England's best, retained her golf mastery over Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare, former United States champion, today to defeat her six and four in the first singles match of a team series between Great Britain and the United States.

The two old rivals have met several times before in the British championship and always the tall English girl has won. The jinx held good today as she took a four up lead over the visiting girl in the first holes made it five up at the 13th and ended the match on the 14th green.

Mrs. Vare won only one hole, the 10th, Miss Wethered won seven and the others were halved.

Buffalo started the season with an infield entirely different than it had last year, having obtained all four newcomers from major teams this spring—Jim Smith, from the Red Sox; Johnny Ryan from the White Sox; Bill Werber from the Yankees, and George Detore from the Indians.

SCOTS CLUB GETS BREAK NEAR FINISH

McCracken Sinks Winning Tally for Scots—Score Equalized Three Times.

PETES 4, PORT HOPE 3.

Well over five hundred spectators turned out, on Saturday afternoon, to witness the Port Hope aggregation battle the Caledonians in the semi-final of the Injured Players cup, on King Edward Park, in ideal weather. A break in favor of the local team gave them the decision after the visiting eleven had held a goal margin twenty minutes to go when two tallies were registered quickly. The visitors failed to stand the pace in the concluding period, that resulted in a 4-3 score. The winners now meet the C.G.E. next Saturday.

Port Hope have a well balanced team that will give a good account of themselves before the season is very old. Roy Black being the most prominent along with Teddy Boon on the right wing; also Dobbs, from Hamilton, is a clever strategy opportunist. Dave Green's partner will make a good defense man once he gets acquainted with each others methods.

Fast Opening

There was no choice in the spin of the coin, because the wind was blowing across the field. The movements were cautious until the players got acquainted with the style of tactics shown, then the wing men indulged in long swinging passes that had the halves in a quandry. From a perfect pass, on the Scots' left, O'Halloran missed with his head, by a fraction. A series of bombardments continued in favor of the visitors, with Dobbs and Roy Black being the prominent factors in keeping Frick busy in goal. Port Hope kept up the pressure to gain a penalty kick. Captain R. Black made no mistake with his lightning drive into the inside of the upright as Frick was too late in stopping. The Scots repulsed the attacks, to find the visitors back again hovering inside their goal area, with Frick holding them off the scoring list. Agnew replaced Humphries, full back, who seemed to find himself in difficulties when Black attacked on the wing. This inclusion stabilized the Scots and they carried the play to the other end where the McPhate brothers' combination became successful as the sphere rolled over to their pivot who picked the far corner of the net for the equalizer. Beautiful combination by the respective players added many thrills in the citadel territory where the custodians displayed brilliant clearances from dangerous attacks. With five minutes to go, Murphy on the Caley's right, outwitted the half in a clean tackle and punted the ball into the goal. Curtis, goalie jumped up in the air to clear but there was too much weight behind it to prevent a tally being registered, to make the score stand at the interval, Caledonians 2, Port Hope 1.

Half Time

A well earned rest added new vigor to the attacking forces, more particularly the visitors who showed a better brand of play when in the vicinity of the goal. They were rewarded for their efforts when Black manoeuvered for a shooting chance, while his teammate, Jarvis baffled the opposition defence as he slammed a drive at Frick. The custodian grasped the ball but to his astonishment, he witnessed the ball roll off his arm into the rigging at the side, to make the count on an even basis again—two all.

Success after success fell upon them when they responded with greater enthusiasm than ever to make the full back give away another spot kick. Captain Black of the visitors put his team ahead with a rising shot that the local goalie had no chance to save.

With the Petes in the losing column again, they revived the onslaught on the Port Hope boys who never gave up, as the winning goal added greater confidence. Twenty minutes to go, the Scots reverted to the close passing game that proved beneficial to them as the wing men had ample time to centre the ball into goal. Scrimmage after scrimmage ensued, with the goalies clearing the situation, when everything seemed lost. Added pressure by the Scots' left wing finally converted from close range, after O'Halloran had twice tested the custodian, but Archie McPhate concluded his splendid performance by an oblique shot away out of the reach of the visiting custodian. Both teams endeavoured to get the break in the closing minutes and it fell in favour of the locals when the halves hemmed the play close upon the visiting citadel. The attacking forwards all had a try to score in the melee that ensued until the sphere rolled out to Archie McPhate who rapped a right footer for the far post. Port Hope goalie threw himself the full length of the goal to save but not sufficient to prevent Willie McCracken running in and deciding the issue with a gentle pass into the net. Caledonians, 4; Port Hope 3.

Goal scorers—Roy Black (two penalties) and Jarvis, for Port Hope. For Caledonians, O'Halloran, A. McPhate (2), and W. McCracken.

Port Hope—W. Curtis, goal; D. Green and J. Lock, full backs; F. Ashby, A. Black and J. Watson, halves; T. Boon, W. Hutton, J. James, R. Dobbs and R. Black, forwards. No substitutes.

Caledonians—A. Frick, goal; W. Agnew and G. Blowers, full backs; A. Reid, T. Cragg and J. Taylor, halves; R. Murphy, W. McPhate, and T. McPhate, forwards. Sub., Humphries.

Referee—T. Bantley. Linesmen—T. Stewart and W. Harrington.

CASUAL COMMENT

To-night is the big opening game of the Men's City Softball League. Percy Harrison's classy Red & White Stores' team starts it off against the champion Sugar Bowl outfit at 6.15 at Central School Grounds. Aldermen Bob Cotton, W. H. Taylor and R. M. Glover are to participate in the customary opening ceremonies, and a big crowd of fans are expected to be present, if the weather is okay. The league will resume again Wednesday evening, playing nightly from then on.

* * * * * *

The Girls' Softball League gets off to a start at the East City Bowl Wednesday evening with Chemics tangling with Maple Leafs. The grounds over there have been rolled and look pretty good again. They're bigger than was the case last year. A general practice with girls from several teams was held there Saturday afternoon.

* * * * * *

All over down Saturday, teams were practising or playing. Baseball, softball, football, lacrosse, as well as tennis and golf. Summer sports got under way in everything this week, which is also Canadian Sports Week. This week was inaugurated five years ago to bring about a more general appreciation of the many advantages that sport offers to Canadian people, and we should have special sporting programs in honor of it this year.

* * * * * *

The local Baseball Commission holds its first meeting this evening at Dollies at eight o'clock, with representatives of the senior club, the E.P.I. and the City League meeting with Alex Kay occupying the chair.

The Petes open their C.O.S.L. campaign to-morrow, the 24th, journeying to Cobourg to play in the afternoon at three o'clock. Nearly the whole squad will be taken down and probably most of them will get into the game for awhile. The pitching selection hasn't been announced yet. As it is a holiday, many Peterborough fans will likely motor down to cheer the local players through to their first win of the season.

* * * * * *

The game on Saturday was chiefly notable for the heavy hitting, and the Petes looked good in that line. They bounced out two triples, five doubles, five singles, and bunted a sacrifice hit. Robust clouting is important and the local seniors appear to be all set in this line now. Of course, the pitchers weren't giving all they had in this practise game, but the fact remains, the Petes are better hitters this year than was the case last summer.

* * * * * *

Every one of the players who was in for all the game over there on Saturday cooked out at least one safe blow. Calladine and Billingsley threw them in for the All-Stars and both went all right, but of course didn't break their arms. The same was true of Kitchen and Holmes. The two double-plays of the Petes looked smart, and the fielding as a whole was good for this time of year.

* * * * * *

Several players on the All-Star aggregation will be in senior company before the season is very old, we imagine. That is unless the present senior players prove too good to replace at all times. At anyrate, the game was a first-class workout for a bunch of the fellows, was important from a managerial standpoint, and interesting for a good crowd of fans.

* * * * * *

The Brinton Lacrosse Club held a fish workout on Saturday. They have been coming along good, practising every evening lately, and deserve credit for the manner in which they organized with each player buying to kick in with his own outfit. Those out on Saturday included: W. Lolliger, T. Stamet, R. Ashmore, M. Collins, W. Kelly, C. McCoy, H. Jones, E. Creighton, D. Miller, W. Firth, A. Lefevre, F. Atkinson, S. Ball, T. Hewitt, R. Hatton, R. Howarth, and R. Lackie. They'll be at the Brock again to-night at seven bells.

* * * * * *

There'll be a meeting of the City Lacrosse League at the Brock at eight this evening with representatives of the three teams present to arrange for schedule, and other matters. All the players have been hard at it lately, and anxious to get down to business and try the new game in earnest.

* * * * * *

It's business before pleasure in Deloro, and as the soccer team has been ordered to work there to-morrow, their league game with Port Hope had to be called off. The Caledonians will go down to Port Hope in a league match instead. C.G.E. plays the Packers in a regular game at 10.30 bells to-morrow forenoon in the King Edward Park.

SOCCER FIXTURES ON VICTORIA DAY

C. G. E. Vs. Packers in Forenoon While Caledonians Travel to Port Hope.

The soccer bill for the holiday includes a League game in the city between the Canadian General and the Canada Packers, on King Edward Park. Kick-off at 10.30 in the morning. The referee will be appointed to-night. This will be an important battle because both teams have won a game, and the winner will carry two valuable points on the decision. The C.G.E. defeated Deloro 4-2 Saturday, while Packers beat the Scots.

Owing to Deloro being notified to work on the holiday, the League game between the Port Hope eleven has been called off, and the Caledonians travelling to the lakeshore to fill the breach instead. All the Caledonian players are requested to be at the Market Square, no later than one o'clock, and the team will be chosen when they arrived in Port Hope.

The Nanking-Pukow railway ferry service is to open early next year.

SENIORS WIN FREE-HITTING AFFAIR 12-6

Extra-base Blows Accounts for Seniors' Victory Over All-Stars.

PITCHERS ARE GOOD.

In a free-hitting exhibition ball game at Showgrounds Park Saturday, the Petes outslugged an intermediate All-Star team to win 12 to 6. A fair-sized crowd took in the game played in ideal baseball weather. Extra-base blows accounted for the seniors' victory, two triples and five doubles being included in the twelve hits gained off Bill Calladine and "Lefty" Billingsley. The losers also collected a dozen safe blows, with three doubles, off Russ Kitchen and Ernie Holmes.

None of the pitchers did much hearing down and the hitters had a big afternoon. Hillier led the winners with a triple and single in four trips, while Scully had two doubles and Foley poled out a two-bagger and a single. For the others, Billingsley and Delahaye each had a double and a single, Rooke and Miller got two singles and Hartley slapped out a two-baser.

Fair Fielding

The fielding was fair for this time of year, with the seniors pulling off two neat double-killings. Scully handled eight of ten chances with Whatley of the All-Stars taking seven clean and Sweetman six. Hillier's classy running catch of a fly back of third in the sixth inning was a fielding feature.

Kitchen started for the Petes, fanning three and allowing eight hits until Holmes took over the job in the sixth. He struck out one and gave four hits the rest of the way. Calladine fanned two and was hit five times in the four innings he worked, while Billingsley was touched for seven hits while striking out three. The losers got four in the first, on three doubles and two singles, but were blanked then till the seventh when they got one on two singles and a stolen base. They pushed across one more in the ninth on a hit and two errors. The seniors scored twice in the first and in the second, once in the third, twice in the fourth, twice in the seventh and three times in the eighth.

PETERBORO CLUB IS BEATEN 96-57

Annual Cricket Match Played With Grove School, Lakefield, on Saturday.

CLEVER BOWLING.

The annual cricket match between Peterborough and the Grove School, Lakefield, was played on Saturday last at Nicholls Oval, the latter winning 96-57.

The Grove won the toss and batted first, with T. Wood and Wright opening their innings, with F. Dyer and P. Jefferson bowling for Peterborough. T. Wood was dismissed by Dyer in the first over. Macrae then went in and played with confidence, hitting each bowler for a boundary. After scoring a useful 7 runs, wright was bowled by Dyer. Then Bisdell and Macrae set up a splendid partnership, bringing the score from 11 runs to 56, when Bisdell was bowled by A. Hamilton. Macrae continued to hit boundaries all over the field, keeping Peterborough's fielders on their toes until he was finally stumped by Dainton, thus ending a magnificent innings of 48 runs, comprising six 4's, seven 2's and the remainder in singles. If he could only have secured two more runs, the Grove School would have presented him with a hat. Loosemore stayed long enough to score seven runs, K. Mackenzie 4 singles, Disher 5, Elmsley 8 not out and Beardmore 4, ending their innings for a total of 96 runs.

Peterorough then commenced their innings with A. Hamilton and F. Dainton batting first. Dainton was very soon caught out by Wright. Biddle followed with two boundaries and a single before being caught by Bisdell. Jefferson was next to partner Hamilton, who was playing steadily and carefully, scoring singles, but becoming a little careless, was caught by Bisdell from a loose ball after scoring a useful score of 23. Then Jefferson, unable to repeat his last year's performance of 61 not out, was bowled by Beardmore for 5. Captain Dyer, after scoring 6, was bowled by Goldsmith. R. N. Stuart then followed to carry his bat for the score of one. W. Coleman, R. Stuart, J. Chamberlain, F. Dyer, Jr., and A. Davies then followed. W. Coleman and J. Chamberlain were the only two to score with 1 and 6 runs respectively.

Babe Caddock and Abe Kashey to Tangle in Semi-Final Bout.

DICK-LEWIS, OPENERS

Wrestlers of outstanding ability have been secured by Promoter Jack Corcoran of the Toronto Queensbury Club for the two bouts which will precede the finish match between the sensational Masked Marvel and "Whitey" Hewitt, the blonde tiger from Memphis, Tennessee. The complete card will include in addition to the main bouters, some of the men who made good at the last show here which created so much action and excitement.

In the semi-final "Babe" Caddocks, the "man with a thousand holds" and the Syrian champion, Abe Kashey, will battle for supremacy. Caddock, who made a great hit at the last Toronto show, is entitled to a place among the leaders of the sport, while Kashey, heavier than the "Babe" and an experienced wrestler, figures to give him a great battle. There should be few dull moments in this bout.

The opener will be between "Wild Bill" Lewis of Rocky Mountain, North Carolina, and Arthur Dick, flying tackle expert from Evansville, Ind. Lewis is a colorful performer and practically "stole the show" on his first appearance in Toronto, his bout being so sensational that the pair were rematched for the very next show. While he has something of an unruly style, he has plenty of wrestling ability to back it up for his record shows a draw with the famous Ray Steele in a half-hour bout and a victory over Matros Kirilenko, former Russian Cossack. Dick, squat and heavy, puts plenty of weight behind his tackles and can hold his own against most of the heavyweights.

It will be noted that no fewer than four of the six wrestlers on the card were in action at the last show here. The Marvel beat Kashey in a great bout in which the latter, though the loser showed plenty of ability. Caddock won from "Dewey" Marchioni after a heotic struggle and Dick worked his way to a decision over the fast and clever Dutch grappler, Frankie Hart. Incidentally Lewis, Kashey, Caddock, Hewitt and Dick have all competed at some of Toronto's most important shows in addition to featuring cards at other large wrestling centres.

GOLF GREENS IN GOOD CONDITION

Official Opening of Country Club Will Take Place on Saturday, May 28th.

SCHEDULE NEARLY DONE.

The fairways and greens of the Peterborough Golf and Country Club have never been in as good condition as they are this week. The greenskeeper and the weatherman have been working hand in hand. Besides the general fine condition of the course, there are several noteworthy improvements this year.

The tree line on the first and tenth holes is clear of stone and brush, the approach to the tenth and eleventh holes have been made more playable through the filling of a bunker in each case. A box of shaded trees have been placed behind the fifteenth and sixteenth tees, and a line of trees between the twelfth and thirteenth holes. A new tee for the ladies on the sixteenth gives them a better chance of carrying the hill on the drive. A change planned which will not be carried out for another week is the shortening of the eighth hole. The tee on this hole will be placed further forward and to the right, making the hole of mashie length and the green will be properly trapped to suit such a shot.

Work Delayed

The work on this is being delayed till after the official club opening, Saturday, May 28th, and the holiday play. The opening will take the form of mixed two-ball foursomes in the afternoon. Members' entry fee of fifty cents a person is to be charged which includes tea. It is hoped that members who do not play will come for tea. The charge for tea is twenty-five cents. It will assist the catering for these members to 'phone the club house their intentions of arriving for tea.

Suitable prizes will be awarded. The ladies' captain, Mrs. B. D. Hall, is in charge of the ladies' entries, and Dr E. H. Wood, men's captain, directs the men's. All entering are asked to be on hand as early as possible and so assist the committee in arranging the foursomes. Play is to begin at two o'clock.

Schedule Almost Complete

The schedule for inter-club games is almost complete. Matches are to be played with Oshawa, Cobourg, Belleville Quinte Club, Lindsay, and Port Hope, with Lindsay opening here July 6th. The Match and Handicap Committee consists of: F. M. Delafosse, Ross Dobbin, Dr. E. H. Wood, captain, and J. P. Bond, chairman. They will be pleased to receive any suggestion from the members as to improvements or enlargements of the competitions. The first round of the Stratton trophy will be posted next week. Men players are asked to turn in all scores to the professional to assist the committee in handicapping the teams.

Mrs. Whittington and Miss Ada Mackenzie, of Oakville, are coming here the last of May or the first of June to par the local course for the Canadian Ladies' Golf Union.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

OLD MR. TOAD HEEDS THE CALL

When love doth call who will not speed
The impulse of the heart to heed?
—Old Mr. Toad.

Old Mr. Toad's awakening from his long winter sleep was rude but effective. By the time Farmer Brown's Boy rescued him from Flip the Terrier he was very much awake. When Farmer Brown's Boy put him down and commanded Flip to leave him alone Old Mr. Toad gravely blinked his golden eyes at Farmer Brown's Boy, then turned and slowly, for his legs were still a bit stiff from long disuse, hopped over to a board not far away and crept under it. He felt better there than out in the bright light.

It was goo dto be awake. It was good to feel the warm air and to hear the spring voices and to feel the happiness that was everywhere. And now, oh joy! Raindrops were pattering on the board above him, for a passing shower had come just in time to complete his feeling of well being, for to be thoroughly comfortable Old Mr. Toad must have moisture. Dry air, which means a dry skin, means for him the worst form of discomfort.

Under that board he found a cutworm, and this he promptly ate. Then he discovered a slug, and this he also ate. Thus that very first day he ate two of the worst enemies of the tender young plants that would soon appear in Farmer Brown's garden. Presently he became aware of a distant sound to which at first he paid not attention. Now, with his head cocked a bit to one side, he listened. It was the chorus of Peeper the Hyla and his relatives down in the Smiling Pool.

As he listened a strange feeling stole over Old Mr. Toad. Uneasiness and a great desire took possession of him. Just what that great desire was for he did not at first understand. But as he listened to that distant chorus he gradually understood. He should have a part in that chorus. He too, should be singing. That chorus was not complete without his voice. Those small cousins of his were calling to him to join them. Then as he listened there was something in those voices that reminded him of Old Mrs. Toad. He began to wonder where she was; where she had spent the winter, if she was awake yet and if it might be that she was listening to that chorus vainly waiting to hear a certain voice, his voice, singing to her.

"I haven't the least idea where she is," though Old Mr. Toad, "and she hasn't the least idea where I am. It is always that way every spring. But always me meet at the

"I haven't the least idea where she is," thought Old Mr. Toad

Smiling Pool. She knows that no matter where I may be I will go to the Smiling Pool early in the spring and wait for her. She will expect me to go there first and sing to her. She will wait until she hears my voice, and then after awhile she will join me there. I wonder where she is now and if she is listening to that chorus and wondering why she does not hear my voice. Perhaps she isn't awake yet. Very likely she isn't. I usually awaken first. Anyway, I get down to the Smiling Pool first. Ha! There is another slug."

For the next few minutes thoughts of his stomach rather than of Mrs. Toda occupied him, but when that slug had gone the way of the first one he once more settled himself to listen to that joyous distant chorus, and once more that feeling of longing stole over him.

"It is a long way down there," he mumbled plaintively. "It is a long way down there, and no one knows what dangers there may be lurking by the way. I never make that journey without expecting that Mr. Blacksnake will catch and swallow me before I get there. Yet I belong down there, and I must go. I never would be happy again if I didn't. I'll start at dusk tonight. Then I'll take my time and not travel too far at a time. If there is any sweeter music in all the Great World than the spring chorus from the Smiling Pool I don't know where it is and don't want to."

What To-Day Means To You

"GEMINI"

If May 23rd is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8:15 a.m. to 9:30 a.m., from 2 p.m. to 3:40 p.m., and from 7:20 p.m. to 9 p.m. The danger periods are from 11 a.m. to 12:45 p.m., and from 5 p.m. to 6:30 p.m.

A despondent mood will be quite general on May 23rd, and mole hills will assume mountainous proportions, both within and outside of the domestic circle. The world will not be out of tune, but you will be decidedly out of step with the world, thus asking for trouble. Those past middle age should guard against spring colds, as the Planets are dangerously placed for them in regard to their health.

Children born on this May 23rd will be very easily influenced, both one way and another, and will possess the dualistic tendencies of Gemini people. They will excel in mental pursuits, but will dislike physical activity. They will begin things with enthusiasm, and quit most things with boredom.

Born on May 23rd, you would like to ride through life in a "de luxe" fashion, but without paying the preliminary price of sacrifice an effort which might be necessary to secure such a passage. You love beautiful things, and luxurious material comforts. From choice, you would choose smart clothes to those which are durable and practical. You prefer the dangers of racy and spectacular events and situations to the security of something plain and wholesome. There is, however, enough common sense in your make-up to offset any extreme nonsense, although these opposing elements will always be at war with each other.

Hospitality is one of your natural virtues, and the best you have is none too good for your guests of the moment. You can not be bothered, however, with formal entertaining. Children and animals single you out for friendship, and whether street urchins and curs or "mother's darlings" and thoroughbreds, they all find you an understanding and playful pal. Your own children would probably be pampered and spoiled.

By nature you are not diligent, but you know when and how to trade on your charms. Your brain is active, artful, and far-seeing, and your work should be mental, not bimanual.

Tuesday, May 24th.

If May 24th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11 a.m. to noon, from 4:15 p.m. to 6 p.m., and from 10:30 a.m. to midnight. The danger periods are from 8 a.m. to 9:30 a.m., and from 3:30 p.m. to 5:15 p.m.

Nothing untoward is likely to confront you on May 24th, and more dullness and sameness is augured than spice and variety. Those interested in spiritualistic and psychic phenomena should find atmospheric conditions unusually suitable for investigation and study. Cupid will beconspicuously absent or in a perverse mood.

The child born on this May 24th will be lively spirited, physically restless and mentally agile. It will not be afraid to talk, and will freely voice its sentiments. Through impulse, it may often be blessed with more luck than sense, but the Fates will be unusually kind to this Gemini child.

A very conservative, kindly and cautious nature is your heritage, if born on May 24th. You are so afraid of hurting some one or of being indiscreet, that your conversation and actions are too self-censored to be spontaneous and free. You are full of practical advice and assistance, but are a "washout" for inventing stunts of promoting whoopee.

You have a passion for accurate work and need take no lessons in efficiency. You hate to try your hand at anything without careful preparation and study, and you are too self-conscious to bluff at anything. You are not careless, you do not forget things, and you are always punctual. Slovenliness in others almost unduly annoys you. You are too suspicious of new ideas to take them up before they have been investigated by other and more adventurous and pioneer-minded people. Most fashions are old fashions before you adopt them.

You are not in the least meddlesome, and are content to keep your finger out of some one else's pie. You keep your disappointments to yourself, although there are plenty of shoulders upon whom you could lean. You seldom expose your real emotions, and it would be better if you did not always swallow your sobs and stifle your laughter. Five is your lucky and birthday number.

Cavan

Mr. Donald Tinney's house is being bricked this week.

Mrs. J. Paul, Mrs. E. Armstrong and Miss L. Syer attended a meeting of the W.M.S. of Grace Presbyterian Church, Millbrook, on Wednesday at Mrs. J. Armstrong's, Fourth line, Cavan.

Mr. and Mrs. Will White and Children, of Port Hope, are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. Lamb, arriving on Thursday.

Mrs. Ross Browne and baby daughter, of Toronto, are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Perrin, arriving on Thursday.

Mrs. Milton Carr and Mrs. Jones of Indian River, visited Mrs. C. Carr on Thursday.

The Rev. F. and Mrs. Carpenter motored from Trafalgar on Tuesday to visit Mr. and Mrs. H. Snider, Mrs. Carpenter remaining for a few days' visit with Cavan friends.

Mr. Ross Carr, Toronto, has assumed the duties of district representative of the Florence Spence Oil Burner Co. in Durham, Northumberland, Peterborough and Victoria. The manufacturing centre of this company is at Penetanguishene, Ontario.

Spring work is well advanced in Cavan Centre, work having been rushed this week. Fall wheat is looking well, but a few farmers report having to tear up their fall wheat ground and some fields seeded with clover on account of heaving.

There was a luxuriant plum bloom this season, and it is hoped that the heavy frost which followed may not have injured it.

The early sown spring grain is up and making good growth. A few have early potatoes planted.

EXCESS FAT AND SCIATICA

Short of Breath—Used to "Puff and Blow"

HOW GOES UP HILLS LIKE A STEAM ENGINE

"Fourteen weeks ago I had an awful attack of Sciatica in my hip. I took a large dose of Kruschen Salts every morning, and after a week the pain disappeared, and since then has not returned, thanks to Kruschen. Well, when I saw what Kruschen had done for my hip, I said to myself, 'What about trying to lose some overweight.' I am 5ft. 6ins. in height and 224 lbs. in weight, or 70 lbs. more than I should be. Well, this last 18 weeks I have taken Kruschen Salts regularly and I feel a different being. My wind and action improved wonderfully—can go like a steam engine up a hill—whereas I used to puff and blow, and had no breath. Now I never know I am on a hill, they are all the same, and I am not nearly as stout as I was."—R. S.

Curious, you may think, this double effect of Kruschen in ridding the user of sciatica and excess fat, too. Curious until you realise that sciatica and excess fat are twin brothers. They have their common cause in sluggish eliminating organs which allow waste products to collect and generate dangerous body poisons. Amongst those poisons is uric acid, which is invariably associated with sciatica, rheumatism, and kindred complaints. Nature endeavours to relieve the system of this poison-breeding waste material by storing it up in the tissues in the form of fat. The six salts in Kruschen stimulate the internal organs to proper elimination. They allow no particle of waste matter to remain unexpelled and to be transformed by the body's chemistry into excess flesh. Your inside is kept clean and serene; uric acid is afforded no chance to form. Internal cleanliness, moreover, means the circulation of clear, refreshed blood to every cell of your system, converting every vein of you into a tiny torrent of energy, filling every fibre of you with that "Kruschen feeling" of fitness. Kruschen Salts is obtainable at all Drug Stores at 45c. and 75c. per bottle.

QUEENSWAY IS CLASS OF FIELD

With Historic King's Plate in Record Time of 1.55 1-5 on Saturday.

WOODBINE OPENING.

TORONTO, May 23. — "Never a more open race than this," the experts said, and yet they erred immeasurably for R. W. R. Cowie's Queensway was the class of the field, and won the seventy-second renewal of the historic King's Plate run at Woodbine Park on Saturday, in the record time of 1.55 1-5. And far behind her came Shady Well and Easter Hatter, to demonstrate again the uncertainty that exists in the sport of kings. Queensway, the public's pre-season choice, dominated the situation, and on a lightning-fast course pounded down the home stretch across the finish in three lengths ahead of Seagram's King O'Connor.

Over-anxious Lot.

Eleven of Ontario's fleetest horses faced the barrier, R. S. McLaughlin's Skygazer being the only one withdrawn, and they were an over-anxious and fractious lot. Starter Marshall Cassidy had his troubles getting the thoroughbreds into line, with Easter Dandy the main offender. Fragrant Gift and Easter Hatter were also hard to handle, and they broke frequently from the stalls, with the result that nine and a half minutes elapsed before they were on their way to glory or defeat.

Royal Guest leaped ahead to set the pace, but Easter Hatter, running from the outside of the track, closed in with a great burst of speed and led when the first turn was reached. The Hatch colt, however, went slightly wide, and Queensway gained the rail position and forged to the front. At the half-way mark Jockey Riley made another move with Easter Hatter, and passed Queensway, which was held in restraint by Frankie Mann, but the latter only bided his time, and when he gave the word the Cowie standard - bearer came through with a great burst of speed and made the race a runaway.

Queensway took final command before the last turn was reached, and was so vastly superior to her pursuers that it was then apparent that there would be no thrilling finish. Jockey Burke, riding King O'Connor, laid on the whip with a vengeance, but the gallant Seagram gelding gradually lost ground as Queensway came dashing down the stretch to give Mr. Cowie his second King's Plate victory in as many seasons.

Jockey Mann's Triumph.

It was a great triumph for Jockey Frankie Mann, who established an enviable record by guiding a King's Plate winner in two consecutive years. Last season he was astride Froth Blower when that brilliant colt won the event decisively.

Racing's romance and glamour show no diminution in allurement. Even highly advertised days of depression failed to have an ill effect, and one of the largest crowds in several years attended. The Weatherman, who had predicted thunder and rain, was kind and the opening took place under ideal conditions.

With meticulous care, Woodbine, which is Canada's own and stands favorable comparison with other great courses of the world, such as Pimlico and Belmont in the United States, the Ascot in England and Flemington of Australia, had been prepared for the occasion. With its commodious stands and other buildings resplendent in new coats of paint, with greensward all around, Woodbine presented an ornate setting of grandeur and was never more attractive.

London police have a problem in handling the increasing number of stowaways arriving on British ships.

THREE MONTREAL WRESTLERS RETAIN DOMINION MAT TITLES

Two Members of 1928 Olympic Squad Again Listed Among Eligibles.

McDONALD IS VICTOR.

TORONTO, May 23 (CP)—Seven of the 50 odd grapplers, who sought a Canadian wrestling title in the two-day Olympic tourney which started Friday, to-day stand qualified to represent Canada at the 1932 Olympic games providing they are chosen as wearers of the maple leaf by the Olympic selection committee.

Three cities alone share the honors of crowning titlists. Montreal carries off the major spoils with four crown-wearers while Toronto boast two and Regina one.

Two members of Canada's 1928 Olympic wrestling squad are again listened among the eligibles. Jimmy Trifunov, lone western title-claimant, a participant in both the 1924 and 1928 Olympiads, and winner of the bantam crown again this year is likely to make his third trip as a maple leaf standard-bearer. The other veteran of Olympic history is Danny McDonald, Toronto welterweight, who by annexing the 154-pound crown, stands out as a logical choice.

Three Montreal champions of last year, Howie Thomas, lightweight; Don Stockholm, middleweight; and Harry Madison, lightheavy, all retained their laurels and may be selected as members of the Olympic squad.

The new Montreal champion in the featherweight division is H. Rowland who after a strenuous preliminary test was conceded the title when Tommy Fisher, a fellow townsman, defaulted after rupturing a groin vein in the preliminary rounds.

W. Parnell, Toronto won the lightly contested heavyweight struggle from Matheson of Regina.

TARZAN AND THE GOLDEN LION. NO. 7 By Edgar Rice Burroughs
(Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.)

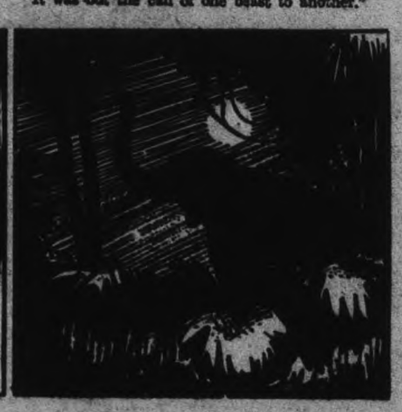
Far into the night Tarzan struggled to free himself from the thongs that bound his wrists. The taut camel leather withstood even the might of his giant thews. Then he lay listening to the night noises of the jungle. Many of them were sounds that no other human ear could hear. But none of his jungle friends seemed near enough to aid him.

In the shadows of her father's tent, Ateja loitered, and with her was Zeyd, whispering his love. The Sheik had willed that his daughter should belong to the Harem of Fahd. Ateja hated and feared Fahd almost as much as she did Tollog, her uncle. Besides, she believed these two were plotting against her father. And so Ateja, even while with her beloved, was far from happy.

Suddenly the mesail was astir. Beduins leaped to their feet, black slaves, cowering, peered into the darkness. Muskets were hastily seized. But the weird, uncanny cry that had unnerved them, was not repeated. "It was the voice of a beast—or a devil!" said Tollog to Ibn Jad. "It could not have been—he!"

"But it came from where he lies!" insisted Ibn Jad. Fearfully they ran thither and examined Tarzan's bonds, which the ape-man had almost loosed. "Tie his wrists again and tighter. In front this time," ordered the Sheik. Then to Tarzan: "Did you hear a cry?" "Yes, I heard it," said Tarzan grimly, "but why disturb me? It was but the call of one beast to another."

"To-morrow," lied Ibn Jad, "it is my intention to free thee. It would be this night, but we fear to send thee alone into the jungle when El-Adrea is abroad, hunting." Tarzan smiled one of his rare smiles before remarking: "Thou knowest the jungle night has no terrors for Tarzan." "To-morrow," snapped the Sheik, and departed.



To the Arabs the beast-cry that had shattered the night quiet had aroused only a vague unrest. Yet there was one, far off in the jungle who caught the call faintly—and understood, a huge beast who raised his trunk and trumpeted loudly. A moment later he swung off through the forest at a rapid trot.

Slowly silence again fell upon the mesail. Through the darkness crept Tollog toward the hejra where his intended victim lay. Tarzan, with ear to the ground, heard him approaching. Far, far off, Tarzan's keen ears heard also the onward rush of Tantos, the elephant, as the great beast trampled down all things in his path.

As Tollog, groping in the dark, entered the tent, Tarzan sat erect. Again there smote upon the Bedouin's ear that same horrid cry. Tollog halted aghast. "What beast is there?" he cried. "Art thou being attacked, Nasrany?" From the jungle came the roar of a lion and the trumpeting of a bull elephant.

OSHAWA BLANKS SONS 8-0.

OSHAWA, May 23. — Oshawa Dukes put it over Native Sons 8 to 0 in a scheduled West Toronto Senior League fixture before a crowd of fifteen hundred fans here Saturday. Dainty, Oshawa's veteran left-hander, pitched the whole nine innings, allowing Native Sons eight hits, while he extricated himself from precarious positions several times with strikeouts. Bowden's long drive over the right fence for a home run, scoring Sutton in the fourth proved the feature of the game.

TAXATION BILL AT CROSSROADS

U. S. Tariff Coalition Rally to Retain Lumber and Copper Import Duties.

SMOOT IMPATIENT.

WASHINGTON, May 23 (C.P.). —The mammoth $1,000,000,000 taxation bill bearing its tariff provisions, crawled to the crossroads today with a threatened filibuster possibly blocking its path.

Determined to preserve the lumber and copper import duties in the measure, the tariff coalition expected to muster almost the same strength which retained the controversial oil and coal duties.

The patient, veteran Senator Smoot (R. Utah), in charge of the bill, was ready to ask the U.S. Senate for continuous day and night sessions if the filibuster threatened by Senator Tydings (D. Md.) develops. He also has given warning he would not hesitate to ask for the drastic closure rule abutting off debate.

President Hoover kept an anxious eye on developments and was represented by intimates as ready, if necessary, to send a message appealing for speed.

However, the Chief Executive is keeping hands off the bitter tariff row that has split both parties wide open.

There was just a faint hope of a break in the fight over the Revenue Bill that might permit its passage this week. Meanwhile, the Republicans, with the support of the President, and Democratic leaders, are prepared to forego next month's national convention to stay here and finish the Budget balancing legislation before the start of the new fiscal year of July 1.

SCHOOLS HOLD EMPIRE DAY

Glorious Traditions of the Empire Recalled by Speakers.

IN CITY AND COUNTY.

The great traditions and glorious history of the British Empire were called to mind of pupils of city and district schools to-day in the annual Empire Day celebrations.

An Empire that has blazed the trail of civilization and Christianity and stood proudly in the front rank among the nations.

Following the program as laid down by the Ontario Department of Education, the teachers told of Britain and Canada's part in history. Patriotic songs were sung in choruses by the children, who also gave recitations.

The Kiwanis Club arranged for speakers to address the schools in the county. The following were the arrangements followed out and the speakers. The various schools in the city were also addressed by prominent local men:

TAXES SETTLED BY OIL MAGNATE

Will Pay U. S. Treasury $3,669,784 Piled Up Since 1920.

FINED $60,000.

DENVER, Colo., May 25. (CP)—A Washington despatch to the Rocky Mountain News says Henry M. Blackmer, self-expatriated oil magnate, has settled his tax troubles with the United States federal government for $3,669,784.47.

According to the despatch Blackmer adjusted his civil liabilities to the government last Wednesday. His counsel signed a stipulation which confessed judgment for the full amount of taxes, penalties and interest on his income for the years 1920-1923, which the government, in final computations, held to be due the treasury.

The News says the payment of the huge sum to the government to settle his civil liabilities has not purchased immunity from criminal indictment in federal court in Colorado charging him with fraud to evade payment of income taxes.

Blackmer is scheduled to pay to-morrow, through his counsel at Washington, two fines of $30,000 each for failure to appear as a witness in connection with the Teapot Dome oil scandals.

Rev. Canon Spencer Dies At Hamilton

HAMILTON, May 25 (C.P.). — Rev. Canon Spencer, for many years a familiar figure in the Church of England Diocese of Niagara, died at his home to-day in his 96th year.

AVIATORS HURT IN PLANE CRASH NEAR HAVELOCK

Hydroplane Got Out of Control While Attempting Take-off.

CRASHES IN FIELD.

Two Toronto Men Thought Not to Have Been Seriously Hurt.

HAVELOCK, May 25.—(By Examiner Correspondent)—When their Moth hydroplane got out of control as they attempted to take off from the surface of Belmont Lake at 2.30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, two Toronto aviation-campers, E. H. Reeks and K. G. Southam were injured and narrowly escaped death, their machine "cracking up" in a field on the farm of Simon Shadgett. Reeks and Southam were cut around the head and are suffering from shock but after receiving medical attention were able to leave for their homes via motor car with friends who had been camping with them at Belmont Lake.

The two aviators flew down from Toronto several days ago and camped on the farm of J. F. Brecknridge. Today they attempted to take off to fly back to Toronto but their hydroplane failed to develop altitude and finally crashed into a field breaking off one of the wings. It almost hit a large boulder, collision with which would probably have meant death for the pilot and his passenger. The machine is badly damaged but it is not thought the injuries of the two flyers are serious.

FALL SESSION DATE UNFIXED

Premier Announces Decision Difficult, Until After Imperial Conference.

PROMISES AMPLE NOTICE.

OTTAWA, May 25. (CP)—No decision has yet been reached in respect to calling a fall session of parliament, Premier R. B. Bennett stated in the House of Commons to-day. In answer to a question by Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King, opposition leader, the Prime Minister said that he would be glad to meet the convenience of members by making an announcement immediately about the date when parliament would reassemble. No conclusion had been arrived at by the government, however, and, until the Imperial Economic Conference had taken place, it was difficult to reach a decision. He would endeavor to announce the opening date of the next session as long as possible before parliament would meet, in order to give members ample notice.

Mr. Bennett reminded the house that, unless some change was made, the fiscal measure of Great Britain, making products from the Dominions liable to a duty of twenty percent, would come into effect on November 15, next.

Another shipload will be unloaded at Oshawa, Ont., shortly, and it is expected these shipments will be followed by several others at various Ontario lake ports. Shipments of Nova Scotia coal to Ontario points are aided by the Dominion Government to the extent of $1.00 a ton.

APPEAL REFUSED IN MURDER CASE

Henry Quinn Will Be Hanged June 24. Appellate Court Rules.

ACCOMPLICE HANGED.

TORONTO, May 25 (C.P.) — Henry Quinn, Sarnia, will be hanged June 24. His appeal from a conviction and sentence of death for participating in the murder of Samuel Weinstein, London grocer, was dismissed by judgment of the Appellate Court here to-day. Wallace Ramesbottom 18-year-old Sarnia youth, was hanged for his part in the same murder recently.

Ramesbottom did the shooting with a gun supplied by Quinn, who had remained outside Weinstein's store as a "lookout." When Weinstein grappled with the youth, Ramesbottom pulled the trigger.

Youth No Excuse

Chief Justice Sir William Mulock in delivering judgment said:

"Youth is no excuse for crime." He cited instances where the extreme sentence had been meted out to young men, and emphasized that point. His Lordship stated that he was reviewing the circumstances of the case in order that the youth of the land might have that phase indelibly inscribed upon them.

At the outset the Chief Justice stated that the court had very carefully considered the several objections raised by counsel for Quinn on the appeal, "as it was their duty to do in so grave a case." These objections were taken mainly to the charge of the trial judge, Mr. Justice Sedgewick. The charge at the trial and supplementary hearing were in their opinion "very fair."

"It would perhaps not be wise to

EDMONTON WELCOMES RECORD SEEKING FLIERS

EDMONTON, May 25.—Mayor D. K. Knott extended a welcome to Lieut. R. H. Storer and Lieut. B. R. Ronald, pilots of the trans-Canada plane, "The Vancouver Sun", which arrived yesterday from Calgary. The plane is en route to Montreal to attempt a non-stop re-fueling flight from Montreal to Vancouver.

A holiday crowd was awaiting the aviators when the landed at the municipal airport after making the 200 miles in slightly over two hours. The fliers expect to leave for Regina, Sask. Friday en route east.

SIX GARAGES LOST IN FIRE

Three Valuable Cars Are Also Lost in Fire Last Night.

NEARLY CAUSED PANIC.

TRENT RIVER, May 25 (Examiner Correspondence) — Raging through six garages, fire of unknown origin at 10.30 last night destroyed three valuable cars, one a new Packard, a barn and an oil house. Also consumed in the blaze were the furniture and household effects of John Hay.

The flames were first noticed in a garage in which A. Hoffman, Cleveland, Ohio, had his Packard car stored. Licking across, the flames in less than a minute had two more garages ablaze. Spreading further, all six garages, barn and oil house were soon prey to the fire.

A small hose used to combat the fierce fire was of no avail except to protect the residence of Mrs. Andrew Carnrite, owner of the buildings. Sparks set the roof of Thomas J. Brown's barn alight, but neighbours using water buckets doused the flames.

At one stage the fire almost created a panic. The alarm sounded when the dancing at the pavilion, celebrating its grand opening, had reached its height. It is stated that had the wind been from the east the whole village would have been destroyed.

Wild rumours were circulated concerning the origin of the fire, which has not yet been established. A detective may be called in to investigate.

The chemical engine from Havelock was called but was not used since it arrived after the fire had burnt itself out.

Owners of the other cars destroyed were: Hiram Revoir, Trent River and John Hay.

VICTORIA DAY ACCIDENTS TAKE TOLL OF LIVES

Tree Topples on Passing Truck Killing 4 Picnickers —Fifth Dies Later.

TWO ARE DROWNED.

Young Jobless Englishman Falls to Death Under Wheels of Freight.

TORONTO, May 25 (C.P.)—Eight persons are dead in Ontario to-day, victims of Victoria Day accidents. Five persons met death in a highway fatality, while two lost their lives by drowning and one was killed when run over by a train.

Toppling of a tree across a passing truck on the highway near Hawkesbury, Ont., resulted in the death of five persons. Lucien Lachaine, 23; Andre St. Amand, 14; Althona Durocher, 16, and Paul Lacasse, 19, four young French-Canadians were instantly killed while Marcel St. Amand died in the hospital shortly after the accident. A fifth member of the party, Roland Ouimet, 14, is fighting for his life in the hospital.

The accident occurred when a truck load of holiday celebraters were returning from Hawkesbury to their home in Chute-Bleondeau.

Thrown From Boat

Ellis Huffman lost his life in the waters of Hay Bay, near Napanee, Ont., when he and a companion, Russell Armour of Toronto were thrown from a motor-boat. Armour managed to keep afloat until assistance arrived.

The other water fatality occurred in the Rideau River. Seventeen-year-old Walter Welsford of Ottawa drowned when a canoe in which he was a passenger capsized. Two companions managed to reach shore.

Thrown under the wheels of a freight train near Unionville when the coupler of the freight car on which he was riding loosened, automatically jamming the brakes, Leonard Flack, an unemployed Englishman, was almost instantly killed.

JAP MINISTRY NEAR SOLUTION

Both Major Parties Get Together After Three Day Struggle.

POSTS FILLED.

TOKYO, May 25 (C.P.). — Baron Tatsuo Yamamoto to-day accepted the portfolio of home affairs, and it appeared that Admiral Makoto Saito's three-day struggle to construct a national "crisis" Cabinet with both major parties participating was on the verge of success.

Baron Yamamoto, an outstanding veteran of the Minseito Party, was chosen to balance Korekiyo Takahashi, mainstay of the Seiyukai Party, who is retaining the Finance ministry.

The new Cabinet, expected to be completed to-morrow, probably will include three Seiyukai members, two Minseito members, and seven non-partisans. The Premier-designate has remained aloof from party politics.

The retention of Finance Minister Takahashi was interpreted in official and business circles as an indication that the financial policies pursued by the Ministry of Suyoshi Inukai, who was assassinated ten days ago, would be retained in their entirety. These policies include tariffs, increased control over foreign exchange and increased limits for the Bank of Japan's note issue.

Count Yasuya Uchida definitely declined the foreign portfolio. It was uncertain to-day who would get this post, but no matter what choice is made it was assured that the foreign and military policies of the last six months would not be altered.

Governor General Warmly Welcomed By Loyal Citizens

Hundreds Of Citizens Gathered In Victoria Park Where a Warm Welcome Was Extended By Mayor Roland Denne.

TOUR OF CITY MADE BY VICE-REGAL PARTY; QUAKER OATS AND C. G. E. PLANTS VISITED.

His Excellency Stops At St. Joseph's Hospital To Brighten The Son Of His Secretary, A. F. Lascelles, Who Is Ill.

The personal representative in Canada of His Majesty King George V paid an official visit to Peterborough this morning.

That simple and paramount aspect of the presence here today of His Excellency the Governor-General, the Earl of Bessborough, was loyally and splendidly recognized by the citizens in a warm and eloquent welcome that was expressed in every stage and detail of Peterborough's welcome to the King's deputy.

As a public event of the highest significance in its demonstration of this community's affection for the person of the King himself and of the cherished relationship with the British throne, Peterborough's reception of the Governor-General was a delightful and memorable success. Other similar visits in the past are not forgotten, and all of them were marked by their individual impressiveness, but none of them shall have left a more delightful memory than the Earl of Bessborough's simple and dignified personality in his office and function as Governor General among His Majesty's subjects in this city.

Man Among Men

From the moment he stepped from the vice-regal coach at the C. P. R. station sharp at 9.30 a.m. to the closing incident at noon when he placed a memorial on the city's cenotaph to its soldiers who died in the war, his tour was a succession of episodes that above all revealed the human facets and depths of his character. To those who were privileged to accompany him during his brief stay his contacts with the people provided an accumulation of evidence of the manner of man he is, his alert interest and his quick response to every note of greeting.

His Excellency revised the official program in its final moments, calling at St. Joseph's hospital to

Pictures Given Governor General

Pictures which were taken of His Excellency the Earl of Bessborough, Governor General of Canada as he stepped from his private car at the Canadian Pacific Railway station between 9.30 and 10 o'clock this morning, were presented to His Excellency by Mayor Roland Denne some two-and-a-half hours later, completely finished and mounted.

It was at half an hour after noon to be exact, that the photographs were delivered by Lloyd L. Roy to the Mayor for presentation to the Governor General, a remarkable feat in view of the fact that Mr. Roy was himself busily engaged throughout the morning in taking photographs at various points along the route covered by the distinguished visitor.

STARTLING PHOTO IS PRODUCED IN RECTOR'S IMMORALITY TRIAL

WARNED OF TRAP.

LONDON, May 25 (C.P.). — The church trial of the Rev. H. F. Davidson, 62-year-old rector of Stiffkey, on charge of immorality produced a sensation to-day when the prosecution introduced as evidence a photograph of the clergyman with a girl, about 15 years old, who was only partially draped with a shawl.

The prosecution intimated that the photograph was taken for publication with the idea that a large sum of money could be obtained. Mr. Davidson indignantly denied this and declared that he had been "trapped." He said the photograph had been taken just before the opening of his trial.

The clergyman said the girl's mother, who was a friend of his, asked him to arrange for a picture of her daughter in a bathing suit, to be used to advertise bathing suits.

He described himself as a "poor fool of a parson who allowed himself to be trapped into it."

Mother Was Present.

The photograph was taken in the mother's apartment with the mother present, Mr. Davidson said. He explained that he was pushed into the picture with the girl, and asserted that the fact that the shawl with which she was draped had dropped down was due either to its having slipped through his hand without his knowledge or its having been yanked from his hand by the photographer.

Three weeks before the photograph was taken, he said, he had been warned that he would be trapped. One warning was that an impoverished woman would invite him to her house and would appear unclothed before him, whereupon two detectives would step out and discover them, he testified.

FEAR OF STRIFE CAUSED TREATY TO BE ACCEPTED

De Valera Explains to Senate Why State Agreed to Anglo-Irish Pact.

BACKS NEW BILL.

Believes Oath Can Be Removed Without Interfering With Treaty.

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, May 25.—(C. P. Cable.)—President [illegible]mon De Valera to-day told the Irish Free State Senate only the alternative of war with Great Britain induced the people of the Free State to accept terms of the Anglo-Irish Treaty of 1921.

The President was asking the Senate to give consideration to his bill abolishing the parliamentary oath of allegiance to the British Crown on the basis of its merits.

The main point before the Senate, he said, was whether or not it was possible to remove the oath of allegiance from the constitution without interfering with the treaty.

Mr. De Valera, in previous declarations, has held abolition of the oath would not be an infraction of terms of the treaty.

STEAMER HELD AS SMUGGLER

Captain and Crew of 28 Face Charges of Running Liquor Into U. S.

PROBE UNDER WAY.

NORFOLK, Va., May 25. (CP) While efforts were being made today to confiscate the steamer Shooters Island, suspected rum ship, the vessel's captain and crew of 28 faced charges of smuggling liquor into the United State.

A postponement of the trial was ordered yesterday to allow government agents to continue their investigation.

District attorney Paul Kear who fyled libel proceedings against the ship alleged that Captain J. A. Bergman had changed the name of the vessel on the high seas, had loaded 16,000 cases of liquor at St. Pierre, Miquelon and several days later, about May 16, had landed it at or near Newark, N.J.

He asserted that the craft's name had been pointed out and the name "Sea Spray" substituted, that the name "Shepphard Line" had been painted on the side, and that the smokestack which had been black was painted red, white and blue, with the letters "S" in the middle.

DAVID MARTIN IS ELIMINATED

United States' Player Beaten in Third Round of British Amateur Tourney.

FOR GOLF HONORS.

MUIRFIELD, Eng., May 25 (A.P.) —Great Britain drove on toward victory. David Martin, United States, was eliminated in the third round of the British Amateur Golf championship to-day by H. Shaw, of Timperly, 2 up.

Martin finished the first nine one up against Shaw, with a card of 43 to the Englishman's 42. But he lost that advantage on the 10th, and though he went one up again at the 11th, Shaw tightened, Martin dropped the 12th and 13th holes to go one down for the first time in the match.

The United States delegation dwindled to one when Robert Sweeney, one of the two brothers who survived the second round play, was eliminated by A. J. Peech, one up.

Robert Sweeney was the only remaining United States contender of the original 11.

E. R. Topple, of Addington defeated Andrew Jamieson, conqueror of Bobby Jones in 1926, in a third round match six and four.

Lister Hartley, a member of this year's British Walker Cup squad, was defeated in another third round encounter by S. L. McKinley, three and two.

HON. C. H. CAHAN LEVELS CHARGE OF BURGLARY IN TURNING DOWN NATIONALIZATION SUGGESTION

Progresives Demand Royal Commission to Probe Whole Affair.

RADIO BILL APPROVED.

Three Per Cent Excise Tax Stirs Heated Discussion—Bennett Takes Part.

OTTAWA, May 25 (C.P.). A Royal Commission to investigate Beauharnois affairs and the operation of the vast power and navigation scheme by the Dominion under a Federal Hydro-Electric Commission was urged in the House of Commons yesterday by members of the Progressive group. In turning down the nationalization suggestion, Hon. Charles H. Cahan, Secretary of State, said it was "the appeal of the ordinary burglar when he enters a house to take property he knows does not belong to him."

Robert Gardiner, head of the United Farmers, led the Beauharnois attack. Charges and sensational statements were thrown across the floor, but a snag was encountered by the Gingerites when Mr. Speaker George Black ruled out of order a motion embodying the two major proposals.

James S. Woodsworth, Winnipeg Laborite, said it would be "a sorry triumph" if Sir Herbert Holt of Montreal gained control of Beauharnois.

The Secretary of State pleaded for an opportunity for the Beauharnois bondholders to place the property on a paying basis. Armand Lavergne, Deputy Speaker of the House and Conservative member for Montmagny, Quebec, placed himself on record as in accord with the Progressives.

Variety of Topics

The house spent Empire Day debating a wide variety of topics in a desperate effort to prorogation to-day or to-morrow. Practically without discussion a bill was approved setting up the Canadian radio broadcasting commission to regulate a state-controlled system.

Miss Agnes MacPhail, Canada's only woman member of parliament proposed an elaborate program of farm relief. Expressing regret "the government has made no pronouncement of a policy calculated to meet the depressed conditions of

ROBOT ENACTS SALESMAN ROLE

Inventor Claims Mechanical Man Can Give University Lectures.

NO SLIPS OF TONGUE.

CHICAGO, May 25.—Introducing Mr. Robot, the super orator and salesman who never stutters or forgets and whose tongue never makes a disastrous slip.

He is the new mechanical talking man invented by Chief Engineer William Hutter of a Fort Wayne, Ind., radio concern, and exhibited to-day in connection with the Radio Manufacturers' Convention.

There's no escaping Mr. Robot's sales talks, said Hutter. The moment a visitor enters the exhibition room and passes a sensitive photo-electric cell the talking apparatus concealed within the mechanical man is brought to life.

With untiring vigor the robot not only gives a sales talk but demonstrates each talking point. And Hutter says Mr. Robot can deliver university lectures and political speeches without extra effort.

CANADA FIRST SHOULD BE AIM OF CANADIANS

Should Strive to be First in Spiritual Things Declares Rabbi.

ADDRESSES CLUBS.

Gratitude of Jewish People to British Empire is Expressed.

A Canada First movement that would strive to make Canada first in spiritual rather than material things, first in disarmament, first in caring for the under-privileged, first in seeing that no citizen was under-nourished, this was the ideal for Canadians to aim at that Rabbi Maurice Eisendrath of Toronto outlined in a brief but characteristically eloquent address to a joint meeting of the Peterborough Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs on Monday evening. Some 85 members of the 2 service clubs listened to the well-known orator who, however, because of his address in the Collegiate Auditorium later in the evening was unable to give a set speech.

President R. F. Downey of the Rotary Club was in the chair for the first part of the program and after a few routine items of Rotary business had been disposed of turned off the meeting over to President Harry Boyle of the Kiwanis.

Rabbi Eisendrath, whose wife was also a guest, was introduced by Kiwanian J. J. Turner, who explained that the distinguished visitor found it impossible to make two addresses on the one evening, but would say a few words to the assembled service clubs.

Explaining that both his physician and his wife refused to allow him to do too much public speaking Rabbi Eisendrath nevertheless left with his hearers several matters that furnished food for thought. Noting that it was Empire Day and the eve of the birthday of Queen Victoria the speaker voiced an eloquent testimonial to the gratitude the Jewish people felt toward the British Empire for the religious and civil freedom they had found under the British flag. When the audience sang "Land of Hope and Glory" just before the address, Rabbi Eisendrath said that he felt certain that none of them realized just how much hope and glory his people had found as a result of British freedom. He recalled the fact that it was just a century ago that full religious and civil liberty had been accorded the Jews by Great Britain and stressed the honors that had been accorded under Queen Victoria to that distinguished Jewish statesman, Disraeli.

Referring to the Imperial Conference Rabbi Eisendrath said that some people seemed to expect that miracles would result from that important gathering. Perhaps they could but he warned against giving the popular slogan "Canada First" too much emphasis from a sheerly materialistic viewpoint. Canada First, he maintained, should be translated into terms of Canada first in the things of the spirit, in the things without which a nation could not live but must die. The ideal to be sought was to have Canada stand first, not in the matter of swollen purses, flourishing farms and busy industries, important as these were, but first for disarmament and world peace, first in caring for those in need of help, first in the things that mattered. Then indeed in the words of the song they had sung Canada would be "mightier still."

The thanks of the two clubs to Rabbi Eisendrath were conveyed in a resolution moved by Kiwanian J. A. O'Brien.

The visitors to the dinner were welcomed by Rotarian Fred L. Roy.

A musical interlude was furnished by a harmonica trio composed of Kiwanians Herb McCannon, Dr. Lawrence and J. J. Turner with Kiwanian W. H. Freel at the piano. Their initial offering was so enthusiastically approved that an encore had to be given.

BURGLAR SLUGS HOWIE MORENZ

Hockey Player Grapples With Thief in Face of Pointed Gun.

LOSES TUSSLE.

MONTREAL, May 25 (C.P.). — Howie Morenz to-day was nursing a sore head.

The injury was sustained early yesterday morning when Howie drove hom Mrs. W. Stewart, his wife's mother. Entering the house they were confronted by a tall man armed with a revolver. Morenz told the man not to handle fire-arms so carelessly, and warned him of the possible penalties. While talking the hockey player suddenly sprang forward and pulled the man's overcoat down over his arms, partially incapacitating him.

The intruder, however, managed to free his right arm and hit Morenz several times over the head, drawing blood. The struggle continued for a brief period until the banditwriggled out of the sleeves of his coat and fled.

Morenz did not need medical treatment, other than first-aid. The bandit, of whom a good description was obtained by police, was still at large to-day.

FIRE AT C.G.E. WELL HANDLED

Considerable Damage Caused in Armature Department on Monday.

ONE TOWER DAMAGED.

Considerable damage was caused by fire which broke out in the impregnating building of the armature department at the Canadian General Electric Company's plant here on Monday afternoon.

The Examiner was informed by C. A. Salmonsen, works manager that due to the effective work of the City Fire Department and the works brigade operations in the department will not be curtailed to any appreciable extent.

He stated that the department has three large towers extending in height for three or four storeys, where the cambric is impregnated with varnish. It is described by the works manager as a dangerous and hazardous operation. Only one of the towers was damaged by fire, David McFarlane who was at work in the department exhibiting great presence of mind by turning on the steam which is available for such emergencies, and possibly preventing a more serious blaze.

TROUBLE LOOMS THROUGH CUBA

Guards Kill Four Political Prisoners in Alleged Attempt to Escape.

TERRORIST PLOT BARED.

HAVANA, May 25.—(AP)— Tension increased in all quarters today as news of the killing of four political prisoners by their guards during an alleged attempt at escape spread throughout the six Cuban provinces.

The four, two of whom were well known lawyers, were shot down yesterday shortly after being brought to Artemisa, one of the hotbeds of revolt. They had been arrested in connection with the bomb murder last week of Lieut. Diego Diaz, and their guards said they made a break for liberty as they neared the Artemisa jail.

Anti-Machadoists declared that the "law of flight" providing immunity for those involved in slayings of this sort, had been used as a shield by the government in eliminating strong opposition.

Authorities, claiming to have ferreted out a gigantic terrorist plot increased its defensive strength, arrested some 250 of the known oppositionalists, and hustled Col. Carlos Mendieta and Col. Carlos Pedrate, two of the leaders of last August's abortive revolt, together with some of their followers, to the Isle of Pines prison for safety.

A record price of $8,250 was paid in London recently for a picture by Devis, "The Love Song," signed and dated 1748.

HAVELOCK ALBION CLUB FIELD DAY IS SUCCESSFUL AFFAIR

Fosters' Juniors Take 6-4 Decision in Listless Ball Game.

PRIZE WINNERS.

HAVELOCK, May 26 (Examiner Correspondent). — Under ideal weather conditions, the monster field day sponsored by the Havelock Albion Club was held here yesterday, and in every way proved the success it was hoped to be.

At one o'clock the parade, headed by a clown and the Highland Band started from the town hall, and following the route previously marked out went west as far as Union Street, then south to the United Church, east to Quebec, north to George, to Oak to Ottawa, to Orange, along George to the park grounds. Five gaily decorated floats, a number of motor cars with flags and bunting in keeping with Empire Day, Amos and Andy in their Fresh Air Taxicab, accompanied by Madame Queen, and followed by the Baby in a large twin carriage; First Company Havelock Girl Guides with their Captain, Jean Moore; members of the various ball teams, Albion Clubs Junior and Senior and a number of cars containing the interested citizens were in the parade.

On arrival at the grounds the ceremony of raising the flag to full mast by the Girl Guides under the direction of their captain was first attended to, after which the task of judging the floats was next in order. The three judges, Reeve Leeson, Mrs. Lancaster of the Women's Institute, and L. G. Hagerman of the Recreation Club, had a rather difficult task, as there were three especially good ones, which made judging difficult. The Albion Club's beautiful float was not in the competition, or it would most certainly have carried off first honors, being a large truck on which was built a club house in miniature, decorated with bunting in blue and white, the Albion colors.

The Women's Institute, a horse-drawn wagon, decorated with variegated colors of crepe tissue, with a tower on which were arranged the cast of "Safety First," the play being produced at the town hall in the evening was very beautiful and caused much favorable comment. Ronald Kemp designed this float.

A miniature meat market, designed by Harold Ketchen, and a bake-shop, by J. Scott, local baker, were close competitors; the prize going to Harold Ketchen. Miss Grace Ketchen was the very active and efficient clerk in the store which carried off the prize for the best float. Desmond Eyliott with the Fresh Air Taxicab, won the prize for the best decorated car.

Lack of Practise

Havelock Albions played their first big game when they met the Marmora Oshs. Both teams showed lack of practice and with the good material they have at their disposal there is no reason why some real games can't be arranged this season. The game was close most of the way. Chiles brought in the winning run in the last half of the seventh. The line-ups:—

Marmora.—G. Melville, c; H. Hewitt, p; G. Thompson, 1b; T. Davis, 2b; T. Shannon, 3b; H. Phillips, ss; L. Emmory, lf; R. Gray, rf; C. Woodhouse, cf.

Havelock.—G. Kemp, p; J. Mathison, c; F. Parcels, 1b; C. Wrightly, 2b; N. Chiles, 3b; J. Voyer, ss; J. Hunter, cf; W. Rose, rf.

Henry Campney was the efficient umpire.

The small sports were the next big attraction in order and resulted as follows Men's open race, P. McLaughlin, B. Christie and L. Sanderson. Boys, eighteen and under: H. Hunter, N. Chiles and G. Whitney. Girls, eighteen and under; H. Bedford, G. Hunter and E. McQuigge. Boys, sixteen and under: J. Covert, J. Mathison and O. Ellis. Girls, sixteen and under: Betty Bryans Toronto), M. Seabrook and V. McGowan. Boys, fourteen and under, run in two heats, J. Voyer and Y. Pomeroy winning in the final. Girls, fourteen and under, also run in heats, Hazel Hamilton and Alice Rowat winning the final. Prizes were given for first and second places only.

Foster's Win 6-4.

Foster's Juniors of Peterborough were on hand and won over the Albions by six runs to four. Both teams played well but with the exception of the last innings, the game was uninteresting to watch, there being no spectacular playing. Both Pearson and Sexsmith were good on the mound. The former struck out three in the last half of the second. McLaughlin brought in the first run for the locals on a two-base hit by Wright. Three of Foster's regulars were missing but the others played well.

Albions came from behind in the last few minutes and it looked pretty bad for the visitors. They brought in three runs, bringing the score up to six-four. Kennedy had the game in his hands at this juncture, with two on bases, but he went down and with him, the game.

Foster's—D. Watman, 3b; J. Bailey, rf; J. Sweetman, c; A. Paddgett, 2b; G. Jay, ss; J. Price, 1b; B. Bailey, cf; I. Pearson, p; L. Begley, rf.

Albions—P. Voyer, 3b; W. Sexsmith, p; D. Mathison, c; H. Campney, 1b; F. McLaughlin, ss; F. McKenzie, rf; G. Kennedy, lf; G. Wright, cf; A. Clarke, 2b.

Score by innings:

Foster's .. .. 0001050—6
Albions.. .. .. 0100003—4

Catching the greased pig contest was interesting. After a wild three hundred yard dash from the centre of the ball grounds it was finally caught by Edward Post and his prize was the porker.

The mile bicycle race was won by Nelson Chiles, who beat Grey Kemp by less than ten inches. Kemp held the lead until the last part of the final round, when he was overhauled by Chiles and then he renewed his efforts and almost succeeded in beating Chiles.

After supper the Notwood girls met the local team and beat them 17 to 14, after the locals had led most of the way.

Norwood—E. Johnson, p; M. Rogers, lf; F. Clarke, cf; J. Webb, 2b; B. Baker, c; J. Trimble, lf; G. Beavis, 1b; R. Innis, ss; D. Rogers, 3b.

Havelock—M. Leug, cf; A. Hagerman, 2b; G. Rutherford, ss; H. Bedford, lf; E. McQuigge, c; D. Scott, p; G. Hunter, rf; F. Thompson, 1b; I. Hagerman, 3b.

BRITAIN TO PAY U.S. HER DEBTS

Text of Agreement on Payment Postponed Last Year Sent Sir Ronald Lindsay.

TERMS NOT REVEALED.

LONDON, May 25 (C.P.).—The text of an agreement for the repayment to the United States of the British war debts annuity which was not paid during the past year because of the Hoover moratorium has been mailed to Sir Ronald Lindsay, British Ambassador at Washington, and will be signed when it arrives there in a day or two, it was learned to-day.

The agreement was drawn up here with Ambassador Andrew W. Mellon, and it marked the first post-moratorium step in British war debt payments.

In official quarters to-day it was merely a routine matter in answer to a request from Washington to the Governments affected by the moratorium to make provision for the payment of the annuity which was suspended last June.

Inasmuch, however, as it was made by Great Britain without reference to the debts owed her by other countries it was said in authoritative quarters that it could be regarded as a continuation of British recognition of the contention of United States that war debts and reparations are separate problems.

Not Made Public.

Officials here said the terms of the agreement could not be made public until it was signed, but it was learned on good authority that it would not make necessary supplemental provisions in the British Budget to take care of the suspended annuity.

When Neville Chamberlain, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, presented the Budget in April to the House of Commons, it was widely commented that there was no provision for the payment either of war debts or the suspended annuity.

It was understood that the beginning of the repayment of the unpaid annuity would be subsequent to a resumption of normal annuity payments.

District Churches

REGENT STREET, LAKEFIELD.

LAKEFIELD, May 25 (Examiner Correspondence).—Rev. Mr. Allnutt, representing the British and Foreign Bible Society, gave an address in Regent Street United Church on Sunday evening, immediately after the usual service.

Mr. Allnutt took as his text part of the fourteenth verse of the seventeenth chapter of the Gospel according to St. John: "I have given them Thy word." Christ was anxious that all who heard Him and read about Him should believe that God had sent Him. This was Christ's last prayer, and all His apostles were gathered with one abiding purpose to learn about Christ, their Master and their Friend. It ook sixteen years of hard work to prepare the revised version of the Bible, and it cost $6,000 to translate the Bible into a foreign language and $3,000 to translate the New Testament. Last year (1931) was a hard year, but ten and a half million copies were circulated that year. The society also has the Braile editions for the blind. The financial depression has affected the contributions to the Bible Society naturally, but the society has still a great work to do for its work is not done till all the world knows the word of God. The speaker made a strong appeal for support for this very great and worthy cause.

Rev. T. M. Wesley moved a hearty resolution of thanks to the speaker, expressing also the loyalty and sympathy of the audience with the movement.

Mr. A. E. Higgins seconded the resolution, saying that the work of the society had lapsed in Lakefield during the past four years owing to hard times, but the executive had got together and decided to canvass the village, for he was ashamed to see the annual report of the society showing no contribution from Lakefield. Contributions may be given either to Mr. Higgins, president of the local branch, or Dr. P. J. Burgess, the secretary.

Rev. W. R. Archer, B.A., acted as chairman of the meeting.

PRIZES GIVEN AT INSPECTION OF COLLEGIATE CADET BATTALION

Number 2 Platoon Wins 57th Regiment Chapter I.O.D.E. Shield.

BATTALION COMPLIMENTED

To the fanfare of bugles and the stirring throb of drums, the Peterborough Collegiate Cadet Battalion swung onto the parade ground on Monday afternoon under the command of Cadet Colonel Joseph Dunkerley, and proceeded through a series of movements and manoeuvres that brought high praise from Captain M. Isbister, M.C., district cadet officer for M.D. 3.

The parade, held on Confederation Park immediately facing the Armouries, was witnessed by a large section of the citizens and by a fully representative group of militia officers, including Lieut.-Colonel W. Gordon Hall, V.D., commanding the 7th Infantry Brigade.

The honors of the day went to No. 2 platoon, under the command of Lieut. A. H. Smedmore. In recognition of their smart and soldierly bearing on parade, the inspecting officer singled them out as winners of the 57th Regiment Chapter I.O.D.E. Shield.

Mrs. R. E. Clarke, educational secretary of the I.O.D.E., made the presentation to Lieut. Smedmore. "The members of the 57th Regiment Chapter I.O.D.E. have watched the progress made from year to year by the Peterborough Collegiate Cadet Corps," she said, "and this year we thought we would show our interest in a more tangible way. After conferring with your cadet instructor, Lieut. R. C. R. Cummings, we decided to present to your corps a shield for annual competition between platoons. I wish to congratulate you and your platoon on earning the trophy this year, and in the absence of Mrs. T. W. H. Young, our regent, I have very much pleasure in handing it to you for keeping."

Runners-up in the platoon competition and who earned special praise from the inspecting officer was No. 7 platoon, under command of Lieut. Doughty.

Individual honors went to Cadet Captain I. Hagerman, who was declared winner of the Laura Secord Medal. The presentation was made by Mrs. W. R. Morris, chairman of the Board of Education.

Called upon by Captain Isbister following the presentation of awards, H. R. H. Kenner, B.A., principal, told the assembled corps that he had received the report from the inspecting officer in which he had described the parade as "very creditable." Mr. Kenner was pleased to hear that their work had earned such high praise, and he also wished to compliment them.

The battalion marched onto the parade ground in column of fours, after which they were inspected in line by Captain Isbister, who was accompanied by Colonel Dunkerley and by Lieut. R. C. R. Cummings and Sergt.-Major Geo. F. Turner, permanent force instructor.

Afterwards the battalion marched past the reviewing stand in review order and later executed company and platoon movements. A company, under command of Cadet-Major Jack Clayton, performed musketry and arms drill, while B company, under Cadet-Major Grant Breckenridge, went through a series of physical exercises.

The cadet officers on parade included: Cadet-Colonel Joseph Dunkerly, O.C. battalion; Cadet-Major J. Richardson, 2nd-in-command. A company, Major Jack Clayton; 2nd-in-command, Capt. E. Brown. B company, Major Grant Breckenridge; 2nd - in - command, Capt. Hugh Waddell. Adjutant-Capt. I. Hagerman. Platoon commanders: No. 1, Lieut. Mackenzie; No. 2, Lieut. Smedmore; No. 3, Lieut. G. Wainwright; No. 4, Lieut. N. Hamilton; No. 5, Lieut. P. Wagar; No. 6, Lieut. Parnell; No. 7, Lieut. Doughty; No. 8, Lieut. Hutchinson.

Capt. A. Lord was in command of the drum and bugle section, while the signal section was in charge of Capt. W. Thimbeck.

A complete outfit for a girl eight years old was requested for an inmate of Mission S. at Burtell, Man. Miss M. Sexsmith, Supply Secretary and Mrs. T. C. Jamieson were appointed a committee to interview the Y.W.A. at their next meeting. This was in connection with the arrangements for the holding of a strawberry social on the church lawn in June, under the auspices of both organizations. The proceeds would be used to purchase the clothing, etc. requested.

It was decided to hold the next meeting in the basement of the church on June 8th. On behalf of the W.M.S. Mrs. Kinnaird extended a hearty welcome to Mrs. (Rev.) L. Beeton.

agricultural industry" Miss MacPhail outlined several suggestions. Included in the program was national control and inflation of currency, reduction of farm indebtedness and interest rates; international agreements respecting tariffs; creation of an export market board and exemption from dumping duties of foreign goods received in exchange for Canadian agricultural products. The MacPhail program will be debated further tod-ay.

Heated Debate

Tempers ran high in a spirited prelude to the passing of the three-percent excise tax announced in the Rhodes budget. Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King suggested British goods be exempted from the impost as an Imperial gesture. Premier R. B. Bennett labelled this "fine talk" and accused the opposition leader of attempting to make political capital out of the Imperial Economic Conference.

Hon. Ernest Lapointe, former Minister of Justice, took up the cudgels on behalf of his leader and charged the Prime Minister with "throwing a heap of abuses" on the head of Mr. King, instead of giving reasons why the suggestion should not be adopted.

TIMELY ADVICE.

Premier Henry's frank advice to school boards through the Province that they should give some consideration to the financial problems with which municipal councils are grappling, and that in the matter of estimates they should not demand "their pound of flesh," was most timely, and let us hope will be also most helpful.

Coming from the Minister of Education, such a statement should carry much weight.

Those who have the responsibility of providing for the educational wants of the community are sometimes, in their anxiety to keep abreast of the procession, inclined to overlook current financial conditions and to rely upon the power given them by the regulations to provide them with all the funds they declare they need.

As Mr. Henry pointed out, it is hardly logical for a school board to assume that because it asked for $100,000 when the council only has $60,000 it has the right to demand the $100,000 forthwith.

More than one board has done that very thing, with the result that municipal finances have been placed in a most precarious position.

The Premier's advice that expenditures on education should be curbed and that school boards should have regard to current conditions should be studied by every board in the Province; Mr. Henry was speaking very much in the public interest when he called attention to this most important matter.

THE VICE-REGAL VISIT.

Peterborough was glad to-day to have had the opportunity, if only for a few hours this morning, to play host to His Excellency, Earl Bessborough, Canada's Governor-General.

Glad, in the first place, because as a loyal Canadian community this city is always delighted to welcome the representative of our beloved King, and glad also because the present incumbent of Rideau Hall has during his short sojourn in this country endeared himself to the Canadians with whom he has come into contact by his most pleasing personality, his splendid qualities and his evident anxiety to make his term of office mean something to the Dominion and its people.

Earl Bessborough's stay among us was short, but long enough we trust for him to have carried away the memory of a beautiful little Canadian city, a city of fine homes, most of them owned by their occupants, a city of boulevarded streets lined with imposing trees, a city with varied industries and attractive business places, and above all, a city of friendly, contented Canadians proud of their heritage as citizens of no mean borough and of an Empire of glorious traditions.

It was an honor and a pleasure for such a city to have had a visit from the King's representative, and the community in general will hope that it brought Earl Bessborough as much satisfaction as it did the people of Peterborough.

THE OLYMPIC TEAM.

The Federal Government will assist in the sending of a Canadian team to the Olympic Games at Los Angeles to the extent of a $10,000 grant, and some opposition to the spending of public money for such purpose, in view of the financial situation, is being heard.

However, many people will probably be of the opinion that to have informed the world that Canada was too poverty-stricken to send a team to Los Angeles would have been poor advertising, and that from that viewpoint the grant is justified.

To The Examiner the important thing would seem to be to exercise unusual care in the selection of Canada's representatives and, as we have already pointed out, to cut down joy-riding officials to the minimum.

It would be much better to confine the Dominion's team to athletes who have a reasonable chance to make a good showing than to send over a mob of competitors many of whom have not even come close to championship form.

And there should be no public money spent on a squad of officials who just want to go along for the ride.

There must be a managing and training staff, of course, but the supernumeraries should be told to pay their own expenses.

THE EMBATTLED POLITICIANS.

"The issues at stake before the electors of West York are vital and far above personalities," declared Mitchell F. Hepburn, M.P., in a campaign speech the other night, and then the Liberal leader passed on to pay his respects to Hon. Leopold Macaulay by declaring that if what the Minister had said had been uttered by somebody else he would have described him as an "unprincipled cad."

And so the merry battle of West York rages on.

No wonder the Globe has found it necessary to read a lesson to all the political parties as to the stupidity of the extreme partisanship that is being displayed in this particular by-election.

"Cabinet Ministers on one hand, Opposition speakers on the other hand," says the Globe, "have talked and talked, and talked. They have assured all and sundry that Hepburn on the one hand and Henry on the other hand are unworthy of confidence, that they are enemies of public progress, that they are concerned chiefly with their own selfish and part yaggrandizement."

That indictment, The Examiner feels, is justified.

There is nothing in what is being said in the West York campaign to arouse the admiration of the most biased party followers; at a time when there are pressing problems to be solved, when the people are looking for leadership, the embattled politicians are producing nothing constructive, suggesting nothing that resembles a way out.

The situation must make many an elector feel that it is scarcely worth while taking the trouble to mark a ballot.

PATHETIC.

Those New York despatches telling about the "crack detectives" that are after the Lindbergh baby murderers, plus phrases about "the most concentrated man-hunt the world has ever seen," are enough to make one scream. About the only thing these "crack detectives" have done so far is to get themselves photographed, and that widely-circulated picture of last Saturday, showing all these brilliant sleuths posing in examination of the spot where the body of the dead baby was found, was pathetic.

No nation nor any of us can afford to adopt a "Holler than Thou" attitude. Yet some of the things that have happened in connection with this tragic Lindbergh case make one wonder what is coming over the people to the South. Consider these two items from a New York theatrical paper:

"Pat Crowe, the old time kidnapper, wants to play some vaudeville. He was submitted last week to RKO by Billy Diamond. In a wire to the agent, Crowe stated he figured the current prominence of kidnap stuff is sufficient to make him eligible for the stage. Among his qualifications, Crowe mentions his work in the Rockefeller case and the notorious Cudahy kidnapping of 30 years ago."

This is pretty bad, but not quite as hopeless as the second item, as follows:

"First Broadway attempt at commercialising the Lindbergh kidnapping is the peddling by pitchmen of what they call the 'Lindbergh Ladder.' Along with it, the pitchmen offer a toy baby effigy. To make it inviting it's a trick doll that somersaults down the rugs of the ladder. Asking price is 25 cents."

"You cannot, sir," said Edmund Burke, "indict a people:" and no one would be so foolish as to believe that the foregoing items reflect the heart and mentality of the United States. What they do reveal, however, is that there is considerable of a canker eating at the Republic; one which may soon require some sort of a major operation.—Ottawa Journal.

THE ARMY OF THE UNEMPLOYED.

While governments continue to mark time in the way of putting forward definite, clear-cut plans for the relief of unemployment, which remains a most pressing problem, the roads are again being travelled by transients in large numbers and at railway divisional points, such as Brockville, door-to-door calls and street solicitations on the part of wayfarers seeking either food or the wherewithal to procure it are once more becoming common.

Some Brockville houses are being asked to feed as many as five or ten transients a day, while one resident of the town reported four solicitations within one block as he walked to his office yesterday morning. All were in search of food or a few cents with which to obtain "a bite to eat."

While relief projects were in operation during the winter months, the colder weather, combined with the opportunity to secure work on these projects, visibly lessened the number of these transients. But with indirect relief at an end and many of the soup kitchens and refuges having been closed, the army of the unemployed is once more on the move, travelling from place to place in a vain effort to secure work and existing on the way as best it can from the proceeds of begging.

Not all of these transients have become wanderers by choice. They are quite willing to work if work is to be obtained. But since there is no work in the towns or cities in which they are customarily domiciled, they have taken to the road, as they did last year, in search of employment that is virtually non-existent, and all of the difficulties of pan-handling and begging that were faced last summer have made their reappearance.

Until the different governments make up their minds how they propose to deal with this question, it will probably continue to prove a problem. They announced some time ago that indirect relief would come to an end with the close of the month of April, but, perhaps characteristically, they have delayed adopting substitute measures, with the result that thousands of men have again taken to the roads and the railways, drifting from place to place, living in shacks or barns or rude shelters and subsisting upon any food that they may obtain in the course of begging.

It is a sad thing to think that, in a land abounding in surplus foodstuffs, such a state of affairs should be allowed to exist, and that there should be a virtual breakdown in the organized effort that was under way during the winter months to furnish these people with relief of some description. The return to the haphazard method of dealing with the question is far from likely to prove effective, and what is wanted, more than anything else, is the application of some uniform system to relief as a result of agreement amongst the different governments.

If it is definitely settled that direct relief is to take the place of indirect relief, by all means let it be introduced, if necessary with the accompaniment of some form of registration, such as existed during the war period. As long as no provision is made for the care of the unemployed who are wandering from centre to centre and existing as best they can, there is a grave danger of self-respecting men losing their manhood and becoming a class of professional beggars with which the country will have to deal during future years.

Whatever is to be done to care for these people ought to be settled without further delay. The governments may be properly criticized for having failed to put forward an alternative scheme on May 1, when they were fully aware of the fact that indirect relief would terminate at that time, and the longer they delay in making up their minds about the future of relief, the greater will be the necessity for it. —Brockville Recorder and Times.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

With the holiday over, West York can go ahead with its by-election campaign.

Depressions mean nothing evidently when a ball club is winning. The Boston Braves have been breaking all previous attendance records this season.

We fail to notice the name of John Aird, Jr., among the speakers in the West York by-election.

The Hydro probe has been adjourned indefinitely, thereby depriving newspaper readers of a serial story they have found both interesting and baffling.

A REAL GOOD GUIDE.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—Since 1920 I have been a visitor to Peterborough's surrounding fishing beds, and in those years I might say I have fished in nearly all the lakes north and south of your city.

I have caught some beautiful fish in those catches, some weighing as high as 32 pounds, but what I am coming at is that my intentions of long ago have forced me at last, while in Toronto, to write you in regards to a man in your city, namely, G. Russell. This man, I might say, is fully responsible for all my success in the fishing fields and waters of your district, together with what I call the finest fishing outfit in Canada. This man is known through the State of Ohio and no doubt through many States of our country as the best guide of the east.

Many fishermen in our city have had the same success as myself. I intended visiting Peterborough but later on when the fishing season comes in I will look up my guide again to have the real sport that comes at this time.

Truly I feel in sending this to you that I am merely speaking from my experiences and the goodwill of Mr. Russell will, no doubt, go far to bring plenty of tourists to your city this season. I am, yours very truly,

Mr. D. Wibbra.
3826 W. 36 Street, Cleveland, Ohio.

A CORRECTION

To The Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir:

A news item from Norwood appeared in Friday's Examiner re the present attendance of 127 pupils at the Norwood High School as unprecedented in the history of the school.

In reply I might say the enrollment of pupils in 1883 with three teachers on the staff was 155. In '84, '85 etc, with four teachers the attendance reached the maximum of 178. There were in that number 26 from four outside counties in addition to the pupils from Norwood and Peterborough county.

A copy from the department records based on the H.S. Inspector's reports will verify the above. Thanks for your valuable space.

John Davidson.

THE SOLUTION OF THE DIFFICULTY

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir:

The following pronouncement by a celebrated economist of the solution of our economic difficulty including unemployment is of the greatest importance.

Mrs. Wallinshaw says that all money is simply goods-tickets and if it is treated in that way (as it is not at present) and if the point of contact between goods-tickets and the goods (all products and wages) which is "price" is not allowed to be stock speculated out of existence, then no matter how much product is produced it can be taken up by the goods-tickets since there is no limit to the exchange of products if the means of exchanging them (through goods-tickets) is kept steady and not allowed to rise or fall unduly in price through gambling or manipulation. This impressive contribution to economic thought is attracting the most optimistic attention and appears to be the one real solution of depression so far made. Let the banks do it.

THE COMING PARLEY

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir.—In the Library of Oratory, a series containing the great speeches of all countries, ancient and modern, appears a contribution from Canada; a speech made by the Honorable Thomas White on March 5, 1874, after the defeat of Sir John MacDonald. He is speaking for the organization for the first time of a Liberal-Conservative party in Canada, and says that because there was no such organization, Sir John MacDonald had to utilize the party funds, and it was that which got him into trouble, and not any alleged Pacific Scandal. Had there been an organization, Sir John would not have had this to do, and there would have been no trouble about it, as the use of funds legitimately is legitimate at all times.

He concludes a great speech by reference to "Canada First" which for the first time was heard in the country, and he implores all loyal subjects and good Liberal-Conservatives to remember whilst "Canada First" is all right in a private capacity in reference to our own country, it can not be allowed to interefere with much greater idea of "Empire First."

The original, to be found in this series on page 322, Vol. 12, is well worth the perusal of any local Canadian.

THE MARKETS

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, May 25—Rains southwest and west tumbled wheat down two cents a bushel yesterday, despite assertions the moisture came too late to be of material benefit.

Selling pressure on wheat was augmented by the fact that the market appeared to be at least temporarily in an overbought condition, after more than six cents advance from last week's low. Numerous eleventh-hour bulls let go of their holdings, and not a few stop-loss selling orders were forced into execution by the downward swing of the market.

Wheat closed unstable at only a fractional recovery from the day's bottom figures, 1 1-8 to 1 5-8 under Monday's finish; corn, ¼ to 1 1-8 down; oats, 3-8 to ¾ off, and provisions unchanged to 17 cents lower.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, May 25.—Weekly auctions of butter and cheese will be inaugurated for the 1932 season at the Board of Trade here to-day, when quantities of Quebec butter and Quebec cheese will be offered.

The produce market was generally closed down yesterday for the Empire Day holiday, but some houses were open during the morning to meet necessary business. Some butter sales were made as high as 17½c per pound, compared with 17¼c Monday. The cheese market held unchanged at 9c per pound for Ontarios, and 8½c for Quebec. Eggs sold unchanged.

SON OF THE GODS

By REX BEACH

Sam's valet, clad in a well-fitting suit of American clothes and carrying a derby hat, stick and gloves, paused inside the door of the living room and bowed.

This being his evening off, he had stopped on the way out to ask if there was anything further his employer desired.

Sam assured him that he was quite comfortable, nevertheless Moy lingered.

"You come 'long me an' you have good time. Very funny." Moy voiced his invitation hopefully.

"Where do you go every Thursday night?" Sam inquired curiously. "It's none of my business but—you always dress up; I never hear you come in."

"'My don't come home until morning.'" The speaker sang these words lightly and chuckled. "That's funny song, honnable. 'Nother song say, 'Show me some way to go home.' In China is no song like those. You like dance?"

Sam shot an inquiring glance at his valet. He questioned Moy and learned that the latter spent most of his spare time, and practically all of his money, in the Asiatic dance halls.

Moy explained naively that the girls took more pleasure in dancing with Oriental men that with men of their own race because the former paid more liberally for the privilege. He asked Sam to go with him.

Sam listened with a queer light in his eyes; he surprised his employee finally by rising and saying he would go.

That proved to be a strange experience for Sam; he felt as if he were on an Arabian Nights adventure and he would have given much if he had been able to see it through the eyes of his valet. To the latter it was romantic and pleasurably exciting; to Sam it was hollow, incredibly sordid and shocking. The sight of white girls in the arms of Chinese, Japanese, Filipino men evoked astonishment at first and then resentment. It was an abnormality that he found deeply repugnant and yet he could not tell why. His white mind was working again, no doubt.

Moy took him first to a place on upper Broadway. It was about like any other public dance hall except that all the men were Asiatics. The dancing floor was fenced in by a railing with turnstiles at which ticket takers were posted; between dances the girls rested on benches inside the enclosure. There were three men present for every woman.

The dances lasted only four or five minutes and the intermissions even less. As a matter of fact, the orchestra stopped playing barely long enough for the floor to be cleared and for more tickets to be collected. These tickets were ten cents each and were sold in books. Moy explained that the girls received five cents a dance and that some of them made as much as ten dollars a night—just from dancing.

Ten dollars a night. Two hundred dances. Sam wondered how many miles these girls covered in an evening. Fortunately for them, the modern dance is not exhausting.

Of course his presence became known. Soon there was a craning of necks, the girls stared at him in open curiosity and talked among themselves. The proprietor of the hall, a meticulous Japanese, presented himself with a bow and expressed his appreciation of the honor Sam had done him.

Sam thanked him and explained that, for tonight at least, he was only sight-seeing. Curiously he put several questions which were answered frankly.

Yes, this went on every night. Policed? Why should the police make trouble for a licensed dance hall, open to the public and run in strict observance of local ordinances and the prohibition laws? It was an orderly place and white men were welcome, although, happily, they did not patronize it. Investigators, policewomen occasionally visited the place and a few young girls had been arrested on complaint of their parents, but most the girls had their parents' consent to work here—some even brought their mothers along. Would Mr. Lee accept and use a book of tickets? A dozen books? Some of the girls were pretty. Many were agreeably young—No? The speaker shrugged and nodded. He understood perfectly, a gentleman of Mr. Lee's consequence must exercise discretion in the pursuit of his amusements.

"To you I will present select address," he said, "where matters will be found more agreeable to your liking. Surroundings are more rich and satisfactory than of here and the management is correct. Polite young ladies of the non-shopworking classes can be met and the music is of excellent organization." On a card he wrote a Riverside Drive number and this he handed to Sam.

Curiosity prompted the latter to drive uptown to the address given; it was that of a handsome private house. This was a "club," however, hence it was furnished and run on a more pretentious scale than the public hall. The revellers were better dressed and no attempt was made to separate them between dances, but otherwise the procedure was about the same. There was the same turmoil and the dances were equally short.

Here, again, Sam was recognized and a good deal was made over him. When, at a late hour, he returned to Chinatown it was with a deeper feeling of distain for the white people than he had ever experienced. Christians! His superiors! It made him laugh bitterly. They presumed to scorn him; a woman of that race had whipped him. What a cocksure attitude!

* * *

A few days later Sam's lawyer called on what he announced to be an extraordinary errand. Mr. Carter was indignant and he explained his feelings by saying:

"You remember that fellow Himes who had a part in the Mona Stevens affair?"

"I'm not likely to forget him," Sam declared.

"Well, he has turned up again. He came to see me today on behalf of that Hart girl! The girl your father sent to Paris."

Sam stared incredulously at the speaker. "On her 'behalf'? What has happened to her? Perhaps I'd better say what does she want?"

"Alice Hart is back in New York and threatens you with a breach of promise action. Blackmail, of course. Settlement out of court. Did you ever write her any letters?"

"No doubt."

"Himes referred to several which breathed poetic devotion of an exalted nature, also to pointed attentions, expensive gifts—He says you entertained her for a week or more at a New York hotel and that she visited your home."

"All true."

"There's no denying the fact that your father sent her to Paris and footed her bills up to the time of his death. Himes contends that a jury would construe such an action as due to the interest of a prospective father-in-law. I dare say if you had continued to foot those bills we'd have heard nothing from her."

There was a peculiar light in Sam's eyes when he said: "Miss Hart is a very charming girl and I was more than fond of her. What's more, I would have married her gladly. I infer that she has analyzed her feeling for me and discovers it to be love."

"Analyzed your bank account!"

"Anyhow she consents to become my wife."

"She does more than consent. She demands."

"Very well. I'll marry her. Promise her that she shall be the proud mistress of my three-roofed house, that she shall wear robes spun from shimmering moonlight and eat delicate foods from the thinnest of imperial porcelain bowls. A hundred docile servants shall bow to her—But no, my ardor runs away with me. Tell her merely to come and see me, so that my heart may speaks its own message."

"Come here?" The attorney looked incredulous.

"Oh, the illustrious Himes may come with her! He should do so. He's the one to discuss the wedding arrangements, the bridal settlements and such things. A quaint and amusing custom, isn't it?"

Mr. Carter left in a good deal of a huff.

Sam's message, as relayed by his attorney, was not wholly pleasing to Everett Himes, but Carter declined to do more than repeat his client's demand, so an appointment was finally arranged and on the afternoon set Alice and her companion appeared.

Miss Hart, who was under a high nervous strain, rose and peered furtively through the half-open door, then she motioned to Himes. Sam Lee was sprawled on a couch at the far end of the room. He was in a magnificently embroidered robe and one languid arm was around the waist of a shiny-headed Chinese girl. Another girl, who held a thin-necked stringed instrument in her hands, sat cross-legged on a cushion; both were in loose Oriental jackets and pajama-like trousers, both were giggling and tittering. The visitors retreated noiselessly to their chairs.

Moy returned, he bowed them into his master's presence; Sam Lee had risen from the couch and he invited them to be seated. He took Alice's hand and kissed it, he ran his gaze over her and in a voice unnaturally thick and queerly disconcerting he began a ceremonial speech of greeting. The two Chinese girls had retreated across the room and were pretending to look out of a window into the roof garden. They stole occasional glances over their shoulders, clung nervously to each other and exchanged embarrassed giggles.

Alice noticed something else, too. On a tabouret beside the couch was a queerly shaped pipe, a peanut-oil lamp and other articles which evidently went with them. An opium layout! The fellow was drugged. That accounted for his behavior, for his heavy-lidded eyes.

Everett Himes was speaking now, he and Sam were saying something about that Stevens girl, but there was no rancor in their voices. Good Heavens, how Chinese Sam had become! And what a change in this place since that night long ago.

Himes asserted gruffly. "What is it, yes or no? You asked her to marry you—am I right?—She wants to know what you propose to do about it."

"I have enough evidence to convince any court," the girl asserted.

"But why speak of courts, my dear? You long for me, I yearn for you. I bound forward with a shout. Marry you? Well, rather!"

Miss Hart had risen with a strangled cry, but Sam leaped forward and clutched at her.

"Let me go!" she gasped, and tried to shake him off.

"Never!" he drew her to him and his face was ablaze. "I'll marry you today, this hour—"

"Let her go, d'you hear?" It was Himes speaking, and he, too, had risen.

But Sam ignored him, hoarsely he ran on: "I'll smother you with jewels, with love."

Himes seized the half-demented youth and flung him aside.

Miss Hart had found her voice and hysterically she reviled him. Himes was storming at him, too, but Sam only raved the louder. Alice ended the scene by suddenly turning and fleeing from the room. Himes followed her, cursing; he overtook her at the door to the steel stairway. She was sobbing and her knees shook, she sat terrified glances over her shoulder.

STATE RUSHING PLANS FOR TRIAL OF JOHN CURTIS

Will Go Before Grand Jury Thursday for Hoax Negotiations.

MAY CALL LINDBERGH.

"Jafsie" Hopes for Reply From Man Ransom Was Paid To.

HOPEWELL, N.J., May 25.—The State of New Jersey laid plans today to rush the indictment and trial of John Hughes Curtis of Norfolk for his hoax negotiations in the Lindbergh kidnapping mystery.

His case will be called before the Grand Jury tomorrow morning. Although authorities hope to avoid calling Col. Charles A. Lindbergh as a witness, the flier will not hesitate to testify at the trial if Curtis is indicted and such testimony is required, it was made plain.

Prosecutor Anthony Hauck, Jr., decided to proceed at once against Curtis after conferring with Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, head of the State police.

"I believe the evidence justifies indictment and that it will be possible to try Curtis in June," he said.

Idea Spurned

Dr. John Grier Hibben, friend of Col. Lindbergh, spurned the idea the flier's dislike for publicity might prevent his appearance at the trial.

"He will certainly not seek to avoid his responsibility as a citizen in any way," Dr. Hibben said.

Meanwhile at Becket, Mass., Dr. John F. Condon, the "Jafsie" who paid the $50,000 ransom to swindlers, hoped for a reply to an appeal to made to "John." This was the name given by the person who got the money in a Bronx cemetery.

"John, Money I gave you is useless," the appeal said. "You can't get rid of it. Return it to Col. Lindbergh in time. Get your $35,000 reward."

The reward was offered by the State of New Jersey in a proclamation issued yesterday.

GENERAL TRADE REMAINS DULL

Several Sharp Reductions in Inter-listed Issues Following N. Y. Lead.

Consumers' Gas Off Point.

TORONTO, May 25 (C.P.). — Trading was listless on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning after Tuesday's holiday, and price movements were narrow, grading gradually lower, however. Compared with Monday's close there were some sharp reductions in interlisted issues due to their having declined in New York while the local market was closed on Victoria Day. The most outstanding loss occurred in C P.R., which dropped more than 2 points and to a new low below $10 a share. Consumers' Gas sold down 1 point to 14⅜, and other utilities were off ⅛ to ¾ of a point compared with Monday's close.

Bell Telephone at 98 still was above its extreme low reached some weeks ago. The stock did not immediately undergo marked change this morning when it became known directors had cut the dividend from $2 to $1.75 annually, besides inaugurating another salary and wage cut.

Nickel dropped to a new low just above $5.44 a share. Smelters was down to 27 again, and the oils all off ⅛ and ¼ point from Monday's finals. Walkers Common dragged below 3, but the Preferred continued to be supported at 94.

TRANSPORTATION PROBE NOT OVER

Report is Unlikely to be Ready for Several Months.

FINAL ACTION UNCERTAIN.

OTTAWA, May 25 (C.P.).—The report of the Royal Commission on Transportation will not be completed before several months yet, the Prime Minister told the House of Commons to-day in answer to a question by Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, leader of the Opposition. Whether it will be made public before being submitted to Parliament was a matter that would still have to be decided, Mr. Bennett added.

Some time ago Lord Ashfield had come to Canada, and in consultation with members of the Royal Commission, had decided it would be impossible for that body to end its labors for some time yet. Under these circumstances it was not probable, said the Prime Minister, that the report would be completed for several months.

Whether that report should be published before presentation to Parliament was a matter that the Government had not yet considered. The Prime Minister could see strong reasons for either course to be followed, and retained an open mind on the matter. That would depend on the report itself and the conclusions arrived at, he added.

Small Bush Fire In Burleigh Area

Fire broke out early yesterday morning in the woods just south of Burleigh Falls hotel. Grass, underbrush and trees were consumed by the flames for a considerable distance. Residents of the vicinity and passing motorists joined in fighting the blaze and it was finally extinguished. It is thought the fire started from the embers of a camp fire left the day previous by some boys.

GOVERNOR-GENERAL IS WARMLY WELCOMED BY LOYAL CITIZENS

brighten the son of his secretary, A. F. Lascelles, who is a patient there, and then turning back to Confederation Square to pay his respect to the sacrifice of those other citizens of Peterborough who marched away in those years from 1914 to 1918 never to return.

Expressions of Loyalty

The Governor-General's official duty was concentrated in his acknowledgement of the city's address of welcome read by Mayor Denne at Victoria Park, a grateful reply and assurance that the expression of the city's loyalty would be conveyed to His Majesty the King. Hundreds of citizens, their number swollen by the children of Central and Queen Alexandra schools and the students of the Collegiate Institute and St. Peter's High School, crowded around the park stand. Prominent in the arrangement for the people was a large group of members of the Canadian Legion, and as an example of the fact that there was nothing perfunctory in any feature of His Excellency's visit he walked up and down the two lines of veterans, shaking hands with each man upon introduction.

A few drops of rain fell just as the Governor-General stepped from his car at the station, and if Alderman Holland and City Clerk Armstrong were quickly thinking of the emergency arrangement of an adjournment to the armouries for the city's formal welcome, there was no sign from His Excellency that he was aware of the momentary threat from the sky. He proceeded to review the Boy Scouts, greeted the Rangers' Band, and then was introduced by Mayor Denne to Hon. G. N. Gordon, J. P. Strickland, M. P. P., Warden Montgomery of Norwood and the city aldermen.

The friendly dignity of the Governor-General in that brief scene broke the ice pleasantly for the reception committee, and the rest of the morning was a most agreeable experience, accentuated by the smoothness with which every detail of the program moved forward. The weather quickly changed, and the May sun presented the city in "all the loveliness of Spring."

From the station the official party composed of the Governor-General and his aide de camp, Lieutenant D. H. Fuller, R.N., son of Admiral Cyril Fuller, R.N., and Mayor Denne, followed by Hon. G. N. Gordon and A. L. Lascelles, J. P. Strickland, M.P.P., and Mr. R. Baring, nephew of His Excellency, Warden Montgomery, the members of the city council, and John R. Marshal, chairman of the Manufacturer's Association proceeded down George street behind traffic officers E. A. Hornick and J. C. Massingham of Lindsay. Turning north on Aylmer street from Lansdowne, the official party passed the King Edward school, moving slowly by the assembled pupils of King Edward school and Sacred Heart school waving flags and cheering.

Visited Two Factories

His Excellency in announcing his visit intimated to the council his wish to see something of the industrial features of the city. The two plants chosen were the Quaker Oats Company and the Canadian General Electric Company. At the Quaker Oats Company the Governor-General was introduced to Mr. G. A. Macdonald and Mr. George Edwards and was shown through several of the departments.

At the C.G.E. plant the company was represented by J. J. Ashworth of Toronto, director and general manager C. A. Salmonsen, L. D. W. Magie and R. E. Layfield. After introductions, His Excellency reviewed a group of 168 employees, war veterans, who were drawn up in the switch gear department under the direction of Sergt.-Major Sam Calladine. Each of the men was introduced to the Governor-General, and the greeting was returned by a warm handshake by His Excellency. The official party passed through the switch gear, structural steel, induction motors, punch press and refrigerator cabinet departments and concluded the visit in the general machine shop and armature departments. The Governor-General expressed a keen interest in the plant, and especially noted machinery that had been made in England. To Mr. Salmonsen he said that on his arrival in Canada he had to send to England for a refrigerator and was delighted to know that refrigerators are now being produced in Peterborough.

Welcomed by Mayor

As the Governor General stepped from his private car at the Canadian Pacific Railway station, accompanied by his staff, he was greeted by His Worship Mayor Roland Denne. The band of the Peterborough Rangers Regiment, under Lieut. W. Peryer, struck up "God Save the King," while the guard of honor of Boy Scouts and Wolf Cubs, representative of all the city troops and packs, under command of District Commissioner John T. Hornsby, sprang smartly to attention.

To the left of the guard of honor were grouped the parliamentary and municipal officials, while the outer confines of the station square were filled with a cheering, flag-waving crowd of citizens.

Scarlet uniforms of the bandsmen contrasted with the royal blue of the two railway coaches of the Vice-Regal party, while green and khaki uniforms of the Cubs and Scouts were amplified against a foreground of morning clothes and bright shiny "toppers" of the various officials.

The Governor General himself was attired in a morning suit, with an immaculate grey silk hat, similar to the one usually favored by the King himself. Possessed of a most gracious and dignified bearing with nothing savoring of the autocratic about him, the Governor General won instant popularity and wherever he went on his brief tour was greeted with loud and fervent cheering.

A particularly pleasing incident occurred at St. Peter's School on Reid street, where the pupils of St. Peter's and St. Mary's Schools were assembled under the supervision of Sister Lucretia and Sister Philomena respectively.

The Governor General's approach to the school was pending, and the children, the majority of whom were waving Union Jacks and Canadian Ensigns were receiving last minute instructions from their superiors. As the Vice-Regal party swung onto Reid street, the children commenced to sing "O Canada" at a given signal, and the Governor General apparently impressed, ordered the party to halt. Hat in hand he sat in his car facing the children until the final words, O Canada, We stand on guard for Thee," had finished echoing down the leafy avenue; then, with a friendly smile and a wave of the hand, he and his party speeded northward, while the children sang "God Save the King."

At each of the other schools that were visited by the Governor General and his party, the display of patriotism was no les sapparent, and the various Cadet companies were paraded in full uniform alongside their fellow students who lined the sidewalks under the watching eyes of their teachers and school principals.

The incident is related as showing something of the personality of Lord Bessborough. Again at Victoria Park did he exhibit the same graciousness when he negligently leaned over the balustrade of the bandstand from which he delivered his reply to the civic address of welcome, and chatted very informally with Lieut. Loretta McDougall of the 1st Peterborough Girl Guides.

Before leaving the station at the outset of his tour of Peterborough, the Governor General inspected the Boy Scouts, shaking hands with District Commissioner Hornsby and Scoutmaster Garry Johnson after which he was introduced by Mayor Denne to the various parliamentary and municipal officials.

Headed by Traffic Officer E. A. Hornick of Peterborough and Traffic Officer J. C. Massingham of Lindsay the retinue proceeded up George street to Victoria Park. The Governor General accompanied by Mayor Denne and Lieut. D. H. Fuller, R.N., A.D.C., was accommodated in a Cadillac touring car provided for the occasion by Mrs. R. M. Waddell.

The scene at the Park was a brilliant one. Thousands of citizens flocked around the gaily decorated bandstand, while special spaces had been reserved for members of the Canadian Legion and the Women's Auxiliary of the Legion, as well as for the Boy Scouts, Girl Guides, the pupils of Central School, Queen Alexandra School, Peterborough Collegiate and Vocational Institute and St. Peter's High School.

Inspects Ex-Service Men

The band was again in attendance and the playing of the National Anthem signalised the arrival of the Vice-Regal party. Before proceeding to the bandstand, His Excellency inspected a detachment of over one hundred ex-servicemen under the command of A. E. Everett, president of Branch 52. Lieut.-Colonel C. H. Ackerman, ex-president of the Ontario Command of the Legion and Captain James Abraham, past president of the local branch were also present, the latter having had charge of the arrangements at Victoria Park. The colors were borne by Corpl. Bert Gash.

Shaking hands with each one of the returned men, His Excellency also had a few words to say to all who were decorations. Stopping before Pte. E. J. Waterman, a veteran of the North West Rebellion, His Excellency asked the old soldier under whom he had served and in what campaign. "At Batoche sir, in 1885 under General Middleton", was the reply. Captain Douglas Loomis of the Prince of Wales Dragoons was also singled out and the Governor General asked him at what engagement he had won his Military Cross, and requested to know of Captain Abraham under whom he had served in Egypt.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Canadian Legion was present in a body along with President Mrs. Frank Millard and past president, Mrs. Joseph Mills. The Governor General shook hands with each of the ladies and chatted briefly with several of them.

The children of Central School and Queen Alexandra School were drawn up in the park to the west of the bandstand under the care of their respective principals, E. S. Wightman and J. E. R. Munro.

The inspection completed His Excellency joined the remainder of the party on the bandstand and heard read to him the following civic address of welcome, which was afterwards presented to him handsomely bound in sheep skin.

Address of Welcome

The address of welcome as read by Mayor Denne was as follows:

"On behalf of the people and the council of this city, I give you a most hearty welcome to the City of Peterborough.

"When it was announced a little over a year ago that you were coming to Canada to fill the exalted office of Governor-General we were delighted that one of your wide experience in public affairs would be the representative of His Majesty the King in our Dominion. Canada is a comparatively young country, and while much has been accomplished in its development very much remains to be done to settle its domains and develop its rich resources, and we feel certain that you will be pleased to assist in this great work so long as you are with us and that your interest in the people and the development of this Dominion will not cease with your term of office.

"While giving you personally a most sincere welcome, we greet you whole-heartedly as the representative of His Gracious Majesty King George. The people of Canada are devoted to the throne and to the welfare of every section of the British Commonwealth of Nations, and in no part of the Dominion are these sentiments more strongly felt or more deeply seated than in this city and in the district of which it is the centre.

"Very many citizens of Peterborough served in the army in the Great War, and many gave their lives in that conflict, and we are greatly pleased also to welcome you as one who served so gallantly with them in the service of King and country.

"The present time is one of difficulty for those engaged in administering the affairs of municipalities. In Peterborough, owing to the character of its important manufacturing industries, the pressure of business inactivity is not, we believe, a severe as it is in some sections, but we have not escaped having to to deal withp roblems arising from the present world-wide conditions. We feel assured that, especially owing to your sympathy and that you unite with us in the hope and expectation of an early return to business prosperity.

"Our one regret in connection with your visit to us is that Her Excellency the Countess of Bessborough was not able to accompany you, and we will be grateful if you will kindly convey to her our good wishes on her behalf.

"Assuring you that we fully appreciate the honour that you have conferred upon us in your visit to Peterborough."

Governor General's Address

In his reply the Governor General delivered the following address:

"It gives me great pleasure to visit you to-day as the representative in Canada of our beloved Sovereign King George, and I thank you most sincerely for the welcome you have given me, and for the expressions of loyalty and devotion to His Majesty. I shall take an early opportunity of conveying these to the King, who will, I know, receive them with sincere appreciation.

"I can assure you, Mr. Mayor, that I am deeply interested in the welfare and progress of this great country, and that my interest in it will by no means come to an end with my term of office. The times we are living in are difficult for us, as for the whole world, but the energy and devotion of our citizens will, I feel sure, help to solve those difficulties, and to take full advantage of the wealth of opportunities and resources with which a bountiful Providence has endowed us.

"I am well aware of the great service which the citizens of Peterborough gave to the Empire during the War it is a subject of pride to you as to us all.

"Her Excellency regretted greatly that she could not accompany me to-day, but hopes that at some future time she may have the opportunity of seeing your beautiful town. She thanks you for your good wishes."

At the conclusion of the address His Excellency received Mrs. J. Fordyce Strickland, wife of the Member in the Ontario Legislature for Peterborough City, and Mrs. Denne wife of the Mayor, after which he declared the remainder of the day as a holiday for the school children. It was a pronouncement that was received with an enthusiastic cheering on the part of Peterborough's youth.

Leaving Victoria Park the Governor General and his entourage made a thorough visit over a route that covered almost the entire city and included Jackson Park, and the large industrial plants of the Canadian General Electric and Quaker Oats Companies, and other schools that were not represented in the gathering at Victoria Park.

The schools visited on the route throughout the city, and where the students were lined up along with the various cadet companies included, King Edward School, principal Captain R. J. Bolton, with cadets under command of Company Commander D. Mowry; Queen Mary School, principal M. N. Clark; vice principal E. G. Wagar, cadets under command of Company Commander Joseph Leith; King George School, principal F. E. Kerr; cadets under Company Commander Leslie Benton; Immaculate Conception School principal Sister Odell.

Visited Lift locks

After visiting the summit of Ashburnham Memorial Park where a splendid view of the entire city and surrounding district was enjoyed by the party, the Governor General proceeded to the Lift Locks.

Here he was met by A. L. Hilaly, superintendent engineer of the Trent Canal, who was presented to His Excellency, and before going aboard the Government Steamer "Bessie Butler" which lay at her berth at the entrance to the pontoon on the west side of the locks, inscription enpanelled on the walls of the locks and showed a great deal of interest in the engineering details of construction.

Crossing the gangplank of the Bessie Butler, the Governor General received Captain James Johnston and chatted interestedly while the vessel was raised the 65 feet to the upper level of the canal. The passage through the locks was witnessed by a large crowd.

His Excellency also paid a visit of some twenty minutes duration to St. Joseph's Hospital, where his secretary's son, John Lascelles, a pupil at the Grove School, Lakefield, is a patient at the present time.

He was met at the entrance by the Mother Superior and several of the Sisters and physicians, while a group of nurses lined the hallway and extended the welcome of the nursing staff to the distinguished visitor.

In the prettily decorated sun room, the Governor General chatted with the young patient, his physician, Dr. G. S. Cameron, and his nurse, Miss Isabelle White of Lakefield, a graduate of St. Joseph' Hospital.

Although his time was short, His Excellency expressed a desire to see more of the building and was taken up to the roof garden, where he had a fine view of the surrounding country.

He promised, if here on a later visit, to spend more time at the hospital.

So concluded the official program in honor of the Governor General's visit. The last occasion on which Peterborough was honored by a visit from a Governor General was when Their Excellencies Viscount and Viscountess Willingdon were here on June 20, 1927.

UNEMPLOYMENT FIGURES LOWER STEVENS SHOWS

Claims Reports 700,000 Jobless in Canada Are "Very Wide of Mark."

NOT OFFICIAL.

Last Census Shows 286,874 Without Work in Centres Over 5,000 Population.

OTTAWA, May 25 (CP) — A gradual diminution of unemployment is indicated by figures compiled for the Department of Trade and Commerce, Hon. H. H. Stevens stated to the House of Commons to-day.

Figures given before the political economic science convention at Toronto, indicating that the number of unemployed in Canada is over 700,000 appear to be "very wide of the mark" the minister added. These figures are not official, he said, and they were not secured from the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

Answers Woodsworth

Mr. Stevens was answering a question by J. S. Woodsworth, Labor, Winnipeg North Centre, who quoted the figure of 726,594 as having been given before the Political Science Association in Toronto.

Figures of industrial employment compiled from returns of some 5,000 firms in Canada, continued Mr. Stevens, indicated a gradual, though not very marked, increase. For instance, in December, 1931, the figure was 414,824, while in April of this year it had risen to 424,030. The index figure on employment also showed an advance.

The unemployment figures of the census, said Mr. Stevens, showed unemployment in towns and cities over 5,000 at 286,874. This was taken in June, 1931.

Rare Flower Specie Found Near Minden

Larry Maguire brought in to the office this morning a painted trillium that he found about four miles north of Minden, growing in profusion.

The picture of this flower is found in all the botany books, but the species is practically unknown in this district. It is supposed to grow only north of Lake Superior.

The predominance of the triangle an attribute of the lily family, is noticeable in the formation of this delicate little flower. The large green leaves protecting the blossom form a triangle which is bisected by the triangle of the three white petals, which are in turn, bisected by the triple green sepalls of the calyx. A triangle of deep rose makes the "painting" of the white blossoms, and there is a three-part stigma.

F. J. A. Morris, an authority on floriculture, says these flowers grow in profusion in Algonquin Park.

Green Peppers, the Cook's Friend

TYPES OF PEPPERS. SWEET AND HOT.

Examining a nationally known cook book recently, some fifty recipes were noted that called for green peppers. These included appetisers, salads, soups, stews, pot roasts, sauces, in fact about everything except desserts, breads, and pastry. The green pepper is used both raw and cooked and both for flavor and decoration. It is becoming the twin of the onion in culinary use.

Its use is relatively modern. It is well within the memory of the present generation when the green pepper meant nothing in the daily diet. The chief use of peppers was limited to the hot types for mixed pickles and seasoning.

Peppers are easily grown in the home garden. They may be dried for winter use or canned as pimentos. They are the most tender of the vegetables and no chances of cold weather or frosts should be taken with them. They are about the last plant that should be set out. This should not be done until there is absolutely no danger of a frost. Seed can be sown in the open ground for the late crop.

Plants raised in frames or in the house give the early crop and all seedhouses keep plants in stock which may be purchased very cheaply at planting time.

Give the peppers a foot apart in the row, full sun, rich soil, and an abundance of moisture. They seem to like moisture on their tops as well as at the roots and the sprinkler can be turned on them to good advantage. With other vegetables it is more efficient to take the nozzle off the hose and let the water trickle slowly between the rows and soak in.

In buying pepper seed be sure that you select a sweet or cool type. The accident of using a hot instead of a sweet pepper which sometimes happens in cooking is no fun when you are the victim. Grow hot peppers in a different part of the garden from the sweet pepper to avoid any hot mixups. Select the thick matted types if you plan to can your own "pimentos." The pimento pepper will give this material.

Give your peppers good cultivation and keep them in vigorous growth. You will be rewarded with more and better quality peppers. Above all, do not let them want for moisture during the hot spells. They will revel in the heat if they have moits soil.

How to Select Your Evergreens

Almost all of the evergreens are valued for their distinct shape and symmetry. In selecting and grouping evergreens it is well to consider their shape if a pleasant result is to be secured.

Evergreens can be divided according to shape into six general groups. A classification such as this makes it much easier to select the right evergreen for the right place. It must be remembered that the members in each group are alike only in shape or outline. Each has its own characteristics and may be a dwarf grower or tall grower according to its class.

Group 1. This broadly pyramidal group of the Christmas tree type embraces quite a few of the common evergreens including some of the Firs, Hemlocks, Spruces and Pines. As a rule they make large trees at maturity and make most perfect specimens when growing without interference. This class is good for lawn groups, shelter planting, avenues or specimens.

Group 2. The evergreens in this group are usually medium height growers suitable for backgrounds and foundation plantings. They are useful to give height at corners and accent at each side of a doorway, gateway or garden entrance. Various varieties of Arborvitaes, Junipers, Taxus and Retinosporas are included in this group.

Group 3. These are the upright, columnar varieties which introduce an emblematory note in the landscape, wherever an accent plant is needed or where formal effects are striven for, these plants may be fittingly use. The Junipers and Arborvitaes both offer such narrow types.

Group 4. In the family of evergreens there are many fine dwarf varieties which grow more or less globular. These are very useful for specimen planting or for foundation planting, either alone or in combination with taller growing varieties planted in black. The Mugho Pine and Globe Arborvitae belong to this group.

Group 5. The evergreens in this group constitute an intermediate stage between creeping Juniper and upright growers. All are dwarf and consequently make desirable plants for foundation planting. Two of the most commonly known of this group are Pfitzer's Juniper and Saxin Juniper.

Group 6. The creeping variety of Juniper which constitute this group are at home on slopes where they can spread out at will or wherever a low carpet of evergreen foliage is desirable.

It All Depends on the Plan

Your home represents a definite opportunity, an opportunity to make of it something exceptionally fine. The greatest opportunity comes at the beginning before the building is designed and started. Here is the finest chance to work out a scheme offering the most in convenience, attractiveness and general satisfaction from the standpoint of both the house and grounds.

That is the purpose of the landscape plan. The landscape plan provides a program for orderly development in which all the requirements for fitness and beauty have been satisfied to a degree possible only when approached in this comprehensive manner.

In making a plan, a choice is made before money is exended. This is the safest, the surest, and usually, the least expensive way in the end. This is the main value of the plan. The results depend upon it.

Shows Livestock Saving Factor

The Review of the Live Stock Market and Meat Trade for 1931, just issued by the Markets Intelligence Service of the Dominion Department of Agriculture states:

"The commercial meat animals industry weathered the year much better than any other major branch of farm industry. Indeed, saleable live stock, and with this, of course, we must include poultry, was to its possessor the saving factor in the year's business on the farm. At the opening of the new year, those producers who had included live stock in their 1931 programs, found themselves in a much more advantageous position than those who had not."

EGYPTIAN OVEN HAS ADVANCED

ELECTRICITY DOES IT NOW

(Experimental Farms Note)

A glance at the up-to-date incubators now in general use would lead one to believe that this descendant is a long way removed from its ancestors, the old Egyptian hatching oven that was in operation thousands of years before Christ and is still used in that Old Land.

The ancient incubator is really a mud house in which everything is done from the inside, the eggs are placed in a separate room, the heat is applied from within, and the operator does his work from the inside as well. The modern incubator has the heat automatically applied from without, and instead of a smudge burning for days to raise the temperature high enough so that the eggs may be put in, a button is pressed and electricity quickly heats the egg chamber to the desired temperature. The Egyptian, sweltering in a temperature of 103, and crouched in a very uncomfortable position, turned the eggs by hand, one by one. The modern attendant touches a lever and the whole lot is turned in an instant.

No Guessing

Nor has the attendant to-day to guess at the temperature of the egg chamber as was the case—and still is—in the old style; a thermometer in plain view indicates the exact temperature and a thermostat keeps it at any given point by automatically turning the electricity off and on. In the old incubator humidity was introduced by means of moist straw or by sprinkling water on the floor and walls. Humidifying is modernized to the reservoir and the electric fan.

Yes, it's a long way from the incubator of adobe, without light or ventilation, with heat supplied by smouldering manure, where the almost naked attendant, in a sweltering heat, crawls around to do his work, to the modern and efficient incubators of to-day controlled and managed in ease and comfort. Yes, it's a long way, except in the percentage of healthy, living chicks hatched. For full information on modern methods of incubation apply to your nearest Dominion Experimental Farm.

HOW TO CAPTURE SWARM OF BEES

Hiving Easy Matter if Queen's Wings Are Always Clipped.

WILL CLUSTER FOR HOURS

(Experimental Farms Note)

"A swarm of bees in May is worth a load of hay.

A swarm of bees in June is worth a silver spoon.

A swarm of bees in July is not worth the fly."

A swarm of bees represents the working force of a colony and therefore is a valuable thing to capture and hive, especially if it is a prime or first swarm and emerges early in the season. When a swarm leaves its hive the queen of the colonly goes with it, otherwise the swarm soon returns to its former home and because of that fact, many beekeepers follow the practice of clipping their queens' wings before the swarming season starts, in order to prevent the escape of swarms later in the season.

The same practice is followed in the Experimental apiary on the Central Experimental Farm at Ottawa and the following methods are used in hiving any swarms. When a queen's wings are clipped the hiving of a swarm is an easy matter.

Catch the Queen

While the swarm is still in the air search for the queen in front of the hive entrance and when found place her in a small box or cage. Immediately move the old hive from its stand and in its place put a new hive fitted with drawn combs or foundation. The swarm will soon return and as the first bees enter the new hive release the queen amongst them. Noum put a queen excluder over the new hive and above it place the supers from the old hive; the swarm will then go to work as though nothing had happened.

All beekeepers do not clip their queens' wings, and where this is not done the queen leaves with the swarm. When the queen is with a swarm it usually clusters on some nearby object for a few hours and thus is easily captured. First prepare a hive with drawn comb or foundation and then if the object on which the swarm has clustered is movable it can be carried to the hive and the bees shaken down in front of it when they will quickly enter the hive.

If, however, the cluster cannot be carried to the hive, carry the hive to it and place it on the ground so that the entrance is beneath the swarm. Now sharply shake or brush the bees down in front of the hive, moving the hive up close to the fallen bees where they will soon find the entrance and signal the others to follow them home.

Don't be fooled by a few warm days into getting tender plants unnecessarily exposed.

Trees Add Value to Property

Trees are not planted in the home grounds for financial reasons, perhaps, but the investment value of well-chosen and well-placed trees should not be underrated.

They are so easily obtained; there is so much fun in planting them and nursing them in their early months when they need care and water. We enjoy working with them, and we enjoy the beauty which they add to the home grounds.

As the tree grows this beauty increases. If it has been chosen with care and placed with careful consideration both in its usefulness for shade and storm protection, and its picturesque value in the landscape, we soon recognize that besides being beautiful, in itself it adds beauty to its surroundings. In one place it may frame the house picture; in another provide background for the home. It may accent a garden view or extend a sheltering canopy above a terrace.

It pays dividends in beauty, and the market value of beauty is recognized universally nowadays. But there is something more than this. The tree has actual material, financial value.

Mature trees have a replacement cost which may be calculated by estimating the cost of planting a tree of equal size in the same place. This is recognized by appraisers in fixing the value of property. In case you wish to sell, this value can be added to the price. You can obtain insurance on it to protect you in case of accidental destruction, or you can collect damages in case your tree is injured willfully or by carelessness of others. Damages up to one thousand dollars have been awarded by courts for injury to fine specimens. Very large trees have a value which can hardly be estimated since it is impossible to replace them with any of equal size.

But it must be remembered that the value of trees will be greatly influenced by the care with which they are chosen and placed. They can be crowded so that they never have a chance to develop fully; they can be placed in positions where each year they become more undesirable until finally they must be cut down. Varieties may be selected which are unsuited to your purpose and which prove a disappointment.

Tree planting is important enough to receive your careful attention. Seek the best advice obtainable and do not allow a small initial expenditure to prevent your realising in full the values which should be yours in a few years' time.

Types of Garden Roses

There are four classes of roses widely grown in gardens in America. First, the American and Asiatic wild rose types, which are grown as shrubs and which are perfectly hardy without protection; second, the hybrid perpetuals, often called June roses and cabbage roses, which blossom once in June and once in the fall and are quite hardy but need some protection in Northern states; third, the hybrid teas, called monthly or everlasting roses, which are not hardy where the winters are at all severe, and need perfect protection in the winters in the Northern states; and fourth, the hardy climbers, including multiflora and polyantha, bunch-flowering types, and the hybrid wichuraiaas.

This is a rough classification and does not purport to include everything, but is sufficient to guide you in getting a start with roses.

The first thing to decide, as in the case with any flowers you may buy, is where you will put them in your garden. The rose shrubs will grow in your shrubbery border and some of the hybrid perpetuals may be grown there if you do not wish to prune them and try for specimen flowers but desire rather a great bush with many and small blossoms.

But other types of roses do not like close company; they object to the roots of trees and shrubs and thrive best in beds by themselves. Hardy climbers do well climbing on lattice fences, against building walls and in perpetual borders, where they are often grown, but the hybrid teas and the June roses, when they are to be pruned and grown for specimen flowers, should be in beds by themselves. This characteristic of roses is the reason for the garden where roses only are grown.

In the rose garden the most satisfactory showing is made by the hybrid teas or the everblooming types. They have delicate pointed buds on strong stems and brilliant colors. Ophelia, a delicate salmon flesh tint; Radiance, a rosy carmine; Red Radiance, a brilliant red; Mrs. Aaron Ward, a yellow, Los Angeles, pink shaded with gold, and Kaiserin, white tinted with lemon, are some of the hybrid teas which are considered among the best.

If one grows hybrid teas in the Northern states he must be prepared to do one of two things—either to treat them as annuals and buy new plants each year, which is not expensive, or to give them perfect winter protection, without which they are likely to die in the cold weather states.

Climbing roses of the hardy types blossom in June and sometimes again in the fall ;but they are so beautiful when in flower that a garden without them seems to be lacking. There is nothing to equal them for the arbor and pillar which makes such striking garden accents. For abundance of bloom no plant excels varieties such as Excelsa and Dorothy Perkins, which bear their flowers in clusters.

Besides these, Paul's scarlet climbers, climbing American Beauty and Dr. W. Van Fleet are considered to be among our best climbers.

TRY BUCKWHEAT UPON POOR LAND

Appears Practically Immune to Insect and Plant Disease Pests.

RAPID GROWER

(Experimental Farms Note)

Buckwheat, while an important farm crop, is frequently grown as an afterthought. Requiring only from ten to twelve weeks to mature, seeding may be done during an otherwise more or less idle season of the summer. It is one of the most successful poor land crops, prospering relatively well on poor and acid soils. It responds readily, however, to good treatment. Light, well-drained soils are well suited to this crop. An excess of nitrogen may produce too much straw and cause lodging. It also seems practically immune to insect and plant disease pests.

Buckwheat does best where the climate is cool and moist. At blooming time it is very sensitive to high temperature and to dry weather. Under such conditions many flowers then in bloom may be "blasted" and produce no grain. To avoid this as much as possible sowing is delayed until late in June or early July allowing the principal growth to take place in warm weather and the formation of seed when the temperature is likely to be a little lower.

Proves Profitable

As a farm crop buckwheat often proves relatively profitable. Buckwheat flour is used extensively for making griddle cakes. The grain makes excellent poultry feed. The straw is sometimes used as feed when well preserved. It should not be used as a bedding for hogs. Since the straw contains a large amount of mineral matter and rots quickly it makes a good manure. As a crop buckwheat appears able to utilize better than do the cereal crops the relatively insoluble mineral constituents of the soil. As a soil renovator buckwheat when ploughed under has a distinct value. It may also be used as a nurse crop with sweet clover, the latter adding to the feeding value of the straw. Mixing with other cereals such as barley may be useful, the buckwheat tending to keep the barley from lodging and the barley assisting at harvest time in allowing the straw to dry out more quickly. Producing many flowers well supplied with nectar over a period of a month at least, buckwheat is an excellent source of honey for bees.

Quick germination and rapid growth make buckwheat ideal as a weed destroyer. Two crops of buckwheat during the one year usually prove effective in eradicating even sow thistle and quack grass. The first crop should be seeded early in May, ploughed before blossoming begins and worked for a ten day period and reseeded to buckwheat.

POTATOES NEED TO BE SPRAYED

Favors Development of Plant and Assures Larger Crop.

WARDS OFF DISEASE

(Experimental Farms Note)

One must spray his potatoes if he wants to grow them with profit. Spraying is recommended for two main reasons.

1st—It is a protection to the crop. When early and thorough applications of fungicides are made and continued regularly during the growing season, plants are protected against the attacks of fungi and the depradations of insects. Several growers have objected that such protection could not be realized but after inquiring upon their method of preparing Bordeaux mixture, the time they started spraying, the number and thoroughness of fungicidal applications, they realized they had faulted in one or more of these points. Spraying when done properly is a protection to the crop.

Aids Development

2nd—It favors the development of potato plants and thereby assures a larger crop. In certain regions, where diseases that can be controlled by fungicides, particularly late blight, make their appearance only once in several years, growers do not go to the trouble of spraying. According to them the risk is worth while taking. To these we may say that experiments carried on for several years at the Dominion Laboratory of Plant Pathology at Ste.-Anne de la Pocatiere show that during blight-free years potato plots that were sprayed regularly throughout the season showed considerable increase in yield over those plots that were not sprayed, and it would seem advisable that growers in these regions should spray a few times to ensure a larger yield and protect their potato fields against sudden appearance of the disease.

Give perennial seed an early start this year. The earlier they start growing the better they will be next year.

Start seed for succession crops of cabbage, cauliflower, turnips, carrots, and beets.

Transplant seedlings that are getting too crowded into more commodious quarters.

Sow seed of new varieties of tomatoes in pots or boxes.

DOWNPOURS ACROSS PRAIRIES END ALL WORRIES OF DROUGHT

Wheat Seeding Almost Finished—Coarse Grains Delayed by Wet.

HOT WEATHER NEXT HOPE

WINNIPEG, May 25 (C.P.)—The prairie wheat belt was wetter Monday than it has been in several years.

Showers, downpours and cloudbursts soaked Saskatchewan and Alberta grainlands Sunday and Saturday in a manner that left the hopeful farmer with a firm conviction that drought would not be one of his worries this season.

The downpour in Saskatchewan came less than 24 hours after a dust storm had swept over the southern sector, causing minor soil drift damage. It socked the great south grain-growing region, the cloudburst centring on Weyburn.

Hot Weather Wanted

A heavy downpour occurred at Regina and the entire south had rain. Week-end rains in Alberta were so plentiful that acrarians hoped for a spell of hot weather to assist growth. Calgary district had an electrical storm late Saturday and rain in Alberta was general.

Coarse grain seeding is not completed in the west and farmers are delayed in putting the balance of seed in the ground by the muddy condition of the soil. Wheat seeding is almost finished.

With the Help of the Hen

F. C. Elford, Dominion Poultry Husbandman, and an outstanding leader in poultry development in Canada, on a recent occasion observed that few people realize what a big part the hen has played in the national life of Canada. "There are many prominent Canadian business men today who would not be where they are if it had not been for the hens on the farm at home," he states. "The poultry provided the money for shoes, and slates and pencils, and were in fact responsible for keeping them at school. I myself do not know of any other business today which pays better dividends than poultry raising, and I believe the prospects are still encouraging."

Watch the currant bushes and spray frequently for plant lice. Currant bushes are great nurses for this pest.

Most southern gardeners are now ready to transplant eggplants, tomatoes, and peppers. Northern gardeners must transplant them inside.

COMEZ AGAIN HURLS YANKS FOR 3-1 WIN

New York Club's Cuban Southpaw Holds Athletics to Three Hits.

TIGERS BEAT BROWNS.

Braves and Cubs Among Defeated in National League Tussles.

(By Gayle Talbot, A.P. Sports Writer.)

Bridgework of the sound, lasting variety comes high, but the Yankees standy ready to purchase another $1,200 worth of dental engineering any time they can be assured another pitcher like the canny Castillian, Vernon Gomez.

The slim southpaw, who blossomed into one of the game's greatest hurlers last season after the Yankee treasury had staked him to the expensive reinforcements, is paying Col. Jake Ruppert plenty of dividends. He promises at his present pace, to overshadow Lefty Grove, Wes. Ferrell, and all the rest of them before the current race ends.

Gomez gave his latest brilliant exhibition yesterday when he struck out 13 batters and allowed only three hits in beating the Athletics, 3 to 1. In setting the year's new strikeout high Gomez fanned Dykes and Heving each three times, Miller and Bishop twice each, and Foxx, Walberg, and Simmons once each.

But for Chapman's muff of Simmons' fly in the seventh, Gomez's seventh triumph of the year would have been a shutout. Babe Ruth's eleventh home run in the first inning gave the league leaders an advantage they never relinquished.

Wes Ferrell could not protect a 6 to 1 lead, and the Chicago White Sox came from the rear to score nine runs in the fifth and seventh frames and defeat Cleveland 11 to 7. Bob Seed's homer started a Sox rally in the fifth that tied the score and knocked Ferrell from the hill.

Izzy Goldstein, Detroit's rookie hurler rang up a 6 to 5 victory over the St. Louis Browns, even though he had to be relieved. Whitlow Wyatt went to the rescue and fanned Burns and Campbell to save the game. The Tigers made only six hits, but they were timely. Washington and Boston were not scheduled.

Braves Retain Lead.

The Boston Braves dropped a 6 to 3 verdict to Brooklyn, but clung to their narrow hold on the National League top when the runner-up Chicago Cubs bowed to St. Louis, 9 to 6.

Tight pitching by Van Mungo, Dodger recruit, and Hack Wilson's home run in the first inning with two on base caused the Braves' downfall. The Cubs lost largely because four of their pitchers could not check Jimmy Collins, who smacked two home runs and a single.

Reds Fall 5 to 3.

The last place Pittsburgh nine took a scorcher from Cincinnati 5 to 3, when Pie Traynor, Pirate captain, tripled in the twelfth inning with two on base. Each of the Waner boys collected three hits.

Five Giants' hurlers were plastered for 21 hits as the Phillies squared their series, 11 to 3. Les Mallon and Don Hurst each crashed four hits for the winners, while Mel Ott belted two home runs and a single for the losers.

FIFTEEN THOUSAND TURN OUT TO SEE HISTORIC RACE

No longer will they tell you that fillies can't run in the spring time. With 20,000 people in the stand and over a lightning fast track, R. W. R. Cowie's three-year-old chestnut filly, Queensway, the early spring favorite for the King's Plate, made it two King's Plates in a row for the Oakville horseman at Woodbine, Toronto. The Seagram stable's King O'Connor, first time started, was second, and W. H. Wright's Rosy Crest third. Queensway, set up a new track record for the guineas. She ran the mile and a furlong in 1.55 1-5 beating the record of 1.55 4-5 set up in 1927 by Ryland H. New's Troutlet.

Last year Mr. Cowie won the big race of the Canadian year with Frothblower.

Queensway won by three lengths and finished running easily. Above pictures show: Queensway after the race and Jockey Mann with R. W. R. Cowie with the coveted prize.

VICTORIA DAY PASSED QUIETLY

No Accidents Reported and Only One Fire Alarm Turned In.

THREE ARRESTS MADE.

Although firecrackers boomed throughout the city yesterday and sky rockets in profusion blazed over the roof tops last night, nothing in the way of a fire developed from the noise and smoke of the Empire Day celebrations.

The fire department reported only one call and that was a run made at 3.45 in the afternoon to attend a blaze at the sawdust pile near the Quaker Oats dam. This sawdust pile is an old acquaintance of the brigade, no summer in the past ten years passing without the fire fighters being called to pay it at least one or two visits.

Police also reported a quiet day that was free of motor accidents. Three Lindsay youths were caught in the act of consuming liquor to aid their celebrations and were brought up before Magistrate Langley this morning. One, Ewart Guay, pleaded guilty to being intoxicated in charge of a car and was sentenced to seven days in jail.

APPEAL REFUSED

merely pass over this judgment with the word "dismissed." The Chief Justice stated, showing some emotion: "A young man just past 18 years of age was induced by the appellant, Quinn, to embark on a career of crime. Quinn had a revolver. They started off from Sarnia, walking, and stole a car. They abandoned this when their car became mired, and got another in the same way. They came to London, where they went to a friend of Quinn's. It was planned to 'do a job'.

"At first they had decided to rob a nearby winery. Then they walked around the town looking for a suitable place. They went to the shop of this old man, Weinstein, and decided to rob him. Early in the evening they went to his store. Quinn gave the revolver to Ramesbottom, who was to commit the robbery.

"Quinn was to remain outside. By 7.30 the murder had been committed. Quinn was outside when the murder took place. But he gave Ramesbottom the revolver that was used with fatal effect.

"Why," the Chief Justice said, sorrowfully, "a young man of 18 should be led astray like that, I don't know. There is an idea that youth may excuse such an offence. But lads of 18 are as capable of determining between right and wrong as older people. Ramesbottom, the junior in this crime, has been executed. Some years ago, a young man named Fleming, a telegraph operator in Toronto, was executed for the murder of a woman. With those precedents, youth should remember, that youth is no excuse for crime, and it is to emphasize that point, that I am commenting on this case."

PACKERS GAIN LEAGUE POINTS

Winners Overshadow Losers in Soccer Loop Game Here on May 24th.

FINAL COUNT 4-1.

Canadian General dropped two valuable league points, on the holiday morning, to the Canada Packers, by the score of four goals to one, in an easy going tussle that lacked the usual vim. This win gives the Packers the lead in the schedule. The losers introduced many new faces of the younger element which included E. C. Tice, as a half back, who just needs the necessary tuition of the experienced player, while L. Anderson will fill the difficult position at inside left, once he gets acquainted with his teammates' play.

Fred Dyer Scores

Canadian General won the toss and became dangerous in the early stages through splendid combination but failed to get the better of the argument when the defense closed in upon them. Likewise the same prevailed at the other end, with Joe Daynes making some spectacular saves. No less than three players missed an open goal from a left wing pass. Then Quinn and McMaster outwitted the full backs to let the pivot man send a lightning drive over the bar. Exchanges continued even until the Packers took up the attack in real earnest, with Buchan leading his men, in close passing tactics which culminated in the Packers confining the play to the C.G.E. citadel where they were rewarded with the opening goal, when Fred Dyer accepted the opening with a left footer that rolled inside the upright. Just before the interval, the Electric boys dominated the play in every department except the defense where Hakin and Downer held their charge from many narrow escapes as McMaster and Anderson endeavoured to get the equalizer. Half time: Canada Packers 1, C.G.E. 0.

Add 2 More Goals

All within five minutes, the Packers had added two more counters to their total through Ross who had gained the decision on a clever tackle inside the goal territory. From the centre kick, the left winger carried the ball into the C.G.E. goal. Clark cleared from a melee to witness Buchan send a peculiar ball into the far corner of the rigging. Combination aplenty was in evidence there, after with the half backs consolidating in close tactics that made the play faster than usual. Whenever the C.G.E. got within shooting distance they found the opposition present in abundance to offset their movements. The dangerous raids by the Packers notched them the fourth tally through Ross who beat the C.G.E. goalie at close range. Play was a ding dong character until the finish, with neither side making much progress towards the desired shooting area. Packers 4, Canadian General 1.

AMBITIOUS PLANS FOR CITY LEAGUE

Baseball Commission to Aid in Organizing Strong Minor Loop.

Ambitious plans to put across a strong twelve-team City Baseball League this summer was the main item of business discussed at the first meeting of the Peterborough Baseball Commission in Duffus' last night. With Alex Kay in the chair and representatives present from the City League, the East Peterborough League and the Senior Club, various angles of local baseball were discussed.

The most important thing to be taken care of right away, it was felt, dealt with the City League. The Commission agreed that it was their duty to help get a strong minor loop organized, and this had to be done before the league meeting Thursday night. Four bantam teams, two juveniles and two juniors at present make up the circuit. Different members of the commission volunteered to interview the C.G.E., Raybestos, Quaker Oats, Cognawaga Club, Y.M.C.A., Louis Yeates and others in regard to entering a team in either the juvenile or the junior divisions.

The proposed duties of the Commission were outlined and Vince Hayes was elected secretary. George Hewitt then informed the gathering on the manner the T.A.B.A. of Toronto operate. It was moved for the secretary to communicate with the secretaries of the T.A.B.A. and of the Hamilton Baseball Association requesting more information on their by-laws, etc. It was then suggested that the three baseball bodies here put any grievances or suggestions, of worth-while importance, in writing and submit to the Commission for a hearing, with the latter body voting on a settlement.

List All Umpires

A list of all desirable umpires for the City League will be compiled by the Commission and offered to the minor league, and the Control Board will also assist the leagues on the matter of grounds, playoffs, or in any way possible. The senior club expects to be able to give the City League the use of Stevenson Park for their opening next Saturday, and will, when possible, help the minor teams with balls.

Further business last night could not be conducted until the desired information from Toronto and Hamilton was forthcoming. It was then voted that the secretary send copies of the minutes of this meeting to the senior club, the E.P.L. and the City loop for approval and suggestions. After some little further discussion on minor matters, the session adjourned.

RALLY IN NINTH SAVES BOWLMEN

Battle to 11-all Deadlock With Red and White Stores on Monday.

IN CITY LEAGUE OPENER.

A four-run rally in the last half of the ninth inning saved the day for the Sugar Bowl team, pulling them up to an 11-all deadlock with Red and White Stores in the opening game of the City Softball League at Central Monday night. A large crowd witnessed the classy and exciting game, with the score see-sawing back and forth between the well-matched outfits.

Alderman Bob Colton and W. H. Taylor, donor of the Taylor Trophy, took part in the opening ceremony, the former doing the twirling with Mr. Taylor finally lining out to second. The teams then set to work, and showed surprising form for this time of year. The fielding was of mid-season class, with the pitchers going good, despite some heavy hitting.

Score From First

Two hits accounted for two runs for the Grocers in the first, and the Sugar Bowl evened it up with a triple, a double and a single. Neither side could do anything again until the fifth when the Stores got one on an error, a stolen base, an out and a wild pitch. The Bowl crossed the plate four times in the sixth to make the count 6-3 on a walk, two singles and a double.

The Harrison crew got four back in the seventh on a couple of misplays, a double and Montgomery's four-bagger. They made it 8 to 6 in the next on three singles, but the Dormer boys scored once also in this frame although they took a double and a triple to do it. That made the sheet read 9-7 for the Red and White team, and they counted another three in the first of the ninth on an error, a single and two doubles. With the score 11-7 against them going into the last half of the ninth, the Bowlers up and knotted the score with an error and four one-base blows. The game was then called on account of darkness.

Extra-Base Hits

Besides Montgomery's homer, extra-base hits included triples by Playford, Sturgeon and Miller; and doubles by Foley, Dorrington, Smith, McCarroll, Dormer 2. Foley and Dorrington led the Grocers at the stick with three hits apiece, while Sturgeon poled out three to top the Sugar Bowl hitters.

Tom Montgomery toiled on the mound for Harrison's side and had five strikeouts as he whistled his fast ball in. He was touched for thirteen hits, one more than Sturgeon allowed, while his teammates backed him up in fine style, despite four errors. "Lefty" Sturgeon threw it past seven opponents and also received fine fielding support, though five misplays were chalked up against the champs. With both infields, and the outfields, looking fast and smooth, the Dormer to Calladine double-play was one of the several fielding features. The teams:

Sugar Bowl—H. Dormer, 1b; Sturgeon, p; Calladine, c; Bradshaw, 3b; Playford, cf; Wesse, ss; W. Calladine, lf; Webb, rf; Miller, 2b.

Score by innings:

Red and White	2	0	0	1	0	4	1	0	1	11	12	4
Sugar Bowl	1	0	0	0	0	4	2	0	4	11	13	5

Umpires—Batley at plate; Lebarr on bases.

Omemee Team Plays To Softball Ties

OMEMEE, May 25.—(Examiner Correspondence).—Omemee's softball team journeyed to Downeyville Wednesday evening for the first game of the season. Considering the unfavorable weather, the spectators were treated to a very good exhibition of softball, the final score after seven full innings being Downeyville 5, Omemee 5. A return game will be played in the near future.

Line-ups:

Downeyville — F. Dorgan, c; J. Carroll, 1st base; J. Shine, 2nd base; E. Morrisey, 3rd base; F. Shine, p; D. Carroll, ss; A. Lucas, lf; C. Lucas, rf; P. Downey, cf.

Omemee — T. Parsons and C. Brooks, p; R. Rehill, ss; A. Adams, 1b; A. McQuade, rf; H. Sanderson, c; R. Widdis and L. McQude, 3b; J. Mackey, 2b; W. Stephenson, cf; G. Stephenson and R. Williamson, lf.

Omemee's second game of the season resulted in a tie, as did also the first game. The Omemee team played a 10-all tie with Reaboro Friday evening at Reaboro. Going into the last half of the seventh and last inning, Omemee led by 10-4, but Reaboro by some heavy hitting, aided by loose fielding on the part of the visitors and poor control by the Omemee pitcher, tied it up. The game was very fast and interesting, and a close contest is looked for when the return game is played here.

KINGSTON PONIES COP 13-7 VICTORY

Errors Play Prominent Part in C.O.B.L. Opening at Belleville.

BELLEVILLE, May 25.—In the opening game of the Central Ontario Baseball League, Kingston's champion Ponies defeated the Belleville Nationals by a 13-7 score. Both teams showed considerable lack of practice with errors playing a prominent part in most of the scores. An extremely large crowd was present at the opener, assuring the local team of strong support throughout the year.

Kingston opened the scoring in the first inning, when two walks an error and a sacrifice scored two runs. Kingston scored one run in each of the third and fourth innings, Quinn hitting a long homer in the fourth.

A double, an error and two sacrifice hits brought in two more Kingston runs in the fifth, while Jamieson forced the local batters to pop up.

A triple by Alec Weir drove in three local runs and Casey relieved Polmer but could not hold the Ponies in check. Alex. Weir's second triple with three on later drove in three more runs and Morris' sacrifice brought Weir home to end the scoring.

CADETS ATTEND DIVINE SERVICE AT MILLBROOK

Rector Appeals to Boys to Avoid Becoming Drifters.

MEN'S CHOIR

Rev. S. H. Pickup Preached in Millbrook United Church on Sunday.

MILLBROOK, May 25 (Examiner Correspondence) — St. Thomas' Anglican Church was chosen as the place of worship attended by the Millbrook Cadet Corps for its annual attendance at divine service on Sunday evening, the rector, Rev. William Simpson, B.A., extending a warm welcome to the visiting organization, and preaching a sermon peculiarly appropriate to the occasion.

The cadets, approximately forty strong, under their instructor, Lieutenant B. B. Dawson, and Cadet Captain, Nelson Davis, paraded from the Armouries to the church at 7.30 p.m., the centre front pews being reserved for their accommodation, and the service throughout being of a character that especially appealed to youth, with hymns chosen that particularly referred to Christian warfare, and an atmosphere of marked spiritual significance.

In his message of welcome to the cadets, preceding the sermon, the rector declared that the annual parade had a significance of its own identifying the organization in its adherence to the principles of the Kingdom of God, and linking up the members definitely in their allegiance to God through participation in the prayers and praise of the service.

The minister chose his text from Luke 2:49, "I must be about my Father's business," related to the one story we have about the boyhood of our Lord, and pointing out that "God has His sons in the homes, subject to their parents, helping to supply the family need, and studying lessons," and that the great things of life are not always the spectacular things. The 'must' of the text was given emphasis, two kinds being listed—the 'must' imposed upon us from without by parents and teachers in formative years, and the 'I must' which we impose upon ourselves and judgment advance.

The rector made a strong appeal to the boys to avoid becoming a drifter; to avoid wasting the one and only life each has to live; to be about "our father's business" no matter where a life calling might place them; to remember that individuals alone are to blame if found travelling the wrong way; to have in mind the question not only "What am I going to be?" but also "What am I going to live for?" and to make the one ground of decision the [illegible] duty of God's will.

The sidesmen were Cameron Vance and J. J. Clarke, and the choir and congregation were augmented for the service, the cadets afterwards marching to the Armouries for dismissal.

Preaches at St. Andrew's

Rev. S. H. Pickup, for eighteen years pastor of St. Giles' Church, Toronto, brought an inspiring message, replete with spiritual vision and hopefulness to large congregations at St. Andrew's Church on Sunday, at both morning and evening services, having exchanged pulpits with the pastor, Rev. W. W. Jones, B.D., who motored to Toronto on Saturday morning remaining over the week-end.

The men's choir provided the music at night, and at morning worship besides the anthem by the regular church choir, a duet, "The Wonderful Name," was sung by Mrs. G. W. and Miss Marjorie Sayles, proving most appropriate to the sermon theme chosen by the minister.

Rev. Mr. Pickup, who was born and brought up in Millbrook, prefaced his sermon in the morning with a reference, not only to his personal pleasure in being privileged to occupy the pulpit of the church where he worshipped as a boy and young man in his former home town, but also with appreciative remarks regarding the debt he owed, from an educational standpoint, to the late David Hampton for over forty years principal of the local public school, and doing high school work as a voluntary service to the young life of the community. Also to the late Miss Agnes Hampton of whose Men's Bible class he had been a member, and to still another sister, Mrs. (Dr.) Rae, the present teacher of the same class, and to whom he had gone as a boy for public school instruction, when she was known as Miss Lottie Hampton.

REPORTS GIVEN TO ROTARY CLUB

S. A. Maguire and E. C. Dolman Describes Annual District Convention at Hamilton.

GUEST SPEAKER ABSENT.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 25.— By Examiner taff Correspondent.)—Reports of the annual convention of Rotary District 34, held at Hamilton last week was featured at the regular meeting of the Campbellford Rotary Club yesterday, when the scheduled speaker, M. McIntyre Hood of Oshawa, was prevented from addressing the meeting through ill health. The president, Rev. R. C. Tait, occupied the chair.

S. A. Maguire, during the course of his report, paid a tribute to J. W. Jackson of Madison, Wis., district governor, who he declared was one of the high lights of the convention. Mr. Jackson opened the convention with an address which Mr. Maguire described as a heart appeal and moved all who heard him to a greater desire to live up to the principles of the organization.

Mr. Jackson, during the course of his remarks, drew attention to the fact that the 27th District Rotary was the most international in America. Speaking of the progress of Rotary he stated that advancement was being made all over the world. In India some difficulty was being experienced with the name "International," it being confused with the Russian International, but this, he said, was being overcome. To Rotary was attributed the settlement of the Irish affair and during the Manchuria trouble it was Rotary that led in the relief work in the stricken areas.

He was a Rotarian, Mr. Jackson declared, because he desired friends and because he desired to leave to his sons a fortune in friendship for these were dividends other than dollars and cents that were derived from the organization. He also urged that Rotary be more interested in Boy Scout work as well as summer camps and crippled children's civities.

E. C. Dolman also spoke on the convention, giving it the name of one of the finest gatherings of its kind, with registration of 1,284 delegates. He also stressed the fine address given by J. W. Jackson, in which he stated that despite the recession Rotary membership had only dropped to 98.8 per cent. He also gave six reasons why a man should be a Rotarian, these being: Because I want friends; because I want to be a boy again: because I want to improve mentally; because I want to build up the community; because one finds spirituality in Rotary; and because I have a genuine desire to do good. Mr. Dolman briefly stressed a speech given by Dr. Raymond of Bowmanville on work among boys.

Hall's Bridge

The members of the Hall's Bridge C.G.I.T. held their weekly meeting at the home of the Misses Alma and Margaret Wilson on Tuesday evening with ten members present and the president in the chair. Plans were then made for the next meeting and a practice was held for the chorus for Empire Day concert. The Misses Wilson contributed a duet and the meeting was brought to a close.

CHEQUE PAYMENTS MADE IN GOOD FAITH

Cattle Purchaser Honorably Acquitted After Hearing in Madoc.

BRAEVILLE, May 25.—W. A. Fanning of Lindsay was honorably discharged when he appeared before Magistrate Casement of Madoc charged with obtaining goods under false pretenses, to wit, by means of a worthless cheque. The complainant was Robert Woods, from whom Fanning is alleged to have bought some cattle and tendered in payment a cheque on the Dominion Bank of Lindsay. R. I. Moore of Lindsay appeared for Mr. Fanning.

According to the evidence given by the accused, he was to have been given certain credit by the Dominion Bank at Lindsay, and, on those credentials, Mr. Fanning proceeded to buy cattle and tender cheques in payment. Between the time of issuing the cheques and the date on which they arrived in Lindsay for collection, the bank manager at Lindsay, it is understood, received word from head office to the effect that credit was not to be extended. The cheques, it was declared, were not accepted when presented, and consequently a number of them were out in the vicinity of Madoc.

Mr. Fanning went to the bank and arranged for his credit, and later the cheques were all honored, but the charge had been laid before the second arrangement had been made.

After Mr. Fanning had given his evidence, R. C. Donnan, Crown Attorney, suggested to his Worship that the charges be withdrawn, as Mr. Fanning had acted in a fair and honorable manner in all his transactions, and was in no way to blame for the inconvenience caused to those to whom he had issued cheques in payment forecattle. The charge against Mr. Fanning was dismissed, no costs being assessed against him.

Two poems and a complete story, totaling 8,100 words, have just been written on both sides of an ordinary postal card, the record feat being accomplished by a Munch, Germany, man.

Archbishop Sweeny Gives Notice of Retirement

METROPOLITAN FORCED TO QUIT BECAUSE OF IMPAIRED HEALTH CALL SPECIAL SESSION OF SYNOD

Chosen as Bishop of the Diocese of Toronto in 1909.

COMMITTEE MEETS.

Actually Will Not Relinquish Offices Until End of Year.

TORONTO, May 25.—Archbishop James Fielding Sweeney Monday gave notice of his intention to resign as Metropolitan of the Ecclesiastical Province of Ontario and Bishop of the Diocese of Toronto, it was officially announced by the Executive Committee of the Incorporated Synod of the Diocese of Toronto. The resignation as Metropolitan will not take effect until Oct. 31, and his Grace will therefore be Bishop of Toronto until toward the end of this year, or early in 1933.

In Impaired Health.

There will be special sessions of the House of Bishops and the Synod of Toronto to choose his Grace's successor in the two high Church offices.

Archbishop Sweeny, who is in impaired health, went to Preston Springs yesterday, and will remain there for two weeks, or until after the meeting of the Synod, which opens on Tuesday next. The duty of presiding over the Synod will fall upon Ven. Archdeacon Beverley, M.A., of Trinity Church, Barrie. Ven. Archdeacon Warren of this city would have been called upon to preside but he also is ill and has requested that Archdeacon Beverley officiate. Ven. Archdeacon R. C. Blagrave of Peterborough may preside at some of the sessions.

The resignation of his Grace as Archbishop of Ontario and Bishop of the Diocese of Toronto is significant in view of attention to be given at the coming Synod to the constitution in so far as it relates to the election of a Suffragan or Coadjutor Bishop. D. T. Symons, K.C., Chancellor of the Diocese, has prepared a special opinion for the Synod, a copy of which appears in the contending circular issued at the week end.

Successor Discussed

Immediately after the resignation of his Grace became known, Toronto Anglican clergy began to discuss the names of possible successors to Archbishop Sweeney as Bishop of Toronto and also in the office of Metropolitan of Ontario.

Most interest appeared to centre about the name of Dr. H. J. Cody, rector of St. Paul's, Bloor Street, who becomes President of the University of Toronto at the end of July. Dr. Cody and Bishop Thorneloe of Algoma were nominated for the office twenty-three years ago, to succeed Archbishop Sweatman, but after several days voting without reaching a decision, Archdeacon Sweeny, who was presiding, was chosen Bishop of Toronto. Friends of Dr. Cody stated last evening that the rector of St. Paul's is pledged to the University of Toronto, and will not be nominated for the office of Bishop of Toronto when the Synod holds a special session at the end of this year, or the beginning of 1933.

Elected Metropolitan in March

"Archbishop Sweeny has been in impaired health for some time, but, until comparatively recently, has attended to his manifold duties as usual. Only on March 29 last, he was elected to succeed the late Most Rev. David Williams as Metropolitan of the Ecclesiastical Province of Ontario, and it was the full expectation of most Councilmen that his ardent wish of completing twenty-five years as Diocesan—March 1934—would be realized. It is in keeping with Archbishop Sweeny's regard for the requirements of his position that he is now relinquishing his personal hope in favor of the needs of the Diocese.

"While the Archbishop will be in office for some time yet, and it is hoped that his wide experience and wise counsel will be available to the Church for years to come, it is perhaps fitting that a tribute should now be paid to a long life replete with devoted service to the advancement of the Church he loves so well.

Born in London.

"The Archbishop was born over 74 years ago in London, England, and attended McGill University, Montreal, where he graduated with the degree of B.A. in 1878, obtaining his M.A. in 1881. He also attended the Diocesan Theological College in Montreal and in 1880 was ordained Deacon by Bishop Bond, being priested in 1881. From 1880 to 1882 he was Incumbent of St. Luke's Church, Montreal.

"In 1882 he came to Toronto as rector of St. Philip's Church, where he served faithfully for twenty-seven years, and during which time he was created successively Canon of St. Alban's, Archdeacon of Simcoe and Archdeacon of York and Simcoe.

"In 1909, on the death of Archbishop Sweatman, he was elected Fourth Bishop of Toronto, being consecrated in St. James's Cathedral on March 25, and is, therefore, in the twenty-four year of his Episcopate. On March 29 last he was elected Metropolitan, in succession to Archbishop Williams.

Kindly and Painstaking.

"The Archbishop has been, is, and always will be, first and foremost, of a gentle and kindly nature, and has been distinguished more than anything else for his desire to encourage rather than criticize the clergy committeed to his charge; for his painstaking efforts in everything appertaining to his high office; for his reputation for hard work, and for never sparing himself in the interests of the diocese. He is always available to his clergy, and has superintended with great care the details of diocesan work. An admirable Chairman, successive Synods have been marked by the dignity of the presiding officer.

"Archbishop Sweeny has set a standard for hard work and service that will not easily be surpassed, and it is hoped that his coming retirement will be attended by improved health in his declining years.

FLORENCE HALL GIVEN DIVORCE COBOURG COURT

Application For Divorce Granted By Chief Justice Rose.

YULE VS. SYKES.

COBOURG, May 25 (By a Staff Reporter). — An application for divorce by Florence May Hall, of Port Hope, from Gilbert M. Hall, temporarily a resident at the Ontario Reformatory at Guelph, but some time domiciled with Mrs. Mildred Pratt, co-respondent and widow, Toronto, was granted by Chief Justice Rose in the non-jury sitting of the Supreme Court of Ontario here Monday afternoon.

His Lordship hesitated rather long in reaching the decision to grant the divorce, not for any defect or deficiency in the evidence which was direct, first hand and convincing, but because of a flaw in the procedure. And this was the second time Mrs. Hall's case was obstructed by a similar barrier.

In March, before Mr. Justice Raney here, the hearing of the suit was halted in the examination of the first witness, a Guelph man who had delivered the legal papers in this case to Hall at the prison farm but could not swear what papers they were, whether they were true copies or not.

On Monday it transpired that the respondent had not been given notice of trial, and Mrs. Hall's counsel, W. F. McMahon, of Port Hope, was faced with the prospect of further delay. His Lordship pointed out that there was no evidence before him that the pleadings were closed, and he quoted the rule that after the close of proceedings it is required that notice of trial shall be given and evidence to that effect shall be presented.

The Halls were married January 10, 1920, at Port Hope, and lived there together about nine years. Six children were born of that romance. Five of them are wards of the Children's Aid Society at Port Hope. The sixth child died.

Hall got a job in Oshawa in 1927, but kept coming home regularly until 1928, but cut adrift from his wife and family, deserting them entirely in 1929.

Mrs. Emily Sheldon, Mortimer Avenue, Toronto, identified Hall in a photograph as the man who had lived near her on Mortimer Street for a year, beginning in July, 1929.

"I presumed the woman with him was his wife," Mrs. Sheldon said. "When she moved in she said her name was Mildred Pratt. A month after that she said it was Hall. She had two children when she came there. Another was born while he was there. I am sure he was the father. No one else was living there. He got me to make a woollen jacket and some other things for the baby, and he paid me for it. He wouldn't have paid me if it wasn't his baby."

Chief Justice Rose remarked that he was not greatly impressed with the evidence up to that stage.

"The co-respondent is here," Mr. McMahon said. "We have subpoenaed her."

Mrs. Mildred Pratt was called to the stand. Her husband has been dead four years.

His Lordship informed her that she was not compellible as a witness. If she were not willing to give evidence, she should not be sworn.

"I'm agreeable," she said after a moment's thought.

The Chief Justice again explained her position under the Evidence Act, and pointed out that it was a matter for her to decide.

Changing her mind, she said: "I think I'd rather not give evidence."

"It is whatever you decide," His Lordship said.

"All right, I'm willing to give evidence," she declared, reverting to her first inclination.

Mr. Justice Rose dryly commented: "I hope we'll get a final statement some time."

"That's final," Mrs. Pratt answered.

She identified Hall and admitted that he had lived with her a year in her house in Toronto. One other statement established the grounds for divorce.

After two witnesses were recalled in regard to the service of the papers on Hall, His Lordship announced that he would grant Mrs. Hall's application. The action was not defended.

Yule vs. Sykes.

This case, involving a claim against an estate whose owner died intestate was adjourned to the next sittings of the Court, but it is understood that a settlement has been arranged. The defendant, George S. Sykes, is administrator of the estate of John Logan Yule, who died March 7 last without a will.

Malcoln Yule, plaintiff, in his statement of claim, said that he was a farmer in Percy Township. About 1913 John Logan Yule bought the south-east quarter of lot 9 and the south lot of lot 10 in the 4th Concession of Percy, and lived there until his death.

Following the marriage and departure from his father's home of Donald Yule in 1926, there remained at home with J. L. Yule, of all his eight children, only the plaintiff.

In the summer of 1926, Malcoln Yule claimed that he entered into an agreement with John Logan Yule, whereby the farm was to be left to the plaintiff in consideration of his continuing to live there and carry on the work of farming. He did so, but received no wages. The profits went to John Logan Yule. When he died last March he made no provision for the completion of the alleged agreement.

Malcoln Yule's claim against the estate was for $6,000, which he estimated as the value of the farm, together with costs of the action.

REMANDED FOR THEFT

LONDON—Arthur Woodrow Gee, 19, of Chatham, under sentence to the reformatory for a series of thefts in his home city, was brought to London on a judges order to answer a like count here. Today he admitted stealing a quantity of doctor's instruments from his boarding house on Queen's avenue, and was remanded a week for sentence.

30 DAYS FOR THEFT

LONDON.—Charles Collard was to-day sentenced to a 30-day jail term for theft of $75 in cash and gasoline tickets from a service station on Dundas street east. He had no previous record; a fact that was taken into consideration by the magistrate in imposing the sentence.

A Glasgow, Scotland, firm recently received a $2,000,000 steel-pipe order.

ADVERTISING for the MERCHANT of TO-DAY

Conducted by HAROLD S. EDGAR

A series of weekly articles on advertising and merchandising prepared for the merchants of Peterborough district with the co-operation of The Peterborough Examiner.

What is copy? Copy is store news.

Copy is the messenger you send out to give your invitation to those whose trade you desire.

Copy may be a list of your store stock; or an advocate of your merchandising methods.

Copy is yourself and should be neat, well groomed and truthful. Owen Wister in the "Virginian" pictured two cowboys across a table, one called the other a ——. His companion laid a revolver on the table with the terse remark, "You want to smile when you say that."

You can get away with a good deal when talking face to face and smiling. What you say orally cannot be fyled and referred to; but your advertisement can. Your advertisement copy can have a smile—can be as human as you are—and the more human, simple and frank you make it—the more profitable it will be for you, providing, of course, you have a real selling message,—the goods and the reputation to back it up.

In planning your copy you will find it an advantage to keep a "note book" as a companion to your "want book." Jot down from time to time the products you would like to feature, those you believe should be named. Then take this note book, sit down quietly and draft out what you would say to a possible customer of suitable age, if they were standing on the other side of the counter. Write it out fully. Say all you need to say to paint a picture of the product or service. Now read it, not to your assistant, who will probably say "yes" to everything you write, but to your wife or some critical friend. Go over it yourself again and proceed to cut it down, eliminating extra words. Cut it like a telegram, say all you need to say and no more. White space is more valuable than a flood of words.

While you are writing out copy for one advertisement you will think of leads for others, make notes of these ideas, or even write them out in part. If you have in mind a series on one subject—building up for a suit sale—or a campaign for the fruit and preserving season—draft out several advertisements at one time. They will be built smoother and far better in this way than if you write them at odd times.

Write your advertisement with a picture in your mind of how it is going to look and remember that type can be made to talk.

Heading — Short, strong and with a punch. To read either straight along, full length line, or it may be a step-down heading.

THEY'RE OLD FRIENDS
LONG BEFORE
THEY'RE OLD SHOES

Sub-Head — A sub-head supporting the appeal of the heading will add strength, but it must fill a need and not be lugged in by the ears.

Body of Advertisement — Catalogue style with list of articles and prices or description of the product and its quality. Link different but relative products together. Wording must fit the products—men's shirts, ladies' hats, food products, hardware—each have their individual type of wording.

The Wind Up — You have commanded attention with your heading—emphasized the point with your Sub-Head—followed on with reasons why—whether it be only price argument or talk on quality. Now clinch the interest into action in your wind up. It should be friendly, earnest and inviting.

Finally — Your name or name of your store. The address and telephone. Do not lose any opportunity to impress upon the minds of your customers and prospective customers your location and your telephone number.

Keep a scrap book of your advertisements. Paste the advertisement on the left-hand page, and while fresh in your mind, criticize it to yourself as to the wording and layout. Sketch on the opposite page the changes you could make that would improve the wording or layout.

MILLBROOK MAN IS UNDER ARREST

John Stevenson is Arrested Charged With Selling Home-Brew.

MILLBROOK, May 25 (Examiner Correspondence) — A local citizen, John Stevenson, was arrested by Provincial Constable William Carey, of Cobourg, on Saturday night on a charge of bootlegging. Evidence substantiating the charge included the presence of a Port Hope man in his car on Stevenson's premises with beer in his possession, the cheque alleged given in payment being retrieved by Provincial Police Carey from the accused's keeping.

Stevenson, who had a permit for making home-brew, and who is accused of sale, had been previously warned on a number of occasions. He was taken to Cobourg gaol on Saturday night, and will come up for trial in the immediate future.

Millbrook Gardens Damaged By Frost

MILLBROOK, May 25 (Examiner Correspondence) — Considerable damage was done in local gardens on Saturday night by the 'black frost' which came unexpectedly after a day of warm sunshine and summer temperatures.

Several citizens, making their gardens, had put out tomato plants, some of these raised from seed indoors and 'babied' along for weeks, only to lose the whole planting by Jack Frost's unwelcome visit during the night hours.

Adventurous housewives who were lured into setting out house plants as well as early-purchased boxes of salvia and other plants for summer bloom, met with keen disappointment when they found these black and wilted in the morning. Wise gardeners saved early potatoes and other vegetables already up by covering them not only Saturday and Sunday night, but several previous nights in the week as well.

Freight Reduction Rate Is Extended

Special Rate for Shipment of Cattle Will Be in Force Until August 31.

OTTAWA, May 22.—(CP)—The 50 per cent reduction in the freight rate on western cattle shipped from Ontario and Quebec feeding points to Montreal for export, a concession granted by the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways last autumn, has been extended to Aug. 31.

Announcement of the extension was made this morning by the department of agriculture, and follows representation made to the railways by Hon. Robert Weir, federal minister of agriculture.

The reduction applies only on Western cattle re-shipped from Ontario and Quebec points to Montreal on through bill of loading. All shipments must be forwarded at the regular export rate, and the 50 per cent reduction will be by way of rebate, on application by the owner, who must be a bonafide farmer. The concession by the railways is an effort to co-operate with the industry in stimulating the finishing of western cattle in eastern feed lots. It is also announced that inward paid expense bills, covering shipment from western Canada to eastern feeding points, must in all cases be attached to claims for rebate. Each feeding farmer may present his claim on Sept. 1 but all must be in by Oct. 1.

Officers Elected Omemee Institute

OMEMEE, May 25.—(Examiner Correspondence).—Mrs. McPhee entertained the local branch of the Women's Institute for its May meeting at her home, King street, on Friday night.

Friday's meeting was the annual gathering, the plan this season being to forego the usual canvass for members and ask that the fee be paid at the regular monthly meeting, the response so far being most satisfactory.

Letters of thanks and appreciation were read by the secretary, and announcement was made that the branch will meet the Mount Pleasant Institute for the summer meeting, which is to be held at Mrs. Cornwall's if the invitation be accepted by Mount Pleasant.

Officers Elected.

The election of officers resulted in the following slate: President, Mrs. Rea; 1st vice, Mrs. Cornwall; 2nd vice, Mrs. MacPherson; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. A. McConnell; pianist, Mrs. Eggleston; auditors, Mrs. Jamieson and Mrs. Curtis; representative for the annual district meeting, Mrs. McQuade; directors, Mrs. Pee, Mrs. Henderson.

A reading, "The Perfect Parson," by Mrs. Eggleston, caused much laughter. The remainder of the evening was spent in playing games, after which the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Cornwall and Mrs. Rea, served lunch and a treat of home-made candy, and a social hour was enjoyed.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Evans in the afternoon on Wednesday, June 15.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Foust, Sturgeon street, will be at home to their friends Monday, May 30, from 3 until 5 in the afternoon and from 7 until 9 in the evening on the occasion of the celebration of the 50th anniversary of their wedding.

WINDSOR SEEKS $8,000 IN FINES

Province Also Claims Penalties Imposed on Belyea and Weinraub.

CASH HELD IN COURT.

TORONTO, May 23 (C.P.)—Fines amounting in all to $8,000, that were imposed, under a judgment of the Ontario Court of Appeal, upon Roy E. Belyea, Toronto, and Harry Weinraub are claimed by the city of Windsor, but the claim of the city is disputed by the Province of Ontario. Therefore, when an application for judgment awarding the money to the municipality was made to Irwin Hilliard, K.C., Master of the Supreme Court at Osgoode Hall, the latter dismissed the application and made an interpleader order that will join the province as a party in the case.

Belyea and Weinraub were defendants in the action that the Crown took against a large number of persons, members of the Amalgamated Builders' Council, under the Combines Investigation Act. Belyea and Weinraub were acquitted by Mr. Justice Wright at the trial of the case in Sandwich.

$4,000 Fine Each.

The Crown appealed against the decision of the trial judge and the Court of Appeal upheld the position of the Crown and imposed a fine of $4,000 each on Belyea and Weinraub.

The money has been held in court by Edmund Harley, K.C., registrar of the Supreme Court of Ontario, and against him the city of Windsor directed its action. The city contended that such fines were payable to the municipality on the ground that the municipality bore the whole or part of the cost of prosecution. On behalf of the province, it was argued that the conviction and the imposition of the fine on Belyea and Weinraub were the result of the work of the Attorney-General's Department alone.

MEDALS PRESENTED MISSION STUDENTS

Junior Women's Auxiliary of St. George's Church Holds Closing.

The Junior Woman's Auxiliary of St. George's Church held their closing meeting for the season on Monday evening in the church basement. Parents and friends were invited to attend and enjoy the evening's entertainment. A table of delicious home cooking and home-made candy in dainty little baskets was offered for sale, and was in charge of Mrs. Fred Dorrell.

The nineteen members who had taken the examination in missionary study in March had all passed successfully and received their certificates of award. There were handed out by the rector, while the silver W.A. pins gained as third year successes were pinned in position by Mrs. Dorrell. The successful scholars were: Ruth McBride, Agnes Sturgeon, Doris Ferguson, Theodora Johnson, Mae Pickles, Betty Ferguson, Doris Styles, Kathleen Stenton, Margaret Smart, Elsie Martin, Eileen Gynane, Norma Edwards, Viola Edwards, Maisie Yardley, Lois McBride, Stephen Curtis, Alfred Dummitt, Frank Ferguson, and Teddy Styles. Before presenting the awards the rector spoke very highly of the junior organization and its great value in the parish. The two ladies in charge gave devoted attention week after week, and the children were regular and interested in the meetings. He regretted that more interest was not shown by senior members of the congregation which would be evidenced by a larger attendance at these special gatherings. A program provided by the members comprised the following: Piano duet, Doris and Betty Ferguson; piano solo, Frank Ferguson; recitations by M. Henthorne and D. Styles; two-part song, R. McBride and M. Pickle; trio, B. Ferguson, M. Smart, and M. Henthorne; dialogue, P. Gynane, A. Thompson, and E. Sims; song, Madeline Russell.

An interesting report of the visit to Toronto to attend the junior service in St. Paul's Church two weeks ago was given by the four delegates, B. Ferguson, M. Pickles, D. Styles, and E. Martin. This proved a very enjoyable item, a great deal of humor creeping into the graphic description. Dainty refreshments were served by Mrs. Hughes and Mrs. J. McWilliams, assisted by the senior girls. A hearty vote of thanks to Mrs. Hughes and Mrs. Dorrell fo their untiring work with the juniors was moved by Mrs. J. McWilliams and seconded by Mrs. C. Cole.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

UNUSUAL WAYS OF COOKING and serving asparagus are scheduled for to-day and the recipes are old-time ones which are well worth making use of.

• • • • • • • •

Some of them have been slightly altered to conform to modern methods of cookery but without altering the recipes so that they lose their old-fashioned flavor.

• • • • • • • •

Separate a bunch of asparagus and plunge stalks into cold water for a few moments. Cut off tough root ends and dry stalks by laying them on an absorbent fresh towel.

• • • • • • • •

Make a batter of one egg slightly beaten, one-quarter of a cup of milk, half teaspoon salt, a few dashes of pepper, and enough flour to make a smooth rather thick batter. Dip each piece in the batter and place on layer in a frying basket. Plunge the basket into a kettle of boiling hot fat and cook until brown.

• • • • • • • •

The stalks must not touch each other in the basket while cooking. Serve at once. This method of cooking asparagus is nice and easy, and is different and delicious.

• • • • • • • •

For biscuit ambushes have ready as many good-sized biscuits, with tops cut off and middle pulled out as there are persons to be served. These should be put into the oven to keep hot and crisp while the preparation of asparagus custard is going on, the recipe for which is given below.

• • • • • • • •

Fill the centres of the biscuits with the asparagus custard and neatly fit on the tops of biscuits. Place a thin strip of pimento on top of each and serve piping hot.

• • • • • • • •

For the custard use two cups of milk, 3 eggs well beaten, one tablespoon butter, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper. Brink the milk to a boil. Add the well-beaten ggs slowly stirring all the time until thickened.

• • • • • • • •

Then draw to one side and put in seasoning and butter. Cut off tough root ends from well washed asparagus and put stalks into a food chopper. Put the minced asparagus into the hot custard.

CULBERTSON on CONTRACT

USING THE TOOLS YOU HAVE

In Bridge, as in war, victory does not always perch on the banner of the greatest army. Strategy plays an important part in the miniature battle of the pasteboards, as it does in that art, the practice of which gave it birth.

As I have pointed out, the four suits in a deck of cards represent four separate armies, and in partnership games the purpose of the partners is to so combine their forces as to accomplish strategic or tactical results; hence it is part of good card play to deceive the opponents as much as possible regarding the location of key cards. Frequently the success of a contract rests wholly upon the outcome of such manoeuvers, as, for instance, in this hand:

Both sides vulnerable.
South—Dealer.

East was playing a contract of four spades, against which South had opened the diamond King. When the Dummy was spread on the table, East could count his probable losers as two hearts, one diamond and one club—apparently a defeat of 1 trick unless by strategy he could turn one of his losers into a winner.

Winning the first trick with the Ace of diamonds in the Dummy, the Queen of clubs was led. Seeing all four hands, this willingness to sacrifice two honors of equal strength on an apparently losing trick seems rather inutile. However, it proved very effective, as North read the lead of the Queen of clubs as an attempt to establish a club in the Dummy. He placed the King of clubs in the South hand; otherwise, he reasoned, East would lead a low club.

Misled entirely by the Declarer's ruse, North played a small club, and East's singleton King won. Thus in a twinkling the entire picture was changed. Instead of four probable losers, East now had but two, both in the heart suit. Inability to get into Dummy would make impractical any attempt to further reduce these losers. East's correct following play, therefore, is to lead a low heart to the Ten spot after drawing the adverse trumps, and as the cards are distributed this play must win.

It is quite true that there is nothing certain about the success of the play outlined above, but if this course does not win, the Declarer must lose in any event.

The man on a desert island cannot pore over the comprehensive catalogue of one of our leading mail order houses and select the tool best fitted to his use. He must make use of the tools at hand. The same rule applies after the cards are dealt and the contract reached in Bridge.

Question: What is meant by triple valuation of a hand?

Answer: Any hand must be valued three ways:
1st. At its own bid.
2nd. At partner's bid.
3rd. At opponents' bid.
At own bid count honors and long suits. At partner's bid count honors, short suits and long suits. At opponents' bid count honors and trump tricks.

THIRTY CHAPTERS ADDED TO I.O.D.E. DURING PAST YEAR

Delegates Gather in Toronto for Thirty-second Annual Convention.

YEAR'S WORK REVIEWED.

TORONTO, May 25 (C.P.).—The Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire, assembled here for its 32nd annual convention, to-day was told 30 new Chapters had been added to the Order, while 11 were disbanded, a gain of 19 Chapters over the number in existence at the time of the annual meeting last year.

Mrs. G. E. Knechtel, Edmonton, national organizing secretary, revealed in her annual report Alberta led all provinces in Canada by organizing nine new Chapters, while only one was disbanded. Ontario came second with six new Chapters and one disbanded. Quebec gained five and lost one. Saskatchewan gained three and lost none. In British Columbia four new Chapters were offset by a loss of five, which were disbanded. Nova Scotia gained three and lost one. Manitoba gained none and lost one.

Activities Reviewed.

Mrs. R. H. Brotherhood, national secretary, reviewed activities of the Order during the past year. The Order forwarded to the Dominion Government seven resolutions, including one which asked that Canada's representatives at the World Disarmament Conference raise the question of whether it would be advisable to prohibit manufacture of offensive armaments and munitions by private corporations.

Miss G. Irene Todd, convenor of the committee for work in India, reported contributions for building and other funds totalled $3,030.75.

Miss Ethel M. Johnston, national "Echoes" secretary, revealed the Order's publication suffered a financial loss of $730 during the year. She blamed decreased revenue from advertising.

The report of the Navy League Committee, presented by Mrs. R. A. Wood, Halifax, showed contributions for Navy League work of more than $2,000.

That Body of Yours

By Irma W. Barton, M.D.

FOODS AND ACNE OR PIMPLES.

I write frequently about pimples or acne because it is a very common ailment and most embarrassing to those suffering with it, especially as it is young people between fifteen and thirty years of age that are usually afflicted.

The fact that it is young people gives us one clue to its cause, that is that, when changing from boyhood to manhood, and girlhood to womanhood, there is a change in the glandular system of the body, and the glands do not regulate certain foods and wastes just as well as they should.

If, then, the regulating processes of the body do not handle certain foods in such a way that the wastes from them are not removed properly and these wastes getting into the blood cause pimples or acne, what can be done about it?

Skin specialists agree that the patient should watch every kind of food eaten, and try to find out just what food or foods seem to increase the severity of the skin eruptions.

Some find that such excellent foods as eggs and milk irritate the skin, while others suffering with acne find these foods have not this effect.

Others find that pork, salt meats, salt fish, fresh fruits, veal, goose, liver, oatmeal, candies, cream, butter, hot cakes, fried foods of all kinds, hot bread, hot cakes and hot rolls increase the number and severity of the pimples.

What about fats?

Dr. Jean Bogert tells us that fats act in two ways to cause acne, boils, and even occasionally to cause eczema. First, large amounts of fats in the food slow down the movements of digestion and interfere with the digestion of other foods so that the putrefaction of undigested food may take place in the intestine. Second, if large amounts of free fat are eaten the body may not be able to handle it all and products due to the incomplete use or burning up of fat, may accumulate in the tissues. Thus these products and those due to the intestinal putrefaction, when absorbed, and carried to the skin, are so irritating that skin disorders may follow. Sufferers from acne or pimples should cut down on fats—cream, butter, fat meats—rich desserts, greasy and fried foods.

The thought then is that while the treatment of the pimples by ointments, washes, X rays and other methods are usually necessary, the food and getting rid of wastes, must also be given attention.

WAR MEMORIAL IS UNVEILED

Impressive Ceremony in Honor of Great War Dead Held at Belleville.

A LARGE PARADE.

BELLEVILLE, May 25.—A monument in stone was unveiled and dedicated to the memory of the sons of Belleville who died in the Great War, the gift of the late Mrs. R. J. Graham, yesterday at an impressive ceremony. The parade to the memorial started from the Armouries, there being the veterans of the Great War, the A.L.I. Regiment, members of the R.C.A.F., the 24th Battery Sea Cadets, Girl Guides, pupils from the O.S.D. and children of the city schools, the Cadet Corps of the Collegiate Institute, the Salvation Army Band, the Belleville Citizens' Band and the Johnstone pipers. The parade was one of the largest ever held in this city.

At the monument, invocation was asked by Rev. Robert Hall of John Street United Church; the Scripture reading was by Rev. J. A. Seymour of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church; prayer by Rev. G. G. Wright of Christ Chuch (Anglican), and the invocation fo dedication by Captain the Rev. A. Beauchamp Payne, rector of St. Thomas' Church, while the Very Rev. Mgr. J. F. Nicholson, V.G., M.C., gave the address.

The monument was presented to the city by Robert J. Graham, and Mayor George O. Tice accepted it on behalf of the citizens. At the conclusion of the ceremony, wreaths were placed, while the mothers of those whose names are written there unveiled the memorial. The monument is a beautiful structure, and on it are the names of 136 from this city.

MAN PLANNING MOST INHUMAN WAR DEVICES

Rabbi Maurice Eisendrath Addresses Audience in Collegiate.

"THE HUMAN FAMILY."

Finest Minds All Over World Devising Deadly War Instruments.

"Man, who has chained the lightning and harnessed the wind, who has tunelled the mountains and bridged the seas, who has sent his messages speeding through space and plucked sweet music from the air—can he not do more?

"I have travelled far through those pain-stricken, suspicion- ridden lands of Europe and everywhere I went, I stumbled over someone's sword. Soldiers were everywhere and everywhere might be heard the distant rumble of the drum. For every university that has been founded in Europe since the Armistice was signed, there have been built ten munition factories. Speeding from St. Germain to Paris on a train that travelled sixty miles an hour, we passed,—and it took us ten minutes to pass all its buildings,—and a huge poison gas factory—one of the latest of the mansions reared to our god of arms."

Rabbi Maurice Eisendrath of Holy Blossom Synagogue, Toronto, known far and wide as the "silver-tongued orator of the air," spoke to a gathering numbering between four and five hundred people in the auditorium of the Collegiate Institute last night, under auspices of the Kiwanis Club. He was scheduled to speak for forty-five minutes but scarcely thirty had elapsed before he stopped. An unfortunate interruption from a man who shouted "You are wrong!" after one of his statements, possibly caused the lessening of his discourse, which ceased all too soon for those who listened to one who might well be termed a spell-binder in the happiest sense of the word.

The interrupter later came to the platform and apologized for the disturbance, saying that he too had enjoyed the address.

Speaking in the same manner that made such a striking impression on the hearers of Rabbi Isserman, who talked here some years ago in the hall of the Conservatory of Music, with the mental perspective of a race that looks forward with hope to the coming of the Messiah, rather than backward with memory, as in the case of the Gentile race, Rabbi Eisendrath proved himself to be indeed an orator of charm and power. His utterance was marked with eloquence, smoothness and that poetical imagery that recalls the dignified and sonorous utterances of the Bible. It progressed from slow and measured sentences to a series of vivid and impassioned word pictures, couched in poetical and dramatic language.

The Human Family

Taking as his topic "The Human Family," the rabbi drew to the attention of his hearers the manner in which the members of the race are related.

"This word 'family' has much deeper implications and much wider ramifications than you think of at first. Everyone of you before me now has at some time had two families, with four grandparents, eight great grandparents and sixteen great great grandparents, and so on. Each one of you, ten generations back, had 1,024 ancestors. Twenty generations back, you had 15,745,128 ancestors, while thirty generations ago, you had 65,226,-123,222 ancestors.

"Statisticians tell us that if we could go back one thousand years, allowing four generations to the century, each one of us would be related by ties of blood to as many people as there are men, women and children on this earth to-day.

"If I were to tell you that the giant turbines in some little New England town had ceased to turn, that the factories had closed down and that hundreds of men were walking the streets looking unavailingly for work—all because some of the ladies had decided to bob their hair, you would think me mad, extravagant and outlandish."

To prove his assertion, he took his hearers in fancy to the innermost parts of China, where little villages were ruined commercially because the men who had worked for years at making hair-nets were unable to sell their wares to a bobbed-headed feminine world. And their inability to buy the products of the New England village, formerly kept alive because of the Chinese market for its goods, had in turn caused its financial breakdown and intense suffering to many of its bread-winners.

Thus the world is interwoven and inter-related.

The Gospel Story

"You have heard many, many times the story of the Man who came to bring relief and help to the world. Do you actually believe it? How many of us have ordered our daily lives as if it were true?

"We build our magnificent cathedrals, our glorious churches, our imposing synagogues. And we inscribe over their portals the majestic words of the prophet of old: 'My house shall be called a house of prayer for all the peoples.' And we look up at the words in much the same manner as the lazy lad wrote down the words of his prayers on a card and pinned them over his bed. Every day he looked up at them and said: "Lord, them's my sentiments."

"We say we believe in brotherhood and we let it go at that. If we did really believe, we could transform this world of ours, filled to-day with wars and thoughts of wars, busy with preparations for even more furious and dastardly wars than ever before. And it is little over a decade since that conflict that we said was to end wars for all time.

"All over the world, the finest minds of the race are devising more devastating instruments of destruction,—more Satanic means of slaughter. The scientists are working night and day in their laboratories, busily isolating deadly germs—germs of anthrax and cholera and even more terrible forms of germs—storing them in test tubes on shelves of their laboratories— so that death-dealing bombs may drop them from planes over entire communities of defenceless women and children.

"One of the heads of the General Electric Company in Schenectady walked into a hotel room recently, his face ghastly and grey. To the enquiries of his friends, he answered that he had just seen a cigar lighted in New York city from a spark generated when a button was pressed in laboratories in Schnectady. And his face was filled with horror because he realized at once the possibilities of the sight—he saw the horror of the idea of the death-dealing ray upon which scientists are now working.

"Winston Churchill has said that death stands still at attention, ready toleap to its feet and pulverize, if need be, the last vestige of civilization.

"If we believed in the theory of the human family, we should permit no such Satanic preparations for war to take place. We would rise up in righteous wrath at such monstrous things.

"How, in the face of such things, can you pretend to adhere to the principles taught by your tender Prince of Peace?"

Social Inequalities

"And if we took to heart the teaching of the human family, we would do everything in our power to end once and for all this blasphemous and iniquitous disparity that exists between the rich and the poor. One-third of the human family goes to bed every night literally hungry, while the banks are glutted with gold, with loans provincial and federal being over- subscribed within a few short hours."

The speaker referred to two heart-rending examples which occurred in the city of Toronto recently. In one case, a school child took its own life because it could no longer stand the humiliation of going to school without shoes or stockings. The second instance was that of a child who stood up, with five other children in the class, when the teacher, anxious to discover the needs of her pupils, asked those without breakfast to rise. The answer to her query of this child as to the reason were the words: "Because it wasn't my turn to eat."

"If we really grasped the idea of the human family, we would do something more real and effective than establishing humiliating bread-lines and soup kitchens,—we would try to stop this flagrant betrayal of the spirit of mankind, to do something more according to what He whom you call Lord, Lord, sought to teach to the children of men.

Willing is Power

Reminding his hearers of the time when no man was a slacker—when all tried to do something to attain to victory—when the nation was confronted with the crisis of war—the rabbi quoted the words of William James, one of the foremost of American psychologists:

"The will to believe gives us the power to achieve."

"Man is not variable. It is our false conception that has made him so. You can't remember the joy with which the Armistice was hailed and still continue to think of man as a wreaker of evil to his fellows.

'And although there was a time when those old words were true: 'The poor there shall always be with us,' that day has passed. We live now in a time when fields of superfluous wheat are burned, while children go to school without bread.

"It is the morality of an insane asylum—the ethics of the pig pen."

"In this task of world harmony and fellowship, we must begin at home. Charles Lamb, when once taken to task for saying he hated a certain man, was asked if he knew him well, and answered, "No, for if I knew him well, I could not hate him."

So, continued the speaker, it is with the world. If we knew our brothers of other lands and other colors and races, we could never hate any of them.

The rabbi concluded with the little story of the lost child in the huge field. Searchers worked night and day, with no success until they finally joined hands in a wide circle that brought them in its advancement—together— to where the body of the child lay. But, holding the dead little body in his arms, the father cried out: "Why did we not join hands sooner?"

"And can we not join hands before this old world is once more torn asunder and drenched in blood. Nation with nation, race with race, religion with religion, individual with individual, can we not join hands ere it be too late?"

Applause was long and continuous at the conclusion of the speaker's fine address, and there was much applause also for the lovely contralto solos sung by Miss Jessie Pattison, whose appealing voice was heard to much advantage in two numbers: "Bird Songs at Even tide" and its encore, "Trees." M. B. Chenhall played the accompaniments.

H. J. Boyle, president of the Kiwanis Club, had the chair and made the announcements. Rabbi Eisendrath was introduced by Kiwanian J. J. Turner, who, Mr. Boyle announced, had been responsible for bringing many splendid speakers to the club this season.

RUSS KITCHEN HOLDS COBOURG SLUGGERS TO FIVE HITS WHILE TEAM MATES GA THER SEVENTEEN

Petes Hammer Out Homer, T riple, Two Doubles and Thirteen Singles in Lakeshore Town Slugfest—Bat Gibson Out of Box in Ninth Innin g With Seven Run Splurge.

LIFTLOCK INFIELD PLAYS WHILE OUTFIELERS ADD TO BATTING HONORS

ERRORLESS BALL

A new slugging Peterborough team opened their 1932 C.O.B.L. campaign yesterday by going down to Cobourg and pounding out a 12 to 1 victory. The Petes hammered out a homer, a triple, two doubles and thirteen singles to the dismay of over eight hundred fans at Horse Show Park. They batted Hoot Gibson out of the box in the hectic ninth inning in which they piled up seven runs.

Russ Kitchen held the home team to five scattered hits and struck out eleven besides throwing out five at first. He was never in trouble, his fast ball and change of pace holding the Lakeshore players helpless while his teammates backed him up perfectly, having seventeen putouts without a slip. Ash handled fourteen chances and Scully took care of six, with Hollingsworth getting two and Dallin one.

Tommy Foley had a perfect day at bat, coming out a double and four singles in five trips to the plate. Besides this, he stole five bases. Kitchen knocked out a triple and a single in five times up, Hollingsworth had a two-bagger, while Beavis got credit for a single and a homer, though the latter was a lucky one and should have been a double, the ball rolling under a car and not being recovered till Vern had made the circuit with two runners ahead of him in the ninth. Ash, Scully and Hillier all had two singles each, with Rogers clouting one.

Hoot Gibson pitched fair ball for Cobourg until washed up by a storm of base-hits in the disastrous ninth inning. He retired in favor of Wakeley after five were in, and the latter allowed two more before he fanned the last man. The Cobourg support was partly to blame for the pitchers' trouble, four costly errors and several more errors of judgment allowing in three or four runs. Then the fluke homer that accounted for three markers put the finishing touches to the classy Host. He had struck out six and had been touched for eleven hits in eight innings.

Of the Cobourg fielders, Hudson, McFadden and Gibson were the best. Their leading hitters were Wakeley and Medhurst, each poling out a two-bagger. Hutton, McFadden and Rollings got singles for the only other hits gained off the delivery of Kitchen.

With a large crowd, in gay holiday mood, in the stand and along the fence, the game was opened in ideal weather, Mayor George Thompson, of Cobourg, officiated as pitcher for the opening ceremony with Deputy-Reeve W. J. Corbett catching and Councillor G. Vivian at the bat. The latter grounded out to short on the second strike, and the game was under way.

The Petes got one in the first when Foley walked, stole second and came in on Rogers' single. Rollings cracked out a single for Cobourg in their half but failed to get around. No score in the second, and in the third Kitchen scored on his own triple and Foley's double. Hillier's hit in the fourth was wasted. Singles by McFadden and Hutton with a stolen base gave Cobourg one in the fourth. Kitchen's single, a two-bagger by Hollingsworth and Foley's single in the fifth was only good for one run for the visitors. Cobourg was retired in order in the fifth and sixth.

Scort Again In 6th

A fielder's choice, a misplay and Ash's single sent one more over for Peterborough in the sixth, but Foley's single in the next came to nothing. Wakeley doubled for Cobourg in this frame but died on second. In the eighth a fielder's choice and singles by Scully and Beavis meant another run for the ultimate winners, and the homesters went out one-two-three in their half.

The first of the ninth was a debacle. Foley started with a single and stole second. Rogers grounded out. Hillier's hit sent Foley in, and Deb stole second. Scully singled and Beavis' lucky homer —ordinarily a two-bagger— gave the Petes three more markers. Ash singled, stole second and scored on an error that put Kitchen on first. Wakeley replaced Gibson on the mound and struck out Dallin. Kitchen went to second on a wild pitch and raced to third on the error which put Hollingsworth on first. "Red" stole second, and went to third while Kitchen was crossing the plate on Foley's hit. The latter stole second and went to third on a wild pitch that let Hollingsworth go in with the last run. Rogers fanned.

With one out in the last half of the ninth, Medhurst banged out a long two-bagger, Beavis' fine throw holding him to second. Kitchen struck out the next batter and the third one grounded out to second to finish the game.

LEAFS DROP PAIR TO VISITING HERD

Art Smith Loses Mound to Joe Bloomer, Earl Cook Also Beaten.

TORONTO, May 25.—Buffalo made it three in a row by taking the holiday doubleheader from the Maple Leafs at the Stadium yesterday afternoon. The scores were 2 to 1 and 4 to 0. Close to 5,000 fans witnessed the bill. The double defeat ran the Leafs' losing streak to six straight.

Arthur Smith, trying for his sixth victory of the season, was forced to see a good pitching effort go to waste in the first game. He held the Bisons to six hits, but they put over the winning run on him in the ninth inning, a base on balls to the first batter up in that frame, proving his undoing. The Leafs gave Smith a one-run lead in the first frame, but that was the total extent of their run-getting for the afternoon.

Although it was Manager Daly's original intention to start Guy Cantrell in the second game, he changed his mind and sent in Earl Cook. The former local sandlotter yielded eight hits, and most of them were hard drives that stung the hands of the outfielders. The prize one of the lot was Winsett's triple in the fourth, which came with two out and two runners on the cushions. Those runs were sufficient to beat Cook, who wasn't given any runs by his teammates, two lanky right-handers, Joe Bartulis and Henry Brewer, combining to hold the weak hitting Leafs to three safeties, two of them being infield blows.

Hagen Out Of British Open

HAGEN OUT, BUT ARMOUR IN

Walter Hagen, one of the world's most famous and colorful golfers, will be missing in the British Open Golf championship this year because his entry was received twelve hours too late by the draw committee. Those in charge of the tournament state that it will be impossible to accept Hagen's entry, but a little bird whispers that if Hagen wants to get in badly enough, he'll tee off with the rest. On the other hand, Tommy Armour, last year's winner, has announced his intention of defending his title and will be favored to win again. He has been playing all winter in the south, and is at the peak of his game. Tommy sailed for England Tuesday (May 24) to get in readiness for the difficult test at Sandwich on the Prince's links on the sixth of June.

On the LEFT is shown Tommy Armour, and RIGHT is Walter Hagen.

SCOTS LUCKY LEAGUE WIN AT PORT HOPE

Losers Score Twice in Offsides—Rankin Scores Wining Tally.

SCOTS 4, PORT HOPE 3.

With full ceremonial orders the Port Hope versus Caledonians league match in Port Hope, on the holiday was opened by the Mayor of Port Hope with an appropriate speech. After a very strenuous ninety minutes the Caledonians were fortunate to get away with the league points because the lakeshore boys were the better eleven on the day's play and misfortune played havoc with them through the over-eagerness of Willie Hutton, who was adjudged offside when two goals were scored from outside the goal area. A crowd of well over five hundred witnessed the opening league encounter.

Homesters Take Offensive

The spin of the coin fell in favor of Captain Black of Port Hope, who decided to kick with the sun and wind at his back. From the kick off they penetrated the visitors territory to keep Frick on the alert. A long drive from midfield by Morrison, of Port Hope, caused a furore in Frick's goal. Boon, at outside right, had the full measure of his opposition to beat the backs and goalie and score into an empty goal but Hutton was adjudged offside when he should have left it alone because the ball was rolling through. They added pressure when Morrison hit the cross-bar but the Caleys failed to hold the attack off as Morrison manoeuvred for position with a drive that put the home boys ahead. This successful attempt seemed to create greater enthusiasm than ever as the wing men—Roy Black and Teddy Boon of Port Hope—hemmed the Scots to their own half, while the visitors were doing their utmost to distribute the ball out of danger. Jock Black of Port Hope held on to Art O'Halloran like a leech and spoiled the Scots usefullness with the keen tactics that failed to materialise as per routine. Blowers and Sam Agnew held up under the heavy strain of Port Hope attacking force that was aided by Craig, at centre half playing one of his best games. From a centre kick up the field to A. McPhate, he dribbled his way into shooting zone and passed out to Raymond who centred into goal where McPhate scored the equalizer, three minutes before the interval. Port Hope 1, Caledonians 1.

Caleys Score

On resuming, the Port Hope eleven opened up a series of bombardments from their energetic left wing, of Dobbs and Roy Black, with some clever dribbling that had the Caley defense in a mix-up. Twice did the left winger beat the opposition to test Frick at point blank range. Then a rocket drive from ten yards out about beat the Scots' custodian as Black's rising shot was making shape for the goal. The custodian threw himself up in the air to concede two flag kicks that were placed to advantage but Craig nullified their eagerness at the opportune moment. From the clearance, Rankin tore down the wing to let A. McPhate beat the Port Hope custodian with a long drive away out of his reach. Individual play by Roy Black signalised great enthusiasm within the Port Hope team when he dribbled his way through the opposition and finally sending a lightning drive in below the bar. Their success was short lived because Raymond carried the attack upon Curtis who had to admit defeat from A. McPhate to even up the count. Then Willie Hutton equalized from a scrimmage—3-3. A shift in the positions of the Scotsmen eleven proved successful in the closing minutes as Rankin baffled the Port Hope full backs with his snappy play to carry the sphere into the Port Hope goal and give the Scots a lucky win. Caledonians 4, Port Hope 3.

ROYALS TAKE DOUBLE BILL

Montreal Only a Game Behind First Place in International Race.

BEARS LOSE AGAIN.

(By The Associated Press)

The Newark Bears pace-setters in the International League almost without interruption since the start of the season, were being threatened on four sides to-day.

The Bears' defeat by the Baltimore Orioles yesterday, 5 to 2, further tightened an already close race and left them only half a game ahead of the Buffalo Bisons. Rochester, in fifth place, was only two games out of the lead. Baltimore and Montreal, in a virtual tie for third place, trailed Newark by a single game.

Don Brennan pitched good ball for the Bears yesterday but his support folded up at critical moments and Baltimore coasted in to a comparatively easy victory. Walter Tauscher stopped the Bears with seven hits, one a home run by Bob Rolfe. Baltimore's 12 hits included Frank Packard's 4th home run of the season, a triple by Buzz Arlett, and doubles by Tauscher and Jordan.

Royals Take Double

Montreal stopped Rochester in both ends of a double bill before a crowd of 17,500 spectators, 11-6 and 5-2. The Royals' 16 hits off three Redwing pitchers accounted for the first game and Joe Pomorski's effective hurling won the second. Pomorski allowed only seven scattered hits. Ripple hit a homer in the first game and Shiver in the second.

Ourly Ogden gave the Reading Keys six hits and Jersey City won by a shutout, 4-0, in the Skeeters' first game under their new manager, Charley Moore. Home runs by Ike Boone and Jimmy Jordan accounted for two of the Skeeters' runs.

Legion Team Beaten By A.Y.P.A. Outfit

LAKEFIELD, May 25.—(Examiner Correspondence). — On Friday evening the A.Y.P.A. girls' team met the Legion team in an exhibition game of softball. The game was very strongly in favor of the man till about the fifth inning, when the old days of chivalry were restored and the girls were only one down at the end of the seventh, and clamored loudly for one more, which was a regular merry-go-round as they ran up a tremendous score and went home very happy.

The girls' team was out in full strength and showed lots of pep and good material for a snappy team and their efficient manager and coach, F. A. Payne, is optimistic.

The line-up was as follows:

A.Y.P.A. girls—M. Abrams, pitcher; M. Mackenzie, catcher; D. Watson, 1st base; J. Blewett, 2nd base; M. C. Mackenzie, 3rd base; L. Mason, short stop; G. Watson, right field; B. Abrams, left field; W. Payne, centre field; J. Balkwell, E. Marsden, M. Webdale, P. Lake, V. Balkwell, subs.

Canadian Legion—L. Sabatino, pitcher; N. Kyle, catcher; G. Scriver, 1st base; L. Charlton, 2nd base; T. Webster, 3rd base; C. Stenner, short stop; E. Robertshaw, right field; J. Woodhouse, left field; J. Earnshaw, centre field.

K. Junkin was the plate umpire and S. Loyst the base umpire.

A Chippendale writing table was sold in London recently for $3,148.

LAKEFIELD, May 25.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The Norwood softball team met the Lakefield team in an exhibition fixture on Monday evening with a large crowd of spectators enjoying the game, which ran to five innings when darkness forced calling the game. The visitors were rather late and not in their best form, as last year Norwood always had a team to be reckoned with, but after the first innings the game was over for the visitors. The locals were on their toes and certain got nearly all the breaks. Carberry got the only home of the game, which was handled by C. Chittick at the plate and C. Northey on bases. The score was 14-6. The line up was as follows:

LOWE RINK WINS 1ST PLACE TITLE GREENS OPENING

Bob Coleman Skips Runners-up With Plus Score of 38 for Three Games.

AUSPICIOUS OCCASION.

Tennis Court and Greens in Best of Condition for Opening of Season.

Twenty-six rinks, including one from Cobourg, were entered in competition yesterday for the grand opening mixed tournament at Peterborough Bowling Club yesterday, constituting one of the most successful and auspicious beginnings of any bowling season within the memory of local lawn bowlers.

Play commenced early in the afternoon, the rinks being drawn from the board, and proceeded with much enthusiasm, especially on the part of the new members, until after dusk.

To Skip G. Low and his rink were accorded the well-earned honors of the day. In their three games the Lowe aggregate chalked up a total plus score of 43, entitling them to first prize of a half-dozen silver tea spoons. The runners-up were skipped by Bob Coleman, whose rink made a plus score of 38 for three games. They carried away a silver butter dish and knife.

The personnel of the two winning rinks, who received the congratulations of R. Hendry, chairman of the local games and tournament committee, by whom the presentation of prizes was made, follows:

G. Jay, R. Martin, J. McDonald, G. Low, skip.

H. Girvan, T. F. Benson, Mrs. Borland, Bob Coleman, skip.

Arrangements for the opening tournament were carried through without a single hitch, and under ideal weather conditions. In the absence of Jack Fitzpatrick, president, the bowlers were welcomed by Andrew Brown, vice-president. The tournament was in charge of "Bob" Hendry.

Recognized as one of the most complete and picturesque bowling club premises in the whole of Ontario, it is at present looking particularly neat and trim. The clubhouse has had a new coat of paint, while the greens, tennis courts and approaches are just commencing to approach perfection.

Becoming Community Centre.

That the club-house is coming to be recognized as a centre in the community and social life of the city is apparent from a visit to the plant now that the season is again underway. The club's membership of lawn bowlers this year provides for 44 full rinks, not including the numerous unattached members and the large number of tennis players who throng the hard courts.

And in mentioning tennis and tennis players, it was whispered at the club last night that there is to be an exhibition this summer of professional tennis by some well-known exponent of the game.

To Walter Oke and Cecil Williamson, chairman and vice-chairman respectively of the Greens Committee and to Charlie Butcher, groundsman, is deserving a great deal of credit for the immaculate condition of lawns and courts.

Weekly Tournaments.

There is no bowling scheduled for to-night or Thursday night, but Friday will see the resumption of the weekly tournaments that were such a popular feature of club life last season. Players are reminded that entries must be in by 7.30 p.m. Friday, and no later.

The various skips who featured in yesterday's play and their respective scores for three games each rink, is as follows: W. Oke, 32; B. Chesler, 33; J. Bennett, 31; R. French, 36; E. Wall, 33; G. Low, 43; N. Routley-J. Harrison, 32; G. Sorensen, 28; G. Coleman, Sr., 31; G. Coleman, Jr., 37; R. Coleman, 36; J. J. Howden, 25; G. Hutchinson, 37; R. Disney, 32; J. Cullen, 36; A. Brown, 32; G. Cairns, 28; R. Anderson, 33; Dr. Allen, 27; W. Wood, 30; R. Hendry, 35; R. Dyer, 33; J. Sedgewick, 36; J. R. Skinner, 23; H. Coleman, 37.

CASUAL COMMENTS

To-night at six bells over at the East City Bowl, the Girls' Softball League starts its season with Choates playing the Maple Leafs. The Mayor and several aldermen will be there for the customary opening ceremony, and a huge crowd of fans will likely be on dack to see the fair ones battling it out again. That is, if the weather's okay.

• • • • • • •

What should be a good men's softball game takes place this evening, too. It's up at Central at 6.15 with All Saints tangling with The Examiner, and both teams are much stronger this year than last and should put up a fine exhibition. If it's as good as the one there Monday night, another large crowd of spectators will go away more than pleased.

• • • • • • •

Sugar Bowl and Red & White Stores staged a thrilling 11-all tie in nine innings Monday p.m. before a real crowd. You couldn't ask for a classier softball tussle than that one was. It was anybody's game till the exciting ninth inning ended. Good pitching, smart fielding and some heavy clouting kept players and fans alike on their toes throughout. It looks like a real league race this summer.

• • • • • • •

Several of the men's softball teams wont have their new sweaters until next week although they have been ordered some time. This was the case of Sugar Bowl Monday, but they didn't do bad at that in the old ones. Percy Harrison's boys looked nifty in their bright red outfits.

• • • • • • •

An executive meeting of the Girls' Softball League was held in Duffus' Monday and a number of players' transfers granted, including Dot Millar's from Brintons to Choates. Louise Heffernan's request for a move from Brinton's to the same team was refused. Olive Prest's resignation from the executive was accepted, and Ted Lebarr appointed in her place.

Tomorrow evening at the Brock, another big pro wrestling show is billed. It should be all right, too, with such well-known grapplers as Babe Caddock, Abe Kashey, Art Dick, Wild Bill Lewis, the Masked Marvel and Whitey Hewitt taking part. The winners of the last card here are all back with a couple of newcomers who have proven popular in Toronto and other towns.

• • • • • • •

Big scores marked the opening Central League ball games yesterday with both home teams losing. While Kingston was winning 13-7 in Belleville, the Petes were giving the works to Cobourg, 12 to 1. Fine pitching, perfect fielding and man-sized slugging gave the Petes the win and serve notice they'll be one of the strong teams in the loop this year.

• • • • • • •

They have a bunch of hitters this season, and it takes hits to win ball games. Besides, the players are all young and fast in the field and on base. A glance at the box score shows the result of this in their putouts, assists and stolen bases. In the five hits gained by Tommy Foley yesterday, two were to the infield with Tommy beating them out by great bursts of speed. And he pilfered five sacks, as well.

• • • • • • •

Frank Scully seems to fit in fine with the infield, he having two hits and six errorless chances in Cobourg on Tuesday. Nicholls is out of the game for the present with a flesh wound suffered in Saturday's exhibition game. The others, outfield and infield, all had a big share both offensively and defensively in the opening victory yesterday.

• • • • • • •

Russ Kitchen worked easily on the mound for the Petes, breezing his fast ball by eleven batters and holding them to five hits. He again proved his value as a fielding pitcher by cutting down five at first on ground balls, and just to top off a swell afternoon, the big righthander cracked out a triple and a single, and crossed the plate three times. The Cobourg team plays here a week from this Saturday.

• • • • • • •

The City Baseball League holds an important meeting in Duffus' at eight to-morrow night. Final entries must be in and entrance fees to obtain players' certificates. This loop opens with a juvenile-junior double-header on Saturday afternoon at Stevenson Park. Twelve teams are likely to round out the league yet, if the Baseball Commission has anything to say.

• • • • • • •

The latter body met for the first time on Monday and dealt chiefly with the organization of the City League. They will make a strong effort to get it going, and will also try to get a fourth team in the East Peterborough League. From the work outlined by this body, it should be a boon to baseball here with the minors, intermediates and seniors all back of it.

DORMER'S NINE REPEATS PLAY OF LAST YEAR

Harrison's Squad Falls to Sugar Bowl 11-3 in Second Game of Tourney.

OMEMEE FIELD DAY.

Millbrook Girls Stage Garrison Finish to Defeat Homesters 22-20.

OMEMEE, May 25 (By Staff Reporter).—Omemee and district was in holiday mood yesterday for the annual field day at the fair grounds. Three snappy softball games featured the sports bill, which attracted an average but very enthusiastic crowd of fans.

George Dormer's Sugar Bowl team, of Peterborough, repeated their victory of last year by again capturing the Dr. C. H. Earle trophy, emblematic of the softball tournament championship. The Sugar Bowl squad nosed out the smart Omemee nine in the first game and then easily disposed of their Peterborough rivals, Perce Harrison's Red and White team, 11 to 3, to win the day's honors.

Most of the excitement of the afternoon was provided by the girls' softball game, in which Millbrook's smart team clashed with the classy Omemee squad. Omemee led through the early part and seemed to have victory in their grasp, but toward the end they faded and Millbrook plugged along to win in a sensational finish, 22 to 20.

A six-run lead gained by Sugar Bowl in the first innings of their game with Omemee spelled defeat for the home squad. Although the homsters came on fast after the poor start they could never quite overcome that big lead, and went down battling, 10 to 9.

Lefty Sturgeon started on the rubber for the Sugar Bowl and against his slants the Omemee batters could do nothing, but the visitors went out and collected six runs on rousing hits, a homer by Calladine being the prize clout.

T. Parsons Clouts Homer

Harold Dormer took over the mound duty from Sturgeon in the third, and his slow ball proved better stuff for Omemee. They settled down to their hitting stride, and steadily pulled up on the leaders. A home run by T. Parsons was a feature clout for the losers in their determined drive for runs in the last few innings.

F. Parsons pitched the whole game for Omemee and after the poor start, went along easily.

The teams:—

Omemee.—F. Parsons, p; T. Parsons, 3b; H. Wilson, 2b; J. Mackey, ss; A. McQuade, rf; R. Adams, 1b; H. Sanderson, c; R. Widdess, lf; and L. McQuade, cf.

Sugar Bowl.—A. Weir, 1b; Sturgeon, p; Dormer, p; P. Calladine, c; Bradshaw, 3b; Playford, cf; Weese, ss; N. Calladine, lf; Miller, 2b; H. Weir, rf.

The teams in the girls' game:—

Omemee.—Dorothy Sherin, Pat Hunt, Mary Picket, Jean Fee, Mabel Rowan, Valera Hart, Frances Fee, Jean Parson and Eileen Pogue.

Millbrook. — Dorothy McDowel, Mary Burnham, Madeline McDowell, Helen Mitchell, Byer Edmunds, Winnie Lodd, Phyllis Armstrong, Mary Nattress and Margaret Smith.

Score by innings:—

Longest Hit of Day

One of the longest hits of the whole day was walloped out by Frances Fee and she made an easy circuit of the bases on the clout which went into deep centre field.

In the final game between Sugar Bowl and the Red and White Stores, the Red and Whites could not seem to get into their usual stride. Beside a lack of hitting, they made a flock of misplays in the field and the Bowlerites easily sailed in to victory.

Sturgeon hurled a nice game for the winners, while Curry, backed by poor support, toiled on the mound for the Red and White. The teams:

Red and White.—Dorrington, 3b; Westbrook, 1b; Curry, p; Foley, lf; White, cf; Wilshaw, rf; McCarrell, ss; Russell, 2b; Mahood, c.

Umpires for the boys' games were: D. Hayes of Omemee and Jake Beckerman of Peterborough. For the girls, P. Harrison and White.

FIVE RUNS IN THE 9TH WIN FOR OSHAWA DUKES.

OSHAWA, May 25. — Oshawa Dukes, leaders in the West Toronto Senior League, handed Toronto St. George's a 7 to 4 defeat here yesterday afternoon in the first of a two-game exhibition series.

The youthful Jack Ogden, pitching his first game of the season, let the slugging Pit leaguers down with five scattered hits, and was master of the game throughout. Mitchell who went to the slab for the visitors, was a complete puzzle to Oshawa till the eighth, holding them to two hits.

In that fatal inning the Dukes pounced on Mitchell for six clean hits, including a homer and a double by Gray and Gummow respectively, to score five well earned runs, and put them out in front.

St. George's scored one run in the first of the ninth in what looked for a time to be a dangerous rally but Ogden tightened up and soon showed he had the game tucked away.

WHITEY HEWITT IS AMONG BEST

Spectacular Memphis Heavyweight Has Met Sonnenberg, Degiane and Count Zarnoff.

In the midst of a busy campaign which he hopes will lead him to a return bout with Jim Londos for the championship of the world, The Masked Marvel will have to be very much on his guard to-morrow night when he meets "Whitey" Hewitt, stellar Memphis heavyweight, whose record stamps him as possibly the best man The Marvel has been matched with since the latter suffered a questionable loss in his bout with Londos at Boston.

Hewitt will weigh as much as the unknown heavyweight and in addition is a wily, experienced man. Whether or not he has had more experience than the masked terror is something it is impossible to say, of course; but it is a fact that there are few championship contenders he has not met. Any man good enough to batter "Gus" Sonnenberg around the ring the way he did in Toronto and to earn main bouts in New York against Henri Deglane and Count Zarynoff, to say nothing of countless other feature bouts, cannot be under-rated even by a champion.

Blonde of hair, lithe of limb and tigerish on the attack, Hewitt is not only an effective wrestler, but he has a style which makes for continual excitement. He went the full two hours against Al Baffert, French star, and there wasn't a dull moment. Hewitt is always in perfect condition, carrying no surplus weight, and has all kinds of speed and stamina.

Kashey Also Good

Abe Kashey didn't win from The Marvel at the last show, but he did display sufficient ability to leave the impression that he would make a real showing against the average grappler. He will not lack support when he goes again the brilliant "Babe" Caddock to-morrow night, but he will have to be prepared for a strenuous bout. Caddock, a worthy bear of that name which was once emblematic of the world's championship when Earl Caddock ruled the heavies, is one of the most versatile men in the game, as he showed in beating Marchioni at the last show.

Arthur Dick will also have a busy evening, the former college football star, meeting "Wild Bill" Lewis of Rocky Mountain, North Carolina, in a match scheduled for one half hour.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

OLD MR. TOAD LIES LOW.

When there's no chance to run lie low;
You're likely to be safer so.
—Old Mr. Toad.

Old Mr. Toad took his own advice. Filled with terror by the discovery that Mr. Blacksnake was somewhere not very far behind him Old Mr. Toad had done his best to get away without being discovered. But as he has travelled hop, hop, hipperty-hop, he had kept looking behind him instead of ahead to see where he was going, and so one long hop had ended with a fall and a thump that had knocked all the breath from him, and now here he was gasping for breath at the bottom of a post-hole that Farmer Brown's boy had dug.

For a couple of minutes Old Mr. Toad lay on his back feebly kicking his legs and gasping for breath. When at last he recovered the latter he scrambled to his feet and, his terror returning, he prepared to continue on his way. He even made one hop and bumped his nose against the earth of the wall of that hole. It was then that he understood that in trying to hop out of one kind of trouble he had hopped straight into another kind of trouble. He was a prisoner down in that hole and somewhere up above was Mr. Blaksnake. If Mr. Blaksnake should find him now there could be no escape.

Old Mr. Toad looked up. Far, oh so far above him, he could see the edge of the hole and ever so high above that the grey of the sky. A few blades of dead grass hung over the edge of the hole. Every time the wind moved them he shivered. He feared it was the approach of Mr. Blacksnake that caused them to move. He expected that any minute he would see the head of Mr. Blacksnake appear over the edge.

What to do now? Oh for wings to fly out of that hole. But he had no wings. He couldn't even climb out, for that circular wall was straight and smooth. But getting out was not what Mr. Toad was thinking about just then. There would be time enough to think about that later if meantime nothing happened to him. He couldn't get out, but there was nothing to prevent Mr. Blacksnake from dropping down in. That is what filled Old Mr. Toad with despair.

Hastily he made his way all around the bottom of that post-hole just to make sure that there was no way out or nothing under which to hide. This was all too evident. Old Mr. Toad looked up again and again and in his beautiful golden eyes was a great dread. Then he backed up against the wall and there he squatted down close to the earth, meanwhile staring up at the rim of that hole so dreadfully far above him.

It was only a short time, a very short time later that Mr. Blacksnake, seeking to get away from his tormentors, the feathered folk led by Sammy Jay, came slipping through and under the grass to that hole. He discovered it in the instant he reached the edge of it, and, of course, he didn't tumble in the way Old Mr. Toad had. He had already discovered that Old Mr. Toad had been along just ahead of him and he was as much interested in catching up with Old Mr. Toad as he was in getting away from his tormentors.

Just before he reached the edge of the hole he lost all trace of Old Mr. Toad. Could he have jumped or tumbled into that hole? It would be a simple matter to find out. He slid his head and neck and part of his body over the edge and looked down. He could see the bottom clearly. Old Mr. Toad was nowhere to be seen. Mr. Blacksnake drew back, went half way around that hole and tried again. There was no chance for him to be mistaken. There wasn't even a leaf on the bottom under which Old Mr. Toad could hide. He wasn't there. There was nothing there on that sandy bottom.

Once more Mr. Blacksnake withdrew and this time he went on his way and a little farther on found a fallen fence post in which was a hollow. Into this he glided. Once out of sight of his tormentors they soon forgot him and flew away. Then Mr. Blacksnake slipped out and glided off on his way unseen.

Where was Old Mr. Toad all this time Lying low. Yes, sir, that is where he was While he had sat down there looking up fearfully he had been busy. His hind feet had been hardest work digging. As fast as he dug a place he backed in, and by the time Mr Blacksnake arrived and looked down in that hole he had wholly disappeared and the sand had fallen in and covered him and the place where he had entered.

What To-Day Means To You

"GEMINI"

If May 25th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 a.m. to 10:20 a.m., from 2 p.m. to 3 p.m., and from 8:30 p.m. to 10 p.m. The danger periods are from noon to 1:30 p.m., and from 6 p.m to 8 p.m.

More kicks than flowers or pennies will be found in the bag which Fate has in store for you on May 25th. Expenditures are liable to overbalance receipts. More than the usual amount of travel is shown, and plans for an extended trip may be successfully completed on this date.

Children born on this May 25th will show a tendency to dream rather than to be practical. They will have sociable, friendly dispositions, and will make friends with both young and old. They will lack independence and will be loath to kick aside parental or other supports.

If born on May 25th, your fortunes will be subject to many changes and will be affected for good or evil by the influence of some one of the opposite sex. You will probably experience both privation and affluence. Family disputes and love intrigues will cause loss and trouble.

You are broadly sympathetic and are not a mere lip-server of charity. You are extremely humane and sensitive to the suffering of man and beast, which can always be found by an understanding and tender-hearted being. You are often overcome and saddened by the futility of your efforts in these directions. Self-pity is something quite foreign to one of your nature. You are at home in the mental and artistic world.

You love change and variety, and can be relied upon in an emergency to respond to the requirements of the moment. You can be generous, and also niggardly; can put on a bold front, and yet be highly nervous and timid. You must be left to your own methods, if efficient work is expected from you. One of your great failings is the leaving of unfinished jobs, splendidly begun, and carelessly and indifferently left for another time or mood. At times you are both nervous and irritable, and at such times it is best to leave you alone. Eight hours or more sleep is required for one of your highly-strung temperament.

MAGISTRATE ACQUITS SIX BIBLE STUDENTS

QUEBEC, May 23.—Six members of the International Bible Students' Association were to-day acquitted by Magistrate E. Gagnon on charges of publishing and disseminating a blasphemous libel. The Magistrate said the booklets and pamphlets complained of in the charges might give an unusual interpretation of the Scriptures, but he found nothing that might be described as blasphemy against thre Deity. Those charged were: Miss Olivet Stuart, Howard Macdonald, Fred Greenwood, Charles Jackson, David Demorest and Lloyd Stuart.

He did not agree with the statement in the pamphlets that the clergy was an inimicous alliance with politicall and industrial powers that be," but did not constitute a blasphemous libel, Magistrate Gagnon found.

JOHN WELLER PASSES AWAY IN HAMILTON

Noted Welland Canal Engineer Dies at Age of 70.

BORN IN COBOURG.

Deceased Was Brother of Late Judge Weller of Peterborough.

HAMILTON, May 25. — John Laing Weller, M.E.I.C., noted Canadian engineer, who was in charge of the construction of the Welland Ship Canal died here yesterday at his home, 294 Bay Street South, aged 70. In his passing Canada lost an engineer, it was stated here last night, who was all in the field of canal work that Sir Sandford Fleming was in the field of railway work. His plans for the Welland Ship Canal were completely endorsed by the late Alfred Noble, who played an important part in the construction of the Panama Canal.

Mr. Weller was born in Cobourg and was a son of the late Mr. William Weller, who operated the first stage coach line between Toronto and Montreal and who himself drove Lord Sydenham from Toronto to Montreal in 35 hours and 40 minutes, and received a bonus of $400 and a gold watch worth £100, which is still in the family's possession.

In 1937, Mr. Weller's services to Canada were recognized by the King Government when Hon. Charles A. Dunning, then Minister of Railways and Canals, was instrumental in having an Order-in-Council passed by which Mr. Weller was placed on pension for the remainder of his life.

B.M.C. Graduate

He was educated at the Royal Military College of Canada, where he graduated with honors in 1883, standing first in civil engineering, physics and artillery. Mr. Weller, after entering upon his profession, did some valuable research work in reinforced concrete, and invented concrete poles for electric transmission in 1904. In 1910 he constructed a reinforced concrete dock scow, and later applied the same principle to bridge floors.

Mr. Weller entered the Government service in the Department of Railways and Canals in 1883. From then until 1888 he was engaged on the construction of the Trent Canal and from 1888 to 1900 was principal assistant engineer on the enlargement of the Ontario-St. Lawrence canals. In 1900 he became engineer in charge of the Port Colborne improvements, and at the end of that year was made superintending engineer of the Welland Canal. In 1912 the Government reached a decision on the necessity of enlarging that canal, and he was appointed engineer in charge, of surveys, design and construction of the new Welland ship canal. The work was interrupted in 1917 owing to the war, but was resumed in 1919 when Mr. Weller became consulting engineer.

He designed many new structures and introduced several reforms in that vast work, including the tainter valve.

Cornwall Canal Break

Mr. Weller was in charge of the work when the disastrous break occurred in the Cornwall canal in 1908, and the south bank, at the crossing of the Ottawa and New York Railway, was breached for a considerabl length. Owing to his engineering genius and skill, the break was sufficiently repaired within seventeen days for navigation to resume, while the railway bridge, which had collapsed, as well as the south bank of the canal, were restored hope navigation opened thef ollowing spring.

The greatest achievement of Mr. Weller's life as an engineer was the Welland Ship Canal. It was the largest single public work ever undertaken in Canada, and he saw his designs and structures become accomplished facts.

Mr. Weller was also a noted marksman and shot at Bisley.

Mr. Weller was an Anglican in religion. His wife predeceased him four years ago. He is survived by two daughter, Miss Olive E. Weller, at home; Mrs. E. P. Muntz, 302 Bay Street South, this city; and one son, Harry Weller, also of this city. He was a brother of the late Judge Weller of Peterborough.

Mr. Weller is also a grand uncle of Mrs. Hazel Anderson, Peterborough.

VETERAN FENELON RESIDENT PASSES

Richard Gilbert Westaway Succumbs in His Ninety-Sixth Year.

LINDSAY, May 25.— (Examiner Correspondence.)— Fenelon township lost its grand old man this week in the passing of Richard Gilbert Westaway, of Cameron, in his ninety-sixth year. The deceased was born in England, and came to this section with his parents when quite young. His funeral took place yesterday to Eden cemetery, Mariposa, and was largely attended.

Members of Lansdowne Lodge, Sons of England, united with the members of Lindsay Lodge in a church parade to St. Andrew's church on Sunday. The sermon was preached by the pastor, Rev. J. C. Grier.

An official test of the water from the well drilled by the Jordan-Roberts Co., of Brantford, on the Agricultural Park, was made by the local Board of Water Commissioners. The water was of excellent quality, and there appeared to be an excellent flow. The well was sunk to a depth of 400 feet. Another well will be drilled near the Isolation Hospital and a little north of the present well, with a view to securing a more satisfactory flow.

It is announced that the new concrete bridge on the Lindsay-Peterborough highway over the Scugog river, will be opened the first week in June. The concrete deck has been given sufficient time to settle, it is understood, and the structure will be ready for all kinds of traffic when opened.

TARZAN AND THE GOLDEN LION: NO. 9

By Edgar Rice Burroughs
(Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.)

Tollog made a light. There was no wild beast. Then he understood. The weird cry had come from the ape-man's own lips. Tarzan regarded Tollog fixedly. "Thou hast come to kill me?" he demanded. Tollog spoke no word, but for answer slowly drew his khuss. Tarzan saw the cruel expression on the malevolent face as Tollog sprang forward.

Tollog, his eyes glittering, was upon Tarzan. To the ears of the ape-man came the sound of a loud commotion at the far side of the menzil. Now Tollog launched a blow at Tarzan's breast. The prisoner swung his bound arms upward and struck the Bedouin's knife arm away. Simultaneously he struggled to his knees to meet the next attack.

Quickly Tollog struck again. Again Tarzan fended the blow. But this time he followed swiftly with a mighty sweep of his arms that sent the Arab sprawling. Instantly Tollog was on his feet. He sprang at the ape-man, then circled quickly, intending to strike Tarzan from behind.

In his effort to turn and face his antagonist, the ape-man lost his balance, his feet being bound together, and fell. He was at Tollog's mercy. A triumphant smile bared the yellow teeth of the Bedouin as he leaped for Tarzan. "This time you shall not escape me," he snarled menacingly.

HUDSON AND ESSEX PRICES ARE LOWER

Announcement is Made by President A. E. Barit at Tilbury.

TILBURY, Ont. May 25.—Substantial price reductions on all models of Hudson and Essex cars were announced yesterday by Hudson-Essex of Canada, Limited.

WHITE SCORES SENATOR LOGAN

Terms Giving of Unofficial Certificate in Gypsum Queen Case "Very Wrong Thing."

SUMMING UP EVIDENCE.

OTTAWA, May 25 (C.P.). — Arguing that when Senator Hance J. Logan presented an "unofficial and incomplete certificate of ownership in prosecuting the reparations claim of the schooner Gypsum Queen, "he did a very wrong thing," Peter White, K.C., counsel for the Commission, commenced to-day his summing up of the evidence secured to date. Mr. White was engaged in dissecting the evidence of handwriting experts regarding the disputed signature on the certificate when the Commission arose for lunch, to meet again at two o'clock.

Mr. Justice Horace Harvey, Chief Justice of Alberta, who is sitting as a Royal Commission to investigate the circumstances under which Captain Freeman Hatfield, master and owner of the Gypsum Queen, was awarded $71,000 as reparations for the loss of the schooner allegedly by German submarine action in 1915, stated that he expected Mr. White and L. A. Forsyth, counsel for Senator Logan, to conclude their arguments to-morrow night. After that he will leave for England to further investigate reports that the Gypsum Queen was lost in a storm—the reports which resulted in the Secretary of State ordering the present inquiry.

PROMISED TO PAY FOR WHEEL

When he was struck from his wheel at the corner of Park street and Edison avenue on Sunday by a motor car, Roy McKinley escaped personal injury although the front wheel of his cycle was badly crumpled. The motorist stopped his car, it is stated, and while regretting the accident, promised the boy to pay for any damages to the cycle. He left the boy to carry his wheel home, according to the boy's father, who is wondering if the car driver intends to keep his promise and have the cycle repaired without the necessity of putting the case in the hands of police. The car driver has not been seen by the boy or his father since the accident.

PLAY CHIMES MAY 24th

The People's Chimes of St. John's Church played a very interesting series of patriotic tunes on the morning of the holiday. The sweet-toned bells rang out in many old favorites: "Rule, Britannia", "The Harp of Tara", "Killarney", "My Bonnie Lies Over the Ocean", "Blue Bells of Scotland", "Believe Me, if all Those Endearing Young Charms", "Star of the Sea" and "Home, Sweet Home."

Toronto Minister At Sunday Service

Sunday evening service at Murray Street Church was conducted by the B.Y.P.U. with the Rev. W. G. Smith, of Toronto as the guest speaker.

On the platform were the retiring president, James Mann, Cecil Lapp, newly elected president for 1932-33 and the Rev. W. G. Smith.

Special music for the evening was a quartette by the Misses Genevieve Foster, Lillian Simons, Fred Trotter and Walter Cocks; while the ushers were Earl McLabb, G. R. Scott, Arnold Smedmore, and Gordon Saunders.

The Rev. Mr. Smith taking as his text "The borrowed axe" from a portion of the scriptural reading as read by Cecil Lapp, 2 Kings 6:5,6,7, gave a very interesting message. Taking the axe as an example he divided it into three divisions—the head, representing God; the wedge, the wedge of faith and the handle, service.

"A true axeman soon knows if his axehead is gone" said Mr. Smith "but so often we find ourselves swinging the handle without the axe." We are only borrowed—our lives, bodies and scouls are only loaned to us as was the axe in order that we might hew a life worthy of our Lord."

BOTHWELL NOT BOWMAN MOVED GAS AMENDMENT

OTTAWA, May 25 (C.P.). — In the report carried by the Canadian Press yesterday relative to the gasoline inquiry, it was stated that in the committee J. L. Bowman (Cons. Dauphin) had moved an amendment to the report. This was in error. The amendment was moved by C. E. Bothwell (Lib. Swift Current). The amendment opposed the conclusions reached by the committee that the prices of gasoline in Canada were not unfair.

BOARD PROTESTS TO CITY COUNCIL

Mrs. W. R. Morris Wants to Know Why Board of Education Slighted.

IN RECEPTION CEREMONY.

BOARD OF EDUCATION PROTESTS.

To the Editor, Peterborough Examiner.

Dear Sir,—The enclosed letter explains itself. Please insert in this evening's issue of The Examiner.

"D. J. Holland, Esq.,
Chairman Reception Committee,
City.

"Dear Sir,—In The Examiner of Saturday, the 21st inst., the personnel of the official reception committee on the occasion of the visit of the Governor-General to the City on May 25th is announced, and the list does not contain the name of any representative of the Board of Education.

"As an elected body, second only in numbers and spending powers to the Council, it is the right of the Board to be included in this committee. It is also a courtesy due a body co-operating as requested by your committee to make the official program successful.

"At an early meeting of the Reception Committee to which the chairman of the Board of Education and the Secretary of the Separate School Board were invited, the chairman and members of your committee expressed a keen desire to have the school children of the city made an important contribution to the welcome tendered the Governor-General. As a result of the co-operation by the two School Boards, the most enthusiastic and colorful part of the official program is contributed by the Boy Scouts, Girl Guides, cheering groups on the school grounds in various sections of the city, and the presence of some 1,600 to 2,000 Collegiate and Public School pupils assembled in Victoria Park. Permission of the School Boards was necessary for this and their officials will handle the detail. Recognition of the Board of Education was given when necessity required, but withheld when an official reception committee was appointed.

"In an informal and unofficial manner I arranged that this oversight, unintentional as I first thought, has been drawn to the attention of the City Clerk, who should know the proper committee to remedy it. Later the attention of the Mayor was called to it, also informally and unofficially as I hoped to avoid an official protest but no action resulted.

"I am therefore obliged to make formal protest at the action of your committee in neglecting to extend to the Board of Education representation on the official Reception Committee.

"It is not an adequate explanation to say that it is necessary to keep the Reception Committee small in number owing to limit of time, as the Board of Education ranks immediately after the City Council and its representation should have come next in order.

"To say that it is impossible to enlarge the committee by one or more representatives from the Board as many other bodies would have to be considered, is inconsistent with the facts. The door was opened wide when the President of the Chamber of Commerce, a purely voluntary organization, was added to the committee.

"Many citizens have expressed surprise and disapproval that the Board has not received official recognition. In justice to the public and to myself, I desire it to be known that I have not been unmindful of the recognition due the Board and have endeavored to secure it without the publicity of official action.

"I am therefore forwarding to The Examiner a copy of this letter in time for insertion in this evening's issue of the paper:.

"To request or suggest recognition of an important civic body entitled to it would be entirely out of order.

"Therefore I hope it is clear that this letter is a formal note of protest only and not a request or suggestion that those responsible should consider or change their decision to disregard the right of the Official Reception Committee on the occasion of the visit of His Excellency the Governor-General."

I had notified the chairman of the committee on Sunday afternoon that this protest would be sent to him on Monday and also made public that day. He was much disturbed and said he would consult the Mayor on Monday morning. At 11.30 a.m. Monday, when I notified him that the letter was in the hands of the City Clerk, the chairman informed me that he had called a meeting of the committee for 5 p.m. I told him the matter was closed as far as I was concerned. Then about 1 p.m. I received an urgent message from the chairman, transmitted by the City Clerk, requesting me to withhold the letter from the evening paper. the City Clerk added the Mayor also wishes you would. No reason was given except that the committee was to consider the matter.

After some consideration I decided, as a matter of courtesy, to hold for the time being, the copy intended for The Examiner, and wrote the City Clerk as follows:

"Dear Sir,

"In response to a request from the chairman of the Reception Committee, and in view of the fact that the Committee is meeting this afternoon to consider the letter delivered to you by the Secretary of the Board of Education this morning, I have agreed to withhold for the present the copy of the letter which was to have been given to the public in to-night's issue of The Examiner.

"I am anxious to show every courtesy to the Committee and to preserve harmony, retaining still the viewpoint as expressed in the above mentioned letter."

Up to date, noon on Wednesday, the 25th inst., no reply has been received. On telephoning the Chairman of the Committee, I am told one will be sent, and also learned from him that the Council and Committee at the meeting on Monday afternoon dealt with the matter and decided to take no action.

When the formal notice reaches me I will forward it to The Examiner, as the matter is one of public concern and interest.

Yours truly.
KATE MORRIS,
Chairman.

COUNCIL MAKES REPLY TO BOARD

No Slight Shown Unanimous Opinion of City Council.

RESOLUTION PASSED.

That no slight was shown or intended toward the Board of Education or its chairman, Mrs. W. R. Morris, in not including the Board of Education on the membership of the Reception Committee to the Governor General, the Earl of Bessborough, was the unanimous opinion expressed by the City Council at a special meeting held Monday night to consider a letter received from Mrs. Morris, in which the view was expressed that the Board of Education had been slighted.

The resolution passed unanimously by the Council, read as follows:

"That the letter from the chairman of the Board of Education, addressed to the Chairman of the Reception Committee, be received and the City Clerk be asked to reply, and that he say that the Council had not any intention of ignoring or slighting the Board of Education or its chairman, but the Council had in mind in restricting the members of the Reception Committee in order to conserve time and also because His Excellency had requested that the numbers accompanying him be kept down as much as possible and consequently only the local member of the Privy Council, the local members of Parliament and the Legislature, the county judge, and the head of the county were invited to join the aldermen, and in view of His Excellency's request to particularly see the industries of the city, the president of the Peterborough Branch of the Manufacturers' Association was invited."

In view of the cheap railway trips being offered from Peterborough to Toronto, by the two railways, the Council passed a resolution in which the railways were asked to run excursions from points in the district to Peterborough. This resolution also passed unanimously and will be forwarded to officials of the C.N.R. and C.P.R. at once.

DUTY IS FIXED ON TOMATOES

Rate Will Be 3 Cents Pound Above Invoice on Canadian Funds.

STRAWBERRIES TWO.

OTTAWA, May 25 (C.P.)—Two important tariff bulletins have gone forward to customs appraisers, effective to-day, on the importations of tomatoes and strawberries. In the case of tomatoes when entered from United States or other countries outside the Empire, the duty shall be three cents a pound above the invoice price in Canadian funds. As the dumping duty is imposed on the difference between the invoice price and the fixed value for duty purposes, the effect will be that the dumping duty will be three cents a pound regardless of the invoice price. In regard to strawberries, it will be two cents a pound.

The new regulations stay in effect in the case of tomatoes until October 31, and in the case of strawberries until July 31. The regular rate for tomatoes from June 1 to Oct. 31 under the general tariff is 2 cents a pound as a minimum and the rate on strawberries from June 1 to July 31 not less than three cents a pound. The dumping duty will be in addition to these rates.

Number of Questions Involving Ontario Must Be Settled Bennett Tells House.

ANSWERS KING.

OTTAWA, May 25 (C.P.) — A number of questions involving the Province of Ontario has yet to be settled in connection with the St. Lawrence Waterway and until these are disposed of it will be impossible to conclude a treaty with the United States, the Prime Minister told the House of Commons to-day.

Mr. Bennett was answering a question by Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Leader of the Opposition.

"In view of the possible prorogation of Parliament to-day, said Mr. King, was the Prime Minister in a position to intimate to the House what progress had been made in the negotiation of a treaty with the United States regarding the waterways?

"Negotiations have been proceeding," replied the Prime Minister, "but had not resulted in the conclusion of a treaty. The Province of Ontario was the only province interested in the International section of the river, and until several questions between Ontario and the Dominion had been disposed of it would be impossible to negotiate the treaty. Discussions with Ontario had proceeded satisfactorily, but there were one or two questions outstanding."

May Be Months

The Prime Minister did not know the exact time when these matters would be settled. It might be ten days or two months, he said, but the conclusion of a treaty would have to await whatever arrangements were made with the Province.

"The Prime Minister had intimated," said Hon. W. D. Euler (Lib., North Waterloo), that a number of questions had been decided on in the course of negotiations between the Dominion and Province of Ontario. He wished to know if the Prime Minister could say whether or not agreement had been reached as to the ownership of water powers in the international section of the river.

"Until this matter had been dealt with by the highest court, no decision on the point could be made," said Premier Bennett. For the purposes o fthe agreement between Ontario and the Dominion, however, the water-powers in the international section were regarded as being the property of Ontario."

The Quebec Department of Highways is experimenting with a liquid asphalt preparatoon as a covering for the gravel highways in that province.

PALL OF SMOKE SHROUDS NORTH AS FIRES RAGE

Caretaker Drops Dead From Heart Attack While Battling Blaze.

LUMBER CAMPS BURN.

Planes Rush Men and Equipment to New Outbreaks.

NORTH BAY, Ont., May 26.—(C. P.)—A dense pall of smoke hangs over Northern Ontario to-day, as fire steadily moves through the forests. An outbreak in McNish and McBeth townships is at present racing over previously burned areas, and hopes are entertained that it will be brought under control shortly.

A suden shift of wind to the north during the night has aided 90 fire fighters who have been combatting the flames for many hours. W. B. Greenwood, district forester, stated the fighters have a good chance if the wind remains as it is now.

One death has been recorded already, the caretaker of a lumber camp dropping dead from a heart attack yesterday. Two lumber camps in McBeth township were levelled to the ground, together with equipment and provisions in store. They were owned by J. R. Taylor and George Gordon and Co., of this city.

Planes Rush Aid.

All available equipment is at work in the fire area, and overhead an airplane is droning back and forth directing the efforts of the workers. A large commercial plane headed into the Matachewan mining area to combat an outbreak in that region. Reinforcements of men and hose have been forwarded to the scene of the fire.

Approximately 120 men are fighting the Cassels township blaze and were making good headway to-day. Here, too, the change in the wind has helped considerably. Fifty men are at work in Gibbons township, while smaller forces are scattered through the region fighting minor fires.

Telephone and telegraph communication was temporarily out of commission north of Englehart owing to a fire near the railway line. There is a bad blaze in the Rouyn mining area, with the heart of the fire at mile 50 on the Nipissing Central Railway.

For the past two weeks south and southwest winds have dried up all moisture in the woods, while the rainfall has been comparatively light. Three days of rain, according to the district forester, would completely check the fires. Meanwhile the forests have been closed to all but those who have urgent need, and in no case can a person or party enter without a permit. Fishermen and pleasure seekers are advised to stay out of the woods until the present hazard is passed.

SMALL GIRL IS BADLY INJURED BY FIRECRACKER

Beverley Livingston Painfully Burned on Hands and Face.

CLOTHING CAUGHT FIRE.

Firecracker Caught in Her Dress — Taken to Hospital.

Painfully burned on her left side and hands and face when a firecracker ignited her dress Tuesday evening, Beverely Livingston, six-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Livingston, 640 Park Street, lies in Nicholls Hospital.

The little girl was playing on the street in front of her home with firecrackers when, in some unknown way, one of the little explosives caught in her dress, setting it alight. With flames enveloping her and screaming with pain and fright, she ran down the street past her home.

Her screams attracted her brothers, Jimmy, aged 14, and David, aged 19, who were sitting on the stoop at the rear of their home. The two boys ran after their sister, catching her on a neighbor's lawn. They rolled her on the lawn to smother the flames and tore off her dress. David had his hands burned in doing so.

Neighbors heard her pitiful sobs and also ran to lend assistance. Among these were: Mrs. Leo Sullivan, 461 McDonnel Street, and J. M. Graham, 537 Gilchrist Street, who put oil on the child's burns.

Dr. Murray Fraser was called and she was removed to hospital.

CANADIAN HISTORY IS STUDDED WITH LANDMARKS CLUB IS TOLD

Lord Bessborough Addresses Canadian Club in London.

IMPERIAL CONFERENCE.

LONDON, Ont., May 26 (C.P.) — "If the conference is going to be a landmark, as we hope and believe it is, it is going to be so not as the completion of a fabric but rather as the laying of a cornerstone. The building and completion of the fabric will depend on the goodwill and hard work of all of us, as much as does the construction of any other building upon the workmen concerned."

With this sentiment, His Excellency Lord Bessborough, Governor General of Canada, to-day discussed the coming Imperial Conference at Ottawa before the Canadian Club here.

"The spirit of give and take will inspire the Canadian people in the interests of Canada, as well as in the interests of Empire," declared His Excellency. "Who can tell but that the Empire saving herself by her efforts may not save the world by her example. Was ever leadership more necessary than to-day? The world stunned and reeling as a result of the destructive hammer-blow upon it of the war, began three years ago to stumble more and more. We all saw things going week by week and month by month from bad to worse, without anyone producing a definite remedy for the situation.

Marriage Solves the Problem

DETROIT, Mich., May 26. — (C.P.).—Miss Mary Osler, 19, came here from Stratton, Ont., two years ago. She overstayed her visitors' permit and got herself into a peck of trouble with immigration officials, who were about to deport her.

About this time, she discovered a way to render immigration officials powerless. She had been employed as secretary to Francis Bowler, Jr., vice-chairman of the Wayne County Council American Legion.

On May 18, it became known to-day, Miss Osler became Mrs. Francis Bowler, Jr., and Canadian girls who marry American citizens cannot be deported.

LOGAN DEFENSE DENIES CHARGES BY PETER WHITE

Claims None Could Point Suspicion at Senator Till Gypsum Queen Case.

ACTED AS FRIEND.

Dispute Rises Over Mentioning of Ownership Certificate Transfer.

OTTAWA, May 26 (C.P.).—Until the Gypsum Queen enquiry came up there was nobody who could "point a finger of suspicion" towards Senator Logan, his counsel, L. A. Forsyth, K.C., declared in opening his summing up of evidence before Chief Justice Harvey this morning. Denying the charge yesterday made by Peter White, K.C., Commission counsel, that the whole conduct of the Gypsum Queen reparations claim had been irregular from start to finish, Mr. Forsythe claimed that Senator Logan had followed a natural and logical course throughout.

Cumberland County, Nova Scotia, home and constituency of Senator Logan, would not have repeatedly given him their confidence if he had been a man of evil or corrupt habits, said counsel.

Captain Freeman Hatfield, master and owner of the Gypsum Queen, who secured, through Senator Logan's legal advice, $71,000 reparations for the alleged torpedoing of his vessel off the Irish coast in 1915, has described as an old friend of Senator Logan and of the Logan family.

Friend Aiding Friend.

When he had received a letter from Hatfield asking him for advice in getting damages for the loss of his ship, it was a case of an old friend who had fallen into pecuniary circumstances needing assistance, Senator Logan had taken the natural procedure. He had communicated with the reparation department, had been advised what procedure Hatfield should take and had communicated the information to the latter who was then sailing in West Indies waters.

There was a suggestion that the statutory declarations Senator Logan had sent to Hatfield were not regular or official. Mr. Forsyth submitted that none of the statutory forms were suitable for all cases, especially reparations claims. Senator Logan had used typewritten forms but had taken from the regular for..... all that was applicable and discarded only what was not essential.

There had also been suspicions cast upon the affidavits he had secured from crew members. He had been advised to get as many affidavits as possible. "I submit," said Mr. Forsyth, "that there is no evidence to show those affidavits were not in order."

"Yes there is," Commissioner Harvey interjected. "There were four affidavits and only three members of the crew submitting affidavits."

"Assuming that to be so," Mr. Forsyth continued, "how far does that reflect upon Senator Logan?"

"Not at all," replied the Commissioner.

"And up to that point Senator Logan's actions were perfectly regular," Mr. Forsyth insisted.

"Yes, up to that point," the Commissioner agreed.

Vital Fact.

"My learned friend forgot to mention a very vital fact regarding

MINERS VOTING IN NOVA SCOTIA

Will Decide Whether to Accept Wage Agreement or Strike.

SECOND TIME AT POLLS.

GLACE BAY, N.S., May 26 (C. P.). — Nova Scotia coal miners went to the polls to-day to answer a question: "Are you in favor of proposed wage agreement in preference to a strike?"

On their decision depends this summer's activity in the mines controlled by the Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation.

This is the second time the question of accepting reductions of 12.5 per cent. for contract workers and 10 per cent. for datal men has been put to the vote. On March 14, following the Duncan Commission's recommendation of the decreases, the district turned the proposition down by a majority of 1,144 in a referendum which brought out 10,250 members.

He got the gas, and said he would come back later to redeem his leg.

DAILY AIR LINE TO EUROPE NEAR

Route Over Canada From U.S. Less Than 3 Years Away - Official States.

START BASES IN 1933.

RUGBY, N.D., May 26.—Daily commercial air travel between the United States and Europe over a Canadian route is less than three years away, says Judge Gudmunder Grimson of Rugby.

He has just returned from Iceland where he carried on negotiations for air line interests which he said contemplate 48-hour flight between Detroit and Copenhagen, Denmark.

Judge Grimson obtained from Iceland a franchise for establishment of an air base in that country and permission to carry on transportation of persons, mail and property over Iceland and between that and other countries.

Judge Grimson said eight expeditions will set out this summer to observe weather and landing conditions along the proposed route in Ontario, Quebec, Greenland and Iceland.

Next year, he said, it is planned to build bases, stage experimental flights in Greenland, Northern Ontario and Quebec, and make other preparations along the line. In the third year he hopes regular flying may be started.

JAILED AS COMMUNIST WINNIPEG MAN SUES

WINNIPEG, May 26—Action was started here more than a week ago for damages of $10,000 by Manuel Yasny, of Winnipeg, who claimed he had been arrested illegally and imprisoned. Damages are sought against W. J. Egan, Dominion Deputy Minister of Immigration and three officers of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

Yasny claims he was arrested along with three alleged Communists, who later were taken by immigration authorities to Halifax. Claiming to be a British subject, Yasny said he was kept in jail here for several hours before his release was ordered.

TOKYOY, May 26 (C.P.). — Japan's military policy in Manchuria was more firmly entrenched than ever to-day when at the last minute, General Sadao Araki was named to continue in his post of War Minister under the new Cabinet of Admiral Saito.

The stocky little militarist with the long black moustaches accepted a reappointment before noon.

The Cabinet was formally installed with the customary ceremony at the Imperial Palace this afternoon in the presence of Emperor Hirohito.

General Araki's acceptance completed the list and enabled Admiral Saito, the new Premier-designate, to announce to Emperor Hirohito that the National Coalition Government to succeed that of the slain Premier Suyoshi Inukai finally was formed.

The retention of General Araki guarantees the continuation of the present military policies in Manchuria, which are at present the subject of a special inquiry by the League of Nations.

The post of Foreign Minister was left vacant in the new Cabinet list, but Admiral Saito said he would assume it himself until he is able to induce one of the Empire's senior diplomats to accept.

The new ministry contains four members of the Seiyukai Party, three of the Minseito, one member of the House of Peers, and three men who are designated as "specialists."

The "specialists" are General Araki, Admiral Keisuke Okada, Minister of Navy, Matsukichi Koyama, Minister of Justice, and Admiral Saito himself.

The heads of the two parties, President Susuki of the Seiyukai and President Wakatsuki of the Minseito, did not accept offices in the new Cabinet, but each of them induced his principal lieutenant to take a post and pledged the new Government full parliamentary support. Finance Minister Takahashi is the lieutenant of President Susuki and Minister of Home Affairs Yamamoto of President Wakatsuki.

NOTED WOMEN FLYERS MEET

EXCHANGE EXPERIENCES.

LONDON, May 26 (C.P.).—Amy Johnson, great Britain'h noted air woman, and Mrs. Amelia Earhart Putnam, trans-Atlantic flyer, met to-day for the first time.

Miss Johnson, accompanied by her fiance, J. A. Mollison, famous British long distance flyer, went to the United States Embassy at Prince's Gate to see Mrs. Putnam. They chatted for a long time and posed for photographers in the garden of the Embassy.

Miss Johnson, who has flown in record time from England to Australia alone, paid the visit at Mrs. Putnam's expressed wish. She had been visiting at the home of Mollison's parents in Scotland and flew down to London for the occasion.

Mollison, in view of the projected trans-Atlantic flight which he plans to make soon, asked Mrs. Putnam a number of questions about flying conditions over the ocean, especially regarding the formation of ice on the wings.

Mrs. Putnam asked whether Miss Johnson would make the flight with Mollison, but the couple replied they could not say definitely.

Conference Is Seen As Dawn Of New Era For British

Under a Grey Sky But With Usual Pomp And Ceremony The Third Session of Canada's 17th Parliament Comes To End.

SPEECH FROM THE THRONE REVIEWS LEGISLATION PASSED DURING SESSION.

OTTAWA, May 26 (C.P.). — Under a grey sky, but with the usual color and ceremonial which marks the event, the third session of Canada's sevententh Parliament came to an end at noon to-day. Following an eleventh-hour rush last night in the Commons, when remaining estimates were passed and the decks cleared for prorogation, Chief Justice Anglin, in his capacity of deputy to the Governor-General, drove in state to the Parliament Buildings and delivered the speech which brought the session to an end.

While the Viceregal salute of nineteen guns boomed out from Parliament Hill, the travelling escort from the Princess Louise Dragoon Guards, in dark uniforms and flashing helmets with white plumes, clattered up to the main entrance of the grounds. Chief Justice Anglin stepped from the closed motor car and received the salute from the guard of honor furnished by the Governor-General's Footguards. He then proceeded to the Senate chamber.

Cahan Was Speaking

In the Commons the members were listening to a statement by Hon. C. H. Cahan, Secretary of State, on reparations, when the peremptory three knocks on the door indicated the summons from the upper chamber. Caught in the middle of sentence, Mr. Cahan hurriedly finished it and sat down.

"This is a form of closure" Hon. Ernest Lapointe, ex-Minister of Justice remarked humorously. The Black Rod made his usual dignified entrance and delivered to Mr. Speaker the message calling for the attendance of the commoners in the Senate. Led by Mr. Speaker the members who had remained over for the closing, proceeded to the senate.

In the red chamber the cere-

ONLY TOP SOIL BEING REMOVED FRITH DECLARES

Evidence Concluded in Case Brought Against Joseph Frith by City.

INSPECT EXCAVATION.

Argument and Judgment is Reserved by Magistrate Langley for Week.

Hearing of the evidence of the case brought by the city against Joseph Frith, charging that Frith broke the city by-law by digging a pit on Hazlitt Street within 200 feet of a street, was completed to-day, and Magistrate Langley, accompanied by City Solicitor J. R. Corkery and A. L. Elliott, counsel for Frith, adjourned to the lot where the alleged pit was dug to inspect it.

Argument and judgment in the case was reserved for a week.

Continuing his evidence, which was halted by the adjournment on Monday, and under cross-examination, City Engineer Parsons was asked if the city's pit 150 yards from the property used by Frith "was not the greatest eyesore in East City?"

"That is a matter of opinion," he replied.

"Well, isn't it considered one of the greatest eyesores in the city?"

Mr. Parsons replied that it was, but stated that the city had discontinued the use of the pit and had removed no gravel from it this year.

Frith Testifies.

Joseph Frith testified he had been removing soil from the lot for two years. In 1930 he removed 200 loads, and again in 1931 he took away more than 100 loads. This year he stated he had removed more than 40 loads. He said the soil he removed was topsoil.

This year he started right at the edge of where he had left off last year. The topsoil was from 6 ins. to two feet and a half in depth. He said the depressions he had made other years had not been as large as this year. He had intended to level it off with a scraper. He stated that he had sold some of the sods from this place last year to the Board of Education.

Frith said he had received a notice from the city on May 4. Also T. E. Bradburn, owner of the property, to cease operations until he had gained permission from the city to continue.

Cross-examined, he said he had another gravel pit in East City on property owned by Mr. Bradburn. He said that all the material he had removed from the Hazlitt Street lot he sold as topsoil.

He stated that he was not bringing in any filling from other places to fill up the depressions, but was using the tough sods which had Provincial Government Sends $500 to be Used as Direct Relief.

POLICE ON GUARD.

HEARST, Ont., May 26 (C.P.).—All danger of rioting by unemployed here has passed, it is believed to-day. Receipts of authority to spend $500 on direct relief and prompt action by special police to guard threatened stores is thought to have averted an outbreak by unemployed.

Recently, a large body of foreigners entered the town and declared if either food or work was not immediately forthcoming they would raid stores and food depots. Appeal was made to the Provincial Government for assistance, and the $500 was sent.

Meetings of the jobless have been held every night, but no disturbance has resulted. The men are ordinarily employed in lumbering and pulpwood cutting, but both operations are practically at a standstill.

ONTARIO STICKER IN SEAWAY PACT HOUSE IS TOLD

Tariff Concessions Will Not Enter Into Seaway Negotiations.

BARGAINING URGED.

Federal Commission to Study Farm Market Problems.

OTTAWA, May 26 (C.P.).—Tariff concessions from United States will not enter negotiations for the St. Lawrence Waterways scheme, Premier R. B. Bennett told the House of Commons yesterday. He turned down suggestions from two Liberal members urging adjustment of United States tariffs as they affected Canadian exports, before any treaty was signed.

The ironing out of questions between Ontario and the Dominion stood in the light of a treaty, the Prime Minister said. And this might hold it up ten days or even two months. C. B. Howard, Liberal, Sherbrooke, urged negotiations for adjustment of United States duties against copper, lumber, milk and cream and an understanding on the Chicago water diversion as a preliminary move before a St. Lawrence treaty. Hon. J. L. Ralston, former Minister of National Defence, proposed negotiations aimed at tariff and fiscal concessions affecting Canadian primary industries, particularly fishing.

Farms Market Problems.

Two administration announcements emerged from the long day in the House. Hon. Robert Weir, Minister of Agriculture, announced a Federal commission would be appointed to consider agrarian marketing problems. The Prime Minister said the Government had no intention of appointing a commission to study the advisability of six-hour day legislation.

Among the problems to be studied by the Agricultural Commission will be the creation of an export marketing board, Mr. Weir said. In view of the approaching Imperial Economic Conference, the Government felt the necessity of approaching other Empire countries before setting up a marketing board with its attendant bonusing system. The Minister's statement came a few minutes before the House turned down 47 to 17 a want of confidence motion directed against the Government by Miss Agnes MacPhail on its farm policies.

Thug Attacks, Robs Young Toronto Girl

TORONTO, May 26 (C.P.)—Toronto police are scouring the city to-day in search of a middle-aged man who late last night attacked Nettie Johnstone, 14, beat her into unconsciousness and emptied her purse of $10.95.

Returning from a dancing studio where she had been taking lessons, Miss Johnstone reports she was just about to place her foot on the lower step leading up to her verandah when confronted by a man who darted out of the driveway. Without saying a word the man struck the girl and her unconscious body dropped to the lawn. The empty purse was found near the girl's body when she was discovered on the lawn by a passer-by.

Miss Johnstone recovered consciousness in a short time and was able to give the police a description of her assailant.

Even Dozen Ribs Plenty for Man

ST. PAUL, Minn., May 26. — (C.P.)—Medical science has found in some modern men the thing Adam is supposed to have traded for a spouse—the 13th rib.

And can it cause trouble? Oh, my! Oh, my! Dr. W. C. Carroll of the St. Paul Clinic told the Minnesota State Medical Association convention it can.

The phenomenon is called the cervical rib because it appears above the first thoracic rib at the base of the neck, said Dr. Carroll and usually the trouble comes after the age of 40.

"Then the over-ribbed victim begins to droop and the pressure of the extra rib on an important artery is accentuated. It is liable to cause pain and a variety of circulatory and nervous disorders," he said. "A simple operation relieving the pressure on the artery may completely relieve."

Twelve ribs are enough for a human being, he said. The physicians agreed.

CURTIS' PLIGHT BEFORE JURORS

Indictment on Fake Negotiations Expected—Trial Likely in July.

JAFSIE BUSY.

HOPEWELL, N.J., May 26. — A Grand Jury Convenes to-day in Flemington, N.J., to hear a misdemeanor charge against John Hughes Curtis, accused to carrying on fake negotiations for the return of kidnapped Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr.

Supreme Court Justice Thomas W. Trenchard will be at Flemington Saturday to receive the indictment if one is voted by the Grand Jury. W. C. Pender, counsel for the Norfolk boat builder, was quoted as saying there was little doubt his client would be indicted.

The charge is obstructing justice and spreading false information. Mr. Pender said the trial would not be held until July at the earliest because "considerable time will be required to investigate the various ramifications of the case."

Dr. John F. Condon ("Jaafie") remained near Becket, Mass., at the summer home of his friend, Walter Goodwin. As soon as he gets back he will look through New Jersey "rougies' galleries" for photographs of the man to whom he tossed $50,000 ransom in a Bronx cemetery.

A conference of Republican members of the State Senate assured speedy passage of Senator E. Donald Sterner's bill providing the death penalty for kidnapping.

26 Freight Cars On Train Derailed

OLEAN, N. Y., May 26.—(CP)—Twentysix cars of a Pennsylvania Railroad freight train were derailed at Protection, about half way between Olean and Buffalo, this morning and it was believed a brakeman had died in the crash.

The train was enroute to Buffalo from Wells City, Pa., when the accident occurred. Reports here said a wheel halt broken on one of the cars and it had left the track pulling 25 other cars with it.

TRANS-OCEANIC FLIERS SPLIT REGARDING FREEDOM OF AIR

Resolution Adopted Asks All Governments to Leave Airports Open to Sea Flights.

COSTE, BALBOA CLASH.

ROME, May 26 (C.P.). — The first World Congress of Transoceanic Flyers ended early to-day after an all-night battle in which there was a sharp national division, over "freedom of the air," with a view to future competition in the transatlantic commercial aviation routes.

The line-up in the battle was France and Spain against the field, including the flyers from Great Britain, Italy, United States, and Germany. It ended with a vote in favor of the resolution introduced by General Balbo of Italy and Wolfgang von Gronau of Germany demanding that all governments leave their airports open to transatlantic flying, as they leave their seaports.

The French and Spanish delegations refrained from voting. The battle on the floor of the Congress was marked by bitter clashes between General Balbo and Diedonne Coste, the French flyer.

Coste objected to the resolution as "political." He was vigorously supported by Lotti Iglesias of Spain.

Monopoly in North.

Harold Gatty, round the world flyer, supported the resolution, declaring that "an American company is now securing a monopoly on the northern air route by way of Greenland."

There was a hint that the fierce argument was based on French and Italian competition for control of a future air line from Europe to South America, when Coste mentioned the Azores in this connection. Coste and Balbo shook hands however, when the meeting ended.

The aviators agreed that their next meeting will be held in New York.

Keeping themselves awake drinking coffee, they approved unanimously the resolutions of the north and south Atlantic commissions, declaring that regular service is now possible over each route.

MEXICO BEGINS PROPERTY GRAB

New Utility Law Comes Into Force With Seizing of Cement Plant.

WILL BE RE-OPENED.

MEXICO CITY, May 26.—(AP)—News of the first seisure of private property under the new public utility law in Hidalgo state reached here today with announcement of Governor Vargas Lugo that the state had taken over the Cruz Azul cement factory.

The law, which went into effect May 1, allows the governor to condemn private property if he believes it is needed for state purposes. The owners received three per cent of the adjudged value in cash and the remainder is to be paid over a 20 year period.

The Cruz Azul plant has been the subject of a long controversy. It was shut down with the opening of other plants outside the state by the same owners.

The governor contended the monopoly was not justified, that many workmen have been thrown out of work, and that it was to the best interests of the state to resume operations at the plant.

STRAIGHT FIGHT LOOMS CERTAIN FOR WEST YORK

Macaulay Charges Canada's Credit Position Jeopardized by Hepburn.

FALSE REPORTS.

Liberal Leader Reviews Case Around Gatineau Power Contract.

TORONTO, May 26.—(C.P.) —A straight fight between the Liberal and the Conservative parties appears certain to-day as electors of West York prepare to go to the polls Saturday to choose a successor in the Ontario Legislature to the late Dr. Forbes Godfrey. Although four candidates are in the field to fill the vacant seat neither the Labor or Socialist nominees have done much vigorous campaigning to date.

Speaking in the interests of Harry I. Price, Conservative candidate, Hon. Leopold Macaulay told a by-election gathering last night Canada's position in the world money markets would be seriously jeopardized if the false information broadcast by Mitchell F. Hepburn, Ontario Liberal leader," is circulated abroad. These false reports, he said, strike at the foundation of the country's credit.

Gatineau Power.

In addressing another by-election meeting on behalf of W. J. Gardhouse, Liberal nominee, Mr. Hepburn referred to the Gatineau power contract saying "the advanced trouble of that awful contract is shown by the way the people of Quebec outsmarted us in Ontario. They have marketed their power at a figure which covers the entire overhead and then permits them to sell power at a lower rate to industries which locate in Quebec."

Premier Henry will make his first address in the by-election campaign to-night at New Toronto.

SOO CELEBRATES IN WOLF WEEK

Plug Hats, Stiff Collars Banned—Scrubby Beards Just the Thing.

BUSH PROGRAM.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., May 26.—(C.P.) — The "Soo" — where wolves howl but never bite—is to do due honor to the far-famed four-footed folk of the Algoma district. Friendliest town in Canada by its own claim, Sault Ste. Marie plans a "wolf week" July 25 to 30—a bush program by an isolated town in the great Algoma forest.

"Respectable strangers are welcome in this town," says advance data from "wolf week" sponsors, who include the famed chronicler of Lupine doings, J. W. Curan, editor of the Sault Ste. Marie Star Plug hats are banned, stiff collars in disfavor, scrubby beards just the thing. On the agenda is an Indian barbecue to be supervised by a Hudson Bay Company factor with whiskers.

Lumberjack sports and running-the-rapids by voyageurs are planned and a bear will be rafled, but the feature will be a pack of howling timber wolves at Indian camp. And old Sam Martin, legendary philosopher of the near north is quoted in defence of the Algoma wolf's benevolence: "Any man who says he has been et by a wolf is a liar."

WORLD WHEAT ACREAGE HIGHER

Estimates Show Winter Variety Down 4,000,000 Acres Spring Up 11,000,000.

CANADA'S TOTAL DOWN.

ROME, May 26. (AP)—The International Institute of Agriculture estimated to-day that the 1932 world wheat acreage exceeds that of 1931 by 7,000,000 acres.

The winter wheat area has decreased 4,000,000 acres, but the increase in the acreage of spring wheat expected to be approximately 11,000,000.

Increases noted were: Argentina, 1,700,000 acres; Australia 1,80,000; Russia, 1,000,000; United States, 7,000,000 acres.

The spring wheat acreage in Canada is expected to show a decrease of nearly 1,000,000.

Italian government restrictions on use of foreign wheat have brought a heavy decline in importations during the last 10 months.

In that period only 16,608,483 bushels was imported compared with 61,870,394 bushels for the corresponding period of the previous year.

The restrictions were applied directly to milling, in the form of a fixed percentage of domestic grain which millers were obliged to use in grinding flour. The result was so successful that the home crop ran short this year and a gradual easing of the ban has become necessary.

STAND MODIFIED BY DE VALERA ON OATH ABOLITION

Has No Intention of Cutting Loose From Empire Bond.

DEBATE ADJOURNED.

Purpose is to Set "Anglo-Irish Treaty in Proper Place."

(Canadian Press Cable)

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, May 26.—President Eamonn De Valera yesterday told the Irish Free State Senate that the object of his Government's bill abolishing the Parliamentary oath of allegiance to the British Crown, was not severance of this country from the British Commonwealth of Nations.

Mr. De Valera, pleading that the Senate give the bill consideration on its merits, declared its purpose was to prevent the Anglo-Irish treaty of 1921 from being a fundamental domestic law, and to put it in its proper place as an international instrument.

From a vehement beginning, in which he told the Upper House that only a threat of war with Great Britain induced the Free State people to accept the terms of the treaty, the President got down to an earnest and detailed exposition of what the bill was intended to bring about.

Attacked by Senators

Not a seat in the Senate was vacant as he began to defend the measure, which has already been subject to verbal attacks by Senators whose political attitudes are more conservative that those of the Republican Administration.

Mr. De Valera said he thought if the question of interference with the treaty did not arise, there would be unanimous approval of the bill, which was finally passed by the Dail Eelreounn on May 19.

The attack on the bill came almost immediately, when Senator Bean Milroy, who escaped with Mr. de Valera from the Lincoln Jail during the "trouble," referred to it as an act of political piracy.

Senator James Douglas said all citizens of the Free State were op-

FALL SESSION DATE UNFIXED

Premier Announces Decision Difficult, Until After Imperial Conference.

PROMISES AMPLE NOTICE.

OTTAWA, May 25. (CP)—No decision has yet been reached in respect to calling a fall session of parliament, Premier R. B. Bennett stated in the House of Commons to-day. In answer to a question by Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King, opposition leader, the Prime Minister said that he would be glad to meet the convenience of members by making an announcement immediately about the date when parliament would reassemble. No conclusion had been arrived at by the government, however, and, until the Imperial Economic Conference had taken place, it was difficult to reach a decision. He would endeavor to announce the opening date of the next session as long as possible before parliament would meet, in order to give members ample notice.

Mr. Bennett reminded the house that, unless some change was made, the fiscal measure of Great Britain, making products from the Dominions liable to a duty of twenty percent. would come into effect on November 15, next.

PAUL KINGSTON LAID TO REST

Died on Same Homestead Born 92 Years Ago—Was Prominent Pioneer.

12 YEARS IN COUNCIL.

CAMPBELLFORD, May 26 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — To-day, one of the oldest pioneers of Rawdon township and of this section of the country was laid to rest in St. Luke's Cemetery, West Huntingdon, in the person of the late Paul Kingston, who died on Tuesday at the age of 92. The death occurred on the old Kingston homestead, in the fourth concession of Rawdon.

The late Mr. Kingston was the eldest son and the last survivor of the family of the late William Kingston and Hester Gay, both of whom were natives of Ireland, settling in the township about one hundred years ago.

The deceased was born on the farm on which he died, on May 29, 1840, and spent his whole life in the vicinity of his birthplace. Being the oldest son of a family of eight children he encountered many of the hardships of pioneer life.

In the early days he assisted with the clearing up of the land when oxen were used instead of horses and when the harvests were gathered from a few clearings in the forest. In young manhood it was his custom to spend the winter months in the shanty earning small wages to assist in making a payment on his farm.

Despite the meagre advantages provided for education and the little time at his disposal for taking advantage of what was offered, the late Mr. Kingston attained what was considered in his day a good practical education. He devoted his whole life to farming and was considered one of the most prosperous farmers in his native township. In early life he married Harriet Hagerman, the union being blessed with three sons and two daughters: Wilmot of Bronte, Halton County; George of Belleville; Albert, on the homestead; Mrs. Ed. Reid of Rawdon, and Mrs. Peters of Saskatchewan, all of whom survive.

The late Paul Kingston served for twelve years on the Rawdon council as councillor, deputy-reeve and reeve. He was for many years president of the Kingston Cheese Factory and for oven seventy years a member of the Orange Order, being also a member of the Black Preceptory. In religion he was a Methodist, going with his church in Union in 1925. Despite his advanced age, the deceased retained all his faculties to the last and was able to converse with his friends as intelligently just before his death as in his younger days.

On retiring from the farm about 20 years ago, he went to Stirling to reside, but on the death of his wife he spent some years with his daughter, Mrs. Reid. For some time previous to his death he had been living with his son, Albert, on the homestead.

MRS. F. RUSSELL

CAMPBELLFORD, May 26 (By Examiner Staff Correspondent). — Frances Leitch, widow of the late William Russell, died at her Campbellford home on Oliver street yesterday in her 60th year. Born in Ontario, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Leitch, who were settlers to Canada from England, she lived for some years in Rawdon township, later coming to Campbellford with her husband to reside. Mr. Russell died in 1925. The late Mrs. Russell has been ailing for some time and her death did not come unexpected. In religion she was a Presbyterian. No immediate family survive. Arrangements for the funeral have not yet been completed.

MISS MARTHA CULLEN.

The death occurred early this morning at Nicholls Hospital of Miss Martha Cullen at the age of sixty-nine years. The deceased, who had been living at the Anson House, Peterborough, for some time, was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Simon Cullen, of Smith. She is survived by two sisters, Sarah and Mrs. W. G. McKee of this city, and three brothers: Charles of Chicago, James of British Columbia and Thomas of Smith Township.

The funeral will be held Friday, May 27th, at two p.m., from the Anson House to Little Lake Cemetery, with the Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr officiating.

BYNG OF VIMY SAILS FOR HOME

Visited Principal Cities Throughout Canada in Leisurely Tour.

NO PUBLIC FUNCTIONS.

MONTREAL, May 26 (C.P.). — Concluding a leisurely journey in quest of health, Lord Byng of Vimy, former Governor-General of Canada, sailed to-day on the S.S. Montclare for England. He was accompanied by Lady Byng.

Lord and Lady Byng crossed Canada in easy stages from the Pacific Coast, on the last leg of a trip which took them to the West Indies, and then through the Panama Canal on an ocean voyage. They visited the principal cities of Canada.

The former Governor-General's visit to the Dominion was a private one and no public functions were held. Ill-health forced Lord Byng to resign as head of London's Metropolitan Police Force, a post he assumed after concluding his term as representative of the King at Ottawa.

party regime in the face of the growing reactionary and hyper-Patriotic tendencies recently shown, party leaders said to-day the fact that Admiral Saito enlisted their support for parliamentary principles was a setback for the reactionary elements loosely called "Fascists," which have been clamoring for the abandonment of parliamentary forms.

Both General Araki and Admiral Okada promised Admiral Saito they would enforce stern discipline in the army and navy. They also issued a statement pledging full punishment to the 17 army and navy cadets who were accused of the terrorism on May 15 which resulted in the assassination of Premier Inukai.

Advocates Imperial Policy.

In spite of his previous refusal to accept, it was learned that Admiral Saito still hopes to persuade Viscount Yasyua Uchida to accept the post of Foreign Minister. Viscount Uchida, although a signer of the Briand-Kellogg Pact, is one of the firmest advocates of a strong Imperial policy on the Asiatic Continent. He is at present at Dairen, Manchuria, continuing to act as president of the South Manchuria Railway in spite of his resignation on April 7.

He consented to remain at his post during the stay of the League of Nations Inquiry Commission in Manchuria, but he plans to come to Tokyo early next month.

Finance Minister Takahashi is expected to continue the previous economic policies, adding redoubled efforts to mitigate farm distress, the source of most of the political and social unrest, and to promote further tariff increases partly for protective purposes, and partly as a general inflation of the national finances.

END PILES QUICK

No Salves—No Cutting

Your itching, bleeding, protruding piles will go when you actually remove the cause—bad blood circulation in the weak, flabby parts—and not one minute before. Salves or cutting can't do this—an internal remedy must be used. HEM-ROID, prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, succeeds because it stimulates the circulation, drives out congested blood, heals and restores the almost dead parts. HEM-ROID has such a wonderful record right in this City, that McDermid & Jury, and Bond's Drug Store says one bottle of HEM-ROID Tablets must end your pile agony or money back.

Suggests Dignified Course

It would be a simple matter, he continued, for the Government to introduce in both Houses a resolution favoring abolition of the oath; and it would have been passed by both Houses. The President could then negotiate with Great Britain on the issue with full authority.

That, he asserted, would be a wise and dignified procedure. But instead the President elected to follow a method best calculated to cause misunderstanding and bad feeling between the Free State and Great Britain.

Mr. de Valera, he said, had failed to grasp the fundamental principles on which the British Commonwealth rested. The Fianna Fail (Republican Party) had promised during the election campaign there would be no squabble with Great Brittain, but its first action after it came into power had been to break up the essential basis of the British Commonwealth.

"Membership in that Commonwealth means a great deal to the Free State," the Senator declared. "It is the safeguard of our political freedom.

Southern Rhodesia For Empire Trade

British Colony in South Africa to Send Three Delegates to Ottawa.

BULAWAYO, Southern Rhodesia, May 26 (C.P.).—Canada's invitation to attend the Imperial Economic Conference opening at Ottawa in July has been accepted here with much pleasure and satisfaction. It marked the first time Southern Rhodesia ever was asked to send a delegation to any Imperial parley and people generally are pleased at Canada's recognition of her colonial status.

Though a self-governing colony, Southern Rhodesia always previously has been represented by emissaries from the Union of South Africa and her own delegates merely filled the role of official observers, lacking plenipotentiary powers.

At Ottawa, however, Howard Unwin Moffat, who was the second Premier of the colony, will be in charge of a delegation of three and a staff of four. The other two delegates will be P. D. L. Fynn, treasurer, and J. W. Downie, high commissioner to Great Britain at London.

Favors Empire Trade.

Optimistic hopes for the outcome of the Ottawa parley are held by the government, which is intensely interested in Empire trade and always has given a considerable preference to Empire goods. To insure continuance of this preference the government has enacted the "Rhodes Clause," which gives in perpetuity a considerable advantage to British imports.

Southern Rhodesia, anxious to make known her attitude towards Empire trade, welcomes the opportunity to present her views through her own delegates at the Imperial Conference. She is desirous of avoiding a common impression that the view expressed by South African delegates also is the voice of Southern Rhodesia.

It is pointed out in some quarters that due to necessity the foreign trade policies of the Union and the southern colony are fundamentally different. This is obvious in the fact that for years Southern Rhodesia has relied on export of raw material while in the Union secondary industries have been developed by means of a protective tariff.

REQUIRE PREFERENCE

CALGARY—Necessity for preference being given western agricultural products through channels to be decided at the forthcoming Imperial Economic Conference at Ottawa in July was emphasized in a memorandum issued last night by the Calgary board of trade.

Our swift trucks rush this delicious coffee to you at the PEAK OF ITS FLAVOR

HERE is coffee delivered like the fresh food that coffee really is! Rushed straight from roasting ovens to grocers by swift trucks, the same great Dominion-wide service that delivers Fleischmann's Yeast.

Chase & Sanborn instituted this unique system of delivering fresh coffee, because of certain scientific facts recently discovered about coffee:

SCIENTISTS have discovered that in every pound of coffee there is approximately half a cup of delicate oil. Fresh, this oil carries the marvelous flavor and aroma you love in good coffee. Stale, it becomes rancid, toxic . . . is a frequent cause of indigestion, headaches, nervousness, sleeplessness. And this rancidity develops in days, not months, after roasting.

That is why we take such precautions to make sure you get Chase & Sanborn's absolutely fresh . . . Why we stamp each tin with the date it reaches your grocer . . . We replace any tin that has been on your grocer's shelf longer than ten days. You can't get a stale tin of this coffee.

Buy a tin of this delicious dated coffee today. Enjoy its wonderful flavor. Packed in one-pound and half-pound tins.

ENCOURAGING SPORTS.

Mayor Denne and four other members of the City Council took part in the opening ceremonies of the Girls' Softball League last night, and gave that popular organization a fitting send-off to what promises to be a successful season.

The civic representatives in evincing this interest in athletic sports, an interest that is further attested to be the turning of what was a short time ago an eye-sore into a serviceable playing field, are displaying a proper appreciation of their duties.

Most certainly, a civic government's responsibility does not end when it has provided purely essential services; there must be some recognition of the fact that "all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy," and that one of the duties of the community is to furnish facilities for healthful recreation.

A centre that falls down in this respect falls in a matter of considerable importance, to the health and happiness of its people, and on that account it is gratifying to realize that while Peterborough has not gone as far in providing athletic grounds as some larger cities, consistent progress is being made in that direction, and the results cannot fail to be generally beneficial.

THIS IS NOT THE TIME.

That was a very interesting suggestion that Premier Henry as Minister of Education threw out the other day when he intimated the possibility of a new type of school, a sort of an intermediate institution to bridge the gap between the primary and secondary schools as we have them to-day.

This intermediate school would include fifth book classes and the lower grades now taught in the collegiate institutes, and the idea is that this opportunity for mid-way training would avoid the distinct division that now exists between the public schools and the secondary schools.

There is much in favor of the principle of that change, but it should not be necessary to point out that any action toward putting into effect the policy mentioned by Mr. Henry should be deferred for the present; certainly educational costs are sufficiently high without loading any more items of expense upon the shoulders of the taxpayers, whose burden is in all consciousness too heavy already to be easily carried.

It is to be presumed that this is the view of the Premier himself, and that he merely advanced the idea of an intermediate scohol as an interesting item for discussion.

A LUXURY PROPOSITION.

Opposition to the expenses of cadet training, forthcoming usually only from a comparatively small section of the people, has this year shown a marked increase.

There are numerous Canadians who are entirely in favor of the principle of cadet training, and who believe it to be of service because of its effect upon the youth of the land, who agree on this occasion with Mr. Woodworth's contention that it is bad business for the country to spend large sums of money on the instruction of cadets in a period when people are actually short of food.

That is The Examiner's view of the situation, and while it is too late to alter matters this year, it is to be hoped that should economic conditions not improve materially before the next session that the appropriation for cadet training will be ear-marked among the votes that will have to be curtailed until better times return.

As has been pointed out, the cadet movement is a luxury proposition, and just now Canada is not in a position to go in on a very large scale for national luxuries.

By all means let us have our cadet corps when we can pay for them without undue strain on the public purse—but we can get along without them in a time of general financial stress.

UNFORTUNATE.

While there is apparently nothing to be gained now by making a major issue of the matter, most people will probably feel that a representative of the Board of Education might well have been included in the official committee to meet His Excellency the Governor-General yesterday.

Much of the color of the reception, as the chairman of the Board of Education points out, was furnished by the school children, the cadets, etc., who are under the supervision of the board, and if it was considered desirable to include a representative of the Manufacturers' Association because of the Governor-General's expressed wish to visit several of the local industries, then the same brand of logic should surely have suggested the desirability of giving representation on the committee to the body under whose instructions many of the details of the program were supplied.

In addition, of course, the Board of Education is next to the Council the city's largest spending body with heavy responsibilities entrusted to it, and on that account alone might have been honored by inclusion in the official committee, and the matter assumes more serious proportions when the exclusion of board representation was decided upon after the question had been fully considered by the Council.

It is unfortunate that the incident has arisen, and it is to be hoped that it will not be made a permanent source of grievance between two bodies which, particularly at this time, should be working in the closest harmony and co-operation in an effort to keep civic expenditures down to a point at which they can be met by the taxpayers.

His Excellency's wish to avoid a large reception committee would not have been ignored by the addition of another member or two to the small committee decided upon by the City Council.

OBLITERATE THE POLITICS.

There is too much indication in the Dominion House of a tendency to approach the forthcoming Empire Conference at Ottawa on partisan lines. If there ever was an occasion in which party should be entirely eliminated it is in this instance. Here is an opportunity for mutually advantageous trade arrangements, in the vast region over which the Union Jack floats, far even beyond the previous dreams of Imperialists. The Old Land and its Dominions have an area of 13,157,877 square miles, and an approximate population of 485,473,370.

The Commonwealth of British nations has more navigable rivers, more arable lands, more coast lines, more varieties of climate, more community centres, more diversity of products, more natural harbors, more different races, more constitutional freedom and more potentialities than the world has ever before witnessed or ever will witness. There is not one conceivable production either of nature or art or human skill which is not embraced within this marvellous aggregation of nations and peoples. In the generations which have passed it has always been true that John Bull has not possessed to enslave, but to extend the priceless tenets of British liberty and thus the spectacle is presented of an Empire held together by the single and sentimental thread of a common allegiance.

Now that an effort is to be made at the Dominion capital to give practical and mutually beneficial effect to all this cohesiveness, Canadians most emphatically do not wish to see, and will not tolerate, any jockeying for position by either Liberals, or Conservatives or other politicians. The interests involved are too vast and too important for any playing of petty politics to be introduced. The entire conference must be approached on the basis of national and Empire advantage of a mutual nature. The possibilities are enormous and the resultant advantages, not in a narrow but general sense, are unquestionable.

The people of Canada have a right to expect that their public men, no matter what their political stripe, shall rise in a broad-minded way to the opportunity and that the spirit which united so many diverse elements in the formation of Confederation, shall also animate the attitude of all on this exceedingly momentous occasion.—Brantford Expositor.

JUDGE SCORES RECKLESS DRIVERS.

The reckless drivers of motor vehicles came in for a severe castigation by Justice Kelly, who, addressing a Toronto Grand Jury, declared that such drivers were not decent citizens and should be regarded as social outcasts in the same class as habitual drinkers. The jurist told the jury that reckless drivers were responsible for many heart-breaking stories heard in civil and criminal courts. Undeniably, they are responsible for much suffering and sorrow and wretchedness. By removing loved ones, often the breadwinners, they have turned happy homes into sad ones and comfortable homes of plenty into hovels of want and woe. The trail of the reckless driver is one of destruction and death.

Justice Kelly places selfishness as the source of recklessness at the wheel. This is undoubtedly the correct diagnosis. The reckless driver has absolutely no concern for the safety of others. His own pleasures are the only law he bows to unless he should be caught breaking the law of the road. Unfortunately, however, he is not caught nearly often enough, and frequently, when he is brought within the toils of the law, he gets off altogether too lightly.

The jurist told the Grand Jury that it could perform invaluable service by creating sentiment against reckless drivers. There can be no doubt that there is great need for the creation of such sentiment. The reckless driver is not treated with the scorn and severity that he should be. The public is too much inclined to wink at his recklessness. There needs to be a great awakening regarding the menace of reckless driving. Juries, both grand and petit, have an important duty to perform. Where a case is reasonably clear the former should unhesitatingly bring in a true bill in reckless driving cases and the latter, if satisfied in their own minds that the case is proved, should bring in a verdict, accordingly, without any recommendation of mercy save in exceptional cases. With so many driving cars there is a danger of juries developing a fellow-feeling for the accused and giving him the benefit of a doubt that should not exist if the case was being decided entirely on the evidence. Then, when a verdict of guilty is brought in, it is up to the presiding judge to pronounce a sentence sufficiently heavy to impress upon all reckless drivers that the law commands them to change their driving methods. The voice of the law is the only one that such drivers will listen to. They will not listen to the voices of courtesy or of unselfishness. So let the voice of the law be clear and emphatic.—St. Thomas' Times-Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The vice-regal visit to Peterborough yesterday was a distinct success.

The West York by-election winds up on Saturday, and few people will be sorry that the campaign is about at an end.

It is fortunate that Mr. King will not be a member of the Canadian delegation at the Imperial Economic Conference. He and Mr. Bennett would not be able to agree even there.

Premier Bennett, who has not had a vacation since 1930, will be unable to arrange one this summer. Most people are unable to understand how he can work so hard and still avoid a breakdown.

It is declared that the Doukhobors cannot be deported. Looks like as if we will have to build some more penitentiaries in that case.

Mr. Henry has made the important admission that responsibility for the relief of the unemployed is a provincial responsibility. He is not likely to be allowed to forget that fact.

It is worthy of attention that to pay the salaries of the radio commission will require the license fees of 16,000 set-owners every year.

That extra hour of daylight in the evening is a great boon to the vacant lot gardeners.—Oshawa Times.

Three Under Arrest For Bank Robbery

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., May 26 (C.P.).—With three men under arrest, one identified as a participant, and $1,900 of the $6,072 loot recovered, State police and Sheriff's deputies to-day continued a search over a 50-mile radius for others believed involved in the hold-up yesterday of a local branch bank and the subsequent slaying of Chas. Knapp, a deputy sheriff.

Arrested near Smyrna, Mich., today, Henry Marshall, 47, and Jack Sebur, 33, both of Detroit, were brought to Grand Rapids, and Clifford Zinn, a teller in the bank, identified Marshall as one of the bandits.

Meanwhile Deputy Sheriff Ray Ring, of Belding, found $1,300 in currency taken from the bank, on a hill near Smyrna.

Quotation for To-Day

ENTHUSIASM.

Enthusiasm is that secret and harmonious spirit which hovers over the production of genius, throwing the reader of a book, or the spectator of a statue, into the very ideal presence whence these works have really originated. A great work always leaves us in a state of musing.

—Isaac Disraeli.

PRIDE IN PETERBOROUGH

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear sir:

May I be permitted to call attention through your paper to the fact that there seems to be in our city a number of people who are lacking in civic pride? People who are unwilling to speak a good word for their own city when the opportunity arises, and worse than all else they have a total disregard for the welfare of city property.

I wonder if they have taken the trouble to acquaint themselves with some of the benefits that obtain here which many other cities lack?

Very few cities have been given such beautiful parks as the late Mrs. Nicholls gave to us. The park commissioners of her estate showed very fine foresight in securing for park purposes such beautiful sights as Nicholls Oval, Inverlee and Jackson Park. These parks possess a great variety of interests. The citizens should be proud of that band of patriotic women in Ashburnham, who preserved for us the commanding view from the top of Armour's Hill. Soon the young trees will be large enough to change to a thing of beauty the whole landscape on the side of the hill.

The Horticultural Society has carried on for years a campaign of beautification that has stimulated many people to take a greater interest in their home surroundings.

Within the last four or five years our city fathers have taken a keen interest in the city parks and streets. Many unsightly places have been cleaned up and who can pass Confederation Square, particularly at this time of year, without a feeling of pride and at least a thought of praise for those who have sponsored this great improvement?

The hope of everyone who takes an interest in this work must be that parents and teachers will feel their responsibility in teaching children to protect these worth while things. The city has spent a lot of money in bringing about these changes and we should feel that it is our own property. Anyone who is guilty of pulling up shrubs or plucking flowers from the city parks should be dealt with in the police court, and branded as unworthy of the respect of the rest of the citizens.

Sometimes children are thoughtless in not helping to keep the parks clean, but the children can be the greatest force we have in protecting our parks. They should feel it their duty to inform on anyone who interferes with the parks in a way that they know is wrong. They should call up the police force, knowing that they are the guardians of our rights and will gladly do all they can to bring the offender to justice.

The rose garden in Confederation Square will soon be in bloom and will be a credit to those who designed it. We all feel like getting so close to these roses that we can get a whiff of their perfume, but this would be too hard on the grass. A very fine view of them may be had by approaching from the west side in front of the armories.

Here will be found many varieties of color and form that will add much beauty to the park and the queen of all the flowers will once again, we hope, receive the homage she deserves.

Yours for improvement,

J. E. MIDDLETON, D.D.S.

OLD-TIMERS PERFORM

Funny how the boxing fans like to see some of the old-timers in a real fight. Recently Mushy Callahan and Tod Morgan, both former champions, met in Hollywood, and the boxing arena was packed to the doors. The same thing happened when Ad Wolgast and Battling Nelson, former champions, met in Milwaukee after both were supposed to be down and out and the place was packed, hundreds of fans being turned away.

Empire Program Is Held At Bridgenorth

BRIDGENORTH, May 26 (Examiner Correspondence)—Empire Day was very patriotically observed in the village school on Monday, when a program of readings, addresses and songs was given, having been planned by the teacher, George Ball, and for which Rev. R. J. Merriam acted as chairman.

The program included the chairman's address in which the speaker referred to the many excellent resources which Canada has, but none comparing in importance to her children. Dr. J. J. Craig, of Peterborough, gave an interesting and inspiring address on "Our Empire" which was very much enjoyed; Mary McManus, reading a paper on "The Union Jack"; two choruses by school under leadership of Mr. Potter; reading, "Our Union Jack" Betty Nicholls; recitation, "The Flag", Opal Robinson; recitation, "The Victoria Cross," Betty Petterson; "The Order of Valour", Evans King.

P. T. Udy gave an address on "The History of Our School" which was most interesting. The present school was built in 1877 and at first had about 70 pupils and one teacher. Since that time many men and women have gone out into professional life from the ranks of the public school children of this section.

Mr. Udy's address was followed by a chorus by the school, "The Maple Leaf" and Phonse McManus recited, "England and Her Colonies." Avice Forsythe read "The Union Jack" followed by Braden Mann reciting, "My Native Land." "The Two Offerings" was recited by Hazel Telford followed by a reading, "A Song of Canada" by Ina Robinson and a recitation "The Torch of Life" by Guy Petterson, while Phyllis Moore gave a reading entitled, "Ye Mariners." Other numbers on the program included a chorus by the school; recitation, "Hymn of Empire Day," Claresse White; address, "The United Empire Loyalists" John Murray; recitation, "The British Empire," Jean Mann; chorus, "May God Preserve Thee Canada."

A. B. Mann, Reeve of Smith, gave the closing address in which he complimented the school and teacher on the splendid program.

A large number of parents and friends were present and Mr. Ball was highly complimented on the excellent showing of his pupils. The program concluded with the National Anthem.

SON OF THE GODS

By REX BEACH

When the pair had gone, when the metal door had clanged shut behind them, Sam shouted to Moy, saying:

"Open the windows, quickly, and air this place out."

The sing-song girls, his "Oriental slaves," flung themselves upon the couch and rolled in convulsions of glee. They shrieked, they kicked, they hugged each other, and he joined in their laughter. One of them managed to gasp from the depths of the cushions:

"Oh, Mr. Lee, you're wonderful!"

"I surprised myself," he admitted.

"Alice! I bound forward with a shout!' 'Posture girls!' He bought us in China. Wouldn't that slay you, Iris? Do you mind if we tell father and mother?"

"Of course not. It was nice of them to let you play in my little comedy. Burlesque, rather. I wonder that those people swallowed it!"

INSTALMENT NO. 26

Same became a regular and an extravagant patron of the Oriental amusement places.

Entertainment was in full swing, excitement was high in the place on the Drive one night when Moy searched out his employer and found him on one of the upper floors. This was not Moy's night off and Sam was surprised to see him, but the Korean explained that he had been forced to come.

A gentleman had called up Sam's house on the telephone an hour or so before and had insisted upon speaking with him. The man was both uncomplimentary and unrefined. Moy had told him to go to hell.

After a lapse of time the person had appeared in the flesh; he had stormed into Sam's house, shattering its dignified repose with loud profanities and strident demands for immediate audience with the owner on a matter of life and death. He had finally given Moy a hundred-dollar bill and begged him immediately to lead the way to his employer. He was below at this instant.

Sam rose and went downstairs. In the ballroom, staring with amazement and incredulity at the scene before him, stood Albert Wagner.

Wagner's face was haggard, it was bloodless, new lines had bitten into it. When Sam spoke to him he started; he mumbled a hoarse apology at intruding. His expression was one of mingled loathing and entreaty as he said:

"I've been looking all over—I've got to see you alone."

"I assume it must be terribly important or—"

"Alanna's sick. Terribly sick. She—" The speaker's voice failed him; the words stuck in his throat. "She's calling for you."

Sam closed his eyes. Through the blaring of horns, the din of frenzied voices, the scuffling of feet he heard Wagner imploring him, "For God's sake, come with me! It—won't take long. Hurry, please, or—I'm afraid she's—dying."

On legs that threatened to give way under him Sam followed the older man down and out into the street. A car was waiting and into this they hurried.

Sam inquired through numb lips, "What has happened? Why does she want to see me? What can I do?"

"She doesn't know she's calling for you. She's delirious. Rest assured I'd never have looked you up if it wasn't necessary!"

"Perhaps you'd better tell me what has happened to her."

"I don't know exactly. She's been hitting it up, running wild, for months. I couldn't do a thing with her. I just—worried. I suppose she wore out, burned up; anyhow she collapsed, all of a sudden. That was several days ago. I didn't think much of it at first—Oh, it has been hell, standing around, unable to do anything! I'm about all in. Of course I got the best doctors, and a couple of nurses. Some time yesterday—I think it was yesterday—she began—er—somehow your name popped into her mind. It stuck there. Not that it means anything—"

"I understand."

"Well, the nurses began to ask who Sam Lee was, and if I couldn't get hold of him just to quiet her. She doesn't know what she's saying any more than a parrot; she hasn't mentioned your name in months. Not more than once or twice since we left Paradis. Anyhow the doctor seemed to think—I—I'm acting on his orders, see? He said he often had to humor people with brain fever, given 'em what they wanted.

For a while the two rode in a silence broken only by occasional incoherency from the father and by his heavy breathing. "Tonight's the crisis. The doctor says—"

"So! You let it go as long as you dared."

Oblivious of Sam's words and his tone, Wagner talked on.

"—through till morning she'll be all right. Or if we could get her to rest; to quit muttering, even for an hour or so—They don't know who you are—the doctor and the nurses, I mean, and I didn't tell 'em—"

"Don't worry; I won't tell them, either. And you needn't fear that I'll presume when she recovers. I appreciate your embarrassment and I shall try not to add to it, either tonight or later."

A nurse met the two men as they entered the Wagner suite; she said there had been no change, she and the father left Sam alone. From the direction in which they had gone came a voice which the younger man did not at first recognize as Alanna's. It was throaty, flat, it droned along monotonously. Sam strained his ears but he could make out no words, all he could hear was an expressionless, unceasing rivulet of sound, the very quality of which affrighted him.

The nurse reappeared, after a few minutes, and beckoned to him; on tiptoe he followed her down a short hall and into a bed chamber. Near the window a doctor and a second nurse were whispering with Albert Wagner; when Sam appeared the doctor moved to the bedside and spoke in a natural voice.

"Here he is, Miss Wagner—Alanna! Here is Mr. Lee. Don't worry any more; he has come to see you—Sam Lee! Don't you understand? He's right here in the room." The sick girl continued to mutter.

Sam's breath lay in his lungs, he gazed at the flushed face on the pillow a prey to emotions suitable only for his soul to experience and for the gods to see. Anguish and compassion peered from his eyes. At a motion from the physician he moved forward to the latter's side, but Alanna did not recognize him; her lips babbled; her expressionless stare was terrifying. As the doctor ran on, repeating Sam's name over and over, the girl frowned in a troubled manner, her hands moved restlessly. Sam lifted one of them in his and it burned him.

"Speak to her," the physician directed. "Perhaps the sound of your voice—"

"Alanna!" Nothing is more appalling than a vacant mind, the total blankness in Alanna's glassy, unfocused eyes aroused a terrible fear in the speaker, and a desperate yearning to aid her. His voice issued strongly but tenderly from his aching throat. "Alanna! Wake up, oh Thousand Pieces of Gold! I'm here and your hand is in mine. Don't worry any more, dear. I heard you calling and I came to you. Alanna! Sam is here."

Her hot fingers closed over his, and pulled weakly at them, her free hand groped in his direction; she uttered a peevish complaint. One of the nurses whispered:

"She wants him to hold her—Put your arm around her, Mr. Lee."

"Try it," the doctor ordered.

Sam turned a white ,tortured face towards the father, who closed his eyes and nodded, "Your pardon," the young man said.

Alanna's head rolled, she cried out fretfully and lifted her arms. Sam bent lower and they encircled his neck, he felt her feverish cheek touch his. Promptly he forgot everything else. A wave of tenderness swept over him, gently he seated himself on the edge of the bed and took her to his breast. He murmured to her in a tone softer than any caress and she breathed a sight of contentment, her lids drooped, closed.

The nurse who had spoken before deftly readjusted the pillows and the covers, then whispered:

"Hold her as long as you can, and keep talking to her. It's the first time in twenty-four hours that her tongue had stopped. Don't let her begin. It burns out her vitality."

It is doubtful if Sam heard the admonition. Until an instant before he had been keenly aware of these strangers in the room and above all of Albert Wagner's presence. Some hand had throttled him. But in the agony of this heartbreak he forgot them all, he and Alanna were alone.

Dazedly he asked himself what punishment was this that the gods had put upon him. Were they utterly implacable? But thoughts of himself were less than momentary; this suffering wisp of a creature in his arms was being tortured, too; she had endured flames hotter than him. Pity dissolved him. Poor little scorched wild rose! Brave little white rose! She had faced the fire until it withered her; she drooped now and perished for the dew. She found coolness only in his touch and his tears alone could quench her thirst—Punishment? This was no punishment; it was a reward! Do not the spirits who dwell in perpetual bliss envy man his pain? The compassionate gods had smiled upon him finally, they had given him his hour. Yes, and they had given him work to do.

Heedless of listening ears he spoke to those that were deaf, and some faint echo in his voice must have reached the wandering mind of the sick girl for it paused. She hearkened. Very quietly the doctor and the nurses withdrew; they put their heads together; apprehensively, and yet with growing relief, they looked on.

Alanna had strayed a long way and she was very tired. Sam strove to rouse her, to lead her back. It was a task, however, almost beyond his power. Realising her desperate need for aid he called upon his father and his gods for help.

He was not aware of praying; in reality it was less a prayer that he uttered than a cry for assistance—a Chinese cry—and certainly it was unlike any prayer these other people had ever heard. He spoke to the girl and through her to that benevolent person who had never failed him in his hours of need; he called to the powers beyond. He implored Kwan Yin-Jo, Goddess of Mercy, the one Celestial being who is faultless, to show compassion to this child as she had shown it to that little girl-goddess long, long, ago when China was young.

Kwan Yin-Jo! China! Girl-goddess! The physician and the nurses exchanged startled glances. They stared at Sam with a new and fascinated interest. Albert Wagner huddled in a chair, his elbows on his knees, his face hidden. He knew now, beyond all doubt, what had driven Alanna to this extremity and the most terrible part of it was that Sam Lee knew, too. This China boy! This yellow man! She was lying on his breast, smiling! At rest! He was coaxing her back, helping her along the path. It was something these doctors and nurses, not even his own love and tenderness, had been able to do. But—the fellow was an outcast, a leper. He smelled of the pit.

SEES ELIMINATION IN 30 YEARS OF PRIVATE MEDICAL PRACTISE

Health Association Parley Told Only State, Preventive Medicine Will Exist.

CANCER CURE TO COME.

TORONTO, May 26 (C.P.) — Within thirty years, private medical practice will be eliminated and only State and preventive medicine will exist, predicted Dr. J. H. Radford, Galt, in his presidential address at Ontario Health Officers' Association here to-day. With the Ontario body, the Canadian Public Health Association is holding its annual convention.

Emphasis in the future would be placed on preventive medicine, declared Dr. Radford. Too, cures would be discovered for tuberculosis and cancer. "But whether the cure for cancer will be a serum, vaccine or radium I am not prepared to predict."

Would Enlarge Scope

Dr. H. B. Van Wyck, Toronto, appealed for enlargement of the scope of public health activity to deal more directly with the material welfare problem. More accurate statistical information on maternal mortality should be compiled, he said. An important function of organised public health work was the control of propaganda, he thought, and much misleading information was disseminated. "When we read the pronouncements of irresponsible medical opinion, for example, that radium has no place in the treatment of cancer—a statement made to a responsible body and spread by our press from coast to coast—when we read this and know that it will result in depriving the misled readers of life and hope, we are justified in censuring the press and accusing it of a pernicious act," he said.

Dr. H. H. Brown, Toronto, outlined the latest developments in the fight against pneumonia. "New methods of ascertaining the particular form of pneumonococcus, which is infective in particular cases, have recently been developed," he said, and "concentrated serums can be given for the particular type involved. When the serum is given early the results are striking, giving a very toxic and extremely ill patient marked relief."

JURY HEARS 3 WITNESSES IN CASE AGAINST CURTIS

Preliminary Examination in Hoax Case Lasts Only Two Hours.

FLEMINTON, N.J., May 26.—The Hunterdon counuty grand jury today completed in two hours and five minutes its examiantion of witnesses and evidence in the gigantic hoax perpetrated in the Lindbergh kidnpa case by John Hughes Curtis, Norfolk, Va., boat builder.

While Curtis sat in his solitary cell in the jail adjoining the court house, the grand jury heard three witnesses—police officials who had been active in the kidnapping investigation — tell of the confessed hoaxer's story of his alleged negotiations with the kidnappers and the effect they had on the search for the actual kidnapper-murderers of the Lindbergh baby.

Prosecutor Anthony M. Hauck also presented to the grand jury documentary evidence against Curtis, including the confession of his hoax that Curtis typed in the emergency police station at the Lindbergh hofe.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

Market Closing On All Exchanges

TORONTO, May 26.—(CP.)—Under leadership of interlisted stocks more active listings on the Standard Stock and Mining Exchange slumped lower around midday and despite a last-hour rally finished with losses in the majority.

Gold staged the best recovery, McIntyre, Lake Shore, Teck-Hughes and Wright-Hargreaves closing 3 to 25 cents above the previous finals. Hollinger was down 10, however, and Dome just holding. Among cheaper golds Ventures dropped 5 and Macassa a cent, while Siscoe moved up a couple and Howey and Alexandria a fraction each.

Base metal issues bore the brunt of noonday selling, but staged a fairly broad recovery. International Nickel, after establishing a new low for the bear market of $4.50, closed off 11 from last night, Noranda lost 10 and Hudson Bay and Falconbridge a few cents apiece.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE.

TORONTO, May 26 (C.P.)—Toronto Stock Exchange slumped under heavy liquidation around midday and in the early afternoon today, but recovered thereafter with New York. Leaders reduced losses and here and there stocks actually closed above the level of last night.

The decline resulted in a great many new record lows, and included such stocks as Bell Telephone, off 4 at 81; C.P.R. down to 8⅝; Power Corporation at 7⅛; Montreal Power down to 26 1-8; Brazilian at 8⅝; B.C. Power "A" off nearly 2 points at 16; Shawinigan at 9 3-8; Canadian Dredge at 7½; Ford of Canada at 6⅞; Hamilton Bridge at 2¼; International Nickel at 4½.

At the close Bell Telephone had recovered to 82½, while C.P.R. rose to 10 to show a net gain of more than a point. Montreal Power, Brazilian were up fractions from their lows and Nickel climbed back to its previous close of 4 7-8. Ford of Canada firmed to 7.

The oil stocks, which had declined ¼ to 1 point, left off with a mixture of gains and losses but all the pivotal shares were above their extreme lows.

WALL STREET CLOSE

NEW YORK, May 26 (C.P.)—The Stock Market reversed itself and rallied briskly in the afternoon today, following news ticker reports of possible revival of the general sales tax in Congress. The turnover was the largest in weeks, approximating 2,000,000 shares, and the late tone was strong. An extreme loss of 5 points in American Tobacco "B" was sharply reduced, and a number of shares recovered to show net gains of 1 to 2 points, including American Can, American Telephone, Dupont, U. S. Steel, Union Pacific, Santa Fe, and Woolworth.

LOCOMOTIVES NAMED AFTER HUNT CLUBS

Most of Them Are Old Yorkshire Names

Leeds, Eng.—Fifteen new locomotives are to run on the northern lines in the near future, and they will be named after northern hunts, chiefly in Yorkshire.

The "Bramham Moor" recently came to Leeds.

CONFERENCE SEEN DAWN OF NEW ERA

mony was brief. Seated on the speaker's throne with the prime minister at his right and the government leader in the Senate at his left, Chief Justice Anglin gave assent to the bills passed recently.

This done, the speech from the throne was read in both languages. The clerk of the Senate then declared parliament formally prorgued, and members of the commons left the Senate chamber.

The closing ceremonies were not marked by a large attendance either in the Commons or the Senate. A large number of members had already left for their homes. The exodus will continue during the next day or so until the parliament buildings have returned to their usual between session quiet.

Dawn of New Era.

The belief that the coming Imperial Economic Conference may develop a power "which will bring enduring harmony out of economic chaos and provide the wise and courageous leadership which in other times of universal stress, the world looked for and obtained from the British peoples," was declared in the Speech from the Throne.

"Canada believes that the closer economic association of the British Empire will herald the dawn of a new and greater era of prosperity both for ourselves and for all the nations of the earth," the speech concludes.

This optimistic note is carried through the brief speech. The fortitude and patience with which the Canadian people have "endured the trials and hardships of these troubled times," is commended. These same qualities, the speech declares, will enable them to surmount whatever difficulties may yet arise before the return of prosperity.

Legislation passed is given brief reference in the speech. Unemployment relief legislation has already achieved an amelioration of conditions, it is stated. Measures for distribution of Maritime Province coal will better conditions in that part of Canada. The Radio Act provides the necessary assurance against foreign interference with Canadian broadcasting, and ensures equality of service to the Canadian people. The trade agreement with New Zealand "is a further step towards closer Empire economic association." The inquiry and report of the committee on Civil Service matters "prepared the way for a reorganization of the Civil Service Commission and the better administration of matters pertaining to the Civil Service."

Honourable Members of the Senate:

Members of the House of Commons:

I desire to thank you for the careful attention you have given to the various measures submitted for your consideration during the present session of parliament. The zealous discharge of your duties manifests alike, a deep concern for the welfare of Canada and an unshaken confidence in its future.

It is gratifying to observe that the program of economy for the current fiscal year will ensure relative equalization of revenues and expenditures, and that the additional monies necessary to provide for the public service will be obtained without adverse effect upon the cost of living or impairment of the national credit.

Improvement Forecast

My government's policy of unemployment and farm relief, consistently and vigorously pursued, has already achieved an amelioration of conditions and forecasts steady and continued improvement in both agrarian and industrial communities.

The means by which a larger area of distribution has been secured for the coal production of the maritime provinces will do much to relieve conditions heretofore prevailing in that part of the Dominion.

The measure for national ownership and control of radio broadcasting provides the necessary assurance against foreign interference with broadcasting from Canadian sources, and ensures to our people, without regard to class or place, equality of service from the new broadcasting system to be inaugurated as soon as practicable.

The commercial agreement negotiated with the Dominion of New Zealand and ratified by parliament is a further step towards closer empire economic association based upon the principle of reciprocal benefits.

The enquiry by a committee of the House of Commons into the operation of the Civil Service Act prepares the way for a reorganization of the Civil Service Commission and the better administration of matters pertaining to the Civil Service.

Among other important measures enacted were bills respecting the Patent Act, unfair competition in trade and commerce, the export of gold, insurance, the Fisheries Act, the Judges' Act, the Excise Act, the Companies' Act, the Soldiers' Settlement Act and the Railway Act.

Approval has been given the British Commonwealth shipping agreement, the international convention for the amelioration of conditions of the wounded and sick in armies in the field, the international convention relative to the treatment of prisoners of war, the international convention for limiting the manufacture and regulating the distribution of narcotic drugs.

BANK OF MONTREAL REPORTS CONDITION OF MARKED STRENGTH

Members of the House of Commons:

I thank you for the provision you have made for the public service.

I do sincerely commend the fortitude and patience with which the Canadian people have endured the trials and hardships of these troubled times. Those attributes have equipped them to surmount whatever difficulties may yet be encountered before prosperity returns. Recurring disturbances in world conditions have hindered our progress. The prosperity we rightly expected before this time has been by them delayed. For no nation can alone resist the influence of the universal disruption of financial and industrial conditions.

Near at hand are the means by which this country, organized and prepared, may hasten its economic recovery. Within two months time an economic conference of the countries which compose the British Empire will meet at Ottawa. From that conference may arise a power which will bring enduring harmony out of economic chaos, and provide the wise and courageous leadership which in other times of universal stress, the world looked for and obtained from the British peoples. Canada believes that the closer economic association of the British Empire will herald the dawn of a new and greater era of prosperity both for ourselves and for all the nations of the earth.

In relieving you from attendance upon your parliamentry duties, I pray that divine providence may guide and bless you.

Total Assets Are $748,612,481 to Meet Payment of Liabilities of $672,310,882.

EXCESS OF $76,301,599.

The semi-annual statement of the Bank of Montreal, as of April 30th, makes a very strong exhibit. The outstanding features are represented by an increase in the holdings of gilt-edged securities, a gain in liquid assets to an amount equal to 57.34 per cent. of liabilities to the public—evidence that the bank is in a position to meet any increase in the requirements of its many customers.

The statement, in easily understandable form, appears elsewhere in this issue and affords an opportunity of obtaining a comprehensive view of the Bank's strong position.

Total assets are reported at $748,612,431, compared with $786,897,706 a year ago. Of this amount quickly available, or liquid, assets are $385,483,225. Included among these liquid assets is cash in vaults and in Central Gold Reserve amounting to $78,491,119, equal to 11.67% of public liabilities.

Increase in Bond Holdings

The most important change in liquid assets is represented by an increase in government and other bonds and debentures to a total of $228,901,146. These are recognized as gilt-edged securities, the greater portion of which mature at early dates. Included among them are Dominion and Provincial government securities of a value of $174,730,246, up from $149,229,626 a year ago. Call loans outside of Canada are $30,362,324 and are secured by bonds, stocks, and other negotiable securities of greater value than the loans and represent moneys quickly available without any disturbing effect on conditions in Canada.

Call loans in Canada secured by bonds and stocks of greater value at current quotations than the loans stand at $5,645,610, as compared with $11,347,467 at the same date last year.

The total of current loans made to manufacturers, farmers, merchants and others, is reported at $336,572,388.

Deposits have held up remarkably well under prevailing conditions. Total deposits are reported at $636,701,061.

Total assets of $748,612,481 are available to meet payment of liabilities to the public of $672,310,882, which leaves an excess of assets over these liabilities of $76,301,599.

Profit and Loss Account

The profit for the six months amounted to $2,589,292.70 as compared with $2,771,753.71 for the corresponding period last year. The profits were distributed as follows: dividends, $2,160,000.00; provision for taxes Dominion Government, $226,316.28, and reservation for bank premises, $100,000.00, leaving a balance of $100,976.42. This when added to the balance carried forward at the end of the fiscal year brought the total at the credit of profit and loss to $1,204,403.37.

CANADIAN HISTORY

Another Road

"We have seen during the ten years or so after the war, great efforts towards the reconstruction of Europe. They still continue. The long vista of international conferences lengthen every year. Next month, Lausanne will be added to the list. A long and weary road. But there is another road—the road that will lead from Ottawa.

"If a start is made there with a plan for the development of an area, Empire wide, within which would be opportunities for extending exchange of goods and services, there may be hope of getting the machine of business going again," he said. "If we could only once reverse the trend of depression and get started again, we should not only help ourselves in Canada, but help the British Empire and the rest of the world to start again with a renewal of hope and confidence."

Studded With Landmarks

The history of the nation was studded with landmarks, the Governor General continued. "Few of us have the leisure to study closely the flat, monotonous levels that make up so much of the landscape of history; it is the high peaks, standing out against the background of time, that impress themselves on our minds." Canadian history was studded with such landmarks, and the conference promised to be just as important as any in history.

"Of course, we must not expect a new heaven and a new earth to spring into life on July 21, simply because that is the day the representatives of the Empire meet at Ottawa," he warned. "Things do not happen so easily as that. To give vent to an unrestrained and unreasoning optimism is as foolish and almost, if not quite, as dangerous as wallowing in pessimism."

Governments could not make trade—they could only help or hinder it," His Excellency said. Trade was made by the people themselves who were engaged in industry and commerce. If they were active and enterprising, Government action could help them; if they were inactive or unenterprising, no Government intervention could save them, he maintained.

Be Up and Doing.

"It is no use our sitting with hands folded waiting for political leaders to announce policies — we must be up and doing. Our salvation to that extent lies in our hands. At best some time must elapse after the conference, whatever its decisions, before practical results can ensue.

"But the close and friendly contact of the political leaders of the Empire will in itself be a good thing, as will the contact of the industrialists and business men who will flock to Canada this summer from all parts on account of the conference," said His Excellency.

the certificate of ownership about which so much has been said. He says it omits mention of the transfer of registry of the Gypsum Queen from Parrsboro to Barbados. I say, confidently, that omission of the transfer did not make the slightest difference from the start.

"I submit," Mr. Forsyth asserted, "that if the fact of the transfer had been noted on the certificate, the Reparations Commissioner would have acted exactly as he did because he had before him at the same time a statement from the Canadian High Commissioner's Office in London to the effect that the British Admiralty listed the Gypsum Queen as an ordinary marine loss and not a victim of submarine action."

WALKER FIGHTS FOR HIS OFFICE

Charges Examination is Prelude to Requesting Governor to Remove Him.

SEABURY LEADS ATTACK.

NEW YORK, May 26. — Mayor James J. Walker, charged on the stand to-day that his being called as a witness before the Hofstadter Legislative Committee was in fact merely "an examination before trial" and a prelude to requesting the Governor to remove him from office.

"It begins to look as if someone were after my life," he asserted.

Samuel Seabury, chief counsel of the committee, who is examining the Mayor as to his administration of the city, replied that the Mayor's outburst was nothing but "a cheap political stump speech."

Assemblyman Irving Steingut charged the committee had spent "all but $87,000 or $750,000 appropriated to the committee, and that by the end of this month, the committee would have spent it all. "All o fthis money has been spent by counsel," Steingut shouted, "to remove this man from office and he can't do it."

"That statement is unqualifiedly false, and the Assemblyman knew it was when he made it," Seabury said.

JOCKEY HAS BAD DAY AT THE AYR RACES

Twice Thrown, Finishes Last, and Left at Post

Ayr, Scotland.—D. McGuigan, Scottish jockey, had an experience at Ayr races, which is perhaps without parallel in the history of horse-racing.

After winning on the favorite in the first race and finishing last in the third race, a chapter of accidents began. Forest Knight, his mount in the fourth race, charged the tapes and threw him. North British, which he rode in the next race, also unshipped him and galloped off the reverse way of the course.

In the final race, McGuigan rode an outsider, Mr. Ford, but the horse was so little interested in anything concerning starting that when the tapes went up he stood where he was and remained there until Ether, No Parking, and Bottled Stout had finished in that order.

30 PER CENT. ALL HUMAN ILLNESS DUE TO PSYCHOLOGICAL FACTORS

More Responsibility in Mental Health Now Resting With Medical Profession.

WIDE SURVEY URGED.

TORONTO, May 26 (C.P.)—Investigation shows nearly 30 per cent of all human illness is due to psychological and environment factors, declared Dr. C. M. Hincks, Toronto, in addressing the joint convention of the Canadian Public Health and Ontario Health Officers' Associations here to-day.

"The time has come when the medical profession must bear a larger share of responsibility in regard to mental health than has been the case in the past," he declared. "Many physicians have been prone to confine their attention to the physical factors connected with illness and have ignored, too largely, consideration of the human personality—of the emotions and of mental states that may be contributory to ill health. Unless physicians and public health officers assume leadership in this field, progress will be slow in stemming the rising tide of mental smaladies," he said.

Advocates Wide Survey

A Dominion-wide survey of public health was advocated by Dr. Gordon Bates, secretary of the Canadian Social Hygiene Council, who urged that if only a small proportion of the $1,311,000,000 paid for sickness and sudden death each year was spent on preventive medicine, much suffering would be spared. A Royal Commission should investigate the whole Dominion, he thought.

Public health budgets should not be reduced because of the depression, in the opinion of Dr. Louis I. Dublin, President of the American public Health Association, who said, "It is too much to hope that the depression will leave the people untouched and their health unimpaired."

ANIMAL PETS AT NEW LOW PRICES

Pair Lions $1,500, Elephant $2,000, Polar Bear $350, Turkeston Porcupine at $40.

BOSTON, Mass. May 26.— That old-fashioned custom of having an ordinary dog or tom-cat around the house will go by the board as soon as the public realize real showy pets may be acquired dirt-cheap. According to a price list submitted by a New York animal dealer to circus men, you may pick up a canus procyonides, for only $300. Cost one of these and your neighbor's scrubby police dog will look like a fox-hunt, for a canus procyonides is a raccoon dog from the heart of Africa.

Or, if you wish to be a bit flashy, walk down the street with a pair of lions on leash. You may have them for a mere $1,500. A nice big jaguar is listed at $1,200, and an orang-outang may be had for $2,000. Depression prices! And look at these: Turkestan porcupine $40, pair, Australian swans or single black-neck swan $100, polar bear $350, Aldabra tortoise (weighing 210 pounds) $325.

Not interested? Well, here's a snap: a big Siberian tiger for only $4,500. Then again you may want something snappier; a Cape buffalo from Africa, the most ferocious living animal, for $600. If it so happens you are a cross-word pussle fan, you may have an emu for the same price.

Now here's a thought. Sold your car this year? Then you may have a pair of Bactian camels for $750, about $600 under the regular price. A patagonian hare is practically given away at $40, or an Indian elephant, standing four and a half feet high, and guaranteed sound in wind and limb, for $2,000. A four-year old male hippopotamus will set you back only $2,500 and a pair of pigmy hippos are available at $3,500.

Birds? Plenty of them. Here is a European magpie for $7, a jackdaw for $6. A female Japanese robin costs $3, and the male of that species will go for $4.50. A Marabou stork sells for $125, but a pair of European storks will go for $80, and a European bluejay will be yours for $6.

No pupils under 17 will take part in tugs-of-war in England, girls under 18 will be banned from the long jump, and cross-country runs for boys under 17 will be limited to three miles, if the recommendations of the recent conference on school athletics are adopted.

Marmora Girl Guides Will Dedicate Tree

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, May 26. — The First Marmora Company of Girls' Guides held a short meeting on Monday. After opening with the Lord's Prayer, plans were made for three events which are to take place within a week. On Friday afternoon the Company dedicates a tree on the grounds of Marmora Continuation School. On Saturday the Company participates in a field day, which the Deloro Company is putting on. On Sunday the Guides parade to St. Paul's Anglican church for divine service at 11 a.m. After plans had been outlined the girls indulged in some songs, and wound up the meeting with "O Canada," and the National Anthem.

MUSIC RECITAL WELL RECEIVED

Pleasing Program Given by Pupils of Miss Margaret Werry.

IN OMEMEE HALL

OMEMEE, May 26 (Examiner Correspondence)—The recital given by the piano and vocal pupils of Miss Margaret Werry in the basement of Trinity United Church on Wednesday evening was interesting from many standpoints.

Fine training was in evidence from the first to the last number on the varied program in the work of both senior and junior pupils. In the first number "Lullaby" (J. Brahms) Jean Fee and Evelyn Bigelow showed technical ability, the former playing again in a duet with Francis Fee in a number entitled, "The Carmel Train" (W. Baines).

A pleasing interlude in the instrumental music were the solos by Dorothy Anderson, who sang "In the Glad Springtime" (Jack Thompson) while in a chorus "cherry Song" Miss Anderson's group composed of three others, Jean Fee, Evelyn Bigelow and Evelyn Morcombe delighted the audience once more.

Miss Margaret Werry played in duet with her clever pupils Helen Parker, "Sing Sing," (Stella Linsey) and again appeared in a vocal duet with G. Devitt, singing, "When Song is Sweet" (Gertrude Mana Souci).

The piano duet "A Coquettish Belle" (H. Englemann) was played in perfect harmony by Jean Staples and Dorthy Anderson as also was the piano duet, "Jolly Darkies" rendered by Ethel Steele and Grace Robertson. Artistic ability in interpretation was shown in the piano solos "Flotila March" (Maude Hart) played by Betty Dezell. "Santa Claus Guards" (C. Krogmann Op. 15 No. 2) played by Reta Thibodeau; "Lullaby" (John Williams) by Bobby Burke; "Waltz in F. Major" (Mathilde Relbro) Hazel Mulligan; "Evening Prayer" (John Williams) Ethelmae Earl; "Elegie" (Emile Dupont) Grace Crowe; "The First Violet" (A. Tellier Op. 14) Elenor Thurston; "L'Avalanche" (Stephen Helbr) Norma Jackson; "Daisy Scottische" (Ed. Muller) Florence Sloan; "On the Lake" (Myrtle C. Hopkirk, Op. 5, No. 4) Gladys McNevin; "Rose Petals" (Paul Lawson) Betty Mosure; "Danube Waltz" (Strauss) played by Grenville Loucks; "Magic Dancer" (Robert Goedeler) Rhea Magee; "Sunset on St. Lawrence (Maxime Heller) Mona Falls; "Minuet in G" (Beethoven) Dorothy Germyn; "Purple Pansies" (J. L. Gevria) Bernice Kellett; "Pleasures of Spring" (Gustav Merkel) Kathleen "Venetian Serenade" (Arthur L. Brown, Op. 14) Myrtle Kennedy; "Nodding Daisies" (J. S. Fearis) Joyce Bottum; "Minuet" (J. J. Paderewiski) Marjorie Henderson; "Polonaise" (Chopin Op. 40, No 1) Sheila Tully.

The work of Miss Werry and Mrs. Bilk in the vocal duet, "When Shadows Fall' was excellent with the outstanding characteristic of a sweet melody.

During the evening a beautiful bouquet of roses, carnations and snapdragons was presented to Miss Werry.

Rev. Mr. Blanchard acted as chairman and Mr. Taylor, organist of First United Church, Lindsay, gave a short address in which he praised the teacher for her splendid work.

AIRWAYS LINK 130 EUROPEAN CITIES TO GREAT BRITAIN

New Service Brings Spain, Italy and Sweden Within 12 Hours.

OF CROYDON AIRPORT

LONDON, May 26 (C.P.)—Summer services on the great international network of European airways, which have now been brought into operation, are this year so interconnected as a result of international conferences that they provide regular daily air services from London to as many as 130 European cities and towns.

No fewer than 69 of these Continental air destinations, some in countries as distant from Britain as Spain, Italy and Sweden, can be reached in less than 12 hours, while there are now few districts in the whole of Europe which are more than two days from London by air.

The summer time-table of the Imperial Airways' European services just issued shows air routes radiating from London to France, Germany, Belgium, Holland, and Switzerland, which connect with the air lines of other European countries to form this fast Continental air network.

This year air transport takes on yet another phase, in which all the luxury of modern travel are allied with the speed, safety, and reliability of the powerful multi-engined air express.

On each of the four-engined machines, operating to and from London, which are the largest and most luxurious of their kind in the world, two uniformed stewards are now carried and are able, from their well-equipped buffets, to supply travellers with a complete service of mid-air meals and refreshments.

On the early morning service to Paris, for example, leaving the London air-station at 8.30 a.m., breakfast is served while en route to the French capital, and on the mid-day service to and from Paris a four-course lunch is provided during the flight. On the new summer evening service, which leaves the London air-station at six o'clock and reaches the Paris air port at 8.15 p.m. dinner is now served regularly while the air-liner is flying smoothly at more than 100 miles an hour.

The saloons of these big multi-engined machines are as large and as luxuriously equipped as those of a railway Pullman car; while the placing of the engines away from the body of the machine and use of sound-deadening material in the hull structure, now makes flying so quiet that conversation is easily possible without any raising of the voice.

The accelerated time-schedules which are possible owing to the use of these fast and powerful machines now make it possible to leave London in the morning for Paris, take breakfast while in the air and then spend nearly seven hours in the French capital before taking the return air service for London, enjoying dinner while aloft, and the reaching air-port of Croydon being at 8.15 p.m.

It is also possible for a business man with an urgent appointment in Switzerland to fly to Basle by morning service, have an interview there on any pressing question which may have arisen, and then fly back in time to reach London again that same evening.

There are now two weekly Empire air-mail departures from London. The 8,000 miles service to Cape Town leaves the Croydon air-port each Wednesday at six p.m., and by relays of aeroplanes and flying-boats reaches Cape Town 11 days later, while the weekly India air-mail is scheduled to ascend from Croydon each Saturday at six p.m., doing the 5,000 miles flight to Karachi in six days.

Now that Imperial Airways are operating a complete through route to Cape Town, as well as India and Continental services, the company's fleet of powerful multi-engined aircraft is flying regularly over approximately 14,000 miles of aerial routes, along which there are 50 main and intermediate air-stations.

FIND LETTER 125 YEARS OLD

TRURO, N.S., May 26.—A letter, written in 1807, was found between the bricks of an old fireplace at Belmont recently by a young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Lambourne. The envelope was yellowed with age but postmark, "Amherst, N.S., May 7, 1807," was clearly legible. The letter, written in Philadelphia by Orland Johnson, a sea captain, to his brother, John G. Johnson, is in a good state of preservation and can be easily read.

JAPANESE SEE FAR EAST DRIFT TO NEW CRISIS

Emigres Believed Likely to Force Clash With Russia.

ACTIVE IN MONGOLIA

TOKYO.—Despite vigorous protestations of friendship in both Moscow and Tokyo and an active campaign for "co-operation" in sections of the press in both Russia and Japan, there are many indications that Russo-Japanese relations have drifted into dangerous waters and that a skilful pilot will be need to avert a wreck.

It is no secret that a section of military opinion here has favored striking Russia before the Soviet industrial program has advanced to a point where victory for Japanese arms would be doubtful. Many leaders of the Japanese army believe they could defeat the Soviets easily at this time and could occupy and hold the Siberian maritime provinces and the Amur River Valley. If Russia's industrialisation continues for a few years more, however, they think that success would be impossible for Japanese arms.

A big steel plant which the Soviet has constructed and is operating in western Siberia is viewed by the general staff here as an important part in the Russian military program. Japan followed construction of this plant with no small amount of apprehension and plans have been completed for a rival plant in Manchuria. Much of the machinery for the proposed Japanese plant was bought months ago in Germany and a large part of it has been on the docks at Dairen for the past six months, awaiting a decision as to the location of the plant. A section of Japanese opinion wants the plant in Manchuria and another wants it in Korea, asserting that no more money should be invested in Manchuria until Japan's position there is finally assured.

Disappearing Rolling Stock

Confidential and uncensored advices from a British source in Harbin, which ordinarily is not sympathetic to Japanese aspirations in Manchuria, stated that Moscow, late in March, refused to allow further transport of Japanese troops on the east branch of the Chinese Eastern Railway — from Harbin to Pogranichnaya—and that the Japanese military command was obliged to hire 70 motortrucks to carry 1,500 troops.

The same source alleges that the Soviet authorities of the railway, with the connivance of their Chinese colleagues, have removed a considerable part of the rolling stock of the Chinese Eastern Railway across the borders into Siberia.

Japan, however, has retained control of the south branch of the railway between Changchun and Harbin, and has partial control of the west branch from Harbin as far as Tsitsihar.

Harbin reports also state that the Soviet railway authorities removed vast quantities of Manchurian grain, stored along the railway, into Russia, and that this movement reached a point where the food supplies of North Manchuria were endangered. These reports are confirmed in the Japanese press, which last month published an order of the Mancuhrian Government prohibiting further grain "exports" to Russia.

Emigres Foment Friction

White Russian emigres, of whom there are more than 150,000 in Manchuria, welcomed the Japanese with open arms when they reached Harbin and have been busy fomenting friction between the Japanese military and the Soviets ever since. There are no more persistent propagandists in the world than the White Russians and their efforts have done much to increase the tension under which everybody in north aManchuria is laboring.

Foreign observers feel that White Russian bands are liable to deliberately start a dangerous situation by staging an "incident," designed to cause a collision between Soviet and Japanese armed forces. The headquarters of the old White Russian organization in Paris also is described as doing what it can to foment suspicion in Europe.

Japanese free traders have been active in Mongolia for years and have resented the activities of Soviet agents in this area. Much of the Mongolian wool trade formerly was controlled by the Japanese, who sent cargoes from Mongolia to Siberia. Soviet penetration, however, stopped this trade and diverted all cargoes toward Moscow. With the extension of Japanese military influence, however, the Japanese traders again have become active and have sent agents into far parts of Outer Mongolia to compete with the Soviets.

Trains German Shepherd Dogs For Dominion Meet

GERMAN SHEPHERD DOGS SHOW ALMOST HUMAN INTELLIGENCE.

Nearly a hundred German shepherd dogs, trained by their owners, are being prepared for the field trials of the German Shepherd Dog Club of Canada, to be held in September under the jurisdiction of the Canadian Kennel Club. On the grounds of Upper Canada College, Toronto, the obedience and intelligence of the dogs was demonstrated at the semi-monthly training exercises in preparation for the Dominion trials. They did everything from barking their ages and working out addition and subtraction problems to marching in military formation, marking time, wheeling and doubling, merely at the direction of Secretary A. C. Corry, and without leashes. The stately Wolfe von Stettin, owned by C. W. Radford, sat up and showed the children how to balance a rubber ball on his nose, as shown in (3) above. R. Thornton's Silver, seen in (1), ran after a pigeon and brought it back to its owner unharmed. Edward Archibald's Bijou, which holds international ribbons for senior training performance, took the basket (2) to the other end of the field and returned to her master. "Take this ball and put it in the basket and bring me the keys back," said Mr. Archibald. And the dog followed his instructions without a "break."

Amoy Linked With Boston "Tea Party"

BOSTON, Mass. May 26.—Amoy, threatened by an indspendent Chinese army, played an important part in the story of the Boston "Tea Party" of 1773. In that year, three ships laden with tea sailed from Amoy Harbor—one of the best in the Pacific, according to the National Geographic Society—to Boston. The townspeople were enraged at having to pay heavy duties on the cargoes and, when the ships did not turn back, fifty men, dressed and painted like Indians, boarded the vessels, broke open the chests and flung the tea into the salt water.

But Amoy's expanse of sheltered water floats few tea shipments today. Once it was the world's premier tea export centre. The greatest blow to the trade came in 1894 when Japan took possession of Formosa, where most of the Amoy tea originated. Tea from Fukien Province still finds its way to the world's tea cups by way of Amoy, but the traffic is a mere trickle compared to the flow through the port in its heyday.

Amoy, population 114,000, is about five hundred miles south of Shanghai in Fukien Province, three hundred miles north of Hong Kong and Canton, and one hundred and twenty-five miles from the island of Formosa, which lies to the eastward. The city is situated on an island of Formosa, which lies to the eastward. The city is situated on an island thirty-five miles in circumference, which lies three miles off the mainland of Kukien. Arms from the mainland and rows of small islands almost inclose an extensive bay which form Amoy's admirable harbor. Because of its excellence, the port was chosen in 1908 as a place of entertainment for one of the sections of the United States round-the-world fleet.

Girls Are Injured Pushing Into Trial

LONDON, May 26 (C.P.).—Several young women were injured today while attempting to push their way into Church House, Westminster, where the Rev. H. F. Davidson, 69-year-old rector of Stiffkey, is being tried on charges of immorality.

Sensational testimony during the last few days resulted in a large crowd of aspirant spectators when the court reconvened this morning.

After a struggle in which several girls were painfully crushed, police got control and locked the doors of Church House. They locked out hundreds of persons.

HITLERISM FACES TEST IN PRUSSIA

Braun Cabinet Resigns and Results Affect All Germany.

COALITION BROKEN UP

BERLIN, May 26—Formal resignation of the Braun Cabinet in Prussia lays open the way for a recasting of political alignments in Prussia—alterations which will be felt throughout the entire German Government.

The situation is much the same as if all of the United States east of the Rockies comprised one single state, controlling more than one-third of the federal advisory council empowered to veto acts of Congress. Its politics would be seriously felt in the national capital. So it is with Prussia, which is four-fifths of the German Reich and which controls 26 of the 66 seats in the Federal Council.

The major question facing Prussian political negotiators is whether the Centre Party (Roman Catholic) and Herr Adolf Hitler's National Socialists will form a coalition. For the election gave a majority to neither Right nor Left. It also swept control away from the "Weimar Coalition"—the Centre—which for 10 years had governed in Prussia.

Centrists Face Problem

The Centre Party was a member of this group, which included also the Social Democrats and State Party. So the problem facing the Centre at the moment is whether it must become a member of the opposition or retain a part of its control by giving Herr Hitler's Fascists the votes needed to form a government.

To-day, on the eve of opening the Prussian Landtag these two parties are still jockeying in an effort to gain control of any coalition.

Herr Hitler, addressing a caucus of National Socialist Deputies, declared the Fascist movement would not climax 13 years of fighting by "continuing the policy of the present government in any coalition."

The Roman Catholics, though officially criticising Herr Hitler's lack of willingness to shoulder the burdens of a coalition, appear to retain a measure of confidence that some agreement will be formed. They are believed willing to permit the National Socialists to elect the Speaker of the House.

More serious-minded admirers of Goethe, Germany's greatest son, are protesting against some of the souvenirs, including Goethe studs and tiepins, suspenders and garters, handkerchiefs and toothbrushes, issued to "celebrate" his centenary.

CRUISER SPEEDS PATIENT.

Steaming 4,240 miles across the Atlantic at top speed the British cruiser York has arrived at Plymouth, England, where it sent a member of the crew, suffering from cerebro-spinal meningitis (spotted fever) to a hospital. Part of the voyage was through a fierce gale. The York (8,400 tons) went to a quarantine station five miles from Port of Spain, Trinidad, at the end of January, when part of the Atlantic Fleet was visiting Trinidad, owing to the outbreak of the disease. Serum was rushed to the warship by air, and it was thought by the authorities that it would be more expedient that the patient should be taken home in the York than landed in Trinidad for treatment. On the way, as the condition of the man caused anxiety, the order was given for full speed.

When Princetown, England, home of Dartmoor Prison, was chosen recently as an assize town in which court could be held in connection with the recent prison rioting, schools were closed for half a day so that children could celebrate.

NIAGARA-ON-LAKE SEEKS TO UNSEAT ITS MAYOR

NIAGARA - ON - THE - LAKE, Ont., May 26 (C.P.). — Unseating proceedings against Reeve W. H. Harrison are under way to-day, following a special meeting of the Town Council at which the Mayor and Clerk were instructed to institute action immediately.

Allegations that Reeve Harrison had sold materials to the town or contractors when he was Mayor last year, and that at the time of his declaration he was in arrears of taxes led to the Council's actions.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT RULED ULTRA VIRES BY JUDGE

Quebec Act Patterned After Ontario Usurps Judicial Powers.

LAW UNCONSTITUTIONAL.

MONTREAL, May 26 (C.P.).—The Quebec Workmen's Compensation Commission, as well as part of the Workmen's Compensation Act itself, was declared illegal and unconstitutional yesterday by Mr. Justice De Lorimer of the Superior Court, in a judgment in which he reviewed the whole composition of Canadian courts, scored the Provincial Legislature for appointing persons who "usurped the functions of Judges of the Superior Court," and declared that by so doing the Legislature attacked the "conscience and independence of His Majesty's Puisne Judges."

Because some acts of the Provincial Legislature had not been repudiated by the Federal Government or others, it was not to be assumed that this implied an admission of their validity, Justice De Lorimer wrote in his judgment.

Ultra Vires.

Section 36 of the Workmen's Compensation Act declared that compensation for industrial accidents should be sought by application to the Workmen's Compensation Commission. Having declared the Commission itself illegal and the Act creating it ultra vires of the Legislature, His Lordship necessarily declared the section of the Act also ultra vires.

Workmen's Compensation Comm' sioners, the Court ruled, usurped the functions of Judges of the Superior Court; the Province had no right to name them, he added, and in so doing it took away from the Governor-General an exclusive power given to him under the British North America Act The absence of provision in the Compensation Commission Act for the qualifications of the Commissioners was attacked in the judgment. It was pointed out that, under the Act, any one, lawyer or not, could be named to the Commission, even persons who had no qualifications whatever. The Judge also stated that if the Provinse was left undisturbed in its exercise of "these illegal powers," it could appoint Commissions to deal with all the different classes of accidents and take from the Judges of the Superior Court their exclusive right to decide all matters affecting civil rights.

The judgment followed upon submission to His Lordship of an action brought for $2,500 by Paul Slanec, a workman, against his employer, William Grimstead. Slanec attacked the constitutionality of the laws, and the Attorney-General, Hon. L. A. Taschereau, intervened to uphold them. His Lordship decided that he had not upheld them and that they were unconstitutional.

On Ontario Pattern.

Quebec's Workmen's Compensation Act is practically a copy, barring a few minor clauses, of the law which operates in the Province of Ontario. The Quebec legislation was fashioned after officials from that Province made a lengthy study of the working of the Ontario Act.

Mrs. H. V. Duncombe, Grassy Lake, Alta., writes:—"My husband was covered with boils, having as many as thirteen on his neck at once. Dreams of Canal to Link Mersey and Humber

Leeds, Eng.—The joining of the West Riding of Yorkshire to both the west and the east coasts by the construction of a canal linking the Mersey and the Humber is the dream of a Yorkshireman, who has been attempting to bring it to the notice of leading industrialists for years.

He is Mr. Walton Maughan, a mechanical engineer of Holmfirth, originator of the scheme for the making a census of traffic.

It it understood that the cost precludes such schemes of canal development. The Manchester-to-Leeds ship canal scheme has been postponed for this reason.

THEATRES

AT THE REGENT

POLA NEGRI IN "A WOMAN COMMANDS"

This is the story of that never-to-be-forgotten tragedy of Serbia, the tale of King Alexander and Queen Draga, whose terrible ending shocked the world a generation back. It seems strange that a hint of the origin of the talkie has not been given, as most people would find it all the more interesting, in knowing that it was based on fact, rather than fiction. It would take away a little of that melodramatic atmosphere that is injected into the picture by reason of the somewhat fantastic nature of the story, even though, as it happens, it was all true at one time.

The king and his hapless queen, the latter raised from commonlife to occupy a throne for a short and bloody term, were chased about their palace and murdered in cold blood, by their soldiers in the real-life story of years back. The picture spares this aspect of the finale, although the king goes out quickly enough.

Pola Negri stages a dramatic comeback in this picture. It seems odd that this youthful and beautiful lady can actually be the same person who used to weep large glycerine tears in the closeups of moving films, a quarter of a century back, but so it is. The charming Pola has kept splendid count of time.

She is Marie Draga and she takes the stage, from the first to the last moment. The only drawback to her acting is a trifle of staginess, just a hint of too much emphasis on the dramatic moments, a little of the older technique that has been supplanted by a freer, more real manner, in later years.

Whether the singing voice that accompanies a portion of her act is really hers or that of a "shadow," it is quite attractive, and her gowns are, as always, the last word in apparel for dramatic heroines.

She has a fine supporting cast, with Roland Young as the irrepressible and somewhat opera bouffe monarch, Basil Rathbone as the handsome lover, and the golden-voiced H. B. Warner as a Colonel of the Guard.

The talkie deals with the tragic career of Draga, beloved by a king, elevated to the throne, and then dethroned. It makes dramatic and interesting material for the return of the theatrical Polish star.

The program includes a musical "Subway" melange of song and dance, and one of the favored "Looney Tunes" that everyone likes. —Jeanette.

AT THE CAPITOL

BARBARA STANWYCK IN "SO BIG"

Many will remember Barbara Stanwyck as the fine actress who had the major role in "Ten Cents a Dance." She is the type that gives memorable performances—real, vital delineations of stories that grip the imagination.

In "So Big" there is something quite different to the ordinary run in talkies. It opens with the Chicago of the '90s, with the famous Palmer House as the setting for the first few scenes.

Selina Peake (Barbara Stanwyck) is the motherless daughter of a gambler, Simeon Peake, played by Robert Warwick, who, with George Brent, as the adult Roelf Pool, shares the unique distinction of having too short a time on the screen. Both are fine actors, in brief parts.

Simeon Peake is shot in a gambling hall and Selina is left alone in the world. When she goes to a small Dutch settlement as a teacher, her real life begins and progresses through many years until the years find her small son, with his baby name of "So Big" still clinging to him, as a grown young man.

It is one of the thought-provoking pictures that must be seen to be fully appreciated. Its heroine retains throughout that vital quality of brilliant freshness and real, sincere portrayal of the part that makes her work so extremely interesting. There is always the feeling that she has not yet reached the summit of her powers. She is the type of actress who had thrown the ordinary mechanics of acting into the discard and drawn for herself a newer, outstanding mode of expressing a character.

"So Big" has its moments of real life in the scenes from the little farming settlement. And then it makes the leap to modern days, with a bored and wealthy wife reaching out for Dirk De Yong ("So Big") as a new amusement.

There is a very pretty and clever actress in Bette Davis, acting as Dallas O'Mara, the successful young illustrator.

Allan Hale is the unlikeable and well-portrayed Klaas Pool.

Hal Roach presents his Collegian gang, with "Alabam" and his crowd, in a comedy of college life, and there is a notable Travel Talk that centers about London, "the city of tradition."—Jeannette.

EXPECT FRANCE WILL PAY DEBTS TO UNITED STATES

PARIS, May 26 (C.P.). — The Agence Economique et Financiere said to-day it understood France would sign an agreement with the United States next week providing for repayment, at 4 per cent., over a period of ten years, of the war debt annuity waived by the Hoover moratorium last June.

It was understood the arrangement to be made by France was the same as that already reported negotiated by Great Britain for repayment of her share of the delayed debt annuities.

At the United States Embassy it was stated all the negotiations are being carried on at Washington.

Y.W.C.A. BOARD HEARS REPORTS

Directors Are Elected for Coming Year at Annual Meeting.

YEAR'S WORK REVIEWED.

The following ladies were elected as members of the Board of Directors of the Young Women's Christian Association, on motion of the nominating committee at the annual meeting: Mrs. C. Cruikshank, honorary president; Mrs. E. E. Harvey, Mrs. H. R. H. Kenner, Mrs. R. Harstone, Mrs. H. C. Sootheran, Mrs. W. D. Scott, Mrs. R. H. Turner, Mrs. G. A. Macdonald, Mrs. W. R. Widdess, Mrs. D. F. Drummond, Mrs. N. D. Buchanan, Mrs. A. Moir, Mrs. G. E. Porter, Mrs. H. Wightman, Mrs. H. M. Yelland, Mrs. R. J. Kidd, Mrs. T. N. Greer, Mrs. B. Shortley, Mrs. V. Eastwood, Mrs. L. J. Leclair, Mrs. G. Boucher, Mrs. R. H. Parsons, Mrs. F. M. Somerville, Mrs. F. D. Kerr, Mrs. T. A. MacKay, Mrs. C. V. McLean, Miss M. Hamilton, Miss E. Morrow, Miss E. MacVannel, Miss A. Wood.

Mrs. Harvey presided for the session of the annual meeting, which was featured by the presentation of annual reports, giving an interesting outline of the work accomplished by the various departments during the past year.

The financial report was read by the treasurer, Miss E. Morrow.

Mrs. Harvey expressed regret at the resignation from the Board of Directors of Mrs. R. Neill and Miss L. Davidson, and hoped for their presence another year.

Reports of the year's work were given by the general secretary, Miss Leta Brownscombe; the residence superintendent, Mrs. E. Morrison, and the physical director, Miss C. F. Littlefield.

At the conclusion of the business session, tea was served, with Mrs. B. Shortley of the Social Committee in charge.

Year's Work.

Miss Brownscombe reviewed the general activities of the Association, and the various classes which pursue their work during the year. This year, she reported, one of the busiest departments was that connected with employment, with 55 applications for work and 82 employers wanting help. This year there was never less than fifty on the list, desiring employment.

A total of 335 girls were registered in the organized clubs.

Miss Brownscombe referred to the deficit of $306 as "not too serious, considering a year of unemployment, when class fees could not be expected to reach as high a total as in other years."

Receipts from the finance campaign in November totalled $1,993, leaving the Association 91 per cent. self-supporting.

Two bequests were received for the Endowment Fund from Mrs. B. Gardiner and Miss M. Dickson.

Miss Brownscombe expressed appreciation to the Board of Directors and committee members, to the friends, the enthusiastic members, the secretarial and household staff, to the Peterborough Examiner for publicity and to the citizens generally.

Mrs. Morrison's report showed the following in residence during the year: 19 Normal students, 4 Business College students, 1 school nurse, 5 teachers, 20 business girls, 4 to 6 unemployed ladies, with 8 coming in regularly for dinner. During the year, 300 transients were accommodated also.

A fire escape built during the year cost $375.

During the year, 19,900 beds were used, 450 to 475 pieces of laundry per week were sent, between 1,500 and 1,600 jars of fruit and pickles were done during the season.

Miss Littlefield reported for the physical department, showing a very busy year. In July alone, 1,008 girls attended the aggregate classes in this department.

The report reviewed the activities for the year and referred to the sum of $400 cleared by the Gymnasium Pageant.

HAVELOCK EFFICIENCY LEAGUE ENTERTAINS ON RALLY NIGHT

Trent River and Rush Point Groups Attend and Take Part in Program.

JOY SPENCER HONORED.

HAVELOCK, May 26 (Examiner Correspondence).—Monday evening last was rally night at the Efficiency League, when two other Rush Point and Trent River Leagues were the guests of the local society in the Sunday School room of the United Church.

A most enjoyable evening was spent by the joint societies, which was greatly augmented by the presence of Mr. Edgar Clark of the Peterborough Presbytery, who had read the contemplated rally in The Examiner and was present for the occasion.

The president, Miss Roberts on behalf of the Havelock League, welcomed Mr. Clark and the other visitors. The programme which was made up of numbers contributed by all three leagues, was a rather lengthy one, but as nevertheless greatly appreciated. Following are the numbers: Vocal solo, Miss Jean Pollock; recitation, Miss Robinson; violin solo, Mr. Denike Fennell; reading, Leap Year in Havelock, L. Keating; vocal duett, Messrs. Henry Campney and Everard Chiles; violin solo, Helen Buchanan; vocal solo, In the garden of my heart, Miss Edith Roberts; community singing, all present; vocal duet, Misses Helen and Margaret Brown; Mr. Clark, president of Peterborough Presbytery was asked to address the meeting and chose for his subject, Character; recitation, Miss E. Wanamaker; vocal solo, Henry Campney; harmonica solo, Mr. Gavan Buchanan; vocal duett, Gerald Buchanan and V. Chaplin, accompanied on piano by Mrs. Chaplin; reading Mrs. Chaplin; violin solo, Mr. Lawson.

The remainder of the evening was spent in games charades and contests in which all joined. Dainty refreshments were afterwards served by the local members, and a delightful evening was thus brought to a close.

Joy Spencer May Queen

Miss Joy Spencer, daughter of the late Chas. Spencer and Mrs. Spencer of Havelock, has won the much coveted honor of being elected May Queen of Whitby Ladies College, the highest position in the gift of her fellow students and the college faculty. She will preside over the big celebration on the campus some day this week. Last year Joy was a member of the college directorate. She has been attending the college almost three years.

Havelock may well be proud of Miss Spencer, who during the short time she was a student of the local Continuation School, won for herself a warm place in the regard of her fellow students, by her amiable and sunny disposition.

Busy Spot

Havelock, a village with a population of approximately one thousand is perhaps the most highly organized place in the County of Peterborough. There are four churches, Anglican, Catholic, Presbyterian and United, and a Gospel Hall. Each church has several organizations, the W.M.S., Women's Missionary Societies, Women's Auxiliary, Young Peoples, besides the Board of Managers, Elders, etc.

In addition to this there are Masonic Lodge, Oddfellows, Independent Order of Foresters, Canadian Order Foresters, Chosen Friends, Loyal Orange Lodges, several of them, Ladies' Orange Benevolent Association, Eastern Star, Rebekah's, Women's Institute, Junior and Senior; Albion Club, Junior and Senior; Agricultural Society, Horticultural Society, Recreation Club, Golf Club, Fish and Game Protective Association, Bowling Club. Besides these there is a Ladie's Bridge Club, and Girl Guides Company. If any other place in the district can beat this record we would like to hear of it.

WORK COMMENCED ON SERVICE STATION

Oshawa Man Given Contract to Build Station in City.

Having recently acquired the title to land at the north-east corner of Reid and McDonnel Streets, James E. Hughes of Water Street, this city, has completed plans for the erection of an automobile gas and service station which will probably be completed early in July. The property commanding a strategic position at one of the main entrances to the city on Highway No. 7, was formerly owned by W. H. Bradburn, and had lately been used as a miniature golf course.

The contract for the erection of the service station is held by D. Moiser of Oshawa, at a sum of $3,000.00. Mr. Hughes expects that the station, when completed, will be rented by one of the principle oil companies operating in Canada.

Specifications call for a concrete foundation 4 feet in height and 10 inches thick; exterior walls stucco finish, and interior walls of gyproc. The roof is to be covered with asphalt, with shingled front and tar and gravel at the rear.

NEW CANADIANS ARE ASSISTED

I.O.D.E. Groups Report Sending Magazines to Western Settlers.

PROVE BOON.

TORONTO, May 26.— (C.P.) — Work among new Canadians was outlined in the report of the immigration committee, Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire, presented to the annual convention of that body here to-day. Members of the committee from every province in the Dominion joined in presenting the report of the work accomplished.

Naturalization cards were now being distributed, the report said, and many new Canadians displayed their proudly.

"Another feature which was new to the immigration department was the sending of reading matter regularly to settlers." One chapter of the order in Saskatchewan had sent more than 1,000 pounds of magazines to settlers, while Alberta reported sending 8,000 magazines and 500 books to settlers and newcomers to the country.

"What this amount of reading matter means to lonely people whose means barely cover necessities and certainly do not run to magazine subscriptions can be imagined better than described," the report continues.

Immigration had dropped off considerably, the committee stated. In Quebec, "the port of entry for seven months of the year, there were 7,937 arrivals during the year as compared with 24,110 the previous season."

The Weather

TORONTO, May 26 (C.P.) — Pressure continues high over the southeast States, the Northwest Territories and on the Pacific Coast with a trough of low extending from the St. Lawrence Valley across the Great Lakes to the Southwest States. The weather has been cool with scattered showers in the Western Provinces, rather warm to the Eastward of the Great Lakes, with heavy thunderstorms over Western Ontario and light scattered showers from Eastern Ontario to the Maritime Provinces.

It is estimated that 2,400,000 new households will be created in Germany before 1940.

CHEST CLINIC IS ORGANIZED

Health Association Plans to Combat Consumption in City.

FUND URGENTLY NEEDED.

The Health Association in its work throughout the city has found that tubercular adults were moving about in the community, coming in contact with whomever they happened to meet. Further, a number of the children at the summer camp were found to be potential tubercular patients. In order to help combat this condition, the Association at a recent meeting decided to advance a step further and take on additional work. Consequently a Chest Clinic was organized for those unable to pay. This does not mean any additional call for funds from the Association's supporters, it only means additional work for the doctors who are already freely giving so much of their time and service throughout the entire year. It was not the intention of the Association to launch a Chest Clinic this year, but cases of cold and poverty have aggravated and increased the number of tubercular patients, and of course increased the contacts in the community. This is an additional burden taken on in connection with all the other work among the poor and needy that is being constantly carried on throughout the entire year. It's a burden that in the name of suffering humanity must be carried by some one, and consequently the Association cheerfully shoulders all of this additional work. The Health Association is nearly self-supporting, all it asks from the public whom it so greatly benefits is only one thousand dollars to ensure the continuance of the work for an entire year. Please send your contributions to Mr. Borland, treasurer, at the Bank of Toronto.

Second False Alarm Within Eleven Days

For the second time in a period of eleven days false alarms have been turned in from Box 51 at the corner of George and Brock streets, which have caused the dispatch from the Fire Hall of the complete equipment. Incidentally both alarms were turned in shortly after noon, on each occasion.

When the brigade arrived at the scene to-day the Fire Chief was informed that the box had been pulled by a small boy, who was accompanied by his sister. The children had been standing in the vicinity of the Liquor Store and on orders of the Fire Chief was taken to the police office for questioning.

The boy who tearfully denied that he had rung in the alarm later went home in the company of his father and sister.

Many of the huge slabs of stone, each weighing several tons, erected at Stonehenge, England, by the Britons, were taken 160 miles across wild country from Wales.

AGRICULTURE ESTIMATE SLASH, MASSACRE SAYS MOTHERWELL

"Harangue" Draws Sarcastic Comments From Col. Harry Mullins.

EXPERIENCE QUESTIONED.

OTTAWA May 26 (C.P.). — Discussion on the amendment by Miss Agnes MacPhail to the motion to go into supply was continued in the House of Commons to-day. Debate, which was resumed by G. G. Coote (U.F.A. McLeod), centred on currency control. Mr. Coote argued that with properly controlled inflation more dollars would be available to farmers to pay their debts, while the Government would be able to collect more taxation.

He saw no reason why the Canadian dollar should march in line with the United States currency, and suggested that it be brought down to the level of the English pound. Mr. Coote quoted James Richardson of Winnipeg as an authority for saying that an inflated currency would assist agriculturists in liquidating their financial obligations.

Support for the amendment came from Hon. W. R. Motherwell (Lib. Melville), who characterized the slashing of the agriculture estimates as a "massacre." He deplored that no policy had been enunciated by the Government, particularly in relation to the elimination of destructive insects. Going over the members of the Cabinet one by one the former Minister of Agriculture found that few of them, in his opinion, knew anything about farming. The Premier, he said, knew "less than nothing."

Finance Authority.

How could he? asked Mr. Motherwell. He was an authority on finance.

"I am as ignorant of banking as I am of—"

"Agriculture," suggested a Conservative member.

Mr. Motherwell proceeded and gave his endorsement to the amendment.

The "harangue" of the former Minister of Agriculture was such as had never been heard in the House before, said Col. Harry Mullins (Cons., Marquette). There were some members on the Government benches who had forgotten more about agriculture than Mr. Motherwell ever knew, he said.

"If I had a farm like his in Western Canada, I'd get rid of it," Col. Mullins declared.

Mr. Motherwell interposed that he had not included the "backbenchers" but the Cabinet Ministers in his strictures.

This did not mollify the member for Marquette, however, who declared that "there were men on the Ministerial benches who knew more about farmers than Mr. Motherwell."

"Who are they?" asked Mr. Motherwell.

"Any one of them," retorted Col. Mullins.

Col. Mullins concluded by asserting that unless farmers could be prevailed upon to go back into livestock breeding, farming could not be made successful.

No system had ever been evolved in Canada whereby farmers could be adequately financed, declared H. E. Spencer, (U.F.A. Battle River). The government had been elected on a promise to assist the farmer. Why should it not assist by advancing long term loans to the farmers who needed such assistance.

Cut Unwise

There appeared to be general agreement among those who had spoken said Hon. Robert Weir, Minister of Agriculture, that the cut in estimates for the Department of Agriculture was unwise. None of those who complained, however, had been able to show, during the discussion of these estimates, that agriculture would suffer in any way from the reduction.

After taking office, said Mr. Weir, the government had formulated a very definite agricultural policy. He referred to what had been done for the improvement of livestock.

The government gave the domestic market to the Canadian producer, he continued, citing as some of the benefits the decrease in butter importations from the Antipodes and the premium which Canadian butter enjoyed last year in the domestic market. As a net result a sum of $12,000,000 had accrued to the Canadian dairymen in excess of the normal sum that would have been secured from sale of the produce.

Last year, said the minister, so high had been the price for Canadian bacon and pork that Denmark found it profitable to export to this country. These exports were shut off by governmental decree when Canada banned them on account of foot-and-mouth disease in Denmark.

His Handicap!

ISTANBUL, May 25 (C.P.)—Len L. Wingo, of Abilene, Tex., who walked backwards nearly 4,000 miles until he bumped into the law in the Balkans, now has blisters on his toes and his feet are tired.

Europe was a nice continent to look back upon, he said, until he backed into the police, had to take off his periscopic glasses and right about face into jail.

He got the blisters on his toes walking forward several times a day from the jail here to passport headquarters. "If they would let me go backwards," he said, "it wouldn't be so bad; but I get all tuckered out now when I have to walk forward. It uses such different muscles."

PUBLIC HEALTH OFFICERS MEET

Papers Are Given on Milk Epidemic of Paratyphoid Fever in St. Catharines.

HEAVY AGENDA.

TORONTO, May 25. — (C.P.)—The Canadian Public Health and Ontario Health Officer's Association opened their joint convention here to-day with a full agenda. Both organizations held sectional meetings this morning with numerous papers being presented by prominent Canadian physicians.

The Ontario body, under the chairmanship of Dr. J. H. Radford, Galt, its president, heard papers on the milk epidemic of paratyphoid fever at St. Catharines last year. Among the speakers were Dr. A. L. McKay, Toronto; Dr. D. V. Currey, St. Catharines; Dr. A. L. McNabb, Toronto; Dr. A. E. Berry, Toronto; H. S. Nicklin, city engineer, Guelph, and A. T. Byram, Toronto.

The sections on social and mental hygiene heard Dr. A. Grant Fleming, Montreal; Dr. B. T. McGhie, Toronto; Dr. F. S. Parney, Ottawa; Dr. Gordon Bates, Toronto, and Dr. W. E. Blatz of the University of Toronto.

Dr. G. B. Reed, Kingston, presided over the laboratory section while the discussion was led by Dr. A. J. Slack, London, Ont.; A. R. Bonham, Toronto; Dr. D. B. Shutt, Guelph; Dr. James Miller, Kingston ;and Doctors G. B. Reed, C. E. Rice and J. H. Orr, all of Queen's University.

S. J. Manchester, Ottawa, was chairman of the vital statistics section, with W. R. Tracey, Ottawa; J. H. Wyse, Toronto; Dr. Paul Parrott, Quebec, and others presenting their conclusions.

Vigilance Necessary

Discussing the tracing of a recent outbreak of paratyphoid fever in St. Catharines to contaminated milk, Dr. A. L. McKay, Toronto, held the epidemic to be another evidence of the necessity of continual vigilance in the care and protection of milk supplies. "Pasteurization is an adequate safeguard for public milk supplies, but the process must be thoroughly understood and intelligently applied under proper and strict supervision," he said.

Dr. B. T. McGhie, Toronto, outlined the development of a Provincial mental health service, and A. T. Bryam, Toronto, warned of the dangers of ice for domestic use improperly handled or gathered. Dr. F. S. Parney, Ottawa, discussing the social aspect of the venereal disease problem in Canada, stressed the importance of early discipline of children.

To the Vital Statistics section of the Convention, J. F. H. Wyse, Toronto, said accidents are responsible for more deaths between the age of one year and fifty years than any single disease.

A Dominion-wide survey of public health was advocated by Dr. Gordon Bates, secretary of the Canadian Social Hygiene Council, who urged that if only a small proportion of the $1,311,000,000 paid for sickness and sudden death each year was spent on preventive medicine, much suffering would be spared. A Royal Commission should investigate the whole Dominion, he thought.

BUSY WOMAN
Finds New Secret!

Says Weekly Wash No More Worry!

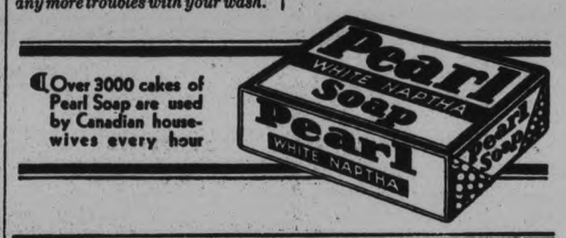
"Well," said Mrs. Richards proudly, "if you don't believe me, look at these clothes I've just ironed. Did you ever see a finer looking wash—look at the colour—white and clean like snow. And just smell them. Isn't that a fresh, clean smell. Now that's what I call washing! I'm proud of the look of these clothes. It gives you a heart for your work when it turns out like that.

"And Here's My Secret"

"First, I use a good soap. I'd advise you to use the brand I always buy — Pearl White Naptha. You'll find it a good practical laundry soap and a lot more economical than most. Soap your clothes and put them to soak overnight in cold water. You will find that, as the water temperature rises to the heat of the room, more dirt is loosened than would be if the water were cooling. In the morning, rinse your clothes thoroughly in warm water and you'll never have any more troubles with your wash."

"And, if I do say it myself, now that they are ironed they look as fresh as the day they came from the store. I didn't rub the skin off my hands to get them that way either.

Thousands of women have learned Mrs. Richards' secret and follow her example. Get the Pearl habit yourself—Pearl means efficient work in less time and at less cost. That's something to remember these days.



Over 3000 cakes of Pearl Soap are used by Canadian housewives every hour

Mr. and Mrs. Maitland Gardner, Norwood, spent Sunday with Mr. Stuart Miller and daughters.

Mrs. Epslett (formerly Mae McDonald) and children, returned home on Monday after spending several days with her grandmother, Mrs. W. Jackson.

Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Payne and Donald, were in the village on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Tedford, of Norwood, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Payne.

Mr. and Mrs. V. B. Coleman and Miss Marion, Port Hope, spent Empire Day with Mr. and Mrs. David Miller.

Mr. David Drain and Ivan Motored to Toronto for the week-end.

About 20 cars containing picnic parties, were parked along the east side of the Indian River, north of the bridge on Tuesday afternoon.

The splendid natural picnic grounds along the river are beginning to be appreciated by outsiders, and a few tables constructed, with benches, would be a great attraction. The flat rocks, moss-covered, with trees growing in the fissures, the gurgle of the water, the wild flowers and easy access, make the place almost ideal for picnic parties or for camping.

In this connection many know of the cave farther north on the west side of the river, which has never been fully explored. People have gone as far as the length of a ball of binder twine.

Also the double potash-kettle, is fairly well known, and many come every year to see it, but few realize that there are the remains of two more fully as large to be seen, quite near this well known hole, which is now rapidly breaking away. One of these was pointed out by an amateur geologist, as only one side of it is visible, and that on a broken boulder. The other is quite plain, though one side and most of the bottom, and parts of other sides, are gone. A lrage rounded piece of harder rock is wedged tightly in a broken side. It may have been one of the stones which made the hole. Then one a side of the bottom is worn a small deep hole, about 8 inches in diameter, and over 12 inches deep. Several who have seen the large pot holes in other places say these are by far the most interesting.

The Gardener's Corner

Warm Weather Plantings

There are certain flowers and vegetables which must not be set outside or the seed sown until the weather turns warm there is no longer danger of frost. Even if the latter does not come along, these things will not make proper growth until soil and air really acknowledge that summer is almost at hand. Of course in the colder sections of the country some of these things cannot be considered but most of them can, as the farther north one goes the longer are the summer days and the greater rapidity of growth.

In the flower line, these hot weather things, in the order of planting run about as follows: Gladiolus, Dalhia and Cannas in bulbs, tubers or such things, and Asters, petunias, and many other bedding plants which cannot stand frost. The three first named should be planted about three times as deep as the diameter of the bulbs and tubers, and the Dahlias, especially should be staked.

In the bedding plant group, it is advisable to secure or grow in the hot bed and cold frame, stout branching plants, rather than too tall ones. In transplanting, expose to sun as little as possible, water well and add a pinch of commercial fertilizer, dissolved in water, to the nearby soil.

In the vegetable group will come tomatoes, the main planting of cabbage, egg plants, lima beans, water and musk melon, cucumbers and celery. The main planting of the latter should not go in much before July, otherwise it will come on too early for fall use or storage. Cos lettuce, Chinese cabbage and other fall salad crops are planted in June and July and the same is true of table turnips. To save space, many of the trailing vegetables such as cucumbers, melons and squash may be trained along a fence while the tomatoes should always be staked. Nip off all side shoots and tie main stem loosely at tewive inch intervals to the stake which should be about six feet high and planted firmly, at the same time the tomato plant is set out.

Check Over Flower List

Before finally disposing of the sowing and planting end of the flower garden it is well to check over the varieties and types in order to make sure that all requirements have been complied with. One's garden should be balanced. That is there must be variety of colors, shaded corners as well as hot, dry ones planted with something suitable, plenty of tall things, some scented blooms like Stocks Nictotiana, continued bloom from June until frost, fences and vegetable garden screened with tall bushy things and annual climbers and a fair showing of the new and vastly improved both single and double flowers.

Rotate Vegetables.

It is advisable to move vegetables around the garden from year to year; the practice being known as rotation. One vegetable grown in exactly the same location each season will soon exhaust all the particular nourishment required, and may also fill the soil with disease. This is particularly true, also of some flowers especially the gladiolus. Then there are leguminous crops such as peas and beans which add fertilizer to the soil and should be moved around so that the whole garden will benefit. These will offset the inroads made by such heavy feeders as corn, beets and carrots.

Mulching

Cultivation can be saved by the use of a mulch of specially prepared paper, chopped straw, lawn clippings or leaves. This is particularly valuable among tomatoes, head lettuce, cabbage and the melons in the vegetable garden, and among roses and other flowers. With soil so protected, the gardener may go away on his holidays with no worry about drying out. The paper which is now quite favorably recommended by gardening experts is fastened to the ground by staples made of ordinary black wire.

Rush Point

Dr. Bonnie of Toronto spent the holiday at his cottage at Round Lake.

Mr. W. S. Petherick lost a valuable horse with acute indigestion last Friday evening. The horse worked in the fields until six p.m. but refused to eat when stabled. It was dead inside of two hours.

Mr. Richard McKelvie of Campbellford was at Rush Point on business the last week-end.

The recent terrific wind storm which laid flat so much rail fence in this vicinity, blew down a well-built silo on the farm of W. S. Petherick.

Quite a number of tourists have gone through here over the week-end intent on spending the holiday the camping grounds north of here.

Mr. George Cooke of Toronto spent the holiday at his cottage at McCutcheon's Landing at Round Lake.

Mr. L. Copp, I.P.S., visited the local school on Thursday of last week.

Quite an extensive Empire Day program was given by the Rush Point pupils.

Miss Bertina Beavis, the third vice-president of the Rush Point Young People's League, took charge of the meeting held in the church on Thursday evening, May 20th.

The topic for the meeting given by the Rev. Mr. Kemp, was especially instructive and interesting.

A reading by Mrs. Herbert Hoard, a vocal solo by Jean Polloc., and a reading by Mildred Forbes, completed the items on the program.

The standing in the contest was Khaki 25; White 15; Blue 5; Red 5.

The attendance of 38 was comprised of the following: Red 4; Blue White 13; Khaki 11.

FRENCH MILLERS TO USE MORE IMPORTED WHEAT

PARIS, May 25 (A.P.)—A decree published in the Official Journal to-day increased to 45 per cent. the proportion of imported wheat which may be used by French millers in making flour.

Last May 7 France reduced from 45 to 40 per cent. the amount of foreign wheat French millers could use in the mixing of their flour.

Previous to that, France had lightened her restrictions on the importation of foreign wheat by revising upward the proportion permitted to be used in French flour from an allowance of only three per cent early this year.

Last April 1 France increased the quota from 40 to 45 per cent. Shortage of domestic wheat is explained as the reason for the latest move in lightening restrictions.

THREE ROUTES PLANE TRAFFIC OVER ATLANTIC

Best Course Over North Atlantic is by Way of Greenland and Iceland.

TWO OVER SOUTH WATERS.

Trans-oceanic Flyers of All Nations Holding Convention at Rome.

ROME, May 26.—(AP)—Regular aeroplane traffic over the North Atlantic already is possible on one route and over the south Atlantic on two, the transoceanic flyers of all nations, who are holding a convention here, agreed today.

They set forth their conviction in a formal resolution which declared that the best north Atlantic route was via Greenland and Iceland. The south Atlantic route considered most favorable are from Bolama, Portuguese Guinea, to Natal, Brazil and St. Louis, Senegal, to Natal, with the Cape Verde Islands as a further alternative.

The flyers definitely rejected the direct route from Ireland to Newfoundland as well as the Azores and Bermuda routes. They called upon the governments to cooperate more closely in providing weather reports.

To Study Routes

Two commissions were appointed by the conference, one to study north Atlantic flying and the other south Atlantic.

"With existing equipment the Greenland route can be flown at the present time, since it provides frequent landing places," the north Atlantic commission reported.

"Since meteorological conditions are not always favorable it will be necessary to establish new weather stations and wireless stations.

"The commission recommends that definite tests be made by aircraft to work out this route. The selection of suitable equipment should be left to individuals who will establish service.

"The Ireland-to-Newfoundland route seems impracticable with present equipment. This will be desirable in the future, however, owing to the fact that is is the shortest distance from continent to continent and there are good organization and facilities at both landing points.

"The Azores route offers the same difficulties as the middle route and would lengthen the journey. The southern route via Bermuda is far too long to be considered."

COBOURG STAR STARTED IN 1832

Citizens Threw Type and Press of "The Plain Speaker" Into Lake.

SOME EARLY PAPERS

By BESSIE FRENCH

TRENT RIVER, May 26.—(Examiner Correspondence).— Several attempts were made to start newspapers in Cobourg and Port Hope prior to 1830 but all were unsuccessful.

In 1832, Richard Dover Chatterton, the deputy clerk of the crown at Cobourg, published the first number of the Cobourg Star. He continued the publication of the paper up to November 1846 when he sold out to H. J. Ruttan. The office passed from Mr. Ruttan to Messrs. Clench and Floyd and from them to Messrs. Piper and Wilson in 1876.

The publication of the Cobourg Reformer was commenced in 1833 by J. Radcliff. It was superseded by the Cobourg Sun published by McNaughton, which was continued for several years. Samuel Hart issued a sheet called "The Plain Speaker" about the year 1837, but type and presses were thrown into the lake one night, putting an end to that plain spoken publication.

The Sentinel was commenced by D McAllister in 1861. The World was first brought to light by Henry Hough in 1864.

At Port Hope.

The British Canadian was started in Port Hope in the year 1852 by Hugh Cameron and continued until 1864 when H. Delamere became the publisher, afterwards selling out to J. B. Trayes in 1868 by whom the name was changed to the Times.

The Port Hope Guide was first issued in 1853 and passed into the hands of George Wilson.

The Atlas was a venture of C. Roger and Company in 1858 which stood a short battle. The Messenger was started in 1863 and was published by Mr. Hayter of Millbrook. The Mercury was given a year's trial by Mr. Romaine in 1869 and then dropped.

More than 7,500,000 handkerchiefs were exported from Switzerland last year.

CANADIAN DEPARTMENT STORES LIMITED

GRAIN, CATTLE, PRODUCE

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

MONTREAL, May 26.—Higher prices than anticipated were paid yesterday at the first auction of the season at the Montreal Board of Trade, when 638 boxes of butter and 373 boxes of cheese were offered. Number 1 butter was sold at 17 3-8c per pound, while No. 2 went 2c 16¾c. No. 1 white cheese sold at 8 11-16c per pound and No. 1 colored at 8 13-16c.

The wholesale butter market was quoted at 17¼c per pound for No. 1 cartots or less, fresh or regraded. Receipts continued unseasonably light, amounting to only 452 boxes compared with 5,430 on the corresponding day of last year. A firm market was expected until receipts picked up. The market is almost two cents above the export price level, and supplies were insufficient to take care of domestic demand.

Cheese was quoted generally at 9c for Ontario make and 8¾c for Quebecs. Receipts were 1,771 boxes.

Eggs were unchanged, with receipts liberal at 4,786 cases.

Potatoes held unchanged, the market being featureless.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, May 26.—Confident buying, coupled with the presence of two widely known speculative leaders, gave a fresh upturn to wheat prices yesterday, more than offsetting early declines.

Evidence accumulated that the trade was skeptical that any great improvement of the winter-wheat crop prospect would result from rains. Instead, belief apparently grew firmer that the bulk of damage to winter wheat was permanent.

Wheat closed firm at the day's top, ¼c to 7-8c above Tuesday's finish, corn varying from 3-8c decline to 5-8c advance; oats, 1-8c to ¼c off to ¼c up; and provisions at 10c setback to a rise of 2c.

TORONTO PRODUCE

TORONTO, May 26.—Steadiness was again evident on the local butter market yesterday, with No. 1 and No. 2 grades holding to the 17½c and 16½c levels, respectively. These prices took Ontario-made butter or solids from the West and brokers reported trade fair to good. No. 2 quality was not too plentiful, and they were asking prices of 16¾c for this grade, but buyers were inclined to narrow the spread between No. 1 and No. 2. Receipts were not as large as during the same period last year, but were equal to receipts at this season in 1930.

Cream

Buyers of cream quoted shippers steady prices. They offered 18c for special, 17c for No. 1 and 14c for No. 2, f.o.b. country points.

Cheese

Trade in cheese was slow, and, as country boards did not show any gains in prices, local prices were steady. Brokers quoted new makes at 9c for large, 9¼c for twins and 9½c for tripleta. Retailers were quoted 10½c for large, 10¾c for twins, tripleta at 11c, and Stiltons at 13c.

Eggs

Higher prices at Montreal resulted in most of Ontario and Western shipments going to that city. Brokers on the local market moved small lots at 15c for extras, 13c for firsts and 11c for seconds, in used cases, with storage packed at 16½c for extras and 13½c for firsts. Prices to country shippers were steady at 13c for extras, 11c for firsts and 9c for seconds, delivered, ungraded, cases returned. Retailers secured supplies at 18½c for extras in cartons, 16½c for extras loose, 14½c for firsts loose and 12½c for seconds loose.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, May 26 — Fair export trade worked over the holiday, and stronger tone in the Liverpool wheat market offset to some extent initial-hour declines on reports of moisture over the United States South-west, and grain prices came back to close fractionally lower for the day. Prices at the close were ¼c to ½c lower than Monday's final figures.

May closed ¼c lower at 63¾c, July ¾c lower at 64¾c, and October ½c lower at 66¾c.

Weather Report.

The effect of an unfavorable Washington weekly weather report was less than might have been expected, because it had been anticipated by the trade from private reports. A Paris decree, increasing to 45 per cent. from 40 per cent. the proportion of imported wheat which may be used by French millers in making flour, served as a further factor in sustaining prices on the Winnipeg market.

Trading in cash wheat during the morning was slow, and spreads near the close of the session were generally unchanged from Monday's closing differences. Pit trade in all coarse grain commodities was dull, and mostly local in character with the exception of some buying in barley against export sales, following a fairly good export business worked in that grain since the close on Monday.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

Miss Marjorie McDowell Plays Hostess to Friends on Thirteenth Anniversary.

MILLBROOK, May 26 (Examiner Correspondence)—A very pleasant party was held at the home of Mrs. M. McDowell, Main street, on Wednesday afternoon when her third daughter, Marjorie, observed her thirteenth birthday anniversary, the young hostess being assisted by her mother, and her two older sisters, Misses Dorothy and Madeline, in receiving her guests.

Games and music on the lawns, and within doors, filled out the hours happily until the call came to gather about the daintily-laid supper table, centred with a handsome birthday cake, bearing its quota of thirteen candles, the birthday-hostess having the privilege of lighting the pink tapers.

The guests for the occasion included Mary Eakins, Esther Might, Marie Douglas, Audrey Garside, Ada Peers, Kathleen Smith, Kathleen Davis, and Gordon Might, who was a companion for the little son of the home, Teddy McDowell.

Mrs. McDowell, assisted by her two older daughters, looked after the entertainment, and the service of the party, a younger sister of the hostess who had the birthday honors, Beatrice, being included with the guests seated about the supper table. Many attractive and useful birthday gifts were received by Miss Marjorie, and the opening of the parcels was one of the happy features of the enjoyable occasion.

LAKEFIELD STUDENTS FILL HALL FOR EMPIRE DAY PROGRAMME

Splendid Pageant is Presented by Children of Public School.

DR. SCOTT SPEAKS.

LAKEFIELD, May 26 (Examiner Correspondence)—Empire Day was a big event, not only to the pupils of the Public School but also to the High School and the parents and friends of the children, who have seen the celebration grow year by year until now it is a real community event. For the past two years the program has been carried out in the Public School grounds, but there is the difficulty of providing adequate eating accommodation, so this year the Town Hall was the mecca for the parade of children and cadets which formed on the school grounds and marched to the hall. The principal Mr. Chaplin and the other public school teachers all worked indefatigably for the success of the afternoon and the results reflected greatest credit on both the staff and the pupils.

The street was lined with interested citizens, who enjoyed the parade which was headed by Mr. Chaplin and the "tiny ones" of the kindergarten primary and followed by the other children in order of size and last of all the High School Cadet Corps under Cadet Captain Hugh Morris and his lieutenants.

The hall was filled to capacity and gaily decorated with flags, the stage was very pretty with potted plants and blossoms. J. W. Ridpath, chairman of the School Board, was chairman for the occasion and expressed great satisfaction at the increasing interest in the celebration of Empire Day, which was instituted sixty years ago by Mrs. Clementicia Feasenden of the Canadian Historical Society and which has grown to immense proportions from a very modest beginning. The school sang "Oh God our help in Ages Past" with Miss Lulu Smith as pianist.

Dr. Raymore Scott, of Peterborough Kiwanis Club gave an address. The speaker said he was pinch hitting for I. P. McNabb, who was in Orillia and could not get back; Dr. Scott took the opportunity to pay tribute to the memory of an old friend and schoolmate and brother Kiwanian, the late Fred S. Brown, who was one of the most highly educated and scholary men in the province, a great educationalist, although he did not seek public office. The boys and girls who knew him have a high tradition to live up to.

Empire Day was made possible by Act of Parliament in Ontario in 1899 and set for the last school day before Victoria Day (May 24th), the movement has spread to the British Isles and there is loyally celebrated, sanctioned by an Act of Parliament passed in 1906.

The children sang, "The Land of the Maple" as a chorus. The most important part of the afternoon's program was a pageant "The Makers of Canada" put on by the children of the Public School under the direction of the teachers. The stage setting was very simple but effective showing a throne of white decorated with the national colors and above the picture, well known to all Canadians of "The Father's of Confederation." On the right of the throne was the Earth (Mildred Miles) and Father Time (Donald Yale) and at the left Jupiter (Pat McFadden) and Neptune (Donald Hunt). At the sound of the bugle off stage, Miss Canada (Vivian Hendren) entered, attended by two pages, English (George Tanner) and French (Bobbie McCracken) symbolizing the dual language of the land, Miss Canada proceeded to the throne or which she seated herself. Heralded by the bugler the nine provinces marched in and each told of her place in the Dominion and her claim to being Canada's banner province: Ontario, Patricia Wannamaker; Quebec, Elizabeth Twist; New Brunswick, Ruth Johnston; Nova Scotia, Freida Webster; Prince Edward Island, The Island, Leona Murphy; Manitoba, Isabel Millage; Saskatchewan, Lois Yale; Alberta, Minnie Charlton and British Columbia, Doris Charlton. Then came the basic industries, each telling of the important part played in the building of the nation, the Farmer, Alex Nicholls; the Miner, Gordon Hampton; the Fisherman, Kenneth Wesley; the Lumberman, Allan Mason; the Fur Trader, Gordon Carveth, and the Manufacturer, Dennis Remnant.

Then came the fine arts, who each told of her part in making Canada great: Science, Phyllis Webster; Literature, Nora Webster; Art, Isabel Brown; Music, Miriam Brown; Education, Madeline Charlton; Religion, Patricia Earnshaw.

Then came three other great factors in the making of Canada on land or sea and in the air. First, the Railway Engineer, Jack Morrison, who spoke of the great railways, the two greatest railways in the world; then the Jack Tar, Billy Clark, who told of the Merchant Marine and last the aviator, John Carveth, who told of Canada's achievements in the air.

Then the herald, Donald Smith, announced the band of other races, who had played and wished to play a part in the building of Canada and who wished to become Canadians, they were: Danish, Jean Millar; German, Almond Soles; Icelanders, Isabel Millar; Finnish, Mureitta Hull; Swede, Fred Mason; Russia, Iva de Rushie; Italian, George Birch; Ukranian, Peter Elesley; Dutch, Mary Alice Renwick; Bulgarian, Betty Millage; Chinese, Betty Lake; Hungarian, Jacquline Morin; Austrian, Stanley Hart; Greek, Freddie Bennington; Norwegian, Francis Allen; Negro, Harold Watson; Indian, Gerald Grentgher; Syrian, Ida Dunford; Swiss, David Spence; Roumanian, Doris Baker; Polish, Leah Dunford; Japanese, Arnold Graham.

Father Time presented to Miss Canada a huge golden key, the key to the future and in passing on spoke of the great heritage which is Canada's and also the great future.

Dr. J. J. Craig was invited to be present but owing to some mistake had gone to Bridgenorth.

Dr. F. H. Lingwood proposed a vote of thanks to Dr. Scott for his address. Canada has two great national holidays, July 1st and Empire Day. Both are national and help to promote and continue national unity. Dominion Day fosters the Canadian spirit and Empire Day, the wide view which stresses pride in being part of the great Empire which stretches round the earth.

Dr. J. C. Smith congratulated the teachers and pupils on the excellent pageant presented which will live long in the remembrance of those who took part in it as well as in the minds of the spectators. Empire Day cannot be too strongly stressed for it makes us realize our great and glorious heritage, the British institutions, love of justice and fair play. Equal rights for all is engraved in the Empire life and conduct. We do not want boastfulness, but we do want every child to grow up with an abiding faith and pride in the British Empire. Dr. Smith seconded Dr. Lingwood's vote of thanks to Dr. Scott and the Kiwanis Club.

Following the National Anthem the large crowd dispersed inspired to a higher standard of loyalty and pride in Canada and the Empire.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

I AM TOLD that a number of housewives in Peterborough make soap from accumulaitons of different kinds of fat saved from cookery.

* * * * * * * * *

Perhaps some of you readers would be interested in this thrifty method of reducing the household budget as were our mothers and grandmothers. So to-day we will discuss this.

* * * * * * * * *

Home-made soap is practically a product which can be said to cost nothing, since it is made from what would otherwise be waste. This is worth considering just now when conservation is as essential to successful home-making as it was during the Great War.

* * * * * * * *

Bacon and ham fats should be put in cold water and be slowly brought to the boiling point. Allow to simmer for 15 minutes. Put kettle in cool place until fat forms a solid cake on top of water.

* * * * * * * *

Remove this cake Scrape off under side to remove extraneous particles. Repeat this process once again. This preparation is to eliminate the salt from the fat and render it less soft.

* * * * * * * *

In clarifying fat, put five pounds of any mixture of tried out fats, such as drippings, etc., in a kettle of cold water and process it as given above. Cool and scrape off all particles you possibly can from under side of the solid cake.

* * * * * * * *

Put this fat into a kettle and melt. Pour through a fine straining cloth and allow to get lukewarm.

* * * * * * * *

Dissolve one pound can of lye in one quart of cold water. Allow to cool. Then add one-quarter of a cup of ammonia, two tablespoons of sugar, and three tablespoons of borax.

* * * * * * * *

When all are dissolved turn into lukewarm grease slowly.

* * * * * * * *

Stir until thick and pour into a pan lined with cloth. Before it becomes too hard, mark into square or oblong cakes. The sugar makes good suds. Age improves the soap.

* * * * * * * *

Or another way is to prepare fat according to former directions. Dissolve one pound can of potash in one and a half pints of cold water. When cool, add half a cup of sugar and half a small package of fine white soap flakes.

* * * * * * * *

Stir with wooden spon or stick until entirely dissolved. When cold, pour into the clarified fat and stir for about ten minutes. Pour into a pan, which may or may not be lined with cheesecloth or heavy paper. Before cold mark off the cakes.

* * * * * * * *

Follow directions for either method with exactitude. The ingredients will not mix together if combined while hot. Be extremely careful when using the lye. It is powerful and burns if it comes in contact with the skin.

* * * * * * * *

Remove the cakes of soap from the pans with a knife. Any liquid in bottom of the pans is unabsorbed lye, and would burn the hands. Turn the cakes upside down until thoroughly dry, should there be any moisture on them.

THE DELAYED COUP

A coup, a term used frequently in Bridge, means nothing more nor less than a play for position. It is a play used to capture an adverse trump which otherwise would make a trick were it not for the position of the Declarer's trumps in relation to those adversely held. It also involves the shortening of the Declaring Hand in trumps in order to attain the position desired.

The play is an extremely interesting one as it occurs with great frequency at the Bridge table and is more frequently missed than made, even by players of considerable skill.

Today's hand also deals with the correct management in play of a suit holding all the high honors with the exception of the King and Knave and unaware of the location of these honors. The principle of play here advocated is my own invention, but other players have accepted it as correct.

North and South vulnerable. East and West not vulnerable. South—Dealer.

The Bidding:

3♠(4)	4◇	4♠	Pass
Pass	5◇(5)	Dbl.(6)	Pass
5♠(7)	Pass	Pass	Dbl.
Pass	Pass	Pass

1—East's hand is not strong enough for a Takeout Double, although he has strong hopes of defeating game contract by his opponents.

2—A "nuisance" bid inserted with the hope of laying a bidding defense against a possible game contract.

3—The club suit is rebiddable once.

4—South's Rebid is based on hope to find a fit in the hands.

5—A sacrifice bid. West has no defense against a four spade contract.

6—North sees a certain penalty. He is uncertain about game.

7—South feels that the chance of making five spades is excellent and does not wish to risk a game for a small penalty.

West opened a diamond and Dummy won with the Ace. When South studied his hand he saw that the King and Knave of spades were missing. East's Double probably located the King of spades in that hand. In any event, with this holding in spades his correct lead was the Queen. So the Queen was led from Dummy. East, of course, refused to cover and West's Singleton Knave dropped. This seemed to place the remaining trumps adversely held in East's hand. He next led the last diamond from Dummy and trumped in his own hand, then [illegible] in trumps. On the

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

THINKING INWARDLY ABOUT HEALTH HABITS.

I have spoken before about a chap who did everything by the clock. He had so much time for sleep, so much for work, for play, for reading and so forth.

If he did not get his 8½ hours sleep or rest one night, he seemed to feel real tired the next day, and he explained to everybody why he didn't feel as buoyant as usual.

Similarly with his meals. If by any chance he had to have his evening meal within less than six hours of the noon meal, he felt a 'heaviness' in his stomach which persisted for some time into the evening.

Also, if he didn't get his 'regular exercise,' he knew that his liver would be a little slow or congested and that a headache might follow.

I believe that you'll agree with me that a life, lived in this manner, would hardly be worth living.

Now what about this matter of thinking about one's self all the time as to sleep, food, exercise and recreation? Can this really affect the body, as this chap felt that it did?

Yes! As a matter of fact, thinking inwardly this way, about all the hygienic habits of life, can actually affect the workings of the different organs. Yet Nature can and will take care of us, even if we do make little mistakes in our health habits by ignorance or carelessness.

Just as the anxiety or worry that comes to us from receiving bad news can affect our appetite, can interfere with the churning of food in the stomach, the manufacture of digestive juices, and the movement of food out of the stomach into the small intestine, and the absorption of food into the blood from the small iestine, so also can this anxiety about our health habits do likewise.

And just as good news can help all these digestive conditions, so also can a good ordinary working knowledge of good health habits, which realizes that Nature is always just a little ahead of our needs, prevent us from worrying if occasionally we do not get our full number of hours of sleep, get some meals a little close together, and fail to get our regular amount of exercise or play.

While it must be admitted that it is wise to think about sleep, food, and exercise, nevertheless exaggerating the danger of any little loss of sleep, change in a meal hour, or failure to get exercise, can do as much harm to the system as failing to think about these health habits at all.

Advertising Wins Lead For Oxydol

The Proctor & Gamble Co., makers of Oxydol the all-purpose household soap had faith in the quality of their product. Procter & Gamble were willing to put their faith to a practical test when, in face of existing economic conditions and a highly competitive market they planned an extensive advertising campaign addressed to the nation's housewives.

After some months of advertising this faith has been amply vindicated. For Oxydol sales have mounted steadily, making nothing short of sensational headway against the currents of economic depression and sluggih spending.

Second, they told the amazing story in vivid convincing advertising copy which carried conviction to every housewife who read it.

Third, the story has been carried to housewives in many ways, one of the most important being the nation's favorite newspapers, which go right into homes and which are read carefully by the woman of the house whose buying is influenced by their contents.

Today the race for sales is to the strong. There is neither room nor opportunity for half-hearted efforts or for inferior products. This most recent Procter & Gamble success amply proves this to be true.

BUS AND TRUCK LINES HIT.

Nearly 40,000 owners of motor vehicles in New South Wales are protesting against the new law designed to restrict the competition offered by the motor vehicles to State-owned and operated rail and tram services. The law requires that bus operators must pay a special license fee of two cents a mile or fraction, for each adult and one cent for each child passenger. Truck operators must pay a tax of six cents a mile a ton, or fraction, for trucks hauling merchandise, the charge to cover the load plus the weight of the truck. Certain services not competing with railways are exempt. The law requires the keeping of elaborate records of passengers and freight carried.

SETTLERS FIGHTING BAD FIRE SWEEPING ACROSS HALIBURTON

Volunteers Concentrate Efforts on Saving Buildings in Blairhampton Township.

RAILROADS ACTIVE.

LINDSAY, May 25 (Examiner Correspondence).—The settlers in Blairhampton, Haliburton County, battled all day Tuesday with forest and bush fires, which, for a time, threatened to get beyond their control. The fire, believed to have been started in sawdust at the site of an old saw mill, was fanned by a stiff wind, and it was not long before it had crept into the woods, which was soon ablaze.

Hurried calls were sent out for fighters to all parts of the district including Minden village, and a desperate battle was waged until nightfall. Efforts were centered towards saving farm properties which laid in the path of the fire. One farmer, Thomas Voicey, suffered the loss of his barn and contents. His son was on the roof of the structure trying to extinguish an incipient blaze, when the whole interior burst into flames. He jumped to the ground and fractured his ankle. A resident of the north country who arrived in town yesterday, said the situation was still serious, with the settlers hoping for a heavy rainfall.

In Gooderham district a bad fire broke out some days ago in the "slash" and burned fiercely. The fire rangers, however, had it under control before any serious damage resulted.

Railroad men are in a jubilant mood these days because of the activity in grain shipments on both lines from the terminals at Port McNicholl and Midland. During the week-end the C.N.R. received an order for eight hundred bushels of grain for export. During the holiday there was a brisk movement in grain from Midland to Belleville, and the men are hoping this activity will continue, as the haulage from this port and depot harbor would mean two trains a day. There was also an ecouraging movement of grain over the C.P.R. on the holiday.

The 18-months-old son of Carl Hutchinson, who resides on the Bobcaygeon road, was badly bitten by the family dog on the holiday. No person saw the attack, and the little child was badly slashed on the lip, forehead and cheek. The cut required stitching by a physician.

The death occurred on the holiday of one of the most prominent farmers of Victoria County, in the person of John James Walden, of Fenelon. The deceased, who was in his sixty-first year, was born in the township of Manvers, and came with his parents to the old Walden homestead in Ops when quite young. Thirty years ago he took up farming in Fenelon. He was a member of the United Church and the Masonic Order. He is survived by his wife, three brothers and two sisters residing near Lindsay, and another sister, Mrs. Sidney Hall of Peterborough.

BRIDGE OF ICE SAVED WRECKED SEALER'S CREW

Captain Horwood Recalls Brigantine Eric's Flounder-ing in Storm of 1878.

ICE AVERTED DEATH

ST. JOHN'S Nfld., May 26.—(CP)—Ordinarily the bane of seafaring men in northern waters, there have been occasions on which lice proved a blessing and a means of saving life. It was on a bridge of drift ice blown in from sea that the frost-bitten and crippled crew of the sealing brigantine Eric, anchored under the beetling brows of precipitous cliffs behind Bird Island, made their way to shore in April of 1878.

"I do not think it is out of place to put that miraculous thing on record to the honour and glory of God" writes Captain John Horwood, veteran Newfoundland master mariner.

Captain Horwood went north to the ice that year as "jack-on-all-sides" aboard the brig Thomas Ridley That is, he looked after the vessel's gear, more especially the blocks, straps and footropes aloft, and went on the ice when seals were sighted.

The Ridley and Eric set sail from Carbonear together early in March of that year, the latter vessel under Captain George Perry with William Tholbert as navigating master.

Before the month was out Captain Perry lost two of his crew; they fell through the ice and went down before assistance could be rendered. As the spring advanced things went from bad to worse, until a storm caught the Eric with her crew on the ice after seals. The floe slacked, and a lake of water was made between the men and their vessel. They were forced to spend the night on the open, doing their best to keep each other alive. The wind dropped at dawn, and a boat from the Eric crossed the lake to take the crew aboard. Many of them were so severely frostbitten that it was deemed advisable to bear up for home.

Overtaken By Storm

Accordingly, Captain Perry secured his position from a passing steamer and shaped his course for Catalina. On April 6 he was overtaken by storm. They were driven so close to land, which proved to be Bird Island, that the ship was forced to run in by the lee side of the island and let both anchors go.

Only a few hundred yards away ran a perpendicular cliff. There was no slightest chance of saving the anchors held. In order to lessen the strain on the chains both masts were cut away and she rode the storm two days.

Men on the mainland came out to look down on the vessel; they could do little else. The people of Bird Island prayed and sang hymns as they waited for the storm to subside.

No ice was to be seen anywhere. Then a "string" appeared on the horizon. It came directly toward the vessel, in around Bird Island until the vessel was hemmed in with it. It reached to part of the mainland where it was possible to make a landing, packed in tight and formed a bridge. Punts were placed on the ice, and uninjured members of the crew hauled their comrades ashore. In safety they reached Bird Island Cove, now renamed Elliston.

On that same day the ice broke up and the Eric was beaten to pieces.

Several of the crew, however, crippled by frostbite, had to be left at the settlement when the crew separated to go to their homes. Not all survived their bitter experience.

The Ridley was overtaken by the same storm in the vicinity of Horse Island, scene of the Viking disaster of 1901. As the ice struck land it "rafted" passing under the Ridley's bottom and heaving her out of water. She lay helpless on her starboard side for 10 days, until the ice slacked and a lake formed. It was in this lake that Captain Sam Bartlett's steamer Micmac appeared, flying distress signals. The Vanguard took her crew aboard just before the Micmac went down.

MANIAC BEATS 3 SMALL GIRLS

One is Killed and Two Others Probably Fatally Injured.

ON WAY TO SCHOOL.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, May 26. (C. P.). — A maniac brandishing a knife attacked three small girls as they were on their way to school to-day, killed one, and probably fatally injured the other two.

The dead girl was Rose Marie Parker, eight years old. The injured were Lena de Sanil, 12, and Elaine Mackin eight. Throats of all of them were cut.

The patrolman, Charles Mischem, heard the children's screams and overtook the man as he fled. The policeman managed to subdue him and held him until a police emergency squad arrived.

The attack was committed in view of scores of pedestrians and motorists on their way to work.

The three girls were believed to be on their way to school. Patrolman Mischem was on traffic duty nearby.

The man pounced on the girl without warning and plunged a knife into her, then attacked the others.

Floodlight On Eros With Varying Color

LONDON, May 26 (By The Canadian Press)—Eros, the God of Love, in Piccadilly Circus, will be the best lighted statue in the most brilliantly illuminated spot in the British Empire when the new electric lighting system in Piccadilly Circus is completely installed. The work has been in progress for some time and is nearing completion.

A dozen lamp-standards 26 feet high and each carrying a 1,500 watt lanterns, will form the outer circle. Four other columns will immediately surround the Shaftesbury Memorial. The four centre columns will be of solid bronze so that they will "weather" to the same color as the basin over which the little love god stands.

When the new lights are switched on the roadways will be illuminated more brilliantly than ever before and Eros and the buildings around the circus will be flooded with light. It is probable that a little later Eros will be given other new glories. The authorities have in contemplation a scheme to bathe the famous figure in changing colors by a system of floodlights concealed beneath the waters of the basin.

Up to 1910 electric arc lamps were used in Piccadilly Circus, but were then superseded by gas, which now gives place again to electricity.

In observance of the 186th anniversary of the Battle of Culloden, people from all parts of the Highlands of Scotland gathered at the battleground recently and placed wreaths at the monument erected to the memory of those who fell fighting for Prince Charlie.
